IT WAS A BLAZE OF GLORY

THE BICYCLE PARADE OF THE CARNIVAL A GREAT SUCCESS.

Thousands of People Witnessed the Spectacle, and Marvelled at the Ingenuity of the Decorated Bicyclists.

The Midsummer Night's Carnival was a great event for Plainfield, and will be long remembered. Bicycles whirled along by tens, yes by hundreds, some bearing weird fantastic shapes and others carrying some choice design, or artistic arrangement of Japanese lanters bunting and ribbons. Crowds of people in holiday attire thronged the sidewalks or stood by the curb to watch the long serpent of gaily decorated bicycles as it wound its body about the smooth streets of the Crescent City of the East. Past the beautiful residences it crawled, through the business section of the city and back among the handsome homes of "Greater Plainfield." On every side, this huge monster was greeted with fireworks, brilliant illuminations and loud applause. Dame nature had smiled on the Carnival for a more delightful night could not have been mode to order. The bright stars over head seemed like a second lantern parade in the firmament above and the cooling breeze wafted the music along until it seemed as if the air were alive with tiny musicians. Loud and clear on eth evening air, even above the delighted multitude, the note of the bugle sounded as the orders of the leader of this mammouth procession were conveyed along the line.

It is not necessary to ask if the Carnival was a success, a brief glimpse at the city when the parade was in its full glory would have answered better than words. Plainfield turned out almost to a man, while visitors from all the neighboring towns crowded the streets until the hour of midnight had almost arrived.

All through the afternoon the advance guard of the crowd began to make its appearance but it was not until the sun was approaching dangerously near the western horizon that the real immigration began. In carriages, from the handsome turnout of the latest style to some old family conveyance, resurrected from the storage barn to carry the family down to see Plainfield's grand Carnval, on bicycles, light racing wheel or cushion tired "ice wagon" and even on foot, they came.

Every road led to Plainfield last evening, at least it seemed to, for thither the crowd that thronged the roads was going.

The parade was advertised to begin at 7:30 o'clock, but at that time the crowd was growing so rapidly that the committee decided to wait until eight o'clock and the change proved a good one. As early as seven o'clock, the cyclists began to congregate around the square in front of the Crescent avenue church.

The forming of the parade last Tuesday night proved excellent practice, and most of the riders understood where they belonged. The number of cyclists rapidly increased, and so did the number of spectators. Everybody wanted to see every other wheel, to the serious interruption of traffic and the general discomfort of Grand Marshal Martin's aides, who were trying to restore order out of the chaos that reigned. At length all was ready, the floats were in line, the lanterns lighted, and all waited expectantly for the signal to start. At last the shrill notes of the bugle announced that the head of the column had started.

In front rode Grand Marshal Martin, closely followed by Sergeant Kiely and Roundsman Mattox, in full uniform, looking as spick and span as anyone could wish. Next came the two buglers, Wm. Pittis, clad in Highland costume, and Earl Stockton. After that came Marshal's aid Louis G. Timpson, at the head of his division, the first, and then followed an interrupted stream of wheels that far excelled in numbers as well as in decoration any previous attempt in Plainfield or vicinity. They probably numbered between five and six hundred. The line of march was one continual ovation.

Most of the residents had their homes decorated with Japanese lanterns or flags and bunting or a charming combination of both. Red fire was used by many and the unearthly hue it imparted to the paraders was in accord with the carnival spirit that prevailed. Nearly everybody decorated to some extent, but in the business portions of the city the decorations were the most elaborate. The Y. M. C. A. building, including Leggett's pharmacy, was fairly transformed from its everydsy appearance into a symphony of red, white and blue. The front of Caspar Hotel was nearly hidden beneath the tricolored bunting, while Randolph's pharmacy was bright with lanterns, bunting and a large American flag. The Babcock building, with all its stores, was artistically decorated with bunting and long tri-colored streamers. There were others whose decorations were equally handsome, for the Plainfield business men stood by the promoters of the carnival most gallantly. Despite the handsome decorations all along the line of march, there was a united expression of pleasure when Watchung Park was reached, for the effect of the many lighted lanterns on the wide verandas of the charming residences there gave a very beatiful sight indeed.

There were so many excellent designs in line that it will be impossible to name them all, but there some that deserve special mention. The first division included the lady cyclists, their escorts and the floats. Close behind Marshal's Aid L. G. Timpson came the couple that caused such a sensation last Tuesday night, Miss Pansy Herring and Frank Flannery, in their costumes of white and powdered wigs. Their wheels were completely covered with white material, while a white canopy was arranged over their heads. They were loudly applauded all the way, and they certainly deserved it, for the get up was an exceedingly pretty one. Miss Eriksen rode in the centre of an arbor of golden rod of a unique design. Miss Vroom made a charming little "Gold Bug" in her fairy-like costume. Dr. Whitehead, of Elizabethport, navigated a dainty little white yacht, built over his wheel, as representing the Alcyone Boat Club, the initials of which were in large silver letters on the sail. Behind him came his brother, Carl Whitehead, of Westfield, who is known in this as the crack bowler and captain of the famous Y. M. C. A. team. He appeared as his "Satanic Majesty" in a handsome costume of red silk with a hideous mask. A canopy was also arranged over his wheel, from the corners of which hung colored lanterns which illuminated this gorgeously appearing Mephistopheles. Another hideous mask shone from the front of his wheel. This design won the prize at the Elizabeth parade Thursday night, and it certainly showed much originality and taste on the part of its owner, for in the glare of the red fire a more effective get up could not have been arranged.

Olaf Sangstad's Punnett Companion was in line with an immense wheel of lanterns above it that was slowly revolved by a lad that stood on one side of the frame while its owner propelled it. U. B. Crane had an immense high hat of assorted colors rigged over the top of his wheel while his youngest daughter followed on a gaily decorated wheel, Randolph's palace on wheels was in this division with E. F. Randolph in his gay court costume inside. H. E. Rider had a prettily decorated tandem propelled by two black faced dudes in white suits and high hats but whose voices betrayed them to be Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and Henry Vosseller. Fred Barker navigated H. E. Rider's other float.

The second division was headed by the Marshal's Aid in charge, Chas. B. Morse, closely followed by Captain Thos A. Cumings of the Y. M. C. A. Cyclers. Costumed after the fasion of ten years ago, he bestrode the "good old ordinary" as he used to do years ago. His appearence was a sign for much applause and laughter. On his left rode First Lieutenant Edward Laing and on his right Louis Moring who acted in place of bugler. He had a large brass gong equal in sound to those of the fire department which very effectively heralded the approach of the club. John Dunn had a very novel arrangement. He was so dressed that he appeared to be riding backwards while a mask on the back of his head and a wig over his face made the impression still more strong. Chas. Dolliver and Raymond Carpenter were two "Yellow Jackets" and were gotten up very creditably. The way in which they waved their wings was excellent.

Over fifty of the Y. M. C. A. Cyclers were in line and then came as many more of the Scott Press Work Club headed by Charles Hall, bearing the club's transparency. Behind him were two remarkable characters. One was a full-fledged "Uncle Sam," represented by John W. Poole, and the other was a foul fiend of strange shape with large illuminated red wings on which was the inscription, "Tell them that you saw me." Like other fiends he had a pair of horns and his tight-fitting costume was of red. Nathaniel Greenridge was the originator and impersonator of this very novel character. All of the riders in this club decorated, many with only lanterns hung from a rod placed across the handle-bars. There were "hayseeds," soldiers, pretty designs and comicalities included, all of whom deserved

FRYING PAN TO THE FIRE

MORTGAGE GIVEN TO ESCAPE DEBTS MAKES STILL MORE TROUBLE.

Mrs. Charles Herman Trying to Get Her Husband's Property, Which His Folly Has Involved Into the Courts.

With wife and father at sword's points and fighting each other in the courts, the family of the late Charles Holodner, alias Charles Herman, is not a happy one. The cause of all this family trouble is a chattel mortgage that young Holodner gave to his father, Benjamin, on July 17, 1895. Holodner lived in this city with his wife and owned a farm lying between Bound Brook and Martinville, which was looked after by his father. Now Mrs. Holodner says that her partner in life was worried over the fact that some of his creditors might sue him and then secure his property. To prevent that, she says, he decided to give his father a chattel mortgage for $1,000 on all his property although no money passed between them.

Two months after, he died but the mortgage remained and then the trouble began. After the funeral, Mrs. Herman, for that was what she was generally known by here, sold her goods in her Plainfield home and went up to the farm to live with her father-in-law. Three weeks ago she took out letters of administration to settle up her husband's estate. George Kirch, the grocer, and Lawyer J. P. D. Kirch were appointed appraisers and visited the farm.

While appraising the stock, a little incident occurred that was told of at the time in the Daily Press. David Herman, brother-in-law to Mrs. Holodner, drove to Plainfield with his wife. The appraisers saw the team and wagon that brought him and started to put a valuation on it. Herman thought something wrong was being done and drove away on a gallop to the surprise and astonishment of Messrs. Kirch.

The next developement in this drama was the notification that the elder Holodner was going to sell the goods and chattels of his late son to to satisfy the mortgage he held. The notice did not reach the office of Mrs. Holodner's lawyer, S. S. Swackhamer of this city, until last Wednesday evening at about six o'clock and the sale was to take place Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. Lawyer Swackhamer tried to get an injunction from Vice Chancellor Emery, of Newark, but could not secure it in time as his witnesses were in Somerville.

There was only one thing to do and that was to try to stop the sale personally. He hurried to the farm, arriving there after about $38 worth of goods had been sold. He startled the auctioneer and would-be bidders by suddenly appearing on the scene and ordering the auction sale to stop at once under threat of legal prosecution. His arguments were effective and the sale stopped.

Yesterday the prelimary proceedings in an ejectment suit were started in Justice Crossley's court by Mrs. Holodner's lawyer with the object of getting possession of the farm. Another suit is soon to be started in the Somerset County circuit court to recover personal property that the elder Holodner still continues to hold. His lawyer is Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville.

Dr. Riggs to Preach.

Rev. James F. Riggs, D. D., who preached so acceptable last summer in Trinity Reformed Church during the absence of the pastor, has been secured by the supply committee of the church to preach during the month of August while the pastor is on his vacation, and he will commence his labor to-morrow morning.

Disciplined a Lieutenant.

Lieutenant Ransom, of the American Volunteers, who had trouble with his subordinates at New Brunswick, has received orders to farewell, it being considered necessary for the good of the service at headquarters. He will farewell tomorrow evening, and on Wednesday will go to Middletown, Conn. Lieutenant Hammill, of Middletown, Conn., will succeed. He is well known in this city.

Street Improvement Goes On.

The work of street improvement in the West End goes steadily on. West Seventh street has only recently been put into excellent shape and then Grant avenue was treated likewise. At present the steam roller is at work on West Front street, leveling the hills and hollows which have marked that thoroughfare for a long time. Liberty street was cleared yesterday of about a foot of mud taken out of the gutters. South Second street is now receiving a cleaning.

GREAT COMMOTION IN THE CRESCENT FLATS THIS MORNING.

G. S. Baker's Family Go On the Excursion and Evidently Intended to Disinfect Their Flat But the Fumes Went All Over

This morning one of the residents of the Crescent flats, Watchung avenue, discovered an unusually large amount of smoke issuing from one of the lower floors, and promptly expressed her opinion that the flats were afire.

Chas. Hand, the landlord, who was at his office a short distance away, was told of the circumstance and, in company with Thomas Buckley, he investigated. They found that the smoke came from the apartments occupied by George S. Baker and family.

By this time the character of the fire made itself known. It was the unmistakable fumes of sulphur and the rest of the tenants were by this time driven to seek a spot where fresh air might be obtained, for the fumes nearly stiffled them as they permeated every nook and corner in the building.

The smoke kept increasing in volume all the time, but no one dared to venture inside for fear of being overcome.

A great crowd had gathered and the report spread that the Crescent flats were on fire. The excitement was at fever heat. Several started to send in an alarm of fire, but were restrained by the cooler heads.

At last Thomas Buckley managed to get inside the apartments by crawling through a window. He successfully carried out several large pans of sulphur which the Baker family had set afire berfore going on the Hope chapel excursion this morning, but for what purpose no one seems to know. As soon as the crowd saw the cause of the commotion it slowly dispersed and the excitement subsided.

DISPUTE OVER OWNERSHIP.

Trying to Secure a Judgment Brings on the Complication.

There is a farm in North Plainfield township of which there is an uncertainty about the owner. Moller & Company, fertilizer dealers, say that G. H. Underwood owns it, while that individual declares his mother is the owner, and Justice Speer, of North Plainfield, will be called on Monday to decide the question.

Some time ago Underwood was sued by the corporation for the value of some fertilizer he had received and never paid for. The company obtained judgment for $120 and secured a levy on the farm. Underwood kindly informs them that they can't touch the farm as it is his mother's. Hence the suit.

Test of Fire Apparatus.

For the first time an exhibition of the American Ball nozzle was given in this city last evening by General Manager Frank W. Hatch and representative G. A. Lauman, of the company. The exhibition was given on Ninth street, between Park avenue and Madison avenue. Another exhibition of the Eastman deluge set was given, and three lines of hose were laid. One from the hydrant at the corner of Park avenue and Ninth street, and the other two from the hydrant at the corner of Madison avenue and Ninth street. The three streams enter one piece of hose, giving an abundance of water and power. A test of the 1½ and 2 inch nozzles were made, and a solid stream was thrown a considerable distance. Representatives of the Plainfield and North Plainfield departments and a large number of people witnessed the exhibition and were highly pleased.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Scott Mutual Aid Association, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty God to remove from our midst our fellow member, friend and shopmate, Harry Scully, who departed this life July 24th, 1896, death resulting from injuries received in the performance of his duties in the shop; be it

Resolved, That in the death of Harry Scully the association loses a loyal and honorable member, and the Scott Printing Machine Company a sober, steady and industrious employe, and his parents a devoted son; be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the Scott Mutual Aid Association extend to his parents our heartfelt sorrow and sympathy in this their hour of trouble and bereavement; be it further

Resolved, That while we deeply depolore the loss of our shopmate, we humbly submit to the will of Him who doeth all things well; be it

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon our minutes and a copy sent to the parents, and that they be published in the daily papers of Plainfield.

TROUBLE OVER A COW.

Noel Was Taking It to the Pound, But Its Owner Objected.

A poor old cow, whose innocent eyes have often looked wonderingly at the passing cyclist, has suddenly become a character of much importance. The animal who has so suddenly risen in life was the cause of an arrest and the consequent trial in the city court this morning. The culprit, if he was one, was Wm. T. Banks, of East Second street, near Netherwood avenue. He was accused of striking Charles Noel, of the latter street, and abusing him. The cow, according to Noel, wandered away last Sunday and finally landed on Noel's property.

That individual started to take the cow to the pound when Mr. Banks and his hired man, Morehouse, appeared on the scene and demanded the cow. Then the statements conflicted, for Morehouse said that Noel tried to push him one side. Noel appealed to Special Officer Stephen R. Hope, but the latter thought that there had been no violence used and would not arrest Banks. Noel made a complaint, however, and Banks was arrested. The cow finally was given to Banks by Noel.

In the trial the most damaging witness against Noel was the young son of Banks. The lad was quite bright and stuck to the story that Noel had gone into the field and wrapped the chain, that held the cow around its horns, despite Noel's cross questioning.

"What was on the end of the chain?" demanded Noel.

"The cow" replied the lad and even the court could not keep a sober face. The Judge reserved his decision for a week.

Plug Hat Men at a Clambake.

The Plug Hat Association of Elizabeth held its annual clambake Thursday at Vreeland's Mills, near Cranford, and over 300 people were present. The Plainfield High Hat Association officers came to the affair in a gaily decorated barouche, and had with them George Thatcher, the minstrel. A delegation was present from the Beethoven Maennechor, of Bethlehem, Pa. Rahway's Tax Receiver, City Clerk and a number of other citizens, including Dr. Randolph and Major King, of the Third Regiment, were likewise at the feast.

A Porch Party.

Ex Councilman and Mrs. V. L. Frazee, of West End Park, gave a delightful porch party at their home Thursday evening. The porch was prettily decorated with bunting and flags, and people not knowing of the affair thought that the carnival was to take place that evening. The guests, about fifteen in number, were mostly from Dunellen and New Market. The evening was one of genuine pleasure, and all will remember the hospitality of the host and hostess.

Fire Bell and Tower to be Accepted.

The Fire Water and Lamps Committee of the borough have practically accepted the fire bell and tower recently erected. It will be officially accepted at the next Council meeting. As a result of the above, Mr. McGann, who has been on duty at the engine house as watchman, was relieved last evening from duty as the month was up. Official action will also be taken in this matter at the next meeting of the Council.

No Council Meeting.

Owing to the non-appearance of the Borough Councilmen last evening, the adjourned meeting was not held. Messrs. Woolston and MacLaughlin were the only ones who materialized and they did not remain long. Several of the Councilmen were away, as was the Mayor, and the balance of the officials were interested in the cycle parade. The Council will meet in regular session next Friday evening.

A Club With Many Initials.

The J. C. S. C. C. Club, composed of young ladies of the West End, met last evening at the home of Miss Lucy Smith, John street. They tranacted business, but what it was, is impossible to say, as the club is a secret organization. After the business had been dispensed with the members enjoyed refreshments and sociability reigned until a late hour.

A Family Quarrel.

A family quarrel was brought up in the city court this morning for Judge DeMeza to settle. Mrs. Ann Nealson was charged by Mrs. Julia Finner with using profane language. The Judge suspended sentence and told them both to go home and behave themselves.

A Great Fall.

Weather Prophet Naegle reports the thermometer as low as 53 this morning. A great fall indeed.

It doesn't matter much whether sick headache, billiousness, indigestion and constipation are caused by neglect or by unavoidable circumstances; DeWitt's Little Early Risers will speedily cure them all. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

PERFIDY AND DECEPTION

JOHN CUFF SEES HIS WIFE BEING HUGGED BY A VISITING COUSIN.

He Starts to Break Up the Cooing and is Thrown Out of the House Which He Attempts to Enter—All Parties in Court.

The city court room was the scene this morning of one of the most ridiculous cases that ever came up for trial in this city. After the Judge and court had been convulsed with laughter by listening to the story of the trouble which proved to be trifling, the Judge brought the fun to a sudden end by discharging the entire crowd, and ordering them not to bring such trivial matters into court. The characters in this little comedy were all colored, most of them residents of West Third street. It was the story of the jealous husband and the deceiving cousins, with variations. Peter Cuff and John Wyckoff are cousins. The former lives on West Third street, and the latter in Philadelphia. Wyckoff has been visiting Cuff, and they were supposed to be great friends. Frank Nelson is a neighbor to Cuff, and he was the one on whom the hand of the law rested, charging him with using profane language to Cuff.

The trouble happened yesterday. Cuff went down town and left his wife and cousin at home. When he returned, they were gone but he saw Wyckoff at Nelson's. Over there he tramped to find them and saw "Gamey" Nelson, as he is called, sitting on the porch. Cuff's articulates rather thick and he has the true negro accent, so his story as told in the court was rather remarkable. According to his story he inquired for Wyckoff and "Gamey" said he wasn't in there. Cuff told him with plain directions that he was not keeping to the truth. Then Nelson began a tirade against Cuff for following his wife when, as Cuff told the court, "I began to suspicion dat she she was 'round too." Nelson went into the house and Cuff crawled up to the window and peeped through the shutters. "It was dark as it could be" Cuff told the court, "but dere dey were, ober in the corner, huggin each udder as tight as they could," and Cuff's face grew blacker still as he thought of his faithless wife and deceiving cousin. They saw him and Cuff started in at the door to be unceremoniously fired out by Nelson.

The latter came out on the porch and, according to Cuff, yelled at Cuff: "You're a sucker, you're a sucker." Then came the arrest.

The characters in this little incident were present at the trial and did not refrain from making personal remarks about each other. The description of the scene in the house had the effect of nearly causing a free fight on the spot.

The Judge didn't wait to hear Nelson's story, but discharged him, warning them all to behave themselves more discreetly in the future unless they were longing for a trip to Elizabeth.

BLAME THE DEAD

Responsibility for the Atlantic City Disaster Placed on Engineer Farr.

THE DISREGARDED THREE SIGNALS

Also Reported That He Had Time To Stop His Train, But Made No Effort To Do So—The Dead Engineer Defended.

Camden, N. J., Aug. 1.—Station master John Bodine of the West Jersey & Seashore railroad says that he learned that Engineer Farr of the Reading train passed three signals all against him before the train crashed into the West Jersey excursion train. The first signal was 2,000 feet away and is known as the distance signal. Then he had to pass a home signal, and finally the block signal at the crossing. Engineer Griner of the excursion train told Bodine that he stopped before reaching the crossing and blew his whistle to get the operator to give him the clear signal. He got a clear signal and started. He could not see the Reading train, but he saw a cloud of dust indicating its approach. Engineer Farr, it is said, had ample time to stop his train, but made no effort. It is also rumored that there was some one in the cab talking to Farr at the time of the accident, but this can not be confirmed.

DEAD NUMBER FORTY-SEVEN.

Latest List of Victims of the Atlantic City Railroad Disaster.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 1.—Up to this morning the death list resulting from the railroad collision of Thursday night numbered forty-seven people and there are forty-four lying in the hospital here more or less seriously hurt. Of the injured in the hospital several are expected to die. Besides those seriously enough hurt to be in the hospital, a score or more of people were bruised and shaken up and went to cottages. The fearful shock of the collision is illustrated in the fact that of the forty-seven dead, forty-two were killed outright. Of the dead, forty-two have been identified and the bodies of three women, one man and a boy are lying at the undertaker's shop awaiting claimants. The responsibility for the accident is hard to place at this time, but the burden of it seems to rest upon the dead engineer of the Reading train, Edward Farr, though his friends assert that an official investigation will clear his name.

The Dead.

The Injured.

The following are the injured from Bridgeton: Howard Woodland, arm broken. Lizzie and Caroline Smalley, arms and legs severely injured. C. D. Wraser and wife, both badly cut on head. Charles Rynick, head cut. Violet Alfred, face and nose fractured. Mrs. Laura Pierce, badly cut head. ex-Judge Hitchman, internal injuries. Albert H. Taylor arm broken. Samuel and Lizzie Mutta, internal injuries. Mrs. E. A. Abbott, Rhodestown, N. J., lower limbs and arm broken. Mrs. M. Keiger, Elmer, N. J., back badly hurt. Jacob Johnson, Shirley, N. J., head hurt and child badly injured. Stanley Wenzell, Alloway, N. J., scalp nearly torn off. Mrs. S. Johnson, Shirley, N. J., shoulder, head and breast bruised. William Simpkins, Salem, head lacerated. Mason North, Philadelphia, back injured. Harry Watson, Yorktown, N. J., leg broken. Mrs. Faunce Fralenger, Philadelphia, broken leg, amputated. K. S. Watson, Yorktown, N. J., arm crushed.

Many Harrowing Scenes.

Crowds still hover around the scene of the wreck, although the railroad workmen have nearly completed the task of clearing away the wreckage. The scenes around the hospital and morgue all day yesterday was indeed harrowing. The first trains from Bridgeton, Salem and the other towns from which the victims of the accident came, brought relatives and friends. Some came with no hope but to take the bodies of their lost ones. Others came in hope and fear, hoping to find the one they sought alive or not badly injured, and dreading to find them dead or dying. The old excursion house at the foot of Mississippi avenue had been turned into a temporary morgue. Here stretched out on the floor in two parallel rows, were the dead in boxes. Some attempt had been made to clean the corpses, but some were half nude, their torn and tattered clothing not covering their limbs and nearly all were horrible mutilated. The body of a woman lacked a head; another an arm; some a hand or foot. Outside the morgue a great crowd was collected and The scenes as the bodies were identified were sad and pathetic beyond words. One will suffice as an example. Among the killed were Joseph Peters and his young son. Mrs. Peters and her daughter came from Bridgeton to look for their relatives. They were taken to the morgue. As the two women came into the room and saw the two rows of pine boxes they shrank back, pale and affrighted. Finally mustering up courage, they were led, trembling, to the first box. As the lid was taken off the mother immediately recognized the bruised and battered face as that of her boy. With a shriek, she tottered and fell forward and would have fallen prone across the coffin if she had not been caught and upheld. Scarcely able to stand and moaning piteously, she was drawn gently towards the second box. Mother and daughter recognized at a glance the husband and father who had left them so happily the morning before. With piteous cries that wrung the hearts of all around, the two grief-stricken women were half carried, half led away.

Victims Near Salem.

Salem, N. J., Aug. 1.—No person so far as known from this place was injured in Thursday night's railroad collision at Atlantic City. Daniel Freas and William Wentzell of Alloway, near here, were killed, and relatives have gone to Atlantic City to bring the bodies home. Samuel and Wentzel of the same place were injured, the former receiving a lacerated wound in the head and the latter a fractured arm.

Scenes at the Hospital.

The scenes at the hospital, to which the injured were taken, were repeated with less acuteness than at the morgue as relatives found those they sought. The character of the train struck is shown in the dead and injured. It was made up of families who had been spending a happy day at the shore and the slaughter among these families was awful. In some instances all were killed in a family, in others, the Wenzell family particularly, some were killed and all the others hurt. The coroner is investigating the disaster, and the inquest will be held on Monday next. Tower Operator Houser was released by the coroner in $500 bail. He refuses to make any statement, and the railroad officials decline to talk. The signals were still set yesterday, showing that Houser certainly set the danger signal when he gave the Reading train the right of way.

CALLERS ON M'KINLEY.

A Delegation of Tin Plate Workers Visits the Republican Nominee.

Canton, O., Aug. 1.—A delegation of about 400 old soldiers and workingmen, mostly engaged in the tin plate industry, from Guernsey county came to Canton yesterday afternoon to call on Major McKinley. They came on a special train and experienced great trouble in getting here, the track below here being under water in several places. This, however, did not chill the enthusiasm of the visitors, and when Major McKinley appeared on the veranda of his home to greet them he was received with prolonged applause and the waving of many flags. Ex-Congressman J. D. Taylor, who served in the house with Mr. McKinley, spoke for the visitors. He was heartily cheered, and when he closed Dr. W. H. McFarland, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Cambridge, was introduced. He is a man who is bowed under the weight of years. He was chaplain of the Ninety-eighth regiment during the war and is very well known throughout the state. He spoke very briefly, saying that he had come to see and hear and grasp the hand of the most illustrious friend of labor in the United States. He ended by grasping Major McKinley by the hand. Mr. McKinley then addressed the visitors. He spoke without manuscript and with unusual emphasis. It was one of the most eloquent speeches he has ever made, and it aroused the enthusiasm of the delegation to the highest pitch.

Hugh Campbell Dead.

Columbus, O., Aug. 1.—Hugh Campbell, one of the iron kings of Ohio, died at his home at Hanging Rock, O., yesterday, aged 86. He was the father of Miss Campbell, whose suit for breach of promise against Arbuckle, the coffee man, brought her into prominence several years ago.

American Pilgrims at Rome.

Rome, Aug. 1.—The party of American pilgrims who are to arrive here today will be met at the railway station by Rector O'Connel of the American college.

TAKE NONE WITHOUT.

THE GIRLS' FRIEND.

A girl of 16 might have her bodice cut low in the neck.

A young lady should not take a gentleman's arm unless he offered it.

All invitations, except those to afternoon teas, require acknowledgment.

White mohair may be made up prettily, even if a rather severe tailor-made design is copied.

Black patent leather slippers would not look well when a white gown and white gloves are to be worn at a dance.

When two gentlemen are walking with a lady it is quite proper for one to be at her right and the other at her left.

I do not consider it proper or wise for a very young girl to attend any place of amusement without a chaperon.

If your hostess answers your ring at the bell leave a card on one of the tables in the parlor just as you are bidding her "good-by."

If a young man is rude enough to bow to you without raising his hat you may, with propriety, look in another direction when you meet him the next time.—Ruth Ashmore, in Ladies' Home Journal.

TOLD OF AUTHORS.

Henry Norman is said to be preparing a book with the modest title: "How I Became a Prophet." It is to be composed chiefly of clippings from his earlier articles.

A play by Moulet-Sully's son-in-law, M. de Lorde, in which the chief part was taken by Mlle. Belot, daughter of the dramatist, was brought out lately with success at the La Bodiniere theater, in Paris.

Christina Rossetti is to have a memorial in Christ church, Woborn square, where she attended for nearly 20 years. It will consist of a series of paintings for the reredos by Sir Edward Burne-Jones.

Harper's Weekly relates this story of the late George W. Childs: "He was at one time solicited by a publishing company to write an authoritative history of Philadelphia. After considerable deliberation he declined, on the ground that as the work would undoubtedly be known as a 'Childs' History of Philadelphia' some unthinking persons might conclude that it was a juvenile work."

SOME "HOMELY" ADVICE.

Eat slowly and conservatively.

If appetite is inclined to run away with itself, don't attempt to follow after.

Let "bad dreams" be buried with the "dead past," without a recital of the uncanny details.

Don't eat fruit out of season—that is to say, neither underdone nor overdone—ripe, but neither raw nor rotten.

Don't speak of the aches and pains of "last night," or of the disappointments or unfortunate occurrences of yesterday.

Think thoughtfully, chat cheerfully, behave beautifully, and don't "move back your chair" with a feeling of stomach heaviness.

Inoculation for Rabies.

It is now proposed that instead of vaccinating persons bitten, as in the Pasteur method, dogs should be inoculated with the virus of rabies, in the hope that they may thereby be made proof against the usual effects of the bite of a mad dog—just as human subjects are vaccinated to make them proof against the ravages of smallpox. The result of researches on this matter undertaken by an eminent Frenchman will be awaited with interest.

Tennessee Boy's Strange Pet.

Master Marvin Fulk, the 12-year-old son of H. B. Fulk, of Memphis, Tenn., captured a young wolf the other day. He saw the mother wolf carrying her young ones across a piece of woodland, and, seeing the boy, she became frightened and ran away, leaving the young wolf among a lot of deadwood. The boy ran up to the spot and captured the baby wolf, and he has one of the most interesting pets in Memphis.

A Very Big Tooth.

The tooth of a mastodon was found in Florida the other day. It weighed over ½ pounds.

How to Live a Century

In an address on old age, recently published in the British Medical Journal, Sir James Crichton Browne, M.D., LL.D., says: "Man is entitled to live one hundred years."

Many men have lived a century and not one of them has ever committed suicide. Note that fact. It is a simple question of wear and repair. Accidents excepted, a human life is measured by the body's power to build itself up as fast as use tears it down. In health this is done.

But disease attacks it. Appetite and digestion fail; strength declines; flesh melts like snow. What can stop the wasting and replace the loss?

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with the Hypophosphites of lime and soda.

It is a body-builder. It is the essence of the elements and principles that feed, nourish, reconstruct. It is fuel fat for the vital fire; it makes red blood; it stops the wasting; it puts back the lost flesh.

Hence its brilliant results in cases of anaemia, bronchitis, chronic gastric and intestinal disorders and consumption. The oil (easily digested and assimilated) forms flesh and tissue; while the lime promotes the growth of bone. It is like an architect in wood, in stone and in iron—all at once.

In Scott's Emulsion the taste of the oil is fully disguised. It does not nauseate the most delicate stomach.

No other emulsion is "just the same as," or "as good as" Scott's. There is a radical difference.

Accept no substitute.

WAR ON "SOCIAL CLUBS."

One Plan of Evading the New York Liquor Law To Be Contested.

Albany, Aug. 1.—The hundreds of so-called social clubs which have been incorporated with the secretary of state since the Raines liquor tax law has been in force will soon be exposed by an investigation to be conducted by the state excise department. These clubs are formed either to evade paying a liquor tax or to enable saloonkeepers to sell on Sunday. From May 1 to Aug. 1, 1895, there were incorporated only 176 clubs, while during the same period this year the number of clubs incorporated aggregated 1,450. Some of these clubs, of course, are bona-fide organizations. Seven-eighths of them, however, were established with the sole purpose of endeavoring to get around the provisions of the Raines law which prohibits Sunday selling by the saloons. Nearly all of these clubs are located in New York and Brooklyn, while about seventy-five have been incorporated to operate in Buffalo, and a few in the other cities of the state. The name of not one prominent lawyer in New York or Brooklyn is attached to the incorporation papers of these clubs. State Excise Commissioner Lyman has had his inspectors looking into the operation of these clubs. They find that many of them are in rooms over a saloon, having the saloonkeeper as president of the club, the bartender for secretary and the "look-out" as the third incorporator. These clubs were organized for the sole purpose of enabling the saloonkeeper to sell liquor on Sunday, by removing a portion of his stock of liquors from the saloon to the club room above on Saturday night. The clubs do business only on Sunday and during other prohibited hours. As soon as all of the sixty special agents are appointed, Commissioner Lyman will institute a thorough investigation of these clubs and he is determined that they shall all be weeded out and their promoters dealt with to the fullest extent of the law.

PRESENT FOR CLEVELAND.

The President Thanks a Maryland Man for a Horse-hair Fishing Line.

Easton, Md., Aug. 1.—Andrew F. Wilson of this town, an ardent admirer of President Cleveland, recently made by hand and sent to the president a horse-hair fishing line. It was a unique as well as a practical gift. In acknowledgement he has received the following autograph letter from the president:

"Andrew F. Wilson: Dear Sir—I have received the horse-hair fishing line you sent me, and sincerely thank you for it, though I confess I hardly think you should have spent so much time in making a gift for me. I shall, however, show my appreciation by testing it and proving its quality in actual use. Yours truly,

"GROVER CLEVELAND."

A DARING DESPERADO.

The Providence Bicycle Robber Holds Up Another Man in His Flight.

Providence, Aug. 1.—It has been learned that the bicycle thief and desperado who leaped through Dawson & Co.'s show window Thursday and shot two of his pursuers, after leaving this city held up William B. Beach, second bookkeeper for the White Coal company, on the road from Crescent park and at the point of a revolver made him hand over his bicycle. The desperado then mounted the wheel and headed for Taunton. Beach was compelled to walk home, a distance of several miles.

Sentenced for Cruelty to Natives.

Berlin, Aug. 1.—Friedrich Schroeder, general manager of the German East African Plantaga company, who was recently arrested and sent in irons to Tanga by order of the imperial court of the latter place, upon charges of exercising cruelty to natives, has been convicted and sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment at hard labor.

Judge George M. Carpenter Dead.

Providence, Aug. 1.—Word has been received here that judge George M. Carpenter of the United States district court for the district of Rhode Island, died yesterday of paralysis of the heart, in Holland, where he was traveling.

CHOLERA IN EGYPT

Now Beyond the Control of Sanitary Authorities.

THE PESTILENCE INCREASING RAPIDLY

Outbreaks in Many Different Places—Seventeen Hundred Deaths Reported in Six Days and Over Eight Thousand Deaths Have Already Occurred.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Advices received at the marine hospital from Alexandria, Egypt, show that the cholera outbreak there has got beyond the control of the sanitary authorities. For nine months they fought the disease with energy, and as long as the infected areas were small the limited force of European doctors were sufficient to handle it. Now, however, the dimensions of the outbreak forbid any successful attempt to stamp out the disease. The report dated July 11 says: "I find that during the week before last fresh outbreaks occurred in sixty-nine different places and last week in eighty-seven. During the seven days up to the first of July, 1,200 deaths were reported, and in the following six days 1,700 deaths. So far 8,069 deaths have occurred from the present outbreak and it is feared that these figures will be largely increased before the disease runs its course.

MGR. SATOLLI'S SUCCESSOR.

Brief Sketch of the Career of Father Martinelli, the New Papal Delegate.

Rome, Aug. 1.—Father Sebastian Martinelli, prior general of the Augustinians, whose appointment to succeed Mgr. Satolli as papal delegate to the Roman Catholic church in the United States has been announced, was born at Lucca, capital of the provinces of the same name, in 1838. He entered the Augustinian order in 1863 and was consecrated a priest in 1871. He was made rector of the Irish college in Rome in 1873 and prior general of the Augustinians in 1889. In 1893 Father Martinelli visited the United States, remaining in the country three months, a part of which time he spent at the Augustinian convent at Bryn Mawr, Pa. He is a master of the English language. When first informed that he had been elected to succeed Mgr. Satolli, Father Martinelli refused to accept the appointment, but after being summoned into the presence of the pope yesterday, and being informed by his holiness that he personally desired him to go to America, Father Martinelli consented.

ATTEMPTED STAGE ROBBERY.

A Blow from the Butt End of the Driver's Whip Frightens Away the Bandits.

Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 1.—News has been received here of an attempt which was made yesterday near a swamp to hold up the stage that runs between Gouveneur and Rossie. The driver, Everett Sayer, says that he noticed two men on the road ahead of his team whose actions aroused his suspicions. He quietly drove along until opposite the two men when a third party was seen among the bushes. This man seized one of the lines and the driver struck him across the forehead with the butt end of a large loaded whip. The man was knocked insensible and with blood streaming from a wound on his forehead he was picked up by his companions and carried into the bushes. The stage then proceeded and reached its destination safely. If the hold-up had been successful the robbers would have secured but little booty as there was not much mail on board at the time. It is thought that these men belong to the same gang that stole a quantity of cheese near Dekalb a few weeks ago and who held up Mr. Whittaker, a cattle buyer, near Hammond last Tuesday, but secured nothing.

Loss of the Schooner Benson.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Minister Caruth at Lisbon has sent the state department a report made by the governor of Portuguese Guinea regarding the total loss of the American schooner Gracie H. Benson of New Bedford at Cacheo, from which it appears that the pilot, Theophilo d'Andrade, was arrested charged with intentionally losing the vessel, but was acquitted by the court at Bolama, Cape Verde.

Gold Deposited in New York.

New York, Aug. 1.—Deposits of gold in the sub-treasury by banks during the past twenty-four hours were $50,000 by the National Butchers and Drovers' bank; $35,000 by the New York National Exchange bank, and $10,000 by the Nineteenth Ward bank, a total of $85,000, which makes the grand total of deposits to date $18,250,000.

An American Ship Stranded.

Batavia, Island of Java, Aug. 1.—The American ship S. D. Carlton, Capt. Amesbury, from New York on April 23 for Shanghai, has been aground on Panjang reef. She was leaking badly when floated, but her commander hopes she will be able to proceed to her destination.

Governor Griggs opines that New Jersey will give a Republican plurality of 70,000 for McKinley and Hobart.

Michigan has passed a law fixing a heavy penalty upon railroad companies for the employment of persons addicted to the use of intoxicants.

The bicycle parade should be made one of the annual features of the summer season in Plainfield. Born in the mind of one man, and nursed only a week by a few enthusiasts, it attracted thousands whose one voice was that of praise, and though at first rebuked by lightning, thunder and rain, it ignored the setback and blossomed out in a blaze of glory and made Plainfield a gala town.

The Supreme Court of California has handed down a decision that S. D. Worden, who stands proven guilty of wrecking a train at Sacramento two years ago and causing the death of the engineer and three United States soldiers, was lawfully and justly condemned to death and must be hung. Some people with diseased minds who think that men on a strike have a right to destroy property and kill people with perfect immunity have been fighting Worden's condemnation for a long time and now receive a lesson by which others as well as themselves may profit.—Rochester Union.

Once before The Press has called attention to the eggregious blunder of Editor Runyon in subscribing for a cheap boiler-plate cartoon service and palming it off on his readers as a piece of enterprise. That time it was a characteristic caricature from a Democratic standpoint ridiculing the claims of the Republicans. Since he professes great belief in the theory and practice of the Republican party, and uses his paper to advance those principles, the publication of the cartoon, in the parlance of the street, "put him in a hole." He tried to crawl out of his inconsistent position by printing an apology for the blunder in the same issue that it appeared. But it made him the laughing stock of the community. "Last Wednesday the public was treated to another exhibition that was even worse than the first. It was the publication of an alleged joke illustrated with a gaudy picture. The illustration was such as grace many of the periodicals which are barred from every respectable family. The remarks underneath were of the most suggestive tone. In times gone by Editor Runyon has posed as the moral censor of the community, but now he is seen as a rank offender.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Newhall, who have been stopping at the Murray Hill Hotel in New York, will spend sometime at Seabright.

Dr. F. C. Ard, of Park avenue, returned home from Long Branch yesterday. He will leave the first of next week for the Adirondacks.

Frank Runyon, formerly of the United States Express Co., has secured a steady position as baggagemaster on the Central Railroad.

Mrs. R. C. Mills and Miss Gertrude Mills, of Middletown, N. Y., who have been visiting the family of E. N. Mills, of East Second street, have returned home. Miss Fannie Mills accompanied them.

Overseer of the Poor George E. Marx, leaves town Monday for Allentown, Pa., where he will join the Allentown Batallion of the Boys' Brigade on their annual camping trip to Bittersville, Pa., from August 3d to 8th inclusive.

Many a day's work is lost by sick headache, caused by indigestion and stomach troubles. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are the most effectual pill for overcoming such difficulties. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints.—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Frederickstown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. For sale by T. S. Armstrong. Druggist.

"Boys will be boys," but you can't afford to lose any of them. Be ready for the green apple season by having DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure in the house. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

SKETCH OF ASA COLLIER

ONE OF THE OLDEST BUSINESS MEN IN PLAINFIELD.

Was Located in One Spot for Twenty-three Years—He is a Prominent and Active Mason and a G. A. R. Man.

There is scarcely a man in Plainfield who is better known than Asa Collier, the Park avenue jeweler, and today The Daily Press presents an excellent picture of him. Mr. Collier was born in Concord, Mass., several years ago, and when old enough he learned the jeweler's trade with his father, who had been in the business sixty years at that place.

When a young man he entered in the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment at the outbreak of the war. He served his full time as a private and never failed in his duty.

After the war he came to Plainfield in 1869, and opened a jewelry store in the building occupied by Ayres Leeson, furniture dealer. He remained there some time and finally moved in the building at the corner of Front street and Park avenue before it was entirely completed. He was the first tenant and remained there twenty-three years, until last May when he moved to his present store on Park avenue, which is among the handsomest in town.

Mr. Collier has taken a lively part Plainfield affairs and has watched with a peculiar interest the growth of the city. When he first came here there was not a single sidewalk laid, and the town was very scarce of houses. The only man who has remained continuously in business in this city for twenty-seven years, like Mr. Collier, is Gerome Pack, of Park avenue.

Mr. Collier is an active member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26; Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24; Trinity Commandery, No. 17, of this city; Jersey City Consistory; Mecca Temple, Mystic Shrine, of New York; and also of Major Anderson Post, No. 109 G. A. R., of which he is a past commander. He is also first vice-president of the Philadelphia Retail Jewelers' association, and treasurer of the National Retail Jewelers' Association.

Notwithstanding that Mr. Collier is associated largely in society affairs, he is thoroughly attached to his home and family and he can usually be found there out of business hours.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Titsworth, of Dunellen, is the guest of Plainfield friend today.

M. M. Dunham and family have gone to South Branch for a few days.

George Van Nest, of West 206th street, New York, is visiting on Liberty street.

Mrs. Geo. Tobin, of West Seventh street, is slowly improving from her severe illness.

J. T. Baker and family, of Stelle avenue, left today for the Peninoula House, Seabright.

A. D. Shespard and family, of East Front street, are stopping at Southhampton L. I., for the summer.

M. D. Brown, of East Fourth street, has returned from Manasquan, where he has been stopping for his health.

Charles Hall, of Armstrong's pharmacy, starts Monday morning on a two weeks vacation. One week he will spend at Asbury Park and the other he will enjoy on a wheeling trip.

William G. Gray, of Grant avenue, arrived home yesterday after a four months' absence in Bridgeport, Conn., where he has been working in the electric car shops. He will remain in town over Sunday.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a meeting of the Germania Beneficial Society held on Tuesday, July 22d, 1896, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, We have lost by death our late member and brother, Eugene Hoerster, therefore be it

Resolved, That this society has lost one of its most esteemed and faithful members, who will be remembered with loving hearts far beyond his grave.

Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy and brotherly love.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the two Plainfield daily papers and a copy sent to the bereaved family.

Joe Haurand,
W. Wisniisky,
Otto Keller,
Committee.

—Hackman Michael Kennedy retracted his plea of guilty and pleaded non vult in the city court this morning. C. B. VanWinkle appeared for Kennedy. Sentence was suspended.

NAY PEN'S OBSERVATIONS.

It is said that familiarity breeds contempt, but I can put no faith in the kind that some electrical experts proclaim when they say that it is possible for a man who is engaged in working about death-dealing wires to receive double the shock uninjured to what an ordinary individual could stand. Even in Plainfield the last few days we have seen two instances of where it was hazardous work, and according to the philosophy of the sage who enunciated the above thought, if a person whose business did not call them to constantly run such risks had received the shock they would have been deader than a door nail instanter.

* * * * * *

Did you ever give any thought to how much real financial benefit Plainfield will reap from the conventions that are to be held in this city this year? If there are anywhere near as many people present at the annual field day of the Knights Templar as is anticipated, the sum that will be reaped by the business men will reach between $10,000 and $15,000. The following week will come the State convention of the Christian Endeavorers and the expenditures of the delegates from which we will all receive more or less benefit ought to go far ahead of that sum. Then in December follows the annual exhibition of the Poultry and Pigeon Association, and that will attract attendance from all over the State. Besides these there have already been held several small assemblages and there will be more yet to come. Taken altogether, it will make a small-sized fortune, and yet the work of making it possible has devolved on a mere corporal's guard in each case. But all our hearts over flow with thankfulness, and if we haven't labored in the preliminaries we certainly will in the details.

* * * * * *

Steve Hope, the veteran janitor of Bryant school, who knows whereof he talks, says there is no use kicking about the high fence in front of the school property, because it is going to stay there. I asked Steve this morning why the fence should remain when none of the other school properties were thus marked, and he said: "Well they hain't got no such boys around them as there is up there." Steve avers that even a fence six feet high has but little fear to the usual ubiquitous and mischevious youngsters and if there was no fence at all it would take a squad of soldiers with eyes in both sides of their heads to guard the school building and prevent a horde of juveniles from making its nooks and corners a rendezvous for plotting schemes and triks to tease the unwary individual.

to those suffering from catarrh or the thousands subject to severe attacks of cold in the head, will not be amiss if a sure remedy can be offered. Ely's Cream Balm has become a favorite in all sections of the United States, because of its effectiveness. Your cold in the head will be quickly relieved by it, and the severest attack of catarrh will yield to, and be perfectly cured by a thorough treatment. Catarrh is not a blood disease, but inflammation of the passages of the nose and throat, due to climatic changes.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Expressman Rickert has just received a new horse.

—Rogers, the sea-food dealer, has a horse ill with the colic.

—Seeing is believing. Edward Love has one of the finest stocks of wall paper in the State.

—The Junior Society of Warren chapel will enjoy a picnic in Hyde's woods Tuesday afternoon.

—That objectionable stench on East Fourth street caused by malt has not yet been removed.

—Hold on—to a good thing when you find it That is why so many of Peck's customers are old friends.

—The mail train, which is due in this city about noon, did not reach here yesterday until about 4 o'clock.

—A special business meeting of the First Church of Christ will be held at the Liberty Street mission Wednesday evening.

—A lantern with red glass has been placed on the rear of the hook and ladder truck as a warning of danger when going to fires.

—South avenue, between Berkman street and Woodland avenue, is being put into excellent shape by a dressing of crushed stone.

—The new issue of $125,000 4½ per cent. bonds of the city of Orange has been bought by the Sinking Fund Commissioners of Essex county at 100.51.

—Rev. W. F. Cable, of London, England will officiate at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock and administer the Holy Communion.

—Coddington and Ackerman, seafood dealers, have a fine supply of all kinds of fresh fish. They have the largest porgies in town. Don't forget the special sale today.

—Next Tuesday, Augugt 4th, the Royal Arcanum of New Jersey will celebrate its annual field day at Asbury Park. It is estimated that there will be from 12,000 to 15,000 visitors in Asbury Park on that day.

—The funeral of Joseph Beach, whose death occurred yesterday morning, will be held tomorrow morning from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, 215 East Second street, at 9 o'clock. The interment will be at Rahway.

—Patrick Kellegher, the electric light lineman, who was so seriously injured by falling from a pole while arranging the workings of a converter on West Third street, recently, is rapidly recovering from the injuries sustained. Those in attendance, however, report him not yet out of danger.

—It required about two-thirds of the entire police force to keep the crosswalks clear at Front street, Park avenue and Somerset street during the carnival last evening, besides keeping an eye on pedestrians who persisted in standing on the tracks of the street railway. Several narrow escapes were noticed on the line, but there were no serious accidents.

Frank B. Kleinhans, of Easton, who has been visiting Clifford Braider, of Manning avenue, returned home last evening.

Miss Clara Hoffman, of Lebanon, Hunterdon county, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Randolph, of West Front street.

John H. Doane, of LaGrande avenue, left today for Moscow, Pa., where he will join his family, who are summering there.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Mrs. Rhodie Noah, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of blackberry cordial but got no relief. She then sent to me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and diarrhoea Remedy and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhoea but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by T. S Armstrong, Druggist.

NEW CENTRAL FREIGHTHOUSE TO BE OCCUPIED NEXT MONDAY.

Then Will Commence the Work of Removing the Old Structure and the Construction of a New Passenger Station.

What has been every progressive Plainfielder's anticipation for the last six months will be his realization next Monday when the freight department of the Jersey Central Railroad will move into their new quarters at Berckman street and North avenue. Then will follow the immediate removal of the old freighthouse from its present site and the commencement of the preliminary work for the erection of a new passenger station and laying out of a picturesque park.

Everything is in readiness at the commodious structure which has been erected in the east end of the city and the office staff, under the superintendency of Station Agent Haines, will close their business at the old standby tonight and the books and other office paraphernalia will be transferred so as to open up business in the new house next Monday morning. The details of the new structure have already been described in The Press.

Monday morning a gang of men will start at work at the old house making preparations to remove the structure to the corner of Central avenue and West Third street, where the company have acquired a piece of property for the purpose of locating the building and intend to establish a branch freight department for the local traffic. The foundation will be undermined and the structure loaded on to several cars and moved over the track to its new home. This work will be done as readily as possible, and when finished an assistant freight agent will be put in charge there, though Station Agent Haines will have supervision over both offices.

Merchants can have their freight delivered to whichever house they desire.

DUNELLEN.

Why does not Dunellen provide a lockup so that in case of emergency their officers would have a place to hold their prisoners? Dunellen being well governed it appears that they are lacking in this one important thing. The cost would not be exhorbitant and in case of arrest at night it is not to be supposed that a justice or officer can always be on hand to attend such cases and then the person can be locked up until morning. This thing has been agitated before, but it seems to be a dead letter. Since the trolley has come to town more disorderly conduct and nuisances, especially on Saturday and Sunday evenings, have occurred. A lockup is needed and why do the citizens not look into this matter and ask the Mayor and Common Council to build one.

ELLEN OSBORN'S LETTER.

The Fashions of Spring Shading Into Summer Airiness.

Ready for the Summer Resorts—Pretty Wedding Innovations, Yachting and Outing Ideas and Afternoon Toilets.

[COPYRIGHT, 1896.]

There is the present; and it is golf, bicycle, driving—and golf.

There is the future; and it is weddings, yachting, Newport, more golf and more weddings.

And the gowning of the present and the future is the gossip of to-day. I have noticed:

That the new sleeve is not carrying all before it, or, rather, the new sleeve differs not so widely from the old as, in its braver youth, it made threats to do.

That many bridesmaids in June will wear, as did many in April, big hats piled high with plumes and fastened by enormous bow ties of white tulle under the chin.

That bridesmaids' gowns of pink satin brocade, with bodices of pink chiffon, for maids all brunettes, will march harmoniously with a bridal gown of the usual white satin and point lace.

That the prettiest opera gown taken from New York to London for the end of the season there was in brocaded satin of pale blue and silver with straps of very deep blue velvet over the shoulders supporting the very low corsage.

That one of the prettiest bonnets of the late spring is a huge butterfly bow, jutting far over the ears on either side and recalling the pretty Dutch bonnets of some time ago.

That the short British driving jacket shaped like a soapbox has been smartened by Parisian genius into a very creditable garment, slightly shaped to the figure, though not close, and fitted with voluminous fancy lapels. In other words, it is the same thing, yet absolutely different.

That the starched shirt waist, or shirt waist front, barred across in Sing Sing fashion, white stripes on blue or pink, or the reverse, and with barred buttons, is as smart as it is unlovely, and will be this year a considerable favorite.

That a very chic, shapely hat, quite low crowned, recalls by its shape the "beefeater" and hourglass chapeaux of last year. It is as if the high hourglass crown had been smashed half way down with a brick, when it became the beefeater shape; the next brick flattens it to an inch or so in height and produces a flat crowned hat, which, with three "ich dien" plumes on the left, rising from a jungle of ribbon bows, is very pretty.

That a boating or yachting hat, plaited in dark blue straw, has such a wide, low crown, a wide brim, a lace bow in front, held by a buckle, small black and white feathers and a wreath of roses and ivy leaves.

There are everywhere round skirts with plain fronts and godets over the hips; the art of skirt cutting has almost been revolutionized within the last few years. The front breadth is cut flat and quite wide, the fullness being all provided for behind, where it is screened by the skirts of a short jacket, or by the basque bob-tails so many gowns now show. A very smart variety of jacket comes square to the waist line on either side, drops in two moderate points in front and at the back overflows in a short but decisive swallow-tail. Such a jacket has cuffs with points to match the front, flat gold buttons, a moderate lapel, and is worn over a starched shirt front. For instance, a dark-green jacket over a white front striped with lighter green. Or a dark-blue jacket may be worn over a shot blue or white soft vest.

Starched fronts may have their unlovely lines disguised by a fichu of soft lace falling from the collar and thrust cravatwise into the open front. Such vests have visible buttons only about half way up, to leave plenty of room for the fichu.

Skirts are still mainly plain, but there are slight ebullitions of rebellion from the mode. Many otherwise obedient, indulge themselves in rows of conspicuous stitching about the bottom.

Another device is winked at by Dame Fashion. Let there be a jacket made, say of almond green or some shade no darker. Let the jacket curl out at the hips in those saucy little basque tails so commonly worn. Let the waist be of very pale Nile green muslin or of silk, pale green shot with pale pink. Then let there be upon each lapel six, and upon each cuff three, and at the seams of the dress in front on each side three more extremely military looking tabs of dark-green velvet. Upon a trim figure the effect is rather smart and military.

The conduct of a woman on shipboard is a subject impossible to predict; the weather makes a difference, don't you know. But it is easier to foresee that she will go abroad for her annual trip to the London Mecca of the fashionables with at least the determination to be charming during every hour of the voyage when she is visible. Hence she trips up the gang-plank in all the glory of picture, hat and fluttering ribbons; but when the plank is drawn she goes below, to bob up serenely in a long minute with her curls tucked away under a jaunty cap, and a plain, close skirt. I have seen some lovely ones in mixed greens, varying from light threads to almost black—and with a trim-waisted jacket. What agonies one must suffer in tight corset and tight, high collar on shipboard, those who've tried it know; but "to be beautiful one must suffer," as the French philosophers say, and there is nothing to add.

The fashionable grass linen, very plainly and severely made up, furnishes an ideal summer gown for knockabout use, a return, too, to the linen dresses so sensible a few years ago.

The leather belt is this year shrinking into more modest size while its substitutes expand in width. Draped belts of satin and velvet are prime favorites; narrow leather belts, when still worn, have to be decked with jewels and set with dainty buckles to be quite smart. Narrow gold belts are as common as last year wider ones were.

Canvas is almost as popular a summer material as grass linen; indeed, is often used with it, the canvas for skirt, the linen for bodice. White alpaca and white serge daintily vary the prevailing browns and yellows. Batistes and grenadines are to be much worn.

For bicycle riding, use a short skirt. The bloomers would be in every way better if reason ruled, but in the matters of attire feminine reason doesn't.

The burnished iris of a shot silk would seem almost lovely enough of itself, but the capricious fancy of the present spring demands a mixture of three colors or preferably with figures and flowers dotting their changing sheen.

For children, girls as well as boys, there's nothing more pretty and modish than a sailor suit with perhaps a boatswain's cord and whistle worn loosely about the neck.

The parasol of figured or shot silk is more frequently seen in comparatively plain makes as summer nears and renders a shade really necessary.

Jackets and waists still have the stick-outy effect at the hips reminiscent of basque days.

Flowered silk waists are in demand for hot weather afternoon and informal evening wear. ELLEN OSBORN.

Roman Theaters, 1860.

The theatrical entertainments were very good, and the cost of attending them was exceedingly small. While in the leading theaters in London or Paris there is usually one great actor or singer who overshadows the rest of the company, in Italy all the actors were more nearly on the same level. Many an evening we have enjoyed an Italian play or opera at the modest cost of a lira (ninepence-halfpenny). In the summer time when the Apollo and the Valle were closed the Correa was opened in the Mausoleum of Augustus; there was no roof to it but the sky. The performance began at five and ended at eight or half-past. The price of a chair in the pit was a lira, and there was no objection to a cigar. The last time we were there the play was Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet." The acting was excellent, and the text of Shakespeare translated into Italian was closely followed. In the Italian theaters then you could for a lira have seen Ristori and Salvini in the same plays as they performed in London, where gold had to be paid for entrance.—Chambers' Journal.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

ORIGIN OF A QUEER PHRASE.

Lawyers Have Expressions Not Understood by the Common Herd.

Among the many strange expressions used in the legal fraternity is that of "horse-shedding." It refers to the preliminary examinations of witnesses before putting them on the stand. There has been much discussion as to the origin of the term, but Congressman Grosvenor gives the following explanation, which certainly sounds reasonable: "In days gone by the Ohio courts held sessions at different county seats at certain periods known as court terms. To accommodate the large crowds of litigants and witnesses who would flock in from points for miles around the county seat when court was in session, the county authorities erected sheds near the courthouse, where the litigants and their witnesses could tie and feed their horses while they attended court, and these sheds became known as horse sheds.

"Now, owing to the limited space of the courtrooms, the lawyers who always traveled with the court, were unable to hold a private conversation with their clients and witnesses inside the walls, and so they used to take them under the horse sheds and there talk matters over with them. Among the attorneys who attended court at Chester, the county seat of Meigs county, on one occasion were Tom Ewing and Samuel F. Vinton. The court was ready to go on with the case in which the two noted attorneys were retained as opposing counsel, when it was discovered that Vinton was not present. The court looked carefully around and then asked: 'Where is Mr. Vinton?' 'I don't know, your honor,' said Ewing, rising to his feet, 'he is not here, but he is probably outside horse-shedding his witnesses.' This remark raised a general laugh, and thereafter the word horse-shedding a witness passed into popular parlance."—Washington Post

EXTREME HEAT IN ST. LOUIS.

Several Prostrations and an Alarming Increase in the Death Ratio.

St. Louis, Aug. 1.—Six persons succumbed to the terrific heat in this city yesterday. The death ratio is increasing at an alarming state, and only cool weather will bring relief. Since six days ago the maximum temperature has registered at the government office at 99 degrees and the minimum has been 86 degrees. As this record is taken nearly 100 feet above the sidewalks it does not show the actual state of the thermometers in the working districts, many of which have registered as high as 107 degrees. An alarming state of mortality statistics is shown in the returns from the Bethesda home, which states that twenty-two babies have died during the past two weeks as the result of the terrific heat.

Two Heat Prostrations at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 1.—Yesterday was the hottest day of the season, the thermometer registering ninety-four degrees at noon. There were two prostrations from the heat, one of them being J. B. Dillon, an assistant observer at the weather bureau.

Her Impression.

Papa (just arrived from downtown)—Well, where's Bessie? Why isn't she running to meet me, as usual?

Mamma—Bessie has been naughty and disobedient. I have had to deprive her of her playthings, and she has been weeping bitter tears in her own room for the last half hour.

Voice of Bessie (from adjoining room)—Tears ain't bitter! They're salt!—Chicago Tribune.

Knew Her Manners.

"It was shocking to see the way Miss Babble whispered," said Maud.

"Yes," replied Mamie. "If she had any breeding at all she would know it is impolite to whisper in company. I never think of doing such a thing."

"Neither do I. If I have anything to say that I don't want to have overheard I wait until somebody gets up to sing or play the piano."—Washington Star

"The Hopkins family has quit taking ice."

"What's that for?"

"Couldn't agree on whose duty it was to get up early and identify it before it melted."—Chicago Record

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

A POLITICAL CENTRE

Washington Now a City of Headquarters.

ALL PARTIES REPRESENTED THERE

Rumored That Senator Gorman Is To Aid Chairman Jones—Growing Impression That the Populists Will Name Another Presidential Candidate.

Washington, Aug. 1.—The democratic headquarters of the congressional campaign committee are located in the building adjoining Wormley's hotel; the republican headquarters of the congressional campaign committee are located at the hotel Normandie. The national committee of the silver party have engaged rooms in the Corcoran building. The people's party has rented rooms for its national committee at 1,420 New York avenue and it is positively asserted by friends of Senator Jones, chairman of the national committee of the democratic party, that he has decided to procure quarters here that will accommodate not only his own committee but also the committee of the democratic allies—the silver and people's party men. Thus Washington outranks itself as a political centre. There is much to be said in favor of this arrangement. The Capital city is conservative; it has every facility for campaign work and every side of the political question is assured equal prominence from a news view point. Lawrence Gardiner, secretary of the league of democratic clubs, has charge of the democratic congressional headquarters, while Congressman Babcock of Wisconsin is at the helm at the republican congressional rooms. Mr. Turner of Georgia will have charge of the headquarters of the people's (populistic) party and A. H. Pile will be temporarily in charge of the silver party headquarters. A mass of literature is being mailed daily from these respective points, presenting arguments on all sides and covering every phase of the political questions of the day.

Gorman May Aid Jones.

There is a well-grounded rumor afloat that Senator Gorman will give Senator Jones (dem.) the benefit of his counsel and advice provided the national committee establishes itself in Washington. The Maryland senator's country seat being at Laurel, Md., less than an hour's ride from Washington, such an alliance might be very conveniently and pleasantly worked. It is a well known fact that many public men who have been thrown into a quandary as how to proceed during the coming campaign have consulted Mr. Gorman, and that others intend doing so before they settle upon their course of procedure.

Indications of a Third Nominee.

There appears to be a growing impression in this neighborhood that the "middle-of-the-road" populists will eventually place a presidential candidate in the field. Those in position to know insist that Mr. Bryan will not accept the terms of the populist platform, and that Mr. Sewall has no intention of yielding to Mr. Watson, which points in the controversy would appear to indicate a third presidential nominee. Many "middle-of-the-road" men say that this nominee must be Tom Watson of Georgia, while others maintain that Mr. Norton, the "middle-of-the-road" candidate for president, should receive their support. Before leaving Washington for North Carolina Dr. Mott, ex-chairman of the national silver party, expressed the opinion that there should be no trouble about fusing on electoral tickets, and in response to the query, "Do you believe that Watson or Sewall will come off of either ticket?" he said he had no idea what would be done in that direction, but even if each refused to get out of the other's way he did not see why that should cause much trouble. He believed that an agreement could be reached by which the candidate for vice-president receiving the largest vote would be united upon in the electoral college, conceding, of course, the claim of the silver men that they will have a majority in the electoral college. So if Sewall gets a majority of the votes cast in November, the populist electors will vote for him. On the other hand, if Watson gets a majority, the democrats will vote for him.

General Fusion Not Expected.

There are no present indications that the democratic leaders anticipate a general fusion with the populists, while such people's party representatives as Peffer, Simpson and Allen have said that Bryan will receive the votes of the people's party in the west, no matter what may be the result of the tangle over the second place. Large clerical forces have already been employed by the several headquarters, and it is probable that these will be materially strengthened as the campaign progresses.

TAMMANY FOR BRYAN

Resolutions Adopted Endorsing the Chicago Ticket.

THE PLATFORM IS NOT MENTIONED

Ex-Chairman Harrity Retires from Politics—Congressman McCreary Says He Will Not Desert His Party Even If the Platform Is Not Acceptable.

New York, Aug. 1.—At a meeting of the executive committee of Tammany Hall yesterday afternoon the following resolution, which was offered by John C. Sheehan, was adopted by a vote of 71 to 4: "Resolved, that the executive committee of the democratic organization of the city and county of New York in regular meeting assembled in Tammany hall does hereby accept and approve the nomination of William J. Bryan of Nebraska and Arthur Sewall of Maine as the wise determination of the democratic national convention recently held in Chicago, and we pledge our loyal and hearty support of their candidacy." Nothing was said, however, about the democratic platform.

OUT OF POLITICS.

Ex-Chairman Harrity Says He Has Retired to Private Life.

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—William F. Harrity, until recently chairman of the democratic national committee, has retired from active politics. In answer to inquiries upon the subject, Mr. Harrity made the following statement: "Yes, it is true that I have determined to withdraw from active participation in political affairs. For several years I have been accorded some prominence in the management and leadership of the democratic party, but I now desire to take my place in the ranks, except in so far as I may have duties to perform as the Pennsylvania member of the democratic national committee. I have no resentment for my enemies, and nothing but gratitude for my friends. I shall," said Mr. Harrity, "continue to take a general interest in politics and shall always be ready to do whatever I reasonably and consistently can to promote the success of the democratic party; but I shall absolutely refrain from any participation whatever in matters that relate to party organization and management. I have given much of my time and a good deal of my energies to political matters since 1882. I have now concluded, however, to take a rest from politics and to devote all my energies to the practice of my profession and to my private business matters." Mr. Harrity's declaration is understood by his friends to mean that he will give no attention to the work of state or county conventions, or of state or county committees, and that he will not in any way endeavor to influence, secure or control political nominations or appointments of any character whatever. They now regard Mr. Harrity as "out of politics."

McCreary Will Support Bryan.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Representative McCreary of Kentucky, who has always been a strong administration democrat, says of the Chicago convention: "The platform in several important particulars is not acceptable to me, but it was adopted by a regularly constituted democratic convention and the ticket was regularly nominated according to the usages of our party. My political opinions are unchanged, but I cannot now, even if I am not entirely satisfied, leave the democratic party, which I have loved and worked for all my life, and which has honored me for twenty years. I can do more good for my country, and also for the democratic party, by remaining in its ranks, participating in its council, and battling under its banner than I can on the outside, and I shall remain in line and support the nominees of the democratic national convention."

Frank Agan's Great Race.

Cleveland, Aug. 1.—Fifteen thousand people saw Frank Agan win the greatest pacing race of the year yesterday in straight heats, lowering his own record twice and the track record once. Such famous horses as Robert J., Badge and Joe Patchen finished behind him. Frank Agan was the outsider in the pools until after the first heat which he paced in 2:05. The second heat was the most sensational, Frank Agan beating Joe Patchen a neck in 2:04.

Will of the Late Bishop Coxe.

Buffalo, Aug. 1.—The will of the late Right Rev. Arthur Cleveland Coxe, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of western New York, has been filed for probate. The will was made in 1888 and bequeaths the bulk of his property, valued at $14,600, to his widow and children. There is but one bequest to the church, that of his church library.

Catholic Summer School Programme.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 1.—At the Catholic summer school an interesting programme has been arranged for next week. It will include a visit from Archbishop Corrigan of New York, who is spending a week at "Spellman's" the summer house of J. H Spellman of New York, a few miles from here.

SPORTS

SATURDAY, August 1. Sun rises 4:55 a. m., sets 7:17 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:17 p. m. and 3:55 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Howard B. Mosher, the racer, left town yesterday for Boston, where he will race today.

H. J. Martin has moved his wheel business from Park avenue and West Second street, to his blacksmith shop on Somerset street.

A party of wheelmen, numbering fourteen young men, on their way from Passaic to New Brunswick, Thursday night, stopped at Leggett's for soda. They were loud in their praise of its excellence.

Never loan your bicycle to anybody. Better by far to go down into your pocket and hand over to your friend the price to hire a wheel. It is a difficult matter to get a wheel adjusted to a person and when you once get it fixed to suit you it is better to keep it that way. If you loan it the borrower is sure to change something. These who purchase a new wheel every year will readily agree with the above.

The Hunter Arms Company has a genuine novelty in the line of tandems, and through the influence of Clarence E. Teel, one of the new machines is on exhibition at C. C. Lister's store on North avenue. The most remarkable part of the tandem is that it has two rear wheels about four inches apart. The chain runs in the centre and the central draft is thus obtained. The wheel runs smoothly and is worthy of examination.

One of New York's cleverest theatrical managers returned from Europe this week. He went abroad to look after theatrical attractions, and he has become an enthusiastic bicycle man. He scarcely knew what a wheel looked like when he went abroad and yet there is no more ardent cyclist enthusiast today. "I went to the bicycle races in London, Paris and Liverpool," said he, "and I never saw anything like it. Why they turn out from 15,000 to 30,000 people at a football game over there, but when they have bicycle races the sight beats anything I have ever seen. The people begin to arrive at the track at 2 o'clock in the morning and by the time the races take place, late arrivals can't even see the track. It is the game today in Europe and it will be the game hereafter in this country.

With the girl who makes them grow.

If you have ever seen a little child in the agony of summer complaint, you can realize the danger of the trouble and appreciate the value of instantaneous relief always afforded by DeWitt's Colic & Cholera Cure. For dysentery and diarrœa it is a reliable remedy. We could not afford to recommend this as a cure unless it were a cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

credit for their get up. Frank Howland brought up the rear costumed as another "foul fiend," bearing a transparency on which were two inscriptions, "Tell them that you saw me" and "This is the end of it."

The Crescent Wheelmen Juniors followed, about 25 in number, all with decorated wheels. Capt. Will Nash led with a yacht, whose large white sails loomed far above him. Homer Smith had one of the prettiest designs in the line. It was also a large yacht artistically arranged of red, white and blue. Lawrence Benner was a wild Indian, just imported for the occasion There were other yachts, also prettily gotten up.

Fourteen of the Scotch Plains Cyclers, headed by their captain and bugler, followed, and then came the former "Reubens" or "Hayseeds," now transformed into fiends, goblins, brownies, etc. The Roselle Cyclers were represented by a pair of "George Washingtons" on a tandem and single decorated wheels.

The third division was headed by Captain Israel Jones, of the Victor Wheelmen and he was followed by a delegation of the colored riders. Jones was gotten up regardless, and appeared in line with a gay design of red white and blue towering above him. His fellow club mates also decorated quite extensively.

Marshal's Aides F. R. Stevens, N. R. Titsworth and M. F. Elderton had their hands full with the fourth division of unattached wheelmen but they coped with it successfully. And what a remarkable collection of characters it was. "The New Woman" was burlesqued by half a dozen riders. One cyclist in fireman's costume rode a high wheel and tolled an immense dinner bell with both hands. Nelson Hendrickson had his wheel decorated with yellow pine shavings twisted about the frame spoke and all.

The daintiest rider in this division was Percy Phillips in the costume of a court page. He was loudly applauded all along the line for he certainly made a very pretty appearance. There were countless other decorations, including White's Tinkham Carrier, handsomely decorated.

The music should not be forgotten. Guttman's Band was placed in a stage and followed the first division, giving selections along the route.

Great credit should be given to Grand Marshal F. L. C. Martin, for much of the success is due to his earnest efforts. He worked hard as did the other members of the committee, and they were more than satisfied with the result. The band was on hand in a stage, thanks to the generosity of the Grand Marshal.

No accident of any serious nature occurred, and everything passed off as successfully as could be wished.

The judges, Mayor Alexander Gilbert and Councilman George H. Frost, had hard work to select the prizewinners, as Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., was unable to be present, and the parade committee, was therefore called to assist in the selections. The Daily Press prize for the most uniquely decorated ladies' wheel was given Miss Pansy Herring, honorable mention being given to Miss Eriksen and Miss Vroom. The prize donated by H. E. Rider for the most uniquely decorated men's wheel was given to Dr. Whitehead, of Elizabethport, honorable mention being given to Carl Whitehead, of Westfield, Frank Flannery and Olaf Sangstad.

The prize for the most ridiculous getup, given by F. L. C. Martin, was awarded to "Dick Stevens' Washerwoman," for no one knows his name. He was gotten up as a burlesque on the "New Woman" and wore a mask. He can get his prize by calling on Mr. Martin. Honorable mention was given to Joe Dunham, Wm. Sweeney and David Allen. The Crescent Wheelmen Juniors were particularly complimented, and special mention was made of Percy Phillips.

There is considerable talk of holding another bicycle parade on the afternoon of Labor Day or the Saturday before.

The Flight of the Arrow.

The life of a man
Is an arrow's flight,
Out of darkness
Into light,
And out of light
Into darkness again;
Perhaps to pleasure,
Perhaps to pain!

There must be something,
Above or below,
Somewhere unseen,
A mighty bow,
A hand that tires not,
A sleepless eye
That sees the arrows
Fly, and fly;
One who knows
Why we live—and die.
—Richard H. Stoddard, in Atlantic Monthly.

I Love You, Dear.

"I love you, dear!"
There is no phrase so worn and old
In all the world, nor one so sweet
To lover's lips or maiden's ear,
As this refrain: "I love you, dear!"

"I love you, dear!"
There is no change as time goes on,
No new words seem to mean so much
As when they're uttered, fondly near,
In trembling tones: "I love you, dear!"

"I love you, dear!"
No night so dark, no day so long,
But hope brings comfort to the heart,
If only "some one" standeth near
To murmur, low: "I love, you, dear!"
—N. O. Picayune.

FOR BRIGHT CHILDREN.

How They Can Make Toy Furniture from Old Corks.

If there's a box of old corks in the pantry the boy or girl, with a jacknife, can make a whole set of furniture and many other interesting things out of them.

All the tools and materials necessary are a very sharp knife, a box of matches, a bottle of thick mucilage, Bob's watercolor paints, a few old calling cards, a hairpin or two, a pair of stout scissors, with sharp points, and the pin-cushion. With these and the corks you can find a great deal of interesting amusement.

Perhaps the best thing to begin with is the cork out of the mustard pot, which is large and flat. Snip the sulphur heads off of four matches, leaving them square at the ends. Sharpen the other ends a little, make four holes with the penknife in the under side of the cork and stick the pointed ends of the matches into these. Cut out a circle of a visiting card somewhat larger than the mustard cork, paste it on top of the cork, and there stands a beautiful piece of nursery carpentry, table all complete. A small, square bit of cork that once served to stop the mouth of a little glass jam jar and sticking in four matches for feet and two more on the upper side for a back, with a bit of cork at the top of these, one has at once a delightful chair to go with the table and stool. The next piece of manufacture might be a teetotum, and here Bob's paints begin to come into play.

Cut a match in half; sharpen one end a little. Cut a thin slice crossways from a claret cork and stick the match through the middle of it, pointed end first. Cut out a circle of cardboard four times as large as the cork, and draw two lines at right angles across the disk. That will leave it divided into four quarters, and these quarters are to be painted blue, green, yellow and red. Bore a hole in the center of the disk and slip the blunt end of the match through it until the cardboard rests upon the cork. Next cut another, but rather thicker, slice from the cork, bore a hole in the center and stick the blunt end of the match through, pressing it down till it touches the card. This will leave about an inch of match to be taken between finger and thumb for spinning this beautiful teetotum.

Cutting long slices through the middle of the cork leaves pieces which, with the aid of Bob's paints, can be turned into a beautiful set of dominoes, and by cutting out square pieces one can make a beautiful set of noiseless dice to be used with the backgammon board.

But perhaps the nicest toy of all made in this shop, which has for its sign: "Old cork taken in exchange for new playthings," is the set of parlor croquet. To begin this heavy but fruitful labor cut out 18 small squares of cork. Bend into a curved hoop—a miniature of those used in lawn croquet—nine hairpins, and these, with each end stuck into one of the small squares of cork, will stand upright and serve as table wickets for the game. Cut slices crossways from the vinegar-bottle cork, and into the middle of each of these stick a match whose end has been sharpened for the purpose. This can be painted around with rings of contrasting colors, as is done to the goal stakes of lawn croquet.

Next, for the mallets hunt about in the cork box for four small ones of even size—those from the small medicine vials serve nicely if they have not been stained by drugs. These, if a nice shape, need no cutting at all. Matches will serve as handles for these mallets, and a band of color must be painted around each, so that players may distinguish their own mallets. Some nice, large, old sugar-coated pills would make beautiful balls for this nursery croquet, with a stripe of paint around each one.—Chicago Record.

About Some Queer Birds.

The woodpecker can climb up the stem of a tree like a flash, but he can't climb down it to save his life. The little sapsucker of the same family can do both. The kingfisher dives under the water and catches its fish in its mouth. The crane stands in the water and fishes and spears its prey with its long, sharp bill, as you might spear an eel with a gig. The crane rises with the fish impaled on its bill and flies away home. I shot a six-foot crane once on the wing that had a two-pound trout impaled in that way. The fishhawk drops into the water like a plummet and seizes its fish in its talons.

SUMMER SONG.

Mabel Graduates.

Mabel's coming home from college
With the "sheepskin" that she's won;
I suppose she's gained a knowledge
Of all things beneath the sun.
I shall hardly dare address her,
Now, she's got a big A. B.
Would I were a grave professor,
Then perhaps she'd fancy me!

Wonder if Miss Mab's forgotten,
Ere she conjugated Greek,
How we roamed beneath the cotton
Woods that bent above the creek?
Spent long afternoons together
When the corn was in the husk,
Wandering slowly back together
Through the dewfall and the dusk?

Wonder if she still remembers
All the merry winter nights—
Chestnuts roasted in the embers,
Coasting parties on the heights?
Wonder—hang this jolty table—
Now her learning's such a "stack,"
If she'll let me call her "Mabel,"
If she still will call me "Jack?"

Mabel's coming home from college!
Mabel's coming home to-night!
Strange, but something in the knowledge
Makes the cloudy day grow bright!
It's absurd—I don't deny it—
But each bird beneath the dome
Seems to know my joy, and cry it—
"Mabel's coming home to-night!"
—Harry Pelouze, in Detroit Free Press.

Has Lavish Summer Brought the Rose?

Has lavish summer brought the rose?
Why did my heart not know,
When every gossip wind that blows
Made haste to tell me so;

And all the birds went mad with glee,
And sang from morn till night;
And then the stars came out to see
What made the world so bright?

But I missed something from the time,
And so I did not guess
The meaning of the summer's rhyme,
Or the warm wind's caress.

Can gladness be where she is not?
Can roses bud and blow?
Does all the world but me forget
What now we must forego?

I care not for the day's kind grace—
The magic of the night—
Since with them comes no more the face
That was the June's delight.
—Louise Chandler Moulton, in Youth's Companion

Sour Grapes.

When with a reminiscent view
I note the things I've failed to do—
The rising stocks I didn't snatch;
The heiresses I failed to catch;
The books and poems that I might
Have been inspired somehow to write;
The pictures that I might have drawn;
The journeys that I might have gone;
The loads of fun I might have had—
It makes me blue, and green, and mad!

But when I see the chaps who got
The things whose absence soured my lot;
Who put their money into stocks
That turned out naught but paper blocks;
Who won the girls I longed to win,
And suddenly grew bald and thin;
Who published books (at their own cost),
And by the critics' horns were tost;
Who on long voyages knocked about,
And turned their stomachs inside out,
I've come to think—'twixt you and me—
That grapes both sour and high may be!
—Paul Pastnor, in Detroit Free Press.

Be as Brave as You Can.

I was weak and despairing from illness and pain,
I seemed to be foiled in each wish and each plan,
When a friend gave me hope that yet all I might gain;
Through my sobbing I heard: "Be as brave as you can!"

Bright with cheer were the words, sympathetic and strong;
They conquered my weakness! New courage began
They may gird up some heart, so I pass them along
To all in sore need—"Be as brave as you can!"

When the night gathers round you, and gone is your light,
Believe in the morning, when darkness you scan;
The sunshine will come again, shadows take flight;
Trust the Lord and cheer up! "Be as brave as you can!"

To Be Worked on Early Purchasers of

The Spalding Bicycle

After the adoption of our 1896 model and a careful estimate of the cost of manufacture, we placed the price on the Spalding Bicycle at $100. The price is now $100 and will continue at $100 throughout the season, no matter what other manufacturers may do.

We don't believe it is fair, honest or good business policy to sell a standard article like the Spalding Bicycle at one price in May and reduce its value in June by a material reduction in price. As a matter of common fairness to early purchasers of Spalding Bicycles and as an evidence of good faith on our part we will, in case of reduction in price during the season, send a rebate check to every purchaser of a Spalding Bicycle of the amount of any such reduction that may be made by us during the season This is our meaning of a

EX-MAYOR'S WARNING.

L. V. F. RANDOLPH SEVERELY CRITICISES TROLLEY MAGNATES.

He Says the Agents Who Are Securing Signatures For the Scotch Plains Route are Not Going About it in the Right Way.

The trolley people have for some time been at work obtaining from owners of property on East Second street consents to build a railroad in front of their properties. This, of course, was well enough for those who signed willingly and intelligently. But it is now plain that some of these Second street property owners innocently signed a paper, which might be technically construed as giving the privilege in front of certain other properties they owned, and which are on Front street, where the same owners do not want the trolley and where they will not have if they can prevent it.

The form of the consent appears to have been drawn by the trolley company's attorney to suit the company; and it looks like a snare to the property owners. Probably no court of justice would, upon trial of rights, justify a claim that the consent does cover Front street property. It is simply a danger, and a possible trap, in its present form.

Of late, it has been given out that the railroad party was claiming to hold a majority of consents for East Front street. They do not hold them. East Front street property owners are practically solid against the trolley. Possibly the signatures given to the paper by the Second street owners, who are also Front street owners, form the basis of a boast recently made, and may also help to account for the offensive and impudent and menacing attitude recently assumed toward property owners by the agent who has collected the signatures. This communication is intended as a respectful warning to the property owners, to the members of the Common Council, and also to projectors of the trolley road. L. V. F. Randolph.

GOOD MAN LAID TO REST.

Obsequies Over the Remains of the Late Joseph Beach.

The last sad rites over the remains of the late Joseph Beach were held last evening at nine o'clock from the home of his daughter, Mrs William A. Woodruff, 215 East Second street. Rev. James Riggs, D. D., who is at present preaching in Trinity Reformed church, during the absence of Rev. Cornelius Schenck, kindly consented to officiate. The home was filled with friends and acquaintances of the deceased.

Comforting passages of scripture were read by Dr. Riggs, who also made remarks regarding the perfect Christian life of the departed, and helpful lessons for the living were drawn from his life. Dr. Riggs closed his remarks with prayer.

A quartette consisting of Mrs. H. E. Rider, Miss Lizzie Dunn, F. S. Cutter and Robert Clark, sang very tenderly "The Christian's Good Night. Those present were given an opportunity to view the remains. Interment was made at Rahway today.

Married on the Lord's Day.

Harry Becker, the popular young tonsorial artist of Somerset street, and Miss Emma Jeanne, of Pearl street, North Plainfield, were united in marriage by Rev. Mr. Hauser, at the parsonage yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The service was simple and impressive Only an informal reception was tendered the bride and groom at the close of the ceremony, after which the members of the "D. O. H.," Deutch Order Harugari, of which the groom is a member, gave them a hearty welcome and reception. Their wedding trip will include Niagara Falls and the Canadian shore, and they will be back by the middle or latter part of this week.

An Approaching Marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. William Crosby, of Vergennes, Vermont, have issued invitations to their marriage of their daughter, Miss Katherine Crosby, to J. William Gerno, of East Third street, this city. The wedding will be celebrated Wednesday evening, August 12th, at 8 o'clock, at St. Peter's church, Vergennes, Vermont. Mr. and Mrs. Gerno, will be at home after September 15th, at 147 East Fifth street, this city. Mr. Gerno is one of the lineman and inspectors for the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company.

A Trained Missionary to Talk.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will be held Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the church. Miss Julia G. Shinn, a graduate of the Missionary Training School at Philadelphia, will address the meeting. A cordial invitation is given to all to attend this meeting.

FOR ANOTHER PARADE.

PROPOSED TO HAVE IT TAKE PLACE BEFORE LABOR DAY.

A Sum of Money to be Raised Among the Merchants and Given in Prizes That Will Create a Great Amount of Interest.

The bicycle parade last Friday evening proved such a success that it is almost settled that before the season ends a much more pretentious event of the same kind will be arranged.

At a meeting of the committee, Saturday morning, who had charge of the affair of last week, it was suggested that a parade be arranged for Labor Day. But a little more consideration showed that it would injure the prospects of success for the Grocers' Association picnic to Boynton Beach, and as there is no desire to have two public affairs conflict with one another, it was suggested by a prominent West Front street merchant, who was solicited to aid, that the parade be held the Saturday afternoon before Labor Day, commencing about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. This would bring an immense crowd into town and end the festivities in time for the merchants to reap their usual Saturday night trade without having it attracted away by a parade in the evening.

The merchant who is interested in the matter says that if such a plan is started he will guarantee to raise $200 among the merchants of Front street, and it is thought that another $100 can be raised from the dealers in other sections, to be used in advertising the affair and offering prizes for the participants. Souvenir buttons would be given to all who entered the parade with special prizes of sufficient value to attract widespread attention and extra effort for decorated wheels, unique uniforms, etc., would be offered. It is proposed to also offer a valuable prize for the club turning out the largest number and making the finest appearance in the line. The matter will probably assume a definite character in a few days.

A Dog and Goat Fight.

Summons has been issued by Justice Newcorn in the case of the New Jersey Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Wm. Pangborn, prosecutor, against Barry, which is returnable August 10th. It appears that Barry owns a bulldog and a goat, and on June 26th the defendant had the two animals fighting. As a result of the fight the goat was severely injured and an attempt is being made to save the life of the goat. Wm. Pangborn, an agent for the society, has brought action against Barry for the above cause.

Death of Mrs. Jackson.

The death of Mrs. Ann J., widow of the late James Jackson, occurred this morning at her home on East Sixth street. The funeral will be held Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Interment will be at Cypress Park.

PLAYED WINNING BALL.

Y. M. C. A. TEAM DEFEAT THE CRACK RIVERDALE A. C.

But the Victory Was Not Won Before as Large an Audience as Was Deserved—Shortstop Major Was Hit With a Ball

The Y. M. C. A. ball team of this city and the Riverdale Athletic club of Harlem, crossed bats in a very interesting game of ball Saturday afternoon in this city. The day was a perfect one in every respect, but it failed to appeal to the base ball loving public and a small crowd was present in the grounds, while outside the congregation was much larger as they were not taxed fifteen cents.

The Riverdale team is a good one but they played in hard luck and were defeated 12 to 6. The game was an eventful one, from the fact that three of the home team were hit by pitched balls. In the sixth inning Major was hit in the left side with a pitched ball and was obliged to retire from the game. It was thought that several ribs were broken, and he was taken to the hospital by Assemblyman Chas. Reed, who was present, and Doctor E. W. Hedges made an examination which proved that there was a contusion. Major was kept at the hospital until yesterday when he was able to go to his home at Somerville. Owing to the absence of Symons, who is out of town, his place was filled acceptably by Gallagher of Raritan. The Riverdales only secured eight hits off of Burt, who pitched a faultless game and held the visitors down in good shape. Several times they had an opportunity to run the score up, but good judgment and close playing prevented their scoring. When Major retired from the game his place was taken by George Cornwall, who played admirably. He secured one hit and a base on balls, beside getting an assist in the field. A very clever double play was made by Cory and Enright and another one was made by Paasch and Schultz. There was lots of good hitting and fielding, which pleased the audience. Warren Townley played right field and put up a good game considering that he has not played in a long time. Dennis was away and his place was filled in good style by Wren Townley, who caught Burt finely.

Enright, who is now playing second base, is a favorite with the patrons, for his playing is full of snap and he never misses a chance. The visitors are good players but they are not strong enough for the home team who had no difficulty in securing ten hits. It is to be hoped that next Saturday there will be a large crowd present as the home team will play the New Jersey Athletic club team which is composed of strong players. Below will be found the score in full of Saturday's game.

Distinguished Honor for Dr. Carroll.

The Golden Rule has the following to say concerning Dr. H. K. Carroll, of the borough, who was selected as a member of the United Society of Christian Endeavor from the Methodist Episcopal church:

And finally, from the Methodist Episcopal church, comes that distinguished clergyman and writer, Rev. H. K. Carroll, D. D., one of the editors of the New York Independent. Dr. Carroll won great praise by his work at the head of the census of churches in connection with the last United States census. Through his position on the Independent he is one of the most influential members of that great body of Christians, the Methodist Episcopal church, and will deservedly exercise great influence in our national Christian Endeavor council.

BENEFITS TO BE DERIVED

WHAT THE ENDEAVOR CONVENTION WILL MEAN TO THIS CITY.

Dr. Service, One of the Speakers at the Washington Assemblage, Gives the Principal Talk—E. E. Anthony Also Talks.

An important Christian Endeavor mass-meeting, in the interests of the State Convention of '96, to be held in this city next October, was held at 4 p. m. yesterday in the First Baptist church. E. E. Anthony, president of the local union, presided over the meeting, which opened with a twenty-minute service of prayer, in which many took part, praying for a great blessing on the convention and the convention city. A ten-minute service of song followed, led by a choir of Endeavorers from the various societies, then, after Scripture reading and prayer by Rev. Dr. Yerkes, Mr. Anthony introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Dr. Service, of Michigan, one of the speakers at the Washington convention, who spoke on "The Benefits of a State Convention to a City." He brought out many excellent points in his interesting talk; among them, the interdenominational fellowship, which is always found in such gatherings, the encouragement for workers in finding so many others engaged in the same warfare, and the proof given to all observers that it is not necessary for people to wait for mature years before beginning to be useful servants of God.

Mr. Anthony then said a few words as to what the convention would give the city, and what it wanted from the people. It would give several days of unusually helpful meetings and fine speakers, including such names as Moody and Talmage. It desired from the people their prayers, their work in preparing for the reception of the visitors, their homes, in which to lodge delegates, and their money, to help pay the expenses.

The meeting was closed by the benediction, pronounced by Dr. Yerkes. The attendance was large, in spite of the warm afternoon.

Death of Lester Horton.

After a long illness S. Lester Horton, of 55 Somerset street, died this morning. He was about forty-eight years old and has lived in the borough many years. He was born in Morris county and was a son of the late Stephen O. Horton. He was engaged in the shoe business in Dover some years ago, but since then had done no particular work. He was a strong Democrat and always worked for his party. He lived with his mother and sister, Mrs. Cory. Mr. Horton was never married and always remained home. An announcement of the funeral will be made later.

Justice Newcorn's Court.

The following summons have been issued in Justice Newcorn's court: Johnson against Hoffman; United States Heater Company against Cobb et ux; Sharkey against Winn; Watts & Company against Miller Brothers; returnable August 10th; Runyon against Hand, returnable August 7th. The case of Burke against McIntyre was adjourned till August 11th; the case of Doorwood against Arthur was adjourned two weeks; the case of Rosenfield et ux against Benner was set down for August 10th; and the case of Sargeant against Hand was settled.

Ross Fined $3.

In the city court today, Judge DeMeza pronounced sentence on William Ross and Kittie Staats. The former was fined $3 and the latter $5. Counsellor W. L. Hetfield represented Ross in the case. Tee case first came up on July 23d, as told of in The Press at the time, but was adjourned over.

No Trace of a Wife-Beater.

A bicyclist from out-of-town rode in from Avon Park, late Saturday evening, and notified the police to the effect that a strange man was beating his wife there. Officers Flanagan and Flynn responded to the call, but when they reached the place neither of the combatants could be found.

A Dastardly Trick.

The valuable Italian greyhound belonging to Arthur Mills, of Grandview avenue, had to be shot last Thursday evening by Marshal Lines. Someone gave the dog a quantity of pulverized glass in some meat, thus causing the poor beast terrible agony.

A Tenement House Worker.

Edward Dowling, of the American Tract Society, and a mission worker in the west side tenement house districts of New York, will speak at the meeting of the Plainfield Branch of the Christian Alliance in the W. C. T. U. rooms tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

Theories of cure may be discussed at length by physicians, but the sufferers want quick relief; and One Minute Cough Cure will give it to them. A safe cure for children. It is "the only harmless remedy that produces immediate results." For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

FOUR CASES OF THEFT.

TWO WERE OF VALUABLE JEWELRY AND THE OTHER TWO OF HORSES.

George Mattison Takes Advantage of the Kindness of a Brother and Steals Valuables While the Family Are Away.

George Mattison, the man who created so much excitement one day last week, by suddenly falling into a stupor in Ross' restaurant from which he did not revive for several hours, is now wanted by the police for grand larceny.

Mattison has been boarding with his brother Charles on Duer street for some time. Saturday night the family went out and left the house in charge of George. Charles was returning later in the evening when some one stopped him and asked where his brother had gone. He remarked that he was at home, but the man who made the enquiry said that he had seen him leaving town.

Charles hurried home and found the house empty. He suspicioned something was wrong and made an investigation. Then he found that a diamond ring and a gold scarf pin was missing.

It was thought that the missing man might have gone to his wife in Newark, and his brother went there in search of him. He was unable to find him. Last night he notified Chief Grant of the affair and this morning the chief sent out notifications to the police of other cities, asking for his apprehension.

A description of Mattison is as follows: Forty-five years of age; five feet, seven or eight inches high; bald on top of head, with mustache and side whiskers; had on dark suit of clothes and derby hat when he left home.

A South Bound Brook farmer came to this city Saturday night and notified the police that a man by the name of Baker, who had been employed by him and was boarding with his family, decamped Friday evening, taking with him jewelry valued at $300. As it was a day late when the police were notified they could not give him any encouragement for his capture.

This morning Chief Grant was notified by I. N. Smith, a farmer living on the Schooley's mountain, that he had a horse stolen yesterday morning by a thirteen-year old boy whom he had brought from New York to work for him. He traced the horse as far as High Bridge. The boy was leading the animal, and it is thought took him to New York.

Last night a horse and buggy was stolen from a church shed in Caldwell. The Chief was notified to be on the lookout for the thief. The horse was a sorrel about fifteen hands high, attached to a side-bar buggy.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Horatio M. Clark Attempts to End His Life With Laudanum.

Horatio M. Clark, aged 40 years, of 60 Grandview avenue, attempted to commit suicide this morning by taking two doses of laudanum, but his efforts were defeated by his wife, who learned of the act soon afterwards.

Mrs. Clark called to Valentine Utzinger, who happened to be passing, and he together with the latter's son walked Clark up and down the street in the hopes that he would come out of his stupor.

Mr. Utzinger asked him why he didn't take enough laudanum to kill, and he replied that he took all there was in the house, but he intended to get a quart and take it all. He said he could not live any longer and wanted to die.

Drs. Carman and Tomlinson were called and prescribed, and the man will recover. Sometime ago Mr. Clark, who is a carpenter, fell from a building and injured his head. The wound never healed properly and every summer Clark has been troubled with his head.

In addition to this, he was addicted to strong drink and frequently he would lose control of himself. Of late he has been selling campaign buttons, as he could not secure work at his trade, but this did not pay him and has worried him a great deal.

He has a wife and two little girls, who were nearly frantic when they learned what he had done, but kind neighbors assisted them.

Since noon Mr. Clark has been sleeping soundly and no trouble is anticipated. He is being closely watched.

It doesn't matter much whether sick headache, billiousness, indigestion and constipation are caused by neglect or by unavoidable circumstances; DeWitt's Little Early Risers will speedily cure them all. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

SERVICE FOR VETERANS

REV. L. E. LIVERMORE SPEAKS OF THE WRONGS OF IMMIGRATION.

He Says That Every Man Who Emigrates to This Country Should Endorse All Things Customary Here.

The service held in the W. C. T. U. rooms yesterday afternoon at 4:15 for the G.A.R. men and Sons of Veterans, was a most interesting one. There were large delegations present from each organization, and also from the Woman's Relief Corps. A large American flag was prettily draped around the stand on the platform, and a large bouquet of flowers was as additional adornment.

The meeting was arranged by the committee on Soldiers' and Sailors' work, of which Mrs. M. C. Dobbins is the chairman. Several of the W. C. T. U. members occupied seats on the platform with Rev. L. E. Livermore who delivered a helpful address. He spoke of the appreciation felt by the soldiers in being invited to the rooms, and thanked the members of the W. C. T. U. for their kindness. Mr. Livermore then gave two touching incidents in connection with his army life. He told of the inauguration of a prayer meeting at Maryland Heights which resulted in the conversion of one of the worst soldiers he had ever met. Mr. Livermore's text was "Endure Hardness as a Good Soldier." In part he said:

"A soldier will defend his country against the harmful. Intemperance is the cause of national poverty. It is not recognized by either of the great parties, such as silver and gold and 16 to 1, which has resulted in a split in every party, including the Prohibition party. The greatest enemy, intemperance still remains.

"We should guard against uniting church and state which is now threatening us. Romanism stands against religious liberty. General Grant once said 'that we should labor for free speech, free press, and encourage the free schools and that not one dollar should be appropriated for sectarian schools.'

"Every soldier will unite with American citizens to close our ports for a term of years against paupers, etc., who flood our country. A man coming to this country should declare supreme allegiance to the Government of the United States, and he should also endorse our system of education. If he will not, we should not allow him to plant his foot here. The report rendered for 1895-6 shows that 262,703 immigrants came to this country. This is 72,781 more than for the year previous. It is the character of those who come that causes alarm. There are very few of them who do not worship the Virgin Mary, and they would quickly strike against America in their hatred for Americans.

"There were many thousand veterans who passed away last year, and we should prepare for that great change. We should make Jesus Christ our personal Savior. We should live honestly and love God and then we will receive that everlasting peace and joy eternal."

The meeting was thrown open at the close of the above remaks and several of the veterans gave interesting testimonies, as did several of the women. During the service a quartette composed of Ezra Loomis, H. J. Martin, L. C. Hummer and Chas. Hummer, rendered several appropriate selections in a pleasing manner. Commander McVoy thanked the women for courtesy extended, and he said that he knew that the comrades appreciated their efforts.

Those present joined heartily in singing several hymns, after which Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson spoke a few words of congratulations and cordially invited all to attend the Sunday afternoon services held in the room. After the singing of a hymn, the service closed by Rev. Mr. Livermore pronouncing the benediction.

A feature of the service was the vocal duet by Miss Jemima and Miss Florence Dodge.

A Great Day at the Shore.

A glorious opportunity will be given the people of Plainfield and vicinity tomorrow to spend a day of pleasure at the seashore with the First M. E. church and Sunday-school. Just lay aside your business and household cares for a day and enjoy yourself. An additional attraction at the shore tomorrow will be the presence of many thousand Arcanumites. There will be a grand parade during the day.

Jersey Militia on Wheels.

Company A, Fourth Regiment, of Jersey City Heights, left their armory Saturday on wheels to attend the encampment of the State Militia at Sea Girt. The company passed through this city Saturday afternoon and expected to arrive at Sea Girt early this morning. Three years ago this company marched over the same route to Sea Girt.

HER DAY OF SORROW

Funeral of Several of the Railroad Victims at Bridgeton.

MANY SAD AND DISTRESSING SCENES

Engineer Farr Also Laid to Rest at Camden—No Further Deaths Among the Victims—Condition of Several of the Injured Very Critical.

Bridgeton, N. J., Aug. 3.—The bodies of eleven victims of the railroad accident at Atlantic City were buried from this city yesterday. To-day there will be four more burials, and to-morrow nine. Thus, if no more succumb to their injuries, there will have been twenty-eight deaths from among the city's population. There were so many funerals that the facilities for burial were overtaxed. Hearses did treble duty, and carriage drivers carried as many as four separate groups of mourners to the cemeteries. The victims of the hapless disaster were in most cases so situated as to leave no destitution behind them, although there may be one or two cases calling for assistance. In the churches was the deepest sorrow, for in almost every case the dead was a member of one of them of the city. One of the saddest cases was that of the Sooys. The mangled body of the father was left in the hearse, while that of the son was carried into the house while the services were being held. Within the dwelling there were moans and laments from the stricken widow and mother and deep wailings from her seven fatherless children. People wept for pure sympathy for this very sorely afflicted woman, whose deep distress carried sorrow to every heart. Amid it all there arose the soft cooing of an infant, a three weeks' old child, the youngest of the fatherless flock. As the white casket containing her boy's remains was carried out to the second hearse the poor woman, leaning on an elder son, moaned: "Oh, why should it have happened. Oh, can I give them up?" For many a year Sunday, August 2, 1896, will be remembered in Bridgeton as a day of mourning and sorrow.

Engineer Farr's Funeral.

Camden, N. J., Aug. 3.—There has not been a funeral in Camden for years that has attracted public attention to so great a degree as that of Edward W. Farr, engineer of the express train which collided with the excursion train on the Atlantic City meadows Thursday afternoon, which occurred yesterday afternoon from the residence of his brother, Charles W. Farr. From 10 o'clock in the morning until 3 o'clock in the afternoon there was a throng of nearly 3,000 people around the little house in which the body lay, and a steady stream of people passed through the house to view the remains. The services were conducted by the aged Rev. J. H. Sowden, superannuated minister of the Union Methodist Episcopal church, who has been a life-long friend of the family, and Rev. J. H. Sauer, of the Eight street Methodist Episcopal church, of which Farr was a member when he lived in Camden. The funeral procession to Evergreen cemetery was headed by fifty members of Ottawa tribe, Improved Order of Red men of Camden, to which Farr belonged. Representatives of a half dozen other lodges of Red Men and other societies were also in line. There was a crowd of 2,000 people at the cemetery. The widow, who had to be carried to and from the carriage behind the hearse, gave way completely when the body was lowered into the grave, and her hysterical cries and last "good-byes" to her husband were distressing to witness.

NO FURTHER DEATHS.

Two of the Victims, However, in a Very Critical Condition.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 3.—Up to this morning there had been no further deaths among the victims of Thursday's railroad collision lying in the sanatarium. On the contrary, there was a marked improvement in the condition of all but two or three. Mrs. Faunce Fralinger of Philadelphia, whose leg was amputated and for whom no hope was entertained, was much better this morning and now has a chance for life. Miss Brannin of Millville and Frank Morele are hovering between life and death with small prospects of living. As was requested by some of the wounded, the chimes in the adjacent Church of the Ascension yesterday played "Nearer My God, to Thee," and as the sweet strains of the familiar hymn pealed out, the maimed and wounded men and women listened reverently to the air. Some were deeply moved and Mrs. Fralinger shed tears as the hymn recalled memories of other times and places where she had heard it when it lacked the dread significance it had yesterday. Coroner McLaughlin is thoroughly in earnest in his determination to sift the accident to the bottom and to fix the blame for it where it belongs. He has issued subpoenaes for twenty-five or thirty witnesses, and he proposes that any of these whose testimony is material to the developments of the facts, shall come before the jury.

Important Witnesses Summoned.

The coroner expects that the inquest will consume two or three days, but that he will take a month to it if it should be necessary to a full inquiry. The most important witnesses will be called to-day. Among these will be George Houser, the signal tower man, who gave the right of way to the excursion train and the danger signal to the Reading express, and who is now under $500 bail to answer for his appearance, Engineer Greiner of the excursion train, Fireman Hallihan of the Reading train and Superintendents Deice and Dayton of the Reading and West Jersey railroads. The inquest will be conducted in Odd Fellows' hall, and it is expected a large crowd will want to hear the testimony.

Property of the Victims.

Coroner McLaughlin has sorted and labeled by name the property of the people killed in the wreck. In the collection are a dozen watches, some of them battered out of shape and others uninjured; lockets, rings and about $300 in money. These articles will be returned to the relatives of the dead upon proper identification. The fund started by hotel guests and cottagers for the victims of the disaster has been swelled to over $500. The city council holds its regular meeting to-night, and some notice will probably be taken of the accident and its causes and a resolution of sympathy and condolence passed for those who suffered by it.

Inquiries for Missing Friends.

A big accident of any kind nearly always brings out the curious fact that people are constantly disappearing and leaving no trace behind them. Since Thursday the Atlantic City authorities have received a number of inquiries for missing people whom their relatives feared might have gone to Atlantic City and been killed or hurt in the wreck. In nearly every case none of the dead and injured bore the slightest resemblance to the persons sought.

BRUTAL DOUBLE MURDER.

A Negro Couple Found with Their Skulls Crushed In.

Philadelphia, Aug. 3.—A brutal double murder was discovered yesterday in an orchard in the rear of a summer boarding house in the suburb of Narbeth. Ewert McDarnell, aged 35 years, and Mary Brown, aged 25, both colored, were found lying on the ground side by side with their skulls crushed in. The woman was a servant in the boarding house and McDarnell is said to have been her husband, although she was known by the name of Brown. The police claim to know the name of the man whom they suspect of the murder and expect to have him under arrest shortly.

A BIG STRIKE PENDING.

Agitators Are Organizing Another Revolt of London Dockers.

London, Aug. 3.—The leaders of the great London dock strike of 1889 are organizing another of equal magnitude. Messrs. Tom Mann, Ben Tillet and J. H. Wilson, M. P., are working to get the various Thames unions to federate and strike simultaneously. It has long been publicly known that the sixpence rise, the "dockers' banners," supposed to have been conceded by the dock companies, was a delusion. The dockers are really worse off than ever. Strike combination agents are canvassing the men at Dutch, Belgian and German ports to help the Thames strikers. The dock companies have refused all the demands made by the men.

Revival of an Old Rumor About Victoria.

London, Aug. 3.—The rumor that Queen Victoria intends to retire in favor of the Prince of Wales is again current and it is added that court circles are greatly agitated regarding the state of the queen's health. Such reports have frequently appeared of recent years, only to be semi-officially contradicted later. It is added that her majesty has decided to spend her time in future at Balmoral or at Osborne, and that she will give the Prince and Princess of Wales the use of Buckingham palace and Windsor castle.

A Nuisance To Be Abated.

Albany, Aug. 3.—The state board of health is determined to abate the alleged nuisance caused by the fat rendering factory of Williams & Landers at Greenburgh, Westchester county. The local board of health had ordered the firm to get rid of the nuisance by proper drainage and improved machinery, which, it is claimed, can be done, but they have refused. The state board, at its meeting in Jamestown on Tuesday, ordered the Greenburgh health authorities to close the factory.

Appointed by the President.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The president has made the following appointments: MacGrane Coxe of New York, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Guatemala and Honduras, to succeed P. M. B. Young, deceased; James S. Boyd, to be postmaster at Cold Spring, N. Y., vice E. H. Timm, the republican incumbent, whose commission has expired; May J. Munson, postmistress at Millington, N. J., vice Mrs. A. M. Baker, commission expired.

Catholic Summer School.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Aug. 3.—The summer school services yesterday consisted of pontifical mass with Rt. Rev. John S. Michaud, bishop of Burlington, as celebrant. The sermon was on "The Angelic World," by Rev. J. L. O'Neill, O. P., of New York. A reception was tendered to Bishop Richaud at the grounds in the afternoon and was largely attended.

Bennett-Goelet Cup.

London, Aug 3.—Richard Grant, secretary of the Royal Yacht squadron, announces that the Bennett-Goelet cup, which was won in 1895 by the Ailsa, will be raced for at Cowes this season if Mr. Bennett agrees to the proposition.

Three Killed by a Train.

Cures Talk

"Cures talk" in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla, as for no other medicine. Its great cures recorded in truthful, convincing language of grateful men and women, constitute its most effective advertising. Many of these cures are marvelous. They have won the confidence of the people; have given Hood's Sarsaparilla the largest sales in the world, and have made necessary for its manufacture the greatest laboratory on earth. Hood's Sarsaparilla is known by the cures it has made—cures of scrofula, salt rheum and eczema, cures of rheumatism, neuralgia and weak nerves, cures of dyspepsia, liver and kidney troubles, catarrh and malaria.

Such Cures as This Prove Merit.

"My little nephew was a plump and healthy baby until a year and a half old, then sores broke out behind his ears and spread rapidly over his head, hands and body. A physician said the trouble was scrofula humor in the blood. The child became one complete sore. We had to restrain his hands to keep him from scratching the sores. We were induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and in a short time he had more life. He improved rapidly, his skin became entirely clear of sores and he is now a healthy child." Mrs. FLORENCE ANDREWS, Clearfield, Iowa.

Keep Up Your Scott's Emulsion in Summer-time

What are your resources for the summer? Have you an abundance of health stowed away for the long, hot, depleting days, or does summer find you low in vitality, run down, losing flesh, and weak? Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil will give you the proper reserve force, because it builds up the system on a solid foundation. A tonic may stimulate; Scott's Emulsion not only "boosts," it sustains.

It is a wise precaution always to have at least a small bottle of Scott's Emulsion in the house. Unopened, it will keep indefinitely. Tightly corked, after using, kept in a cool place, it will remain sweet for weeks.

4,000 LIVES LOST

East Coast of China Swept by a Tidal Wave.

MANY VILLAGES ENTIRELY DESTROYED

Everything in the Path of the Enormous Volume of Water Swept Away—The Survivors Must Now Face a Famine —Great Suffering Will Follow.

Shanghai, Aug. 1.—The recent disastrous tidal wave along the coast of Japan has been paralleled by a similar phenomenon on the coast of Halchau, northeast of the province of Klangsu, in which Shanghai is situated. The news of the disaster did not reach here until now, owing to the lack of facilities for communication with the part of the country devastated. On July 26 there suddenly appeared in the Yellow sea a huge bank of water that was rushing shoreward with terrific velocity. The water off the coast is shallow, and when the wave was some distance away it began to comb, and the roaring could be heard for a great distance. From the stories of eyewitnesses and the reports of people in the country back from the coast the wave was five miles wide. Thousands of tons of water were thrown for miles inland, and everything in its path was swept away. Many villages were entirely destroyed, and it is estimated that fully 4,000 people perished. All the cattle were drowned, and the rice fields were obliterated. It is expected that the survivors will meet with a worse fate than death by drowing, for with the destruction of the rice fields famine will stare them in the face in the autumn. Had it not been for the gradually sloping sea bed the effects of the wave would have been far more disastrous than they actually were. This had the effect of greatly retarding the progress of the immense mass of water, which, had it been unchecked, would have swept far inland over the comparatively flat county. In many cases whole families were lost. There is already much suffering among the survivors, who, miserably poor before the disaster, are now absolutely homeless and foodless.

SPANISH CRUELTIES.

American Members of the Three Friends Expedition Horribly Mutilated.

New York, Aug. 3.—A special to the Herald from Havana says: A pacifico living near Jaruco recently brought to Havana news that various Americans who came to Cuba on the Three Friends expedition, recently landed east of Havana, were captured by Gen. Ochoa, tied in rows and shot by the roadside. One body, supposed to be that of Perry Atkinson, was left unburied. The body was horribly mutilated with machete cuts. It was afterward interred by passing peasants. The victims' shoes, scarf pins, cuff buttons, watches and diamond rings were openly sold by Gen. Ochoa's troops in Jaruco the next day. Consul-General Lee is being urged to demand an immediate investigation. The pacificos in the vicinity declare that the man supposed to have been Atkinson was not taken in the fight, but was captured in the woods; also that his pockets were cut out and his belt which contained American gold, was taken by his captors.

Miss McGrenn Hid Her Savings—Found by Accident After Death.

Providence, Aug. 3.—Miss Delia McGrenn, a Nova Scotian, who had been for years the housekeeper at the Ocean View hotel, Block Island, and at the Hamilton, Washington, died a few days ago, leaving a fortune of $25,000 in an old wire bustle. Her death was due to paralysis. Miss McGrenn has relatives with whom she corresponded frequently, but they are unknown to the hotel people, and her remains have been placed in a receiving vault. The most peculiar feature in the discovery of the bank notes, bank books and securities tucked away in the bustle is that the bustle was cast away in a lot of rubbish, and by the merest chance an inquisitive servant tore it to pieces.

THE GOVERNMENT OF SAMOA.

The Feud Between the German and the American and English.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—The steamer Monowai brings advices from Apia, Samoa, under date of July 15. The feud in the colony between the German residents on the one hand, and the Americans and British on the other, is increasing in bitterness. Much ill feeling was caused by the refusal of all the German colonists to attend the respective celebrations of the British and Americans on the anniversary of Queen Victoria's birthday and on the Fourth of July. The Germans have renewed their efforts to have German made the official language.

Working Time Reduced.

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 3.—Orders have been issued by the Pennsylvania Railroad company which reduces the working time in the extensive shops here to five days a week of eight hours each. The reduction goes into effect this week, and 5,000 men are effected.

International Women's Congress.

NOT WILLING TO SACRIFICE SEWALL

Kansas Democrats To Endorse the Populist State Nominees—Bryan Spends a Quiet Sunday—A Western Judge Creates a Sensation.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Senator Jones of Arkansas, chairman of the national democratic committee, arrived in Washington at noon yesterday and after a few hours' rest at his residence went down to the headquarters of the congressional campaign committee, where he had an hour's talk with Secretary Gardner, who had come to town from his summer home at Laarel, Md., to meet him. To-day the senator said that he was not yet ready to announce the executive committee, although it was possible that he would name several of the members in a day or two. He had practically made up his mind as to some of them, but he did not care to disclose them at present. Perhaps the executive committee would not be announced or at any rate completed until the full meeting of the national committee in New York on the 11th inst. At that time the location of the national campaign headquarters would also be selected and in all probability the selection would not be made before that time. The senator's choice for headquarters was about evenly divided between Washington and Chicago. He recognized great advantages in each and some disadvantages. There was no democratic morning paper of prominence in Chicago and the others there, he said, were dishonest—worse in fact than in any city in the country. He thought he could rely on the dissemination of fair reports from Washington, for although no democratic paper is printed here, the newspapers of the national capital were fair and the machinery for news dissemination was unequalled. With regard to the insinuation of W. L. Peck in the Atlanta Journal Saturday that he (Chairman Jones) had expressed a willingness to sacrifice Sewall and urged Watson's nomination, the senator said to-day it was utterly baseless. He had received a note from Peck stating that Watson's nomination would be the salvation of Bryan, and he had not answered it or paid any attention to it. He had been in St. Louis during the populist convention, but had never gone to any of its sessions nor participated in its work.

Plans of Kansas Democrats.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 3.—Ex-senator John Martin, a leader of the Kansas democracy, is authority for the statement that the democratic state convention at Hutchinson to-morrow will nominate no candidates for state offices, action to be deferred pending the action of the populist convention which will meet at Abilene on Wednesday, and that the nominees of the Abilene convention will then be indorsed by the democrats. As to presidential electors, according to Mr. Martin, there will probably be a fair division, representation being given to each of the several political organizations favorable to free silver legislation. The electors so nominated will be instructed to vote for Bryan and for either Sewall or Watson, whichever has the majority of votes cast in the United States.

Quiet Sunday for Mr. Bryan.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 3.—Yesterday was a quiet Sunday for Mr. Bryan. He attended services at the First Presbyterian church in the morning and took a drive in the afternoon. His brother, who resides in Omaha, was his guest at dinner. A number of telegrams from Congressman Sulzer and other Tammany leaders congratulating Mr. Bryan on his endorsement by the Tammany executive committee have been received by the nominee. The statement made by Senator Thurston, that Mr. Bryan is in the pay of owners of silver mines, is to be answered. The person who is to reply to it has not been named, but he will probably act by authority of Mr. Bryan.

Created a Sensation.

Kearney, Neb., Aug. 3.—In a populist rally here Saturday night district judge C. R. Scott of Omaha caused a sensation when in his speech he classified McKinley and Senator Sherman with Herr Most, and declared that he had sent better men than Grover Cleveland to the penitentiary. Judge Scott gained notoriety several months ago by ordering newspaper men sent to jail for criticising his course on the bench. He was elected as a republican, but has recently been advocating populist doctrines.

Demand Senator Wolcott's Resignation.

Denver, Aug. 3.—A secret meeting of leading republicans of Denver was held yesterday in the office of a well-known attorney and it was resolved to ask senator E. D. Wolcott to resign as senator from Colorado. Representatives of the democratic, populist and silver parties were present and voted with the republicans to demand Mr. Wolcott's resignation.

"Cyclone" Davis for Congress.

Texarkana, Tex., Aug. 3.—"Cyclone" Davis, the peoples' party leader, has been nominated for congress by populists of the fourth district to succeed O. B. Culberson.

Wagner Society in Trouble.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—The once famous Wagner society held a meeting at Bayreuth under the chairmanship of Baron Seckendorf. The annual report showed that the membership, which in 1893 was 8,900, had fallen to 3,200. A motion to dissolve the society was defeated, but there is no hope that it will continue to exist much longer.

Oh, the enterprise of these great New York newspapers! The Herald appears this morning with almost a half column account of the preliminary details of the bicycle parade which was held in this city last Friday evening.

Orange taxpayers are mad and one of the assessors is wishing that he had never been called to place a valuation on property by which the revenues for government are provided. This particular assessor is a real estate agent and he took a rosy view of the value of property when he increased the valuation $800,000 in his district. The taxpayers are whooping mad and threaten all sorts of things from refusing to pay their taxes to certiorariing the whole matter to the Supreme court for adjustment.

Plainfield is forging ahead with the trolley system, and the people find that it pays to encourage them in and out of the city. A new line is now being opened up to Scotch Plains, and a line is already running to Dunellen and Netherwood, but Elizabeth has no trolley connection anywhere except to Newark, where a great deal of the cash trade goes. There is no feeder for this loss. Trolley cars should be runniag to all the suburban towns of Elizabeth.—Contractor.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints.—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Fredericktown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

NAY PEN'S OBSERVATIONS.

Charlie Lyman can crack a joke with the rest of them, but Saturday morning he was informed of a little affair that was enacted in his home Friday night that gives him a tinge of the blues. Happily he tripped into the dining room to partake of his morning repast, when one of his servants accosted him with a tremor in her voice. "Oh, Mr. Lyman," she said as though a storm was portending, "there is something black all over the parlor furniture, and I don't know what it is." Charlie couldn't imagine what it could be, and he started to investigate. As he entered the room a sorry sight met his gaze. Every piece of furniture, bric-a-brac, ornament, wall paper, everything, was begrimed with smudge as dirty as lamp black. A survey of the situation soon explained the cause. It was a large parlor lamp which evidently had been lighted the evening previous in a hurry to illuminate the house while the bicycle parade passed. Whoever did the act did not wait long enough to see how the lamp was burning, for it was turned up very high. In a brief time it was smoking like a smelting furnace and emitting a vapor that as it settled around the room evolved into a substance that covered everything with which it came into contact. It continued to burn until the supply of oil gave out and then the wick emitted a worse smudge than ever. It was not discovered until the next morning. The bland smile of Charlie does not come from the fulness of the heart just at present.

There is already a nice little contest on in county political circles for the position of court interpreter, left vacant by the suicide of Edward L. Newberger a few days ago. It is said there are almost a score of candidates for the berth, though I have heard no Plainfielder that is anxious for the job. Jacob Schulthies, of Elizabeth, is said to have the best chance to be the favored one.

I have been asked in a letter from a prominent citizen to size up the so-called noiseless gearing on the trolley cars. I am not particularly qualified to size up the trolley apparatus beyond the fact that my ears are in good order when it comes to discerning the hum which seems to permeate a block or two from all sides of the car when it is in motion, but I know it is very annoying. Residents have good cause for complaint along the line of the road, but they are living in the spirit on their part, no doubt, that "what can't be cured must be endured." Part of section 6 of the street railway ordinance says "Said company shall use upon their cars the Climax or other noiseless gearing." Was the ordinance framed for deaf people?

The Y. M. C. A. boys are making a creditable effort to give Plainfield a good article of baseball, and have been wonderfully successful so far this season, but John MacLaughlin, who is acting as manager, tells me they are going in the hole along the expense line. I attribute this condition to the fact that Plainfield is wrapped up in bicycling, and it will take a good deal of hustling to change the sentiment in favor of the great American game. Where a few years ago every street corner and loitering place had its quota of cranks who talked baseball almost continually, now it is the subject of bicycling that interests the popular mind.

I trust that some Councilman will make an effort this evening to have official action taken which will result in squelching the scorching tactics of the reckless bicyclists on the streets of this city.

NAY PEN.

Miss Lottie Wilson, of West Fourth street, who has been very ill, is improving.

Councilman Fisk has returned from Jefferson, N. H., to attend the Council meeting this evening.

Miss Martha Wright, of East Front street, sailed on the steamship New York for a short European trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Darby, of North Plainfield, drove to Scotch Plains yesterday afternoon, and spent a few hours pleasantly with Mrs. Darby's father, John R. Marsh.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Justice Nash rendered judgment in the case of Brokaw against Dennis, Saturday, for the plaintiff for $46 and costs.

—The work in Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, was not done Friday evening on account of the carnival. Only a short meeting was held.

—About a dozen of the Princeton College students drove over to Scotch Plains in carriages on Saturday night and dinned at Blimm's Hotel. They started for home about 2 yesterday morning.

—A horse belonging to A. L. Cadmus of South Second street, fell when coming down from the old freighthouse, Friday night, and was unable to rise. The animal finally had to be killed. It was thirty years of age, next to the oldest in town.

—The wardens of the Trinity Reformed church have decided not to close the church on the last Sunday in this month for cleaning as usual as was intended, and as Dr. Riggs has no engagement for that date, he will supply the pulpit for five Sundays instead of four.

AVON PARK.

Ellis A. Campbell has recovered from a short illness.

Miss Marie Smith, of Plainfield, is spending the week with Miss Loretta Quinn.

Charles C. Brower is entertaining his father and mother from Poughkeepsie.

The two large trees in front of the residence of Edward Campbell, that were killed by the recent fire, have been cut down.

Thieves tried to raid the chicken coop of Edward Campbell, last Thursday night, but the appearance of the owner with a shot gun, speedily drove them away.

Charles Wood, while working about the residence of Edward Campbell, last week, stepped on a rusty nail forcing its entire length into his foot. He was afraid of blood poisoning, but no signs of it as yet have appeared, and he has nearly recovered from the effects.

DUNELLEN.

The Misses Kenmeer, of New York, are visiting their cousin, O. Leibe, of Greenbrook.

Miss Florence Staples, of New York, is visiting her uncle, Sandford Staples, of New Market.

The M. E. church Sunday-school will go on their annual excursion to Asbury Park tomorrow.

A Word or Two

to those suffering from catarrh or the thousands subject to severe attacks of cold in the head, will not be amiss if a sure remedy can be offered. Ely's Cream Balm has become a favorite in all sections of the United States, because of its effectiveness. Your cold in the head will be quickly relieved by it, and the severest attack of catarrh will yield to, and be perfectly cured by a thorough treatment. Catarrh is not a blood disease, but inflammation of the passages of the nose and throat, due to climatic changes.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The City Council will meet this evening in regular session.

—The regular communion service was held at the First Baptist church yesterday morning.

—Elmer E. Garretson has leased John T. Case's house on Vine street, and will reside there after Sept. 1st.

—Frank Smith was arraigned before City Judge DeMeza Saturday on the charge of riding his bicycle without a light.

—Jacob Keller's new residence on Harrison street, in the borough, will be completed and ready for occupancy by Sept. 1st.

—According to the grade established the crosswalks at the intersection of Park avenue and Fifth street are six inches out of plumb.

—Third size stone and sand have been sprinkled on Liberty street in low spots, adding to the improved appearance of the street.

—James Fillmore, brother of Mrs. Hollenbeck, whose house was recently burned, has gone away and there is a rumor that he was killed.

—The next time you have to wait for the trolley on North auenue, step in Love's store and see his fine line of wall paper and paints.

—Street Commissioner Meeker and his men have been cutting down to grade West Third street, between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue.

—A gang of workmen are today fixing up the fourth track in front of the North Avenue station, which has become somewhat lowered by constant use.

—The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet Wednesday afternoon in the church and listen to a talk by Miss Julia Shinn, of Philadelphia.

—About a dozen of the Plymouth Brethren who have been attending the conference being held in North Plainfield, left for their homes in the various parts of the country today.

—A horse became frightened at the trolley Friday afternoon, near Evona, and ran away. The horse broke its leg and had to be shot. It belonged to a man living on Clinton avenue.

—Charles Walsh was released from the hospital Friday and went direct to his home in Elizabethport. He was admitted to the hospital about two weeks ago, suffering from over-exertion and fever.

—Justice Nash has issued summons in the following cases, all returnable on August 6th: Runyon against Delaney, on contract; Thickstun against Cobb, on contract; King against Flynn, on contract.

—John W. James and James Bell, of this city, and John Rodgment, of Chester, Pa., went to Trenton on Saturday and attended a Socialist meeting at that place which was called to arrange plans for the coming election.

—George Cose, Wm. Stewart and Jack Evans, of the Fourth ward, acted as baggage-masters on the Hope chapel excursion Saturday, and when the train reached its destination, the sandwiches, boiled eggs, etc., were handed from the train with skill and dexterity.

—Another small wreck occurred on the New Jersey Central near White House station, Saturday, but so far as reported no one was injured. The wrecking crew from Elizabethport went up and returned during the afternoon with the broken coal and freight cars.

—At the First Baptist church yesterday morning Dr. Yerkes announced that he would be absent for four weeks on his vacation. He expressed his appreciation of the fact that he was going, and yet did not like to be away because he did not know what might happen. The doctor leaves on Wednesday for Saratoga, his usual summer resort.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Address. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Mrs. Rhodie Noah, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of blackberry cordial but got no relief. She then sent to me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and diarrhoea Remedy and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhoea but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by T. S Armstrong, Druggist.

FOR THE SUMMER OUTING.

Gowns of Coarse Toweling Will Be Much in Evidence.

The Athletic Bather's Suit—Dress Versus Personality—Ribbons Are Much Worn, Especially White Satin—A White Pique Gown.

[COPYRIGHT, 1896.]

The keynote of the season is transparency. It is a quality of every material used in the make-up of gowns. But to prevent the season from being lop-sided, the proper average is attained by the use of very coarse crash for outing dresses—crash as coarse as that possessed by the most modest of kitchens.

Yet these costumes are most charming, especially when accompanied by Alpine hats of the same material. They are made with gored skirts, very full in the back, and have jackets that are old-fashioned blazers, with a Louis impress. Revers do not extend over the sleeves, but are narrow and English in shape. The revers are usually faced with white—white satin being most effective.

Another peculiarity of these jackets is the sham vests which usually protrude from each side of the front, and have embroidered edges. They, also, are of white satin.

While crash has superseded all other materials for the outing dress, white pique still holds its own, in an advanced stage, of course. Pique embroidered with eyelets is now introduced in the construction of jackets, while the embroidered edges overrun all revers.

A novel costume has a gored skirt, encircled about six inches from the bottom with two rows of coarse white lace insertion. The jacket, of embroidered pique, suggests a tailor-made gown in the severity of its revers, which are turned back down the entire length of the front. Above the revers broaden out until they reach the arm seam. They are doubly stitched all around, and fastened below the bust with pearl buttons and white cords.

To be entirely certain of the popularity of ribbon, one need only watch the hordes of women standing before ribbon counters, some matching materials, others their complexion. Even that proof is not necessary to the woman who watches the shoppers. Most of the necks are pretty sure to have ribbon bands about them, not to mention hat and dress trimmings.

Among neck ribbons white satin is the prime favorite. No matter what the gown, a white satin ribbon will set it off.

Next in favor is the plain taffeta ribbon, of any light shade. Corn color soils not so easily as white, and yet it has a most effective appearance.

Dresden ribbons are still somewhat used, but their popularity is declining rapidly. They are now little used for neck ribbons, but appear almost entirely in the trimming of gowns and hats.

Yet for effect and beauty there is nothing which combines so well with organdie as the Dresden ribbon. It is used entirely for waist ribbons, with large bow in the back. These bows have long loops, and the effect of the entire thing should be long and narrow. Many of the bows extend half way up the back.

In decided contrast is a belt ribbon which encircles the waist at the back, wends it way up each side the front and meets at the bust line under an immense bow which spreads there, almost concealing the bodice front. Other bows perch on the shoulders, fall in cascades from the neck, nestle in flounce tops, and, in fact, wherever there is a spot large enough to hold them.

She was a slim bit of brightness, chatting gayly as she ate her luncheon. Her garb seemed to melt into her personality, and I knew without a second glance that it was in some way typical of her vocation.

"My last patient was a charming woman."

As the remark fell from her lips the mystery was solved. Very simple it was, too. For how could one clothed in a severe black gown, buttoned plainly down the front, with white linen collars and cuffs, be aught but a nurse? Yet the incident taught its lesson, and I looked about for other women who told in their garments the story of their lives.

As I stepped from the restaurant I saw another—a typical American girl, true to the life made up of pleasures which she led. Every line of her form showed clearly how well she had herself in hand. Her complexion, the rosy cheeks and the shell-like ears all showed the care with which they were handled.

Her gown and hat, too, were the most appropriate that America could plan.

THE AMERICAN GIRL.

A skirt of tan canvas over green silk, which shimmered beneath like the waves of the sea. Then a tight-fitting bodice of green silk, and over it green net gathered, sleeves whose top puffs were tan canvas, with the lower arms covered with gathered net, a la mousquetaire; coarse cream lace, falling in three points from the neck, which is wound about with a ruche of green net.

The hat was, of course, green, adorned with violets and fans of cream lace.

Now doth the summer girl's fancy lightly turn to thoughts of bathing suits. Not that they always perform that function, for many a bathing suit is not "warranted to wash," and its wearer knows it when she plans the garment. But she intends to put no more than her "Trilbies" beneath the wave. Therefore her gown may be of gorgeous unwashable scarlet or green, trimmed with gold or silver passementerie. Silk is the material most often used in the construction of these garments, and the handsomest ribbons trim them.

The athletic girl eschews all unnecessary fixings for her bathing gown, choosing one which will be serviceable in deep-water swimming. A black or dark blue mohair is selected. The suit is made with rather full knickerbockers and blouse all in one, and a short skirt, with buttons to the belt. If you have ever watched a girl take off her skirt in the water while swimming alongside of a rowboat you can appreciate the advantage of having a suit constructed in the way mentioned.

The blouse may open rather low, to reveal a white silk vest; and the sailor collars may be of the silk. Sleeves should be squatty puffs, and the belt adorned with a bow of white ribbon.

Shoes will again be worn. The custom of displaying the feet did not meet with the expected enthusiasm, and the girls are once more glad to get into shapely slippers. THE LATEST.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

New York, Aug. 3.—Rioting was the chief feature of the tailors' strike on the east side yesterday, and although there were but few arrest made Acting-Capt. Hogan kept his reserves ready to quell any disturbance that might occur. On account of the Contractors' association deciding at a meeting on Saturday night to open their shops yesterday and to take union or non-union men to work the Brotherhood of Tailors had committees in front of every shop at 5:30 o'clock in the morning and as the men came to go to work, tried to pursuade them to join the strikers. In most cases the committees were successful but not without several small fights which the police very quickly stopped.

The leaders of the men say they are sure of winning. During the afternoon it was figured that about 1,500 non-union men who were going to work yesterday morning had joined the strikers. All the shops that signed the agreement with the brotherhood were working yesterday and took in about 1,300 of the strikers. From reports received from Brooklyn and Brownsville it was learned that the men are still out. A mass meeting of the striking tailors was held in the Windsor theatre on the Bowery last evening, and the house was crowded from the orchestra to the gallery. It was figured that over 4,000 men and women were present. Max Cornfield presided. Leader Schoenfeld, Joseph Barondess and Benjamin Schweitzer addressed the audience. All of the speakers counseled the men to hold out, and the contractors would be forced to give in in the end. Their addresses were received with much enthusiasm, but there was nothing disorderly in the demonstration and the squad of policemen in the theatre had nothing to do.

TO EXPEDITE THE MAILS.

Steamship Lines Adopt a New Plan To Facilitate Their Transportation.

New York, Aug. 3.—Four steamship lines, the American, Hamburg-American, North German Lloyd and White Star, will hereafter transfer incoming European mails bound for out of town places to tugs at Sandy Hook in order to facilitate their transportation by train. Postal clerks on the tugs will sort the mails on the way up to the city. The White Star tugs will land their mails at pier 44, North river, and the German and American ships will put off theirs at the foot of Fulton street, North river. Trucks will take the mail sacks directly from the piers to the railroad stations. Heretofore foreign mails for places outside the city have been taken to the post office and sorted there. Supt. Bradley of the foreign mail service says that foreign mails for Philadelphia will get there under the new arrangement four hours earlier, and that twenty-four hours will be saved between St. Louis and all points beyond.

FIRE AT CRAMPS' SHIPYARD.

The Paint Shop and Most of Its Contents Destroyed—Loss, $40,000.

Philadelphia, Aug. 3.—The big yards of the Cramp Ship and Engine Building company were Saturday night the scene of a fire which before it could be extinguished swept out of existence the great paint shop with most of its contents, entailing a loss of about $40,000, which, however, is fully covered by insurance. The burned structure was of frame, 200 feet long by 90 feet wide. The splendid steam launch of the battleship Iowa was receiving its finishing touches in the paint shop, but a gang of men rushed in and pulled it out scarcely a moment before the roof fell in. The burned building contained a big stock of paints, oils and varnishes, as well as all the fancy and hard wood fittings that are to go in the vessel in course of construction at the yards. All these were destroyed.

Frost in Maine.

Norway, Me., Aug. 3.—The first frost of the season was seen here yesterday. It was slight and the damage was small.

AGAINST THE TICKET

Bourke Cockran Will Oppose the Chicago Nominees.

SAYS THE SITUATION IS VERY GRAVE

Surprised at the Action of Tammany in Endorsing Bryan and Sewall—Says There Is a Crusade Against Honesty and the Rights of Labor.

New York, Aug. 1.—The following interview with Hon. Bourke Cockran, who returned from Europe on Saturday, is published this morning by a morning newspaper. Q. What is your opinion of the present political situation? A. I regard it as the gravest in the history of the country, exceeding in importance the crisis of 1860. The secession movement was but an attempt to paralyze industry by using all the powers of government to take property from the hands of those who created it and place it in the hands of those who covet it. This is a question of morals as well as of politics. No political convention can issue a valid license to commit offenses against morality, and I decline to follow Mr. Bryan in a crusade against honesty and the rights of labor.

Will Work Against the Chicago Ticket.

Q—Do you mean that you will actively oppose the democratic party or abstain from active support of it? A—In a contest for the existence of civilization no man can remain neutral. Whoever does not aid the forces of order aids the forces of disorder. If I can do anything to thwart a movement, the success of which I would regard as an irreparable calamity not only to this country but to civilized society everywhere, I shall certainly do it. Q—What do you think of Tammany's action in endorsing the ticket? A—I simply cannot understand it. They strongly opposed the platform at Chicago on the ground that it was an assault upon the integrity of the nation. They decline to ratify it even now, which shows they have not changed their opinion of it. Yet they have endorsed the candidate who stands upon it and whose election will mean that the platform which they themselves denounced as a singular combination of lunacy and villainy shall be incorporated into the statute law of this country.

Does Not Favor Another Nominee.

Q. Will you support Major McKinley, or do you favor the nomination of another democratic ticket? A. I believe that all democrats who are so thoroughly in favor of sound money that they place the defeat of Bryan above the interests of any organization or party should meet in convention for the purpose of considering the form and method by which they can give the greatest efficiency to their opposition. For my part I do not believe that the nomination of other candidates for president and vice-president, however eminent and deserving they might be personally or politically, would serve any useful purpose. Nobody believes they could be elected, and any democrat whose hostility to populism and republicanism would not allow him to support either Bryan or McKinley could show his opposition to both by remaining at home on election day quite as well as by voting for a third ticket. The obvious policy is to endorse the McKinley electors and thus secure the immediate success of the main feature of the platform. The democrats who will have achieved the success of their financial plank by the election of McKinley will yet constitute an opposition to the republican party the day after election based on principles which are certain to be ultimately adopted by the American people.

Free Silver Movement a Conspiracy.

Q. What is your opinion of the ultimate outlook? A. Everything depends on the manner in which this campaign is waged. To my mind there is but one test of prosperity which can be applied to a country, and that is the rate of wages paid to labor. There can be no prosperity where low wages are paid. There can be no distress where the rate of wages is high. It can easily be demonstrated that this whole free silver movement is a conspiracy against wages, and if the campaign is fought on this line I have no doubt that every northern state—that is every state of the Union in which it is practicable to hold a free election—will be carried by the intelligence and morality of the American people against the monstrous proposition submitted to them by the convention which nominated Mr. Bryan for the presidency.

Kansas Midland Railroad in Trouble.

Wichita, Kan., Aug. 1.—A bill to foreclose on the Kansas Midland railroad, a feeder of the St. Louis & San Francisco, has been filed in the United States circuit court here, together with an order from Judge Caldwell appointing A. L. Wolff of St. Louis as receiver. The suit is brought by the Mercantile Trust company of New York city, trustee for the first mortgage bonds, amounting to $1,608,000.

No Paper Currency for Turkey.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The Turkish legation has received from the sublime porte the following telegram: "Some malevolent people have propagated the false news that the Turkish government had the intention of introducing paper currency. Please contradict it."

Fatal Fire in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Aug. 3.—The plant of the Philadelphia Paving and Construction company, manufacturers of asphaltum, was destroyed by fire yesterday. Parnell Dougherty, aged 14 years, who was sleeping in the boiler house, was burned to death.

SPORTS

MONDAY, August 3. Sun rises 4:55 a. m., sets 7:17 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:17 p. m. and 3:55 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Miss Effie Stover, of Oak Tree, has a new Victor wheel.

Chas. Johnson, of Dunellen, has purchased a Credenda wheel.

Miss Rockfellow and Miss Demarest, of Park avenue, had a delightful wheeling trip Saturday.

City Judge DeMeza is now riding an Eclipse wheel and may be seen taking a spin out Park avenue nearly every pleasant afternoon.

INS AND OUTS.

The Scotch Plains and Cranford base ball teams came hors du combat on the grounds of the former club, Saturday. The game was one-sided from the begining and at the close the score stood 23 to 13 in favor of the Scotch Plains players. Cranford is a little too much isolated to control a good ball team.

At Dunellen, Saturday, the Plainfield A.C. took the Dunellen A. C. into camp to the tune of 16 to 5. The Plainfields played a fine game, hitting the pitching of Hayes all over the field. They secured 12 hits for a total of 15 bases, while the Dunellens got six hits. Following are the details of the game.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Chas. C. Brower won third money at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson with Highland Boy in the 2:30 class.

Jed Smalley's pacer Frank did a mile in 2:33 on the Gentlemen's Driving Park several days ago.

Jacob Schurts, of Somerville, has a fast trotter, that much is expected from, in training at the Raritana Stock Farm, under the care of Charles Wooley, the manager of that noted place.

The usual friendly trotting contests took place on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association, Saturday afternoon, but no remarkable time was made. The only horses from this city out of four in the race were John Osborn's "Barney Williams," and Mr. Arkell's "Vanity."

Leonard W. Gavett, left today for Kennebunkport, Me., where he will spend the rest of the month.

Thomas Buckley returned home from St. Paul, Saturday, where he has been for several weeks past putting up a press for the Potter Press Works Company.

Miss Florence Wyatt, of Brooklyn, is visiting the Misses Daly, of Manning avenue. Miss Wyatt is delighted with the scenery in and about Plainfield, and she expresses a desire to permanently locate here.

Mr. Thomas B. Brown, of Chicago, who resided in Plainfield for many years and who during his residence here sang in the Trinity Reformed church, has been the guest for several days of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Titsworth, of Madison avenue. He was invited by Mr. Cutter, chairman of the music committee, to sing in the choir, which he did at both the morning and evening services yesterday much to the delight of his many friends.

Got Out of Town Quick.

An itinerant umbrella mender and a dilapidated female, who claimed to be his wife, were gathered in by the police on Cole's hill, East Front street, Saturday evening. Sooner than saddle a thirty days' board bill upon the county, Judge DeMeza liberated them from the lockup yesterday morning with the admonition that they leave town within five minutes, which they promised to do.

—J. E. White, the enterprising West Front street dry goods dealer, is out today with a handsome new two-horse delivery wagon. Hillard Apgar handles the reins over the team.

—The band of gypsies, under the leadership of Elisah Cooper and William Riley, are now camping at the old quarters near Avon Park, where they will remain for several weeks.

—Martha Washington Council, No. 22, Daughters of America, auxiliary to the Jr. O. U. A. M., will be instituted tomorrow evening in the Elkwood building on West Second street.

CATCHING A SWORDFISH.

A Task Requiring Considerable Courage and Much Experience.

In the pursuit of the swordfish the hunter of the sea finds his greatest excitement. There is no slow and careful baiting and patient waiting. The game is seen—a sharp fin cutting the surface of the water—and a chase that often ends in a terrible struggle is begun, for a wounded swordfish often fights fiercely, thrusting its two-edged spear straight through a boat and sometimes stabbing his pursuers.

But a fisherman who has once tried the sport never tires of it or of its excitements.

Not long ago a party set out from Cape May in a little sloop. It was a calm, sunny day, and the man in the cross-trees swept the sea to catch a glimpse of the white bit of foam that would show where a swordfish swam.

For an hour the sloop skimmed lightly along.

"Hey-o," came suddenly from the man in the rigging.

"Where away?" sung out the skipper from his place at the wheel.

"Off the weather bow."

In a moment all eyes were watching a glistening fin that cut the water ahead.

The mate ran to the bow and took his place in the "pulpit," and, seizing the steel harpoon, stood ready for the game.

For a few minutes the vessel and the soldier of the sea ran silently and swiftly. The skipper gradually drew the bow around until the huge fish was close alongside.

Then came the sppreme moment.

As the little vessel shot into the wind the mate raised his harpoon and leaned forward from the pulpit. Every eye was upon him. For a moment the steel flashed, and then, with a crashing sound, it entered the back of the fish.

"Stand clear of the line!" shouted the mate, as he sprang to the deck.

The warning was well heeded, for the rope was running over the vessel's side with the sound of a ripsaw. The swordfish was in flight. When the last yard spun out the mate tossed overboard the keg, to which the rope was fastened, and away it went, followed by a wave of foam and spray.

A moment later the dory, loaded with fishermen, pushed its nose into the sea, and after a spirited race reached the flying keg and pulled it aboard. The half-exhausted fish felt the strain, and the next instant the dory was rushing along—a swordfish express.

Slowly the rope was hauled in, the prey being given plenty of opportunity to spurt and wear himself out. Presently the sharp fin was seen close at hand, and with a rush the great fish was laid alongside.

Hauled partly out of water by the rope, the fish gave a sudden plunge with his weapon. Crash it went through the side of the boat, and the men within rolled over and let go the rope. There was a sudden plunge and a heavy jar. The infuriated fish had thrust his sword through the bottom of the boat, narrowly missing an oarsman's leg.

"To the rope," shouted the bowman, and instantly every man braced himself and pulled while the water gushed through a hole in the boat.

A few moments more of terrific struggle and the huge fish was brought alongside. Without giving him another chance to strike, the bowman lifted an oar and a violent blow on the head killed the fierce fish.

Luckily the sloop came alongside just as the dory grew dangerously full of water, and the daring fishermen climbed aboard. The fish measured ten feet and two inches in length.—Chicago Record.

Jay That Lighted Matches.

A dangerous acquirement of a pet blue jay is told about in the American Naturalist by James Newton Basket, of Mexico, Mo. The blue jay referred to somehow learned that parlor, or popping matches, would make a delightful sputter and flame if properly manipulated. The bird was in the habit of beating much of its food against some hard substance, perhaps for the purpose of breaking or softening it. It probably treated one of the parlor matches in this way one day, and so learned that they made a noise. When a match was given to it it would hop on a chair round and strike the fulminate against the wood, end on, repeating it rapidly till the head was ignited; then it would throw it away and watch the flame.

Facts About Blue-Eyed Cats.

It is a curious fact that blue-eyed cats are invariably deaf. Mr. J. Harrison Weir, a great authority on the cat, once bought a big, white, blue-eyed beauty, which seemed to be every inch a good cat, except that its vocal organ was of such robust power that her cries drove the household frantic. After some strange experiences the problem was solved by this voiceful specimen being taken home by a kind old lady who was herself stone deaf.

WAS A GREAT WOMAN.

Harriet Beecher Stowe, Author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Her Strong Personality and Active Anti-Slavery Work—Remarks de Genius of the Beecher Family—A Prolific Writer.

Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, who died at Hartford, Conn., July 1, was the sixth child of a family of 11 children, every one of whom attained distinction in literature, or oratory, or both, she being a daughter of Rev. Lyman Beecher and a sister of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. Mrs. Stowe was born at Litchfield, Conn., June 14, 1812, and displayed remarkable precocity at an early age. When but 12 years old she wrote a very strong essay upon the immortality of the soul. Having the misfortune to lose her mother when but four years of age, she was placed with her grandmother, a worthy and most sensible woman, at Guilford, Conn., where she remained until her father's second marriage, when she returned to the home roof and became a pupil in the academy in Litchfield. The school days of Mrs. Stowe were marked by earnest study and a ready apprehension of all that was taught, her standing always being high in all her classes.

At the close of her school days she became a teacher in a seminary at Hartford which had been founded by her eldest sister, Catherine, but when her father was called to the presidency of Lane Theological seminary at Cincinnati in 1832, the young woman accompanied him and there founded another school. Four years later Harriet married Prof. E. C. Stowe, an instructor in the seminary, and soon thereafter the man and wife became actively identified with the anti-slave movement, their home becoming noted for what was termed a "station" of the "underground railroad," by which route fugitive slaves escaped to places of safety. The extreme views of Dr. Beecher upon slavery finally led to a nearly complete breaking up of the school, and in 1850 Prof. Stowe accepted a chair in Bowdoin college. It was here that Mrs. Stowe's work which has given her fame in every part of the world was written.

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" was first published in serial numbers in the National Era, an anti-slave paper of Washington, D. C., and was soon issued in book form. The success of the work was phenomenal, the sales of the first five years, 1852-7, reaching 500,000 copies in the United States alone. The book has been translated into every language of Europe, as well as many oriental tongues, and the demand for it is steady after upwards of 40 years. An evidence of the wretched compensation too frequently received by authors is shown in Mrs. Stowe's case, her royalties upon "Uncle Tom's Cabin" having amounted to only about $400 per year.

Since 1850 no less than 35 books were written by Mrs. Stowe, all of which gave evidence of the strength and creative faculty of her mind, although in one instance, the Byron controversy, the wisdom of her judgment was questioned by many of her friends, even. Her writings, chiefly romances, present almost every phase of American life and testify to the remarkable perspicacity of their author. Her popularity as a writer is shown in the fact that all her writings met with a ready and large sale.

Subsequently Prof. Stowe filled a chair at Andover and then removed to Hartford, where he died August 22, 1886, and which city his widow continued to make her home. After the war Mrs. Stowe spent several winters in Florida, but ultimately renounced this practice, alleging the absence of sympathy among those with whom she there temporarily resided. Mrs. Stowe was slight in figure, but possessed a strikingly personality, her face especially indicating her great strength of character. She was remarkable for the courage of her convictions and her freedom in voicing them, with a manifest indifference as to the views of the majority.

Several years previous to her death she was in feeble health, and the mental vigor that had been so pronounced gradually failed, until the light of reason became dim. But during this period of weakness she had the ministrations of loving and devoted friends. Among the scholars and literati of the old world Mrs. Stowe is accorded first place among the women of America as a writer as well as thinker, and her distinguishing work is placed by them in the number of the most remarkable and successful books of any age, this success comprehending results achieved as well as universal popularity. It has been the lot of few persons to receive as she such universal praise on one hand and such pronounced censure on the other, both criticisms being unqualified in their genuineness.

A New Form of Crime.

Bicycle snatching is a new form of crime developed in Paris. A lady was riding some distance ahead of her husband near the Port Malliot recently, when two men stopped her, pulled her off her bicycle and were making off with the machine when her husband caught up with them and had them arrested.

To Be Worked on Early Purchasers of

The Spalding Bicycle

After the adoption of our 1896 model and a careful estimate of the cost of manufacture, we placed the price on the Spalding Bicycle at $100. The price is now $100 and will continue at $100 throughout the season, no matter what other manufacturers may do.

We don't believe it is fair, honest or good business policy to sell a standard article like the Spalding Bicycle at one price in May and reduce its value in June by a material reduction in price. As a matter of common fairness to early purchasers of Spalding Bicycles and as an evidence of good faith on our part we will, in case of reduction in price during the season, send a rebate check to every purchaser of a Spalding Bicycle of the amount of any such reduction that may be made by us during the season This is our meaning of a

GUARANTEE OF PRICE.

Ride the Spalding and you will be happy, contented and assured that you will not be "flim-flammed" in price or quality.

THE CITY SOLONS BUSY.

SEVERAL IMPORTANT MATTERS CONSIDERED BY THE COUNCIL.

Petition for the Erection of a Garbage Disposal Plant—A New Street Sprinkling Ordinance—Commissioners Make Report.

Councilman Fisk was the centre of attraction at the regular meeting of the City Council last evening, when he appeared in duck trousers, and in the absence of President See, Mr. Fisk called the meeting to order, after which Mr. Ginna was made president pro tem and Geo. Wean was made clerk pro tem in the absence of Clerk MacMurray, who was kept away owing to the illness of his wife. The City Clerk appeared later in the evening and took his place. All of the Council except President See answered to the roll call, and after the reading of the previous minutes a petition was received from ex-Councilman L. S. Spangenberg and others asking for a crosswalk at the corner of Woodland and South avenues. The matter was referred to the street committee.

A petition was received from the Plainfield Sanitary Company, signed by E. R. Pope, S. G. Smith and L. S. Spangenberg, asking Council for the privilege of erecting a sanitary plant for the disposal of garbage. They also wanted to make a contract with the city for one year to receive all garbage. The matter was referred to the water and sewer committee.

The Board of Education asked the Council to take steps toward flagging Berckman and East Second streets in the vicinity of the proposed new school building. This was referred to the street committee.

J. L. Blackford, who was recently dismissed from Gazelle Engine Company, petitioned Council to give him a hearing, as he had not been given one. The matter was placed in the hands of the fire committee.

Residents of La Grande avenue asked for a two-way hydrant to be located on their avenue, 500 feet west of Woodland avenue. The matter was handed over to the fire committee.

Residents of Carleton avenue petitioned the Council to arrange the flagging ordinance so that it would include Carleton avenue, and the committee on streets will look into the matter and report.

The insurance policy held by E. C. Mulford for $4,000 on the city property, located at 1728 West Front street, was received and filed.

Postal Telegraph Company asked for the privilege of erecting a clock in the city, which will be fourteen feet in height, with a base of 2x10 and 2x6. It is proposed to erect a pole with a ball attachment which will cause the latter to drop every day at 12 o'clock noon, similar to the one used in New York city. The Company want to locate it at the head of Park avenue. The matter was referred to the street committee with power to act.

Assessor J. A. Hubbard set Tuesday, August 18th, as the time for the Council to examine his books, and Mr. Dumont moved that when Council adjourned it be to meet on that date, which was so ordered.

The city physician reported that nineteen cases had been treated during the month. Inspector of buildings, T. O. Doane, reported that twenty permits had been issued since his last report. The overseer of the poor stated in his report that there are now thirty-seven persons being cared for by the city. During the past month four have died, and one abandoned child had been given a home in the west. Mr. Marx stated that there seemed to be some misunderstanding as in regards to the pauper burial grounds in the Methodist cemetery, and he would report later on the subject. The city treasurer's and collector's reports were received and filed. Mr. Dumont offered a resolution which provided for the borrowing of $4,000 for the general fund and $1,000 for the fire fund in anticipation of taxes. The resolution prevailed.

Mr. Moore, of the license committee, ported that Neil Scott's application for a liquor license conformed to all the requirements, but the committee did not recommend that it be granted, and it was accordingly refused. Mr Serrell introduced a sprinkling ordinance which was adopted, ordered engrossed and advertised. It provides for a certain kind of sprinkler, and a violation of the same provides for a $20 fine.

Another ordinance was introduced by Mr. Serrell which provided for ash, garbage and stone wagons. Messrs Dumont, Fisk, Barrows, Frost and Moore objected to the restrictions set forth as being too severe, and after a lively discussion the ordinance was

HOWARD GROBES HAS NOT BEEN SEEN SINCE LAST SATURDAY.

Has Been Married Only Seven Months and Seemed to Be Getting Along Nicely—May Have Left on Account of Family Troubles

A number of people will remember that a fashionable wedding among the colored people took place in Bethel chapel, Tuesday evening, February 11th, when Howard Grobes and Miss Alice Lewis were married in the presence of a large assemblage. Scarcely seven months have passed and the two are now many miles apart. Grobes, at the time of his marriage, was head waiter at the Albion Hotel. He was thought very well of and liked by all. Sometime later he left there and took a position with S. C. Rogers, at his East Front street restaurant. His home was on Arlington avenue, where he and his wife lived with Mrs. Grobes' mother. Saturday night Howard went home and dressed himself in his best clothes, after which he left the house. He did not tell his folks where he was going, neither did he tell his employer, Mr. Rogers. That is the last he was seen about Plainfield and his whereabouts are unknown. It has been intimated that everything did not go smoothly at home and that Mr. Grobes was unable to provide for more than his own family. He worked steadily at the restaurant. His relatives are much worried regarding him and they have not the slightest idea where he is.

FRIGHTENED ON THE ROAD.

Two Young Plainfielders Had an Exciting Sunday Night Adventure.

H. C. McVoy and Charles Stephens, of this city, had an exciting experience Sunday night about twelve o'clock while returning from New Brunswick with a horse and buggy. They were riding along at a good pace when they passed through the outskirts of Metuchen. Suddenly a man jumped in the road and attempted to catch the horse, at the same time giving an unearthly yell. Mr. McVoy was driving and he spoke to his horse sharply, causing him to make a plunge to the opposite side of the road. They escaped this man, and had gone but a short distance when two men attempted the same trick. They did not succeed, however, and the occupants of the wagon reached home safely. They had no weapons of defense and were well frightened by their experience.

Meeting of the Board of Health.

President Rockafellow and Messrs. H. O. Newman and L. W. Serrell, constituting a quorum of the Board of Health, met in the Mayor's office in the City Hall building last evening. But little business other than routine was transacted. It was reported that no contagious diseases had existed in the city so far as known within the past thirty days. This is considered something remarkable by the board when it is taken into consideration the fact that diphtheria is raging in Jersey City and other nearby towns. According to print there are at the present time 163 cases of the dreaded disease in Jersey City alone.

In the City Court.

Two cases came up in the city court before Judge DeMeza this morning. They were Charles Williams and Albert G. Cook. The pair had a "scrap" in the alley next to the Salvation Army Hall last evening and when arrested gave the officers some little trouble. $5 or twenty days was Judge DeMeza's sentence and they took the latter.

Death of Mrs. Karbaum.

Sunday evening Mrs. Susan Karbaum, of Netherwood avenue, died of consumption at the age of sixty-one years. Her funeral will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the residence of her son-in law, John P. Lowenhaupt, 145 Netherwood avenue, and interment will be made in Brooklyn tomorrow morning.

Five Applications for Membership.

At a regular conclave of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., held last evening, five applications were received for knighthood and membership to the Commandery. Plans are rapidly assuming definite shape for the annual field day to be held here in October.

Attention!

Those who have signed the charter and those who so desire for Martha Washington Council, No. 22, D. of A., are requested to be at the institution of the above Council in the Elkwood building this evening.

It doesn't matter much whether sick headache, billiousness, indigestion and constipation are caused by neglect or by unavoidable circumstances; DeWitt's Little Early Risers will speedily cure them all. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

GETTING DOWN TO WORK

DETAILS BEING PLANNED FOR THE STATE ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

One of the Most Important Features Will Be an Immense Parade of the Junior Members—The Music to Be Special.

Endeavorers of Plainfield are beginning to wake up to the fact that the convention, towards which we are all looking, is only two months off. Very much is to be done in that time, and the various committees are now organized and will soon commence aggressive work.

The hall and decoration committee, which, as has already been announced, have secured the cycle academy, and intend to make the hall as attractive as possible, with the intermingling of the State colors—orange and black—and the convention colors—green and white.

A corps of well trained, uniformed ushers will be in attendance, so that it is hoped that no difficulty will be experienced in seating as many as the hall will hold. An Endeavor choir of 500 voices will soon be organized under the leadership of Wm. MacClymont. These, with the four Park sisters, and a visit from the Rutgers Glee Club, will make the hall ring with the stirring convention hymns. Notice of the rehearsals of the choir will be given through the newspapers.

The convention badge is a celluloid scroll, upon which is a picture of Washington Rock and the words "Y. P. S. C. E., Tenth Annual New Jersey State Convention, Plainfield, October 7th, 8th and 9th, 1896." The orange and black ribbon upon which the badge is fastened, is secured to the delegate by a pin in the shape of a mosquito.

The work of the assignment committee is by far the most difficult, for to secure homes for five thousand delegates is no easy task. If the various societies in town will send to the committee the names and addresses of those whom they know will receive delegates, it will do much to lighten their burden. A list of those who comprise the several committees will be published later.

Nor are the Juniors forgotten in the preparations which are being made. Some of the brightest of them will act as pages or guides, to the host of visiting Endeavorers. On Friday afternoon, a grand parade will be given by all the Juniors in the city and vicinity. The will form near the Crescent Avenue church, march through some of the principal streets singing as they go and enter the convention hall in a body.

Here they will be addressed by prominent Junior workers, and the meeting will close by a consecration service and roll-call of societies.

In all our preparations for this grand gathering in the fall, let us not forget that our work will count for naught, unless we have the blessing and guidance of our divine Master. "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts," will be the underlying thought of the whole convention. Let us keep in mind this thought and remember in our prayers each day the gathering from which we hope so much, praying that our hearts may be prepared for a mighty blessing and that God's Spirit may rest upon us with great power.

Press Committee.

A Missionary in Trouble.

Whitfield Frazee, head "blower" in Prof. Guttman's orchestra, is minus a cat. "Whit" lives at 703 South avenue, and he brought a feline out from Washington Market a short time ago which he named "Slim Jim" on account of the cat's activity in crawling through knotholes after spring chickens. Sunday night the cat went out to perform some missionary work, and early next morning it showed up at the house with only three feet and no tail. The cat had been caught in a muskrat trap.

Donations to the Fresh Air Camp.

Donations for the Children's Camp have been received from the following: Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, Mrs. Dupee, Mrs. A. D. V. Honeyman, Mrs. Stover, Mrs. Josiah Browne, Mrs. Gregg, Mrs. Harder, Mrs. Glenny, Mrs. Schermerhorn, Mrs. Mali, Mrs. Pope, Miss Dunlap, Mr. Gavett, Mr. Mumford.

Don't Stop for Hot Weather.

There were twenty members of the Primary Teachers' Union present at the meeting held yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Baker, of Westfield, taught the lesson, and Mrs. Powelson led the devotional exercises. A short routine business meeting was held at the close.

The whole system is drained and undermined by indolent ulcers and open sores. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve speedily heals them. It is the best pile cure known. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

RANSACKED THE HOUSE.

A DAYLIGHT BURGLAR CAUSES HAVOC IN A BOROUGH HOUSEHOLD.

Entered Through a Second-Story Window But Stole Nothing But a Small Sum of Money Which He Found There.

Burglars seem to be operating in the borough without any fear of being molested. Yesterday another robbery in broad daylight was reported, but this time the thief was frightened away before much plunder was secured.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Van Nest live at 144 Duer street, and yesterday afternoon, between 2 and 5 o'clock, the house was vacant.

Some mean thief climbed to an upper window by means of the veranda, opened the blinds and entered the house. Although the neighbors were at home at the time nothing unusual was noticed by them and it was not until Mr. and Mrs. VanNest arrived home that they knew their house had been entered.

Furniture, household utensils, etc., on the ground floor, had been strewn promiscuously about, and in the sleeping apartments, bureau drawers had been ransacked and the contents thrown on the floor. Closets had also been thoroughly overhauled, but so far as known only a small amount of money, evidently the only thing the thief or thieves were after, was taken. There is as yet no clue that would lead to the identity of the thief or thieves.

At the Inn.

The following are the late arrivals at Mountain Park Inn: A. W. Egbert, William Dutcher, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. S. Harper, of New York; Mrs. Ritter, Mr. and Mrs. Munn, of Brooklyn; F. H. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood, Miss Lockwood, William Lockwood, Fred Lockwood, George E. Meludy, A. G. Armstrong, E. E. Bush, Clarence J. Detwitter, Charles H. Detwitter, of Jersey City; Hon. F. M. Voorhees, Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth; R. J. Winger, of Providence, R. I.; Steven M. Bell, of Troy, N. Y.; George Cortwright, of Paterson; Mrs. Lupton, of Perth Amboy; A. G. A. Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Bushnell, the Misses Bushnell, H. D. Bushnell, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Herring, Mr. and Mrs. Bettman, Rev. and Mrs. George H. Whitney, Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, Jr., F. E. Marsh, of Plainfield.

On Their Way to Sea Girt.

The "non-commissioned" staff of the Fourth Regiment, N. J. V., of Jersey City, arrived here at 10:50 o'clock yesterday morning on wheels. They were on the way to Jamesburg, where they are to spend two days and from there they go to Sea Girt for a week's stay. The party left Jersey City about 7 a. m., and only stopped over here on account of a puncture to one of the riders wheel. The necessary repairs to the bicycle were made at F. L. C. Martin's. The riders who were in uniform gave their names and titles as Sergeant-major Scott and Johnson, Commissary Schoonover, Ordinance Sergeant Grossman, and Standard Bearer and Bugler Witsch.

Trolley Talk.

We have it on the best authority. all the final details were arranged last week, in New York, for the building of the trolley line from Somerville to Bound Brook and thence to New Brunswick, and that the material has been ordered and the work will be commenced September 1st, and prosecuted with vigor. These lines will open up valuable property and will be the means of enhancing the value of property along its lines.—Real Estate News.

Waste a Nuisance Abated.

Evan Jones will apply to the City Council at its next meeting to know who is responsible for allowing the carcass of a dead horse to lay in the roadway back of the freighthouse for some forty-eight hours without even an effort being made to remove it. The animal was taken away and buried on Saturday.

Anxious for Uniforms.

The colored Republicans of this city are arranging for a meeting some evening this week to start the ball rolling for their new campaign uniforms and the cost attached thereto. Some fifty colored voters are already enrolled.

Contracts Awarded.

The contracts for the work to be done on the Bryant School were given out yesterday. Chas. Wilson will do the carpenter work and D. W. Littell will do the plumbing and heating.

Theories of cure may be discussed at length by physicians, but the sufferers want quick relief; and One Minute Cough Cure will give it to them. A safe cure for children. It is "the only harmless remedy that produces immediate results." For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

ANXIOUS TO BE JANITORS

BOARD OF EDUCATION HAVE ENOUGH APPLICATIONS TO SELECT FROM.

One Man's Claim is That He Has a Family of Five Children, and All of the Petitions Were Signed by Prominent Citizens

The members of the City Board of Education met in regular session in the Stillman High School building, last evening, with President Dr. J. B. Probasco in the chair. The full board was present, and the business transacted was of a routine nature.

The following claims were presented and if found correct were ordered paid: Joseph Sattels, $2; Jones & Co., $50; A. M. Griffin, $9.45; Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Co., $4.18; J. C. Pope & Co., $29.25.

A communication was received and filed from John Johnson, stating that the back school taxes to the extent of $3,276.90, had been collected and deposited to the credit of the Board of Education.

Petitions and communications were then in order, and under this caption the following were received for the janitorship of the new Lincoln School, each application being accompanied with recommendations: John H. Smith, aged fifty-two years and the father of five children. It was signed by Nelson Runyon, E. R. Pope and A. M. Runyon. The application was also endorsed by a number of prominent citizens of Doylestown, Pa., where he originally lived.

William G. Gray's application was endorsed by J. Evarts Tracy, Charles Abbott and others.

James Armstrong in his application claimed to have been employed seven years by the Schepflin clothing firm on West Front street. He now resides on Fifth street, but in order to facilitate matters he will move near the building. A lengthy petition was submitted setting forth the applicants good qualifications, and it was signed by such representative citizens as E. R. Pope, E. C. Mulford, O. T. Waring, E. L. Finch, J. B. Dumont, J. W. Murray, E. N. Erickson, Rev. Dr. Rodman, Dr. E. W. Hedges, Dr. T. H. Tomlinson, George W. Rockefellow and others.

F. W. Leithauser also petitioned the Board for the janitorship and his application was signed by John J. Kenney, E. M. Laing, H. A. Weber, P. Swain, H. A. Pope, J. A. Smith, James E. Martine and others.

Mr. Leithauser lives in close proximity to the school and he offers to perform any work about the school building in connection with his trade, besides doing janitor duty. All of the above applications were filed.

Two small outstanding accounts against the Franklin and Bryant schools were reported and ordered paid.

Mr. Lounsbury read a petition or request rather, which is to be presented to the Council, asking for flagging on East Second and Berckman streets.

After deducting current expenditures, the finance committee reported a balance of $5,209 at hand.

Mr. Lounsbury, chairman of the building committee, reported on the proposed plans and subsequent alterations in the closet arrangements at the Bryant and Stillman Schools. It was decided to proceed with the work at the Bryant School and wait until the Board shall have sanctioned procedure in the matter of the High School. The entire matter was tabled for the present.

The Board then adjourned subject to a call by the chairman.

AN OLD MAN DROWNED.

A Raritan Man Stricken With Paralysis Falls in the Water and Drowns.

The body of Patrick Moran, fifty-eight years old, was found in the waterpower at Raritan yesterday morning

Moran was an old and respected citizen, and was for twenty-five years the night watchman at the woolen mills. He only relinquished his place six months ago, when he was stricken with paralysis. He had been missing since Saturday night, and suicide was suspected, as he was unable to work and had some family troubles. County Physician Wagoner has decided that death was accidental, as he believes that Moran was stricken with paralysis while walking along the bank of the canal. No inquest will be held.

There May Be Trouble.

James Babbitt, of 130 East Fourth street, and his neighbor, Louis Louie, who occupy flats in the same house, are at war with each other, and the whole matter is likely to be ventilated in the city court at an early date. Babbitt lives on the upper floor, and as there is no veranda in front of the house, he and his children are obliged to sit in the lower doorway or on the sidewalk, and on this account the trouble arises.

BRYAN'S TRIP EAST

The Much Studied Itinerary at Last Settled Definitely.

WILL LEAVE LINCOLN NEXT FRIDAY

First Speech To Be Made at Des Moines Friday Night—Will Stop over at Pittsburg Monday Night—Progress of the Campaign.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 4.—The much studied itinerary of Mr. Bryan has at last been settled definitely. He will leave Lincoln Friday, Aug. 7, at 3:05 p. m., by the Rock Island route, and is due to reach Des Moines at 9:30 o'clock that night. The nominee will make a speech at Des Monies and leave there at 6 o'clock Saturday morning for Chicago, where the train is due at 7 p. m. The itinerary of the journey from Chicago to New York will stand as previously announced in these dispatches, the trip being made by the Pennsylvania railroad with a stop-over at Pittsburg Monday night.

Senator Faulkner's View.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Senator Faulkner, chairman of the democratic congressional committee, who is now in this city, takes a very bright view of the situation and predicts the triumphant success of the ticket for which he is doing such energetic work. Asked when he thought the campaign would be formally opened, Senator Faulkner stated that he did not think it wise to begin the speech making until about the middle of September. "It takes some little time," said he, "to organize a corps of speakers and arrange for the canvass. I do not, myself, approve of too long a campaign, but that matter, during a presidential year, is left largely to the national committee." While Senator Jones, chairman of the national committee, will be guided largely by the wishes of Mr. Bryan, Mr. Faulkner believes he will ultimately select Washington as the headquarters of the national committee. Speaking of the alleged revision of the Chicago speech of Mr. Bryan, Senator Faulkner said: "The changes made by Mr. Bryan are immaterial and consist of a word here and there. The stenographers had no means of knowing—taking the speech as it fell from the lips of the speaker—where he had used quotations and in the revision it will be found that Mr. Bryan places quotation marks around the whole sentence referring to the 'crown of thorns and the cross of gold.' The criticism of this passage has been hypercritical and it was but fair to Mr. Bryan that this speech should be printed properly in every particular. I have ordered a reprint of the speech to the extent of 250,000 copies.

Many Millions of Speeches.

"Altogether our copies of speeches will aggregate upward of many millions. Bryan's money speech made in 1893, when the repeal of the Sherman act was being debated, has had an unusual demand. It makes thirty pages and we are having half a million copies printed. Of Mr. Teller's speech in the senate we have ordered a quarter of a million for a starter and 100,000 of Mr. Bailey's at Sherman, Tex. The sixty page speech of Senator Daniel during the last session, a speech intended to answer all the arguments advanced by Senator Sherman and others, has been condensed to sixteen pages and an issue of 200,000 printed. The speech of Senator Cockrell of Missouri, dealing largely with statistics and overflowing with data on the financial question, with the full speech of Senator Jones of Arkansas on the same subject, are in great demand, and we have endeavored to have them printed by the hundred thousands so as to meet the call upon our committee for this kind of literature. It would be difficult to say how many copies we have issued of the speech of Congressman Towne, representative from Minnesota, on the silver question. It is one of the speeches most in demand. The same may be said of the speech of representative William L. Terry of Arkansas, which deals with the subject succinctly and presents forty-five propositions with respect to the silver question."

Senator Jones in Conference.

Senator Jones was closeted with the officers of the congressional campaign committee most of yesterday, it having been his first opportunity of getting acquainted with the work that has thus far been done by that committee and the plans it has mapped out for the future. Among his callers at headquarters were Senator Gorman of Maryland and ex-Clerk of the House Kerr of Pennsylvania. A committee representing the local central committee, the various state organizations and the clubs in the District of Columbia, called upon Mr. Jones to persuade him to arrange for Mr. Bryan to deliver a speech here. No conclusion on the matter was reached and will not be until after Mr. Bryan has been notified in New York on the 12th inst. and arrangements have been made for his subsequent movements. Ex-Clerk of the House of Representatives Kerr will be given charge of the campaign in Pennsylvania, owing to the retirement of Mr. Harrity, who is not in sympathy with either the ticket or the platform. Mr. Jones this morning reiterated the statement that he would not decide upon the location of the national headquarters nor name the members of the executive committee until he reached New York and Mr. Bryan had been formally notified.

Must Use the Money as Specified.

Albany, Aug. 4.—Attorney General Hancock has decided that fraternal beneficiary associations, when members are assessed, must use the money so raised only for the purposes specified in the assessment notices.

ALABAMA ELECTION.

Democrats Carry the State and Both Branches of the Legislature.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 4.—Reports from the state are to the effect that everything passed off quietly at the election yesterday. In many localities a light vote was polled. All the "Black belt" counties have given round democratic majorities. The democrats made heavy gains in a number of white counties which have heretofore given populist majorities and also gained a number of representatives in the legislature. The ticket is a long one, containing not only state officers, but members of the legislature and county offices. The returns so far show a democratic victory in the state with both branches of the legislature democratic.

YOUNG VANDERBILT AND BRIDE.

They Arrive Quietly at Saratoga and Take Rooms at a Hotel.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 4.—There was no demonstration attending the arrival here at 5:55 o'clock last evening of Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., and his bride. Appartments at the United States hotel had been engaged for them under another name, and the proprietors were not positive of their coming until notified by the press representatives. Dr. John L. Perry, one of the proprietors, met the young couple at the west entrance of the hotel near the depot and escorted them to a parlor suite overlooking the lawn which they will occupy while here. What their plans are is not known as yet. Mr. Vanderbilt looked somewhat fatigued by the trip. On the other hand Mrs. Vanderbilt was particularly animated and chatted to her husband in a lively manner as they walked from the cars across the depot platform and down the carriage way to the hotel. The evening was spent quietly in their parlors from which they can enjoy the orchestra selections of the band which was stationed but a short distance away. The wedding of the couple which has been bitterly opposed by the father of the groom, took place at noon yesterday at the home of the bride's father, R. T. Wilson, at No. 511 Fifth avenue, New York. The wedding was extremely quiet, no one being present beyond the bride's immediate relatives and Frank Polk of Boston.

NEW YORK TAILORS' STRIKE.

Further Rioting Indulged In—Not a Shop in Operation.

New York, Aug. 4.—Yesterday afternoon a crowd of several hundred striking tailors forced their way into the shop of Jacob Levine on Hester street and attempted to wreck the place, but the police were quickly summoned and drove them out. One of the strikers was arrested, but the judge discharged him with a reprimand. It was stated at the headquarters of the striking tailors last evening that fifteen more contractors had signed the agreement. At the Contractors' association headquarters it was stated that all the association contractors' shops were in operation, but this was found on investigation to be false. As a matter of fact not a shop was found in operation on the east side.

TO BE SENT BACK FOR TRIAL.

Frederick Ward and Mrs. Williams Wanted in England for Larceny.

Philadelphia, Aug. 4.—Frederick Ward and Mrs. Sarah Jane Williams, who were arrested on the arrival of the American line steamer Rhyneland from Liverpool, charged with the larceny of about $2,000 from the woman's husband, a resident of Tipton, England, were given a hearing yesterday before United States Commissioner Edmunds. They were remanded to the county prison to await the sailing of the first available steamship which will convey them to their native place to answer for the crime of which they are accused. The prisoners denied that there was any collusion between them, or that the fact of their having sailed together had anything criminal about it.

Depends on the Amount.

"If I ever get hold of Binks I'll thrash him so that his own mother wouldn't recognize him."

"What's the matter?"

"He's been slandering me. He says that I beat him out of five dollars in a poker game."

"Not at all. I heard the remark myself."

"Then what did he say?"

"He said that you beat him out of $5,000 in a wheat deal."

"Oh, well, then I suppose it's all right. I could hardly believe that he was the kind of man who would stand around telling stories that reflected on me in that way."—Chicago Post.

Why She Did It.

Mistress—Has the butcher's boy been here this morning?

Bridget—Yis, mum. Nearly an hour ago.

Mistress—Why didn't you tell me? I wanted to give him an order.

Bridget—Oi give him the orther meself. Lamb chops, mum.

Mistress—Whatever induced you to order lamb chops again to-day? We had them yesterday.

Bridget—Well, mum, Oi likes them betther nor beefshteak in this warrum weather.—Cleveland Leader.

He Had a Grudge.

"Did you know that Binks had committed suicide?"

"No. When did he do it?"

"Last night at Dusenbury's hotel."

"Well, that just shows the extremes to which a determined and revengeful man may go. He had a quarrel with Dusenbury night before last, and I'll bet he just did this to get even. He always was a mighty small, mean man in some ways."—Chicago Post.

All Over.

"Before I went away," said the returned traveler to the man who never cares to wander from his own fireside, "young Spiffin was deeply infatuated with Miss Franklin."

"Oh, that's all over now."

"He met a girl he liked better, I suppose?"

"No: he married Miss Franklin."—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

A Criticism.

The woman who writes became sarcastic in speaking of another woman who not only writes, but who publishes.

"She is very versatile," an admirer had remarked.

"Um—yes. But I think she misapplies her talents."

"In what way?"

"Her cook books read like works of fiction and her works of fiction read like cook books."—Washington Star.

M'KINLEY CAMPAIGN

Work in the East Now Fairly Under Way.

HANNA TO LEAVE FOR CHICAGO

The National Chairman Says He Will Take No Hand in State Factional Differences and Advises All To Stand Together Until After the Election.

New York, Aug. 4.—The work of organizing the republican campaign in the east has so far progressed that Mr. Hanna, chairman of the republican committee and Mayor McKinley's manager, expects to be able to leave for Chicago to-morrow evening to look after the western headquarters. He intended to leave for his home in Cleveland last Saturday and after a visit to Chicago return to this city and then finish up the organization here, but he found the work proceeding so smoothly that he decided to complete it before departing. He will, of course, return to the eastern headqaarters off and on during the campaign. Mr. Hanna's work has been unusually successful and his conferences with the different leaders altogether harmonious. He declined this morning to be interviewed in regard to his conference with ex-Senator Platt, Charles W. Hackett and Edward Lauterback last Saturday. He would say only that he had nothing to do with factional differences and expected all republicans in this state to turn in and do their share of the work. Mr. Hanna has not determined, as has been reported, to ignore the Warner Miller faction in the campaign. He will, he says, accept advice and help from both factions, and it is not his purpose to show a preference for either. In conversation with some local politicians this morning he said, in substance: "I do not recognize any factions. Leave factional differences out of sight while the country is threatened with ruin and all work together to save the country. If you must fight, do the fighting after November 3."

Applications for Positions.

Chairman Hanna has already received about 500 applications for places at headquarters. Most of the 500 applied personally. Every hour or two delegations called to ask for some job. Some of them reached Mr. Hanna's room and some were turned over to Col. Swords, sergeant-at-arms of the committee. At republican state head quarters Chairman Hackett is making preparations for a big ratification meeting which will be held under the direction of the state committee. The date and place of meeting have not yet been selected. Ex-President Harrison, it is said, will be the principal speaker.

Little Joke on ex-Senator Platt.

Mr. Hackett laughed at the story started yesterday that Mr. Platt is a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. One of Mr. Platt's friends who talked with him on the boat from Manhattan beach, said: "Mr. Platt says this governorship talk is a little joke on him by some of the boys. He will stop it right away, however, so that the real candidates will not get scared."

Work at the Headquarters.

Regular work at the headquarters on Madison avenue is already under way, but it will be several days yet before everything is running smoothly. Powell Clayton of Arkansas, member of the executive committee, will have charge of the speaking arrangements of the campaign. He had a long talk with Mr. Hanna this morning about speakers, and then went out to see some local politicians. Mr. Scott, who is to give his attention chiefly to the southern states, saw several southerners during the morning. The work of fitting up the document and mailing room is in progress to day. By the end of week the committee will be ready to send out campaign literature. In the meantime the literature will be selected.

The Big Ratification Meeting.

The republican county committee will probably hold its big ratification meeting at Carnegie hall next week. Some of the best speakers in the party, among them Thomas B. Reed, will address the meeting. Afterwards district meetings will be held all over the city. The detail will be arranged at the next meeting of the county committee. The announcement that Quarantine Commissioner Palmer, one of the McKinley electors, had resigned and that his place as elector would be given to some sound money democrat, has given rise to a report that other republican electors would give way to democrats in order to effect a union in this state of sound money men of both parties. Some of the republican managers believe that a union of this kind would be better for McKinley than a third democratic ticket.

M'KINLEY'S DAYS OF QUIET.

His Letter of Acceptance Not To Be Ready for Several Weeks Yet.

Canton, O., Aug. 4.—Major McKinley has had a few days of quiet and he is turning over in his mind the points which he thinks of discussing in his letter of acceptance. He will not, however, aim to have a letter ready for three or four weeks. Much interest in the opening meeting of the Ohio campaign, which has been announced for Aug. 15, is manifested here. Many active McKinley men in both parties talk of going to Columbus, and it is likely that a large delegation from the country will attend. Senator Foraker and Senator Sherman will be the chief speakers, and orators of prominence from the west will also be heard. Thomas B. Reed of Maine wants to be present at the opening of the Ohio campaign, but he has written Major McKinley that serious business engagements will make it impossible for him to leave the east at this time. He will speak in Ohio later in the campaign. A local evening paper says: It is expected that Bryan will pass through Canton next Monday and Chairman Jones of the Bryan national committee is said to have asked that an effort be made to make a big Bryan demonstration at the Canton station for political effect. No one in authority would talk for publication, but the opinion has been expressed that agents of the Bryan committee are at work in the city arranging for a spectacular display, and an effort has been made to impress the people of the United States with the belief that there is a large free silver element in this city and county.

DESPITE A JUDGE'S ORDER.

Seaboard Air Line To Continue Its Fight Against the Southern Railway.

Baltimore, Aug. 4.—The announcement is made that, despite the injunction of Judge Simonton, the Seaboard Air line does not propose to suspend its warfare on the Southern railroad. It is claimad by the Seaboard officials that the interstate commerce commission has not jurisdiction over water lines, and that the fight will be confined to Chesapeake bay if the injunction granted by Judge Simonton is made permanent. The Seaboard, which owns the old Bay line, will, it is said, cut rates from Baltimore to Atlanta by putting in a tariff that will involve a deep cut from Baltimore to Portsmouth and the application of local rates from the latter point to Atlanta. On August 8, when the Seaboard's present cut rate tariff is withdrawn, it is said, a new rate of seventy-two cents a hundred pounds, first-class, will immediately go into effect from Baltimore to Atlanta, via the Bay line. The standard rate is $1.07 from Baltimore and seventy-nine cents from Portsmouth to Atlanta, and the Seaboard officials say that they can maintain the cut rate indefinitely. The Seaboard officials have not yet announced whether it will apply local rates from eastern points to equalize the reduction out of Baltimore.

FEIGNED INSANITY.

Two Members of the Dalton Gang Break Bounds—One Recaptured.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Two alleged insane convicts, named Cheney and Cidwell, escaped from the government insane hospital on the outskirts of this city. They were members of the notorious Dalton gang of Arkansas. Cheney had been sentenced to twenty-four years and Cidwell to four years in the Kings county (New York) penitentiary. They were both supposed to be suffering from melancholia, and were brought here for treatment in charge of the warden and two deputies of the penitentiary. While they were in the hall of the hospital and the papers were being examined the shackles were removed by the deputies. Cheney promptly took advantage of the fact and jumped out of a window, and Cidwell followed, leaping through another window. Cheney has been recaptured, but Cidwell is still at large. The asylum authorities had not receipted for the prisoners and disclaimed all responsibility for them. The impression is that the melancholia business was simply simulated with a view to escape.

Dined by Edinburgh Officials.

Edinburgh, Aug. 4.—The municipal authorities last evening gave a dinner to the officers of the United States warship Minneapolis. Many speeches expressing the fraternal feeling between England and the United States were made.

Capt. Carter Buried at Sea.

Colon, Colombia, Aug. 4.—Capt. Carter of the British steamer Ernwell died yesterday of smallpox and was buried at sea.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

(Furnished by Weather Observer Neagle.)

Fair Tonight and Tomorrow; Stationary Temperature.

At 2 o'Clock Leggett's Thermometer Registered 89 Degrees.

Henry C. Kelsey, Secretary of State, in a letter to The Herald this morning, says that he is going to vote for McKinley and will oppose the nomination of a third ticket.

Six States hold their elections before November 2nd. They are Alabama, August 3rd; Vermont, September 1st; Arkansas, September 7th; Maine, September 14th; Florida, October 6th, and Georgia, October 7th.

The Republican candidates for Senator in 1899 are keeping pretty quiet so far, but with Hobart out of the contest it is certain to be a lively scramble. The candidates will be from this section of the State, and Franklin Murphy, John Kean and Governor Griggs have been the names most frequently mentioned.—Newark Call.

The Socialist-Labor party held a State convention at Trenton last Saturday and nominated a full set of electors, one of whom is James Bell, of this city. The platform denounces the Democratic, Republican and Populist parties, free silver and protection, and wealthy classes are referred to as oppressors of the workingman.

Chairman J. P. McDonnell, of the Executive Board of the New Jersey Federation of Trades and Labor Unions, says that the representation at the eighteenth annual labor congress, which will be held in the State House in Trenton on August 17th, will be larger than that of any previous labor convention held in New Jersey. In the trades-unions affiliated with the Federation there are over 50,000 members, all of whom will be directly or indirectly represented at the Trenton congress.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints,—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Fredericktown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

"Boys will be boys," but you can't afford to lose any of them. Be ready for the green apple season by having DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure in the house. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

BOUND BROOK.

The cornerstone of the new Presbyterian church was laid Saturday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock with impressive ceremonies. The new edifice will be of stone, the old one which was burned in the flood and conflagration of February 6th, having been of wood. This event marks the beginning of the fifth house of worship which this congregation has had. Tradition says that in the latter part of the seventeenth century they worshipped in a log house somewhere among the willows which lined the river bank. The second was begun in 1725, the third in 1760, the fourth in 1826, and this, the fifth in 1896. Rev. Ravand K. Rodgers who served for over forty-four years, died in 1874. Rev. Mr. Baldwin was ordained in 1875, Rev. H. B. McCauley in 1884 and Rev. T. E. Davis in 1890.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—A pleasant social hop was given at Mountain Park Inn Saturday night.

—The County Clerk's office will be open tonight and Friday night for naturalizations papers.

—The next Y. M. C. A. league run will be to Summit, and the date will be Thursday, August 6th.

—The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel are holding a picnic in Hyde's woods today.

—Rev. Dr. Riggs, of New Brunswick, has been secured to address the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday at 4:15 p. m.

—Bicyclists and others traveling the county road between here and Rahway say they never saw it in better condition.

—The street railway company commenced work today repairing West Front street. It will be an appreciated improvement.

—The State Haymakers' Association will hold their annual convention at Trenton on Thursday. Wm. Newcorn, of this city, will attend.

—Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., met in the Babcock building last evening for the usual drill and transaction of routine business.

—Damascus Commandery, K. T., met last evening in regular session and in full uniform, but only business of interest to the order was transacted.

—Sunday evening about 8:45 people in the vicinity of West Sixth street and Clinton avenue heard two pistol shots, followed by the unearthly yelling of a dog.

—Prof. Guttman's band and orchestra will furnish music for a reception of the M. Y. O. B. (mind your own business) club in the rink on the night of August 13th.

—A contract has been made by Westfield with the Union Water Company to furnish water to flush the sewers. The cost will be ten cents per thousand gallons.

—The large glass in the front door of one of Charles Hand's stores on Watchung avenue was broken out a few nights ago by a gust of wind blowing the door shut.

—The regular church prayer meeting of the Congregational church tomorrow evening will be conducted by Rev. M. E. Dwight. Topic: "Varieties and Evils and Profanity."

—Saturday next is one of the big salt water day at Florida Grove and the Amboys. The livery stables are already being besieged by patrons who are anxious to go over there for the day.

—The Helping Hand Society of Mt. Zion A. M. E. church on West Fourth street, will give an entertainment on Thursday evening. The main order of business will be a debate and lemon squeeze, so the pastor says.

—We mortals complain if it is hot and growl if it is cold; we are cross if it rains and blue if it is dry. About the only cause of uninterrupted equanimity is the increasing show of satisfactory goods at Peck's.

—Here's another monstrosity. Lou Mattox, of Morris avenue, has a head of cabbage in his garden which measures 37 inches in circumference. He only wants a hogshead now to put away enough sauerkraut to last him all winter.

—"Jake" Wagner, a typographical tourist, struck town today and reported the blackberry and the corn crop throughout the State a tremendous one. "Jake" also says that the brooks are all full, so the fish need not fear a drought this summer.

—Mayor Gilbert will give a talk on "Finances" before the Young Men's Association of Monroe Avenue chapel, Friday evening of this week at 8 o'clock. Mayor Gilbert is a fluent and accomplished speaker, and he will undoubtedly attract a large number of hearers.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Address. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Mrs. Rhodie Noah, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of blackberry cordial but got no relief. She then sent to me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and diarrhoea Remedy and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhoea but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by T. S Armstrong, Druggist.

Getting Serious.

"So you've broken your engagement, Ethel?"

"Yes. George was so foolishly impetuous that he practically forced me to do it."

"In what way?"

"Why, he took everything so seriously that I found I'd very likely be expected to marry him if I permitted the engagement to last any longer. Some men are so foolish, you know."—Chicago Evening Post.

Wooing in Quakeriand.

"Martha, dost thou love me?" said a younk Quaker.

Why is it,

if catarrh is a constitutional affection, as those claim who have a blood tonic to sell, that physicians, in extreme cases, frequently advise change of air and climate to those suffering from it? Catarrh is a climatic affection, and nothing but a local remedy or a change of climate will cure it. Ely's Cream Balm, in all cases of catarrh, is so efficient as to do away with the necessity of leaving home and friends, causing instant relief and a perfect cure after short continuance.

[COPYRIGHT, 1895.]

On the 15th of August, 1601, returning from a mission to England I sailed from Dover, and crossing to Calais without mishap anticipated with pleasure the king's satisfaction when he should hear the result of my embassy, and learn from my mouth the just and friendly sentiments which Queen Elizabeth entertained towards him.

Unfortunately I was not able to impart these on the instant. During my absence a trifling matter had carried the king to Dieppe, whence his anxiety on the queen's account, who was shortly to be brought to bed, led him to take the road to Paris. He sent word to me to follow him, but necessarily some days elapsed before we met: an opportunity of which his enemies and mine were quick to take advantage, and that so insidiously and with so much success as to imperil, not my reputation only but his happiness.

The time at their disposal was increased by the fact that when I reached the arsenal I found the Louvre vacant, the queen, who lay at Fontainebleau, having summoned the king thither. Ferret, his secretary, however, awaited me with a letter, in which Henry, after expressing his desire to see me, bade me nevertheless stay in Paris a day to transact some business. "Then," he continued, "come to me, my friend, and we will discuss the matter of which you know. In the meantime send me your papers by Ferret, who will give you a receipt for them."

Snspecting no danger in a course which was usual enough, I hastened to comply. Summoning Maignan, who, whenever I traveled, carried my portfolio, I unlocked it, and emptying the papers in a mass on the table, handed them in detail to Ferret. Presently, to my astonishment, I found that one, and this the most important, was missing. I went over the papers again, and again, and yet again. Still it was not to be found.

Whenever I traveled on a mission of importance I wrote my dispatches in one of the three modes, according as they were of little, great, or the first importance; in ordinary characters that is, in a cipher to which the council possessed the key, or in a cipher to which only the king and I held keys. This last, as it was seldom used, was rarely changed; but it was my duty, on my return from each mission, immediately to remit my key to the king, who deposited it in a safe place until another occasion for its use arose.

It was this key which was missing. I had been accustomed to carry it in the portfolio with the other papers, but in a sealed envelope which I broke and again sealed with my own signet whenever I had occasion to use the cipher. I had last seen the envelope at Calais, when I handed the portfolio to Maignan before beginning my journey to Paris; the portfolio had not since been opened, yet the sealed packet was missing.

More than a little uneasy, I recalled Maignan, who had withdrawn after delivering up his charge. "You rascal!" I said with some heat. "Has this been out of your custody?"

"The bag?" he answered, looking at it. Then his face changed. "You have cut your finger, my lord," he said.

I had cut it slightly in unbuckling the portfolio, and a drop or two of blood had fallen on the papers. But his reference to it at this moment, when my mind was full of my loss, angered me, and even awoke my suspicions. "Silence!" I said, "and answer me. Have you let this bag out of your possession?"

This time he replied straightforwardly that he had not.

"Nor unlocked it?"

"I have no key, your excellency."

That was true; and as I had at bottom the utmost confidence in his fidelity, I pursued the inquiry no farther in that direction, but made a third search among the papers. This also failing to bring the packet to light, and Ferret [illegible] I was obliged sented, had given me his receipt and gone, I questioned Maignan afresh and more closely, but with no result. He had not seen me place the packet in the portfolio at Calais, and that I had done so I could vouch only my own memory, which I knew to be fallible. In the meantime, though the mischance annoyed me, I attached no great importance to it, but anticipating that a word of explanation would satisfy the king, and a new cipher dispose of other difficulties, I dismissed the matter from my mind.

Twenty-four hours later, however, I was rudely awakened. A courier arrived from Henry, and, surprising me in the midst of my last preparations at the arsenal, handed me an order to attend his majesty; an order couched in the most absolute and peremptory terms, and lacking all those friendly expressions which the king never failed to use when he wrote to me. A missive so brief and formal—and so needless, for I was on the point of starting—had not reached me for years; and coming at this moment when I had no reason to expect a reverse of fortune, it had all the effect of a thunderbolt in a clear sky. I stood stunned, the words which I was dictating to my secretary dying on my lips. For I knew the king too well, and had experienced his kindness too lately to attribute the harshness of the order to chance or forgetfulness; and, assured in a moment that I stood face to face with a grave crisis, I found myself hard put to it to hide my feelings from those about me.

Nevertheless, I did so with an effort; and, sending for the courier, asked him with an assumption of carelessness what was the latest news at court. His answer, in a measure, calmed my fears, though it could not remove them. He reported that the queen had been taken ill—or so the rumor went.

"Suddenly?" I said.

"This morning," he answered.

"The king was with her?"

"Yes, your excellency."

"Had he left her long when he sent this letter?"

"It came from her chamber, your excellency."

"But—did you understand that her majesty was in danger?" I urged.

As to that, however, the man could not say anything; and I was left to nurse my conjectures during the long ride to Fontainebleau, where we arrived in the cool of the evening, the last stage through the forest awakening memories of past pleasure that combated in vain the disorder and apprehension which held my spiritr. Dismounting in the dusk at the door of my apartments, I found a fresh surprise awaiting me in the shape of M. de Concini, the Italian, who, advancing to meet me before my foot was out of the stirrup, announced that he came from the king, who desired my instant attendance in the queen's closet.

Knowing Concini to be one of those whose influence with her majesty had more than once tempted the king to the most violent measures against her—from which I had with difficulty dissuaded him—I augured the worst from the choice of such a messenger; and wounded alike in my pride and the affection in which I held the king, could scarcely find words in which to ask him if the queen was ill.

"Indisposed, my lord," he replied, carelessly. And he began to whistle.

I told him that I would remove my boots and brush off the dust, and in five minutes be at his service.

"Pardon me," he said, "my orders are strict, and they are to request you to attend his majesty immediately. He expected you an hour ago."

I was thunderstruck at this—at the message, and at the man's manner; and for a moment I could scarcely restrain my indignation. Fortunately the habit of self-control came to my aid in time, and I reflected that an altercation with such a person could only lower my dignity. I contented myself, therefore, with signifying my assent by a nod, and followed him toward the queen's apartments.

In the ante-chamber were several persons, who, as I passed, saluted me with an air of shyness and incertitude which was enough of itself to put me on my guard. Concini attended me to the door of the chamber; there he fell back, and Mlle. Galigai, who was in waiting, announced me. I entered, assuming a serene countenance, and found the king and queen together, no other person being present. The queen was lying at length on a couch, while Henry, seated on a stool at her feet, seemed to be engaged in soothing and reassuring her. On my entrance, he broke off and rose to his feet.

"Here he is at last," he said, barely looking at me. "Now, if you will, dear heart, ask him your questions. I have had no communication with him, as you know, for I have been with you since morning."

The queen, whose face was flushed with fever, made a fretful movement, but did not answer.

"Do you wish me to ask him?" Henry said with admirable patience.

"If you think it is worth while," she muttered, turning sullenly and eyeing me from the middle of her pillows with disdain and ill-temper.

"I will, then," he answered, and he turned to me. "M. de Rosny," he said, in a formal tone, which even without the unaccustomed monsieur cut me to the heart, "be good enough to tell the queen how the key to my secret cipher, which I intrusted to you, has come to be in Mme. de Verneuil's possession."

I looked at him in the profoundest astonishment, and for a moment remained silent, trying to collect my thoughts under this unexpected blow. The queen saw my hesitation and laughed spitefully. "I am afraid, sire," she said, "that you have overrated this gentleman's ingenuity, though doubtless it has been much exercised in your service."

Henry's face grew red with vexation. "Speak, man!" he cried. "How came she by it?"

"Mme. de Verneuil?" I said.

The queen laughed again. "Had you not better take him out first, sir?" she said, scornfully, "and tell him what to say?"

"'Fore God, madame!" the king cried passionately, "you try me too far! Have I not told you a hundred times, and sworn to you, that I did not give Mme. de Verneuil this key?"

"If you did not give her that," the queen muttered, sullenly, picking at the silken coverlid which lay on her feet, "you have given her all else. You cannot deny it."

Henry let a gesture of despair escape him. "Are we to go back to that?" he said. Then turning to me: "Tell her," he said, between his teeth; "and tell me. Ventre Saint Gris—are you dumb, man?"

Discerning nothing for it at the moment save to bow before this storm, which had arisen so suddenly, and from a quarter the least expected, I hastened to comply. I had not proceeded far with my story, however—which fell short, of course, of explaining how the key came to be in Mme. de Verneuil's hands—before I saw that it won no credence with the queen, but rather confirmed her in her belief that the king had given to another what he had denied to her. And more, I saw that in proportion as the tale failed to convince her it excited the king's wrath and disappointment. He several times cut me short with expressions of the utmost impatience, and at last, when I came to a lame conclusion—since I could explain nothing except that the key was gone—he could restrain himself no longer. In a tone in which he had never addressed me before, he asked me why I had not, on the instant, communicated the loss to him: and when I would have defended myself by adducing the reason I had given above, overwhelmed me with abuse and reproaches, which, as they were uttered in the queen's presence, and would be repeated, I knew, to the Concinis and Galigais of her suite, who had no occasion to love me, carried a double sting.

"BEGONE, SIR," HE SAID.

Nevertheless, for a time, and until he had somewhat worn himself out, I let Henry proceed. Then, taking advantage of the first pause, I interposed, Reminding him that he had never had cause to accuse me of carelessness before, I recalled the twenty-two years during which I had served him faithfully, and the enmities I had incurred for his sake; and having by these means placed the discussion on a more equal footing, I descended again to particulars, and asked respectfully if I might know on whose authority Mme. de Verneuil was said to have the cipher.

"On her own!" the queen cried hysterically. "Don't try to deceive me, for it will be in vain. I know she has it; and if the king did not give it to her, who did?"

"That is the question, madame," I said.

"It is one easily answered," she retorted. "If you do not know, ask her."

"But, perhaps, madame, she will not answer," I ventured.

"Then command her to answer in the king's name!" the queen replied, her cheeks burning with fever. "And if she will not, then has the king no prisons—no fetters smooth enough for those dainty ankles?"

This was a home question, and Henry, who never showed to less advantage than when he stood between two women, cast a sheepish glance at me. Unfortunately the queen caught the look, which was not intended for her, and on the instant it awoke all her former suspicions. Supposing that she had discovered our collusion, she flung herself back with a cry of rage, and, bursting into a passion of tears, gave way to frantic reproaches, wailing and throwing herself about with a violence which could not but injure one in her condition.

The king stared at her for a moment in sheer dismay. Then his chagrin turned to anger, which, as he dared not vent it on her, took my direction. He pointed impetuously to the door. "Begone, sir!" he said in a passion, and with the utmost harshness. "You have done mischief enough here. God grant that we see the end of it! Go—go!" he continued, quite beside himself with fury. "Send Galigai here, and do you go to your lodging until you hear from me!"

Overwhelmed and almost stupefied by the catastrophe, I found my way out, I hardly knew how, and sending in the woman made my escape from the ante-chamber. But hasten as I might, my disorder, patent to a hundred curious eyes, betrayed me; and, if it did not disclose as much as I feared or the inquisitive desired, told more than any had looked to learn. Within an hour it was known at Nemours that his majesty had dismissed me with high words—some said with a blow; and half a dozen couriers were on the road to Paris with the news.

In my place some might have given up all for lost; but in addition to a sense of rectitude, and the consciousness of desert, I had to support me an intimate knowledge of the king's temper; which, though I had never suffered from it to this extent before, I knew to be on occasion as hot as his anger was short lived, and his disposition generous. I had hopes, therefore—although I saw dull faces enough among my suite, and some pale ones—that the king's repentance would overtake his anger, and its consequences outstrip any that might flow from his wrath. But though I was not altogether at fault in this, I failed to take into account one thing—I mean Henry's anxiety on the queen's account, her condition, and his desire to have an heir; which so affected the issue, that instead of fulfilling my expectations the event left me more despondent than before. The king wrote indeed, and within the hour, and his letter was in form an apology. But it was so lacking in graciousness so stiff, though it began "My good friend Rosny," and so insincere, though it referred to my past services, that when I had read it I stood awhile gazing at it, afraid to turn lest De Vic and Varennes, who had brought it, should read my disappointment in my face.

For I could not hide from myself that the gist of the letter lay, not in the expressions of regret which opened it, but in the complaint which closed it; wherein the king sullenly excused his outbreak on the ground of the magnitude of the interests which my carelessness had endangered, and the opening to harass the queen which I had heedlessly given. "This cipher," he said, "has long been a whim with my wife, from whom, for good reasons well known to you and connected with the grand duke's court, I have thought fit to withhold it. Now nothing will persuade her that I have not granted to another what I refused her. I trouble, my friend, lest you be found to have done more ill to France in a moment of carelessness than all your services have done good."

It was not difficult to find a threat underlying these words, nor to discern that if the queen's fancy remained unshaken, and ill came of it, the king would hardly forgive me. Recognizing this, and that I was face to face with a crisis from which I could not escape, but by the use of my utmost powers, I assumed a serious and thoughtful air; and without affecting to disguise the fact that the king was displeased with me, dismissed the envoys with a few civil speeches, in which I did not fail to speak of his majesty in terms that even malevolence could not twist to my disadvantage.

When they were gone, doubtless to tell Henry how I had taken it, I sat down to supper with La Font, Boisrueil, and two or three gentlemen of my suite; and, without appearing too cheerful, contrived to eat with my usual appetite. Afterwards I withdrew in the ordinary course to my chamber, and, being now at liberty to look the situation in the face, found it as serious as I had feared. The falling man has few friends; he must act quickly if he would retain any. I was not slow in deciding that my sole chance of an honorable escape lay in discovering, and that within a few hours—who stole the cipher and conveyed it to Mme. de Verneuil; and in placing before the queen such evidence of this as must convince her.

By way of beginning I summoned Maignan and put him through a severe examination. Later, I sent for the rest of my household—such, I mean, as had accompanied me—and, ranging them against the walls of my chamber, took a flambeau in my hand and went the round of them, questioning each, and marking his air and aspect as he answered. But with no result; so that after following some clews to no purpose, and suspecting several persons who cleared themselves on the spot, I became assured that the chain must be taken up at the other end, and the first link found among Mme. de Verneuil's following.

By this time it was nearly midnight, and my people were dropping with fatigue. Nevertheless, a sense of the desperate nature of the case animating them, they formed themselves voluntarily into a kind of council, all feeling their probity attacked, in which various modes of forcing the secret from those who held it were proposed—Maignan's suggestions being especially violent. Doubting, however, whether madame had more than one confidante, I secretly made up my mind to a course which none dared to suggest; and then, dismissing all to bed, kept only Maignan to lie in my chamber, that if any points occurred to me in the night I might question him on them.

At four o'clock I called him, and bade him go out and quietly saddle two horses. This done, I slipped out myself without arousing anyone, and, mounting at the stables, took the Orleans road through the for-

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

MANY MILLS CLOSED

Large Curtailment in Cotton Goods Production in Massachusetts.

OVER 17,000 OPERATIVES NOW IDLE

1,769,786 Spindles and 41,122 Looms Out of Operation — Result of the Recent Agreement of the Manufacturers.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 4.—The largest curtailment of production for any one week since the agreement went into effect, is going on this week. The following mills are stopped: Barnard, Border City, Chace, Conanicut, Devol, Durfee, Fall River Iron Works Co., Fall River Manufactory, Granite, Hargraves No. 1, Mechanics, Merchants, Metacomet, Narragansett, Osborne No. 1, Pocasset, Robeson, Shove, Slade, Stevens, Tecumseh, Union, Wampanoag. There are 1,769,784 spindles and 41,122 looms idle. Besides those in the Stevens mills there are 17,114 operatives idle in all. The American Linen company started up yesterday after a shut down of twenty-eight days. The shut down of this corporation was begun before the general agreement was made, owing to a small strike. The Conanicut is shut down for a week for changes and slight repairs. The Wampanoag is on its fifth week of shut down, additional time being taken to allow of making repairs. The Merchants' and several other corporations begun their second period of a two weeks' curtailment yesterday, while the Mechanics' is on its fourth week of shut down.

CATHOLIC SUMMER SCHOOL.

Fourth Week at Plattsburg Opens with Two Series of Lectures.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 4.—The fourth week of the Catholic Summer School of America opened with two series of lectures. The first was by Rev. H. I. Hausen on "Chapters of Bible Study," taking for the first subject "The Troubadours of the Middle Ages." The second series was on "Experimental Mechanics," by Rev. Z. J. A. Freeman of Woodstock, Md. He spoke on "Equilibrium," and gave its definition in general and as a dependent gravity. He gave the principle upon which all equilibrium rests. Last evening's lecture was on the "Evolution of the Essay," by Richard Malcolm Johnson, the author, of Baltimore.

ARMY ORDERS.

Leaves of Absence for Four Officers—Placed on the Retired List.

Washington, Aug. 4.—The following orders have been issued from army headquarters: Leaves of absence are granted to Col. Robert H. Hall, Fourth infantry; Capt. Owen J. Sweet, Twenty-fifth infantry; Lieut. Charles D. Clay, Eleventh infantry, and Capt. W. Kobbe, Fourth artillery. By direction of the president the following enlisted men are placed on the retired list: Ordnance Sergt. John H. Colgan, Sergt. George Deary, troop K, Fifth cavalry; private Francis Dillon, company D, Ninth infantry, Madison barracks, N. Y.

Rhode Island Gold Democrats.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 4.—A meeting of sound money democrats of Rhode Island was held in this city yesterday afternon and resulted in the issuing of a circular to the democrats of the state denouncing the Chicago platform and candidates and declaring that the action of the state central committee in ratifying the action of the Chicago convention was ill-advised and in direct opposition to the latest opinions of the democrats of the state. The circular is signed by Frank H. Jackson, Charles H. Page, Oscar Lapham, William C. Baker and other democrats.

Funeral of Mrs. H. Josephine Widener.

Philadelphia, Aug. 4.—The body of Mrs. H. Josephine Widener, the wife of P. A. B. Widener, the traction magnate, who was found dead in her stateroom on the yacht Josephine at Bar Harbor on Saturday, arrived at the Widener summer residence at Ogontz yesterday. The funeral, which will be private, will be held from her late residence in this city to-morrow afternoon.

Shoe Factory Closed over Labor Troubles.

Milford, Mass., Aug. 4.—Unsettled wage differences between vampers and Colburn, Fuller & Co., shoe manufacturers, caused Supt. F. O. Brown to discharge all the help last night, 250 hands, closing the factory indefinitely. Only the night watchman was retained. The shop has been Milford's mainstay for years and its continued stoppage will be a great blow to business.

Connellsville & Pittsburg Railroad.

Baltimore, Aug. 4.—Orlando Smith, president of the Connellsville & Pittsburg railroad, has filed a petition in the United States circuit court, asking that the issue of receivers' certificates to the value of $650,000 be authorized by the courts, the proceeds of the sale of which would be used in making permanent improvements in the line of road.

Money in the United States.

Washington, Aug. 4.—The treasury circulation statement just issued places all the money in circulation in the United States at $1,514,903,142, or $99,630,644 less than on August 1, 1895. The per capita circulation based on 71,518,000 of population, is placed at $21.18. The increase of money in circulation during July was $5,177,942.

Pottsville, Pa., Aug. 4.—The republicans of the 13th congressional district renominated congressman Charles N. Brumm. The resolutions endorsed the St. Louis national republican platform.

WHO WAS TO BLAME?

Coroner Now Investigating the Atlantic City Disaster.

BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM DESCRIBED

Several Important Witnesses Examined—Railroad Rules Relative to Speed of Trains While Approaching Crossings Not Obeyed.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 4.—The inquest by Coroner McLaughlin into the deaths resulting from the collision between the Reading railroad express and the Bridgeton excursion train on the West Jersey railroad on the meadows on last Thursday evening, is being continued to-day. The greater part of the testimony so far heard was in explanation of the workings of the block signal system. In anticipation of a big crowd the inquest was not held in the stuffy little city hall, but in Odd Fellows' hall. At no time, however, was the hall overcrowded, and it would appear that the great wreck has already ceased to be a nine days' wonder here. Coroner McLaughlin is being assisted in conducting the inquest by Prosecutor of Pleas Perry, who has undertaken the task of questioning the witnesses. Both the railroad companies are represented by counsel at the hearing, and United States Senator Sewall, vice-president of the West Jersey railroad, and George W. Boyd, assistant general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, came here from Cape May in a special train to listen to the evidence. Besides both companies have stenographers taking the testimony with an eye for use in probable damage suits.

Railroad Rules Not Obeyed.

Supt. Bayton of the West Jersey, who was absent from Atlantic City at the time of the accident, presented in an able way for the benefit of the jury the perfections of the block signal system as a safeguard against collisions, but was forced to admit that its perfect working depends upon infallible human beings. Supt. Diece of the Reading staved off answering questions as long as he could, and then admitted that express trains are run at nearly full speed in approaching a grade crossing, if they are once given the signal to go ahead. As the rules of the company explicitly state that trains approaching a crossing shall be under such control that they can stop within 150 feet of such crossing, it would seem that the rule is not strictly observed.

Inquest May Continue Until Thursday.

Nicholas Long, day operator at the tower at the crossing, witnessed the accident as he was on his way home from work, and he stated that the clear signal was given to the excursion train and the danger signal set for the express, but gave it as his opinion that this was unusual, as express trains on the Reading are usually given the right of way over all trains on the West Jersey, owing to priority of track occupations. It is probable that the inquest may last until Thursday. All the victims of the wreck in the sanitarium are doing well, and there are now hopes that all may ultimately recover.

THE CUBAN INSURRECTION.

Spanish Guerillas Killed by a Storm—Insurgents Fighting Each Other.

Havana, Aug. 4.—A wind storm at San Luis, province of Santiago de Cuba, has demolished the barracks there, killing two guerillas outright, and burying seven others under the ruins. Five persons were killed by lightning. The insurgent forces under Perizo Belen and Rudolfo, in the province of Pinar del Rio, recently mistook each other for detachments of Spanish troops, and in the fighting which followed three insurgents were killed and eight wounded. An epidemic of smallpox prevails at Guanabacoa, and is spreading. A dispatch from Santa Domingo, province of Santa Clara, announces that Santigo Munez Bravo, an insurgent, has been shot. Antonio Pinar Lopez and Narciso Rodriguez, insurgents, were shot at the Cabanas fortress.

To Care for the Cuban Wounded.

New York, Aug. 4.—There has been established in this city a club bearing the name of "Oscar Primelles," in honor of the distinguished Cuban doctor who was the first physician in this war to lay down his life on the altar of his country's liberty, and whose object is to minister to the sick and wounded of the Cuban army. As the Spanish government has forbidddn the Red Cross to penetrate into the Cuban camps, this club will endeavor to take its place and care for the suffering and dying in the Cuban ranks.

Sugar Bounty Claims.

Washington, Aug. 4.—The warrants for the payment of the sugar bounties earned in 1894 (except maple sugar), the payment of which was provided for in the appropriation of $5,000,000 in the deficiency act of 1895, were issued yesterday. The proved claims were prorated, each claimant receiving under the $5,000,000 appropriation 84 per cent. of the claim.

Celebrated Fort Stanwix Day.

SPORTS

TUESDAY, August 4. Sun rises 4:55 a. m., sets 7:17 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:17 p. m. and 3:55 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Mrs. W. G. Anderson, of Franklin place, is an enthusiastic cyclist and gracefully rides a Crescent.

Nate Titsworth has accepted a position with H. E. Rider in his bicycle salesrooms on North avenue, opposite the station.

Charles Howard and Frank Hughes rode a tandem to New Brunswick last evening and on the return one of the tires punctured and they walked home, a distance of several miles.

Walter B. Rittenhouse, of East Sixth street, and Charles B. Morse, of the Daily Press staff, left yesterday for a week's bicycle tour through New York State. They go up the Hudson river to Albany and thence west through the Mohawk valley.

The following persons have just purchased new bicycles from the Frank L. C. Martin Cycle company. Miss Gertrude Baker, Cleveland Swell Special; Miss Maggie A. Fosbre, Crescent; Dr. G. C. Bedford, Crescent; Thos. Minford, Cleveland Swell; Mrs. Henry Schriner, Triumph; W. A. Crawford, Crescent; Mrs. Fred Becker, Crescent; Geo. Greenleaf, two Crescents; M. Schœttlin, Crescent; Wm. Pinto, Crescent for his son.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The scheme to form an athletic association for New Jersey among the various clubs of the State has been abandoned by the promoters, the South Orange Field Club, as it was found that as matters stood at present they could not consolidate without infringement of the laws of the A. A. U. The South Orange Field Club announces a meeting for September 7th which will be confined to members of New Jersey clubs.

The Elizabeth Field Club went to Westfield Saturday determined to win, but were clearly outclassed in every position by the Westfield Y. M. C. A. boys, who played without an error. The feature of the game was the battery work of Cox and Rogers for Westfield, who succeeded in striking out sixteen men. The score by innings:

Westfield	1	1	1	0	2	4	3	2	*	14

The Westfield Y. M. C. A. play at Bound Brook next Saturday.

Considerable work is being done among the members of the various associations comprising the Catholic Diocesan Union for the athletic games to be given under the auspices of the union at Caledonian Park, Newark, Saturday, August 8th. The rivalry for possession of the team banner is causing some of the associations to emulate the examples of the big athletic clubs, and they are beginning to corral star performers to represent them. The Catholic Club, of Jersey City, is foremost in this line, and that organization has induced Jerome Buck, of the Knickerbocker A. C., to run in Catholic Club colors. Buck is a top-notcher among the sprinters of the day. The local associations are getting out all the latent athletic material that they possess, and the interest in the games grows as the events draw nearer.

referred back to the committee for amendment. The ordinance provided that no stone should be dropped on the street and that properly built wagons be used, also that wagons should not be loaded to the top with stone, ashes or garbage. The intent of the ordinance was all right but the provisions were unreasonable. Messrs Ginna and Serrell voted alone for the ordinance.

Mr. Frost offered an ordinance relating to house connections with the city sewer, and after a few amendments it was adopted, ordered engrossed and advertised.

Mr. Fisk presented the report of the Watchung avenue commissioners together with the map, and after giving all present an opportunity to have their say regarding the opening, moved that the report be referred to the street committee and that they report at a future meeting, which it is hoped will be Monday, September 7th. There were no persons present to speak on the subject and the above procedure was taken. There being no further business council adjourned.

Parade Committee.

The following is the committee who will make the necessary arrangements for the bicycle parade to be held on September 5th, the Saturday before Labor Day: Edward White, J. Fred. MacDonald, Horace J. Martin, Richard S. Stevens, Lewis G Timpson, H. E. Rider, F. L. C. Martin, C. C. Lister, W. H. Rogers, W. L. Price, L. B. Woolston, Nate Titsworth, M. F. Elderton, T. J. Carey, Chas. B. Morse. The committee will have a meeting tomorrow night at the store of F. L. C. Martin.

Game in Plenty.

Wm. A. McClure will leave Thursday for his annual vacation to be spent on the game preserve of the Megantic Club in North Maine. Wm. H. Brower is now at the preserve. Mr. McClure will have as his guests this year Hon. Foster Voorhees, of Elizabeth, and James J. Bergen, of Somerville. Randolph M. Stelle and wife are also enjoying themselves in the woods. Judge Bartine, of Somerville, is a member of the club and has Judge Williamson as his guest.

The Silver Carriage to be Repaired.

Alerts Hose Co., No. 1, met in regular session last evening, and decided to accept the $150 allowed by the insurance company for damages to the silver hose carriage. Auguste Saltzman, William Arnold and Joseph Hawkins, were appointed a committee to secure bids for having the hose carriage repaired. The matter of presenting the silver hose carriage to the Exempt Firemen's Association, was laid over till the October meeting.

Pawned the Diamonds.

Charles Mattison of 182 Duer street, received this morning two pawn tickets from New York, which he supposes were sent to him by his missing brother, George Mattison. The latter evidently pawned his brother's diamonds to secure money. Charles Mattison went to Newark and New York this afternoon in search of his brother.

A Peculiar Malady.

President George W. Rockfellow, of the city Board of Health is suffering from a peculiar complaint. Some days ago one of the fingers on his left hand became swollen and red, and now a dark crimson streak extends along the arm nearly to the elbow. Dr. M. B. Long made an examination today and dressed the swollen member.

Pension Day.

Judge Nash has been in his office since 5 o'clock this morning, making out pension voucher, which have to be sent to the New York bureau before the checks are forthcoming. Up to noon today he had made out fifty vouchers.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Smith and Mrs. E. C. Morse, the latter president of the W. R. C., No. 10, of this city, will attend the G. A. R. Encampment at St. Paul early in September.

HOBOS ENJOY A FEAST.

KNIGHTS OF THE ROAD CONGREGATE AT THE GREENBROOK TANKS.

Tired of the Usual Backdoor Collation of Left-Overs They Will Set Down to Delicacies Prepared by Their Own Members.

Weary Waggles, Dusty Rhoades and others high in the circles of the Knights of the Road can no more exist for a long period of time on the ordinary "hand out," which prevails at every back door, than can the more respectable citizen eat quail for thirty days without his stomach revolting against the food. The nomads toil not, neither do they spin, but they must eat. Choice dishes seldom greet them when they beg, however. So they have to resort to their own devices once in a while to satisfy the gnawing in their stomach for something besides cold meat, bread and butter, and the left-overs of the family table. A few nights ago a small coterie of tourists came together at a camp below this city, and before bunking up for the night, they discussed the propriety of holding a barbecue, open to the members of the "perfesh." at Greenbrook tanks. They all agreed that the time had arrived for a change of diet and an indulgence in some of the fresh vegetables which do not attend the back door collations. There is a bond of sympathy among the true Knights of Road and it was decided to hold the affair this afternoon and invite the rest of their brethern who were en route over the Central or the Lehigh Valley to enjoy the layout.

The word was passed along the line, and by last night every hobo within twenty five miles was aware of the "feed." Yesterday afternoon the original projectors of the barbecue jumped off a coal train at the tanks, and after a little prospecting, located the camp in a secluded piece of woods not far from the stream of water which bears the name of Green Brook.

Every train arriving from either direction at the tanks between last night and this morning brought its tattered quota of tourists. Those who pre-empted the camp selected a reception committee from their number and they lay in wait for the arrival of the black line coalers. The glad hand was extended to everyone who had credentials that they hadn't washed in a month or worked since they got out of the penitentiary after serving a bit for vagrancy. Those who could not prove these qualifications were repulsed and warned to comply with them immediately if they desired to participate in the feasts to be arranged in the future.

The camp was organized by the selection of a King, who assumed control and appointed subordinates to attend to the details. Close on to midnight a dozen of the party swooped down upon neighboring gardens and farms, and by daylight a sufficient amount of cabbages, tomatoes, cucumbers, eggs and other provisions had found their way into the camp to provide amply for all who were expected to partake. Some of the others had purloined an old pail from a farmhouse in which to cook the eggs and other things that required hot water.

The little details were all provided for and when a call came for salt and pepper a half dozen dived into their pockets and brought forth as many packages of the seasoning article, and more than the embryo chef considered would be good for the food.

At noon today the camp was all activity and anticipation. The time for the consumption of the delicacies was fixed at four o'clock. After the dinner, and before the camp is broken, a number impromptu toasts will probably be given on subjects in which the tourist is deeply interested.

ALMOST BLED TO DEATH

ANDREW SAFFRAN SEVERED THE RADIAL ARTERY IN HIS WRIST.

All Effort to Stop the Flow of Blood Were Fruitless Until He Was Taken to the Hospital and the Artery Sewed Up.

Andrew Saffran, aged twenty-two years, an employe of R. H. McCullough, at his sash and blind factory, narrowly escaped being killed this morning, while at work in the Saengerbund Hall, on Somerset street. Saffran had been sent to the hall to replace several panes of glass that had been broken in the rear windows. He had completed one sash and had just started on another. To do the work it required a long ladder, which Saffran placed in position.

The floor was waxed and very slippery and nothing was used to prevent the ladder from slipping. While Saffran was busily working, the ladder suddenly jolted. The young man's first impulse was to grasp forward, and as he did so his right arm caught on a piece of glass, cutting severely the radial artery. In the fall he also struck his head. Immediately after his descent he got up and walked to Dr. Mattison's office across the street. The blood flowed profusely, and as Saffran walked across the street a track of blood was left behind. Dr. Mattison was alone in his office, and until someone arrived he did the best he could to stop the flow of blood. Saffran was growing weaker and stimulants were used to give him some strength.

Mrs. Becker, who lives upstairs over the doctor's office, hurriedly secured a cot and performed valuable service in assisting the doctor, as did also Mr. Totten, who came in. Wm. Kettenring happened along and he was sent for Dr. Zeglio, but the latter not being home, Dr. Probasco was secured. When he arrived he did all he could for Saffran, but it was impossible to stop the flow of blood.

The ambulance was telephoned for and Saffran was taken to the hospital. At the latter place the doctors cut into the arm sufficiently to sew up the radial artery, which they learned was cut. This stopped the flow of blood, and the young man is doing nicely. He will be able to leave the hospital in a day or two as soon as he recovers his strength.

Some time ago Saffran shaved the nail off a finger with a planer, while working at the mill, but the accident today he considers the worst he ever experieneed.

Well-known Speakers.

The following well known speakers have been added to the list for the Jamesbury Sunday School Convention on August 26th; Rev. Hugh B. MacCauley, of Newark; Rev. Swain, D. D., of Allentown; and Rev. Frank R. Symmes, of Tennent. These, with Dr. A. A. Willetts, of Spring Lake, will make a quarette of addresses well worth hearing. The grove in which the convention is held is an easy walk from the stations and is a large one covering many acres. Its beautiful shade, its lovely walks and secluded nooks make it an ideal place to spend a day in the woods. There are always provided plenty of refreshments for the inner man at the stands throughout the grounds. The railroad is giving special rates there for that day.

Entered for Saturdays Races.

W. E. Brock's trotting horse "Active" and J. Wesley Johnson's "St. Albans" are entered for a race on the track of the Gentlemen,s Driving Park Association, Saturday afternoon next at three o'clock. Charles Brower's "Sergeant" will also trot in the race. All of these horses are well-known to local sportsmen and an exciting time may be expected. No cash prizes are offered for the races, inasmuch as they are only friendly contests between members' horses. The sport has been continued on the track for several years past, and each Saturday afternoon brings out a good attendance.

CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TRAP

ASSESSOR STANBERY HAS THE LAUGH ON SHERIFF KYTE.

Arrested the Assessor for Violating a Fanwood Bicycle Ordinance and in Turn Was Fined Himself for a Similar Offense.

Fanwood is all agog today over the fining of two of its prominent borough officials for violation of ordinances which they framed and which it is their duty to enforce.

Just at twilight, yesterday, William R Stanbery, Borough Assessor, donned his natty bicycle suit, pushed his wheel out into the street in front of his home and started for the home of Councilman-Sheriff-Kyte on some official business in connection with the borough. He pedaled easily along—for the night was warm and oppressive—but when he called at Mr. Kyte's house he found that that gentleman had gone to Scotch Plains to see Councilman Alfred McKown. The business was rather important and he decided to ride there also, and besides he wanted to see Mr. McKown, and in this way he would kill two birds with one stone, figuratively speaking.

He mounted his wheel again and rode along till he came to a spot in the road where there was some repairs going on. The top dressing of fine stone had not yet covered the rough and jagged stones, and if he rode over them he would not only receive a severe jolting but also run the risk of puncturing the tires on his wheels. To the side of the road was a nice smooth sidewalk. It was a most inviting path for the bicyclist thus confronted to resort to. Mr. Stanbery didn't daily long as to whether it would be just proper for him to use the sidewalk for the bicycle riding, since such practices had but recently been prohibited by the Council of the borough, but he was soon bowling along and mentally cogitating how much nicer were the sidewalks than the roads to ride on. He had gone a short distance when the outline of another man on a wheel loomed up before him in the dusk. But this rider was in the place prescribed by law—the middle of the road. The man stopped and dismounted as they approached.

"Hey, there," he yelled.

Mr. Stanbery recognized the voice of Sheriff Kyte.

"Hello, George, is that you," exclaimed the Assessor.

"Yes, come down here I want to see you," was the rejoinder.

Since their desires were mutual Mr. Stanbery went down in the middle of the road, little expecting the storm that was portending.

"Say, see here," the Sheriff-Councilman demanded, "what do you suppose we adopt ordinances in this borough for? To be violated? We can't expect to enforce them unless we live up to them ourselves. You come along with me, and we'll see whether or not you can ride on the sidewalks with impunity."

The Assessor was so thunderstruck at this sally that he meekly followed the Sheriff to the home of Mayor Young. His Honor was called out and the Sheriff said in stentorian tones:

"Your Honor, I want to make a complaint against this man for riding on the sidewalk within the borough limits."

"Well, well," said the Mayor, "this is a little odd, a borough official violating the borough ordinances. What have you got to say to this Mr. Stanbery?" demanded the Mayor.

"It was this way," expostulated the Assessor, "I was riding along there and I came to that piece of road they are repairing and it was covered with such stones that I couldn't ride over them and I rode on the sidewalk." The Mayor considered that a very flimsy excuse, and said "I order that you pay a fine of $1."

Sheriff Kyte started in for a good laugh at the expense of his friend Stanbery but it's a long road that has no turn.

"Now, see here," commenced Stanberry in his most suave tone, "I wish to make a compalint against this anm" pointing to the Sheriff. "He is violating the ordinances by riding after dark without a light, and if you don't belive it just come out side here and look at his wheel."

The trio went out and sure enough there stood the Sheriff's wheel without the sign of a lantern.

The Sheriff's jubilant spirit was so quelled at this turn of affairs that he could only look blankly at the wheel and mumble something that sounded like "I never thought of that."

"I shall have to fine you $1 also,"

WOULDN'T ADMIT HIM.

PITIABLE CONDITION OF MAN TURNED AWAY FROM THE HOSPITAL.

Spent All of His Money for Treatment But Was Not Cured—When He Returned the Rules Wouldn't Let Him In.

"It is no disgrace to be poor, but it is some times inconvenient," is an old saying that is true, and it has been verified in the case of William Nestor, an employe at the fur mills, Scotch Plains. The case is a sad one and has appealed strongly to the hearts of those who are acquainted with the facts.

Several weeks ago while at work Nestor sustained an injury to his wrist, with the result of blood poisoning.

Dr. Westcott, of Fanwood, was sought and he treated the man for a time, but there seemed to be no improvement. Nestor then came to Plainfield and saw Dr. Long, of the hospital staff. His arm at this time was in a bad condition and the doctor sent the man to the hospital, where he remained for five weeks. At the expiration of that time the doctor told him he could go, but he must come back to him every few days and have the arm dressed, and if he experienced much trouble, he was informed that he must go to the hospital again.

During Nestor's five weeks stay at the hospital, he had paid every cent of money to that institution, and being a poor working man his resources were small. Soon after he left the hospital, his arm gave him much trouble and he again sought Dr. Long. This was last Saturday afternoon. The doctor told him to go to the hospital Sunday morning at 10 o'clock when there would be a physician there to attend him. He followed instructions and learned that another doctor was in charge. The man was asked if he had any money, and he replied that he had previously paid all the money he had. The doctor then informed him that patients were supposed to pay, and that unless he could pay something, nothing would be done for him. The doctor, however, wrapped a bandage around the wound and gave Nestor a written formula to poultice his arm three times a day with flaxseed and to use oil silk.

Nestor told the doctor he had no money with which to purchase oil silk, whereupon the doctor informed him that he could not help that.

Nestor left the hospital and called on Overseer of the Poor David R. Weaver, of the borough, and to him he related his story, and while doing so, the man's injury pained him so much that he cried. Mr. Weaver sent him to Dr. Carman's office for treatment and gave him an order to secure some groceries. Mr. Nestor has a wife and two children, and is known as an industrious sober man, always working whenever he can get employment. North Plainfield Township is now looking after Nestor and doing all they can for him.

Enjoyable Day at Hyde's Grove.

About forty young people gathered at Warren chapel yesterday morning about 9:30 and proceeded to Hyde's woods, where a pleasant day was spent. Games and singing took most of the morning. A few vocal selections were given by little Miss Ethel Reynolds. A pleasing feature of the afternoon was a ball game conducted by Rev. J. O. McKelvey. The only regretful part of the picnic was the absence of Mrs. McKelvey who, with Mrs. Taylor, helped to make the day an enjoyable one.

A New Westfield Enterprise.

The Cooper Lamp Company, of Westfield, expects to have its new carriage lamps on the market in about ten days. Dr. Sherman Cooper, the inventor of the lamp, is president of the company, John Ruth vice-president, and L. M. Whitaker secretary and treasurer, all of Westfield.

—The singing section of the Gesang and Turn Verein met for rehearsal last evening in their hall on Somerset street.

MAN AND MONEY GONE.

AN INSURANCE COLLECTOR DISAPPEARS WITH A SMALL SUM.

John Hamilton's Personal Funds Got a Little Short and it is Supposed That He Appropriated the Company's Money.

John Hamilton, whose home is in Newark, has been associated with the Metropolitan Insurance Company as an agent in the local branch for the past three weeks. Last Monday afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock he left the office, at the corner of Park and North avenues, with his satchel, and has not been seen since.

An examination shows that there is a shortage in his accounts of about $15. The reason given for his disappearance is that he has been in hard luck and that his personal funds were short. Sometime ago he worked for the same company eight months, and has always borne a good reputation. He was fully trusted by his employers. While in this city he boarded with Mrs. Neighbor on East Front street, and it is said that he left a board bill unpaid there. A Daily Press representative interviewed persons connected with the company and the feeling seems to be that he will make the shortage good to his bondsman, who stands good for the loss.

CLUBBED A HORSE.

A Borough Man Who is Not Fit to Drive a Horse.

On a warrant issued by Justice Storms, of New Market, and endorsed by Justice Mattison, of North Plainfield, Julius Berrick, of the borough, was arrested today by Chief Marshal Wilson, on complaint of Agent William Pangborn, of the Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. On July 24th, Berrick was carting a load of stone through New Market and the wagon got fastened in some way. Berrick, in a fit of passion, clubbed one of the horses shamefully. The facts were learned by Agent Pangborn, but Berrick disappeared and had not been seen until today. The horses he was using belonged to George Wise, of the borough. At present Berrick is working for N. B. Smalley. The man was giving a hearing and placed under $50 bonds to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Meeting of Warren Engine Company.

The regular monthly meeting of Warren Engine Company, No. 1, of North Plainfield, was held last evening with twenty-two of the members in attendance. Outside of a little controversy appertaining to the department's needs and the auditing of a claim for fire department books, but little business was transacted. J. M. Higgins and Lafayette Rosenthial were elected to active membership, and one application was received. The Company now has thirty-seven active members and they are ever ready in case of emergeney.

At the Revere House.

The following are the recent arrivals at the Revere House: Mr. and Mrs. T. L Cranford, Miss Elliott and H. C. Lucas, of Orange; W. Grobecker, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Fairchild, Rev. Uriah D. Gulick, of New York; W. R Meakle and H. B. Belcher, of Paterson; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Connell and H. I. Patterson, of Lockport; A. W. W. Evans, Miss Nichols, R. W. Evans and Miss B. F. Evans, of New Brunswick; W. E. Banks, of Milton, Pa.; I. E. Denton and son, of Madison; Rev. Daniel Evans, Rev. Alexander Merritt and F. L. Wilson.

Midsummer Night's Dream.

Mrs. Ruggles, of East Third street, is quite a chicken fancier. It is said that a few weeks ago she paid the exorbitant price of $2 a dozen for a setting of eggs, and when the chicks hatched out Saturday a burly tomcat climbed the garden fence and devoured six of them. Four little ones are left, and they are all roosters, so they will be ready to crow after the next election.

Full of Enthusiasm.

Through an oversight the name of J. Hervey Doane was omitted from the committee on the coming bicycle carnival to be held September 5th. A meeting of the committee will be held tomorrow evening at 9 o'clock at F. L. C. Martin's cycle store. One of the committee called on several Front street merchants yesterday and learned that they are all full of enthusiasm and are willing to assist all they can.

May Go Up the Mountain Yet.

There now seems to be bright prospects of the trolley road being extended to Mountain Park Inn. A new grade has been secured and the scheme seems to have attained a new lease of life.

Many a day's work is lost by sick headache, caused by indigestion and stomach troubles. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are the most effectual pill for overcoming such difficulties. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

ESCAPED ON THE BOOTY

A LONG CHASE FOR BICYCLE THIEVES RESULTED IN THEIR CAPTURE.

Detective Totten Followed Them for Many Days and Many Miles, But Did Not Catch Them Till After They Sold the Wheels

Somerville, Aug. 4.—Edward Bartow and James Fisher, two business men of Bound Brook, had their wheels stolen while attending a harvest home gathering in the villiage of Milstone on the night of July 25. The wheels were taken from a cloak room near the church, while the young men were entertaining a party of friends on the lawn. A large party of wheelmen scoured the country in every direction in search of the thieves as soon as the theft was discovered, but could find no trace of them.

On the following day Detective O. D. Totten traced the riders of the stolen wheels to the hamlet of Frankfort. They were two negroes known in the Sourland Mountain district as Pete Setchel and Oliver Johnson. Johnson is a son of Preacher J. S. Johnson, who is now under sentence of death in the Somerset county jail for the murder of Annie Beekman. The two were doing fancy riding for the amusement of a crowd of loungers in front of a country grocery when the detective came upon them. They scorched off in the direction of Hopewell at the sight of the detective, and left him and his fast road horse far in the rear. From Hopewell they took a circuitous course of thirty miles to Somerville, with the detective hot upon their track. Here they eluded arrest and rode thirty miles to Trenton. At Trenton they sold the stolen wheels for $10.50 to Pawnbroker Simon Levey. They have since kept in hiding in different parts of the surrounding country.

Last night Detective Totten traced them to a colored settlement near Somerville, where they were captured with the aid of the local police. They confessed the theft and were placed in county jail.

Bartow and Fisher have recovered their wheels from Pawnbroker Simon.

TO BREAK ANOTHER RECORD.

A. W. W. Evans Preparing to Lower the Time for 200 Miles.

A. W. W. Evans, whose feats on the wheel have drawn to him the attention of all bicyclists in this part of the country, announces that on next Monday or some day early next week he will make an effort to reduce his own creditable record for 200 miles. This he made some years ago in twelve hours and twenty minutes under conditions much less favorable than those which aid the rider at the present time. He made the trip then unpaced.

When he rides next week he will be paced and is confident that he can make 200 miles in much less than twelve hours.

Mr. Evans will not attempt to break the twenty-four hour record for the state until the latter part of the month when the moon is full again and he will be aided by its light when riding at night.

Their Sentence Suspended.

Mitchell Bernard, Thomas Potter and Daniel Gallagher were arraigned in the station house this morning before Judge DeMeza on the charge of trespassing on coal trains. The men were penitent and claimed ignorance of the ordinance. The kind-hearted Judge suspended sentence and sent the men away rejoicing.

To Strike Faster.

A representative from the Gamewell Fire Alarm System Company was in the borough yesterday and put a faster speed on the fire alarm striking apparatus. This will prove a great convenience to firemen and others, who have heretofore been obliged to wait sometime before knowing the exact location of the fire.

For Cruelty to Animals.

Jules Berrick was arrested in the borough by Chief Marshal Wilson, last evening, on a charge of cruelty to animals. The prisoner was locked up in "Sebastapol" over night, and today he was taken to New Market, where the charge was entered, for a hearing before Justice Storms.

Disorderly House Case.

Mary Pelleteo, who lives near the Fanwood line, was before the court at Westfield yesterday and gave bonds to appear before the next Grand Jury to answer a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

M. F. Elderton, the hardworking reporter of the News, was given a day's vacation, yesterday, and spent it at the seashore.

PANIC IS AVERTED

Excitement in Chicago Over the Moores' Failure Allayed.

EXCHANGE CLOSED INDEFINITELY

Banks Will Be Lenient with Borrowers—Business Career of the Moores—Their Big Fortunes Believed To Have Been Swept Away.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Although the failure of the Moore Brothers is still the principal topic of discussion among bankers and brokers all danger of a panic is passed. This cheerful condition was brought about by the closing of the Chicago stock exchange, which will remain closed indefinitely. As the Match and Biscuit stocks have been almost the only stocks dealt in, it is not believed that the closing of the exchange will interfere with general financial affairs. Financiers say that there is no danger of panic, nor is there any likelihood of any serious results.

Banks Will Not Press Borrowers.

It is estimated by those in a position to know that the Moore Brothers have lost between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 in the Diamond Match deal. Some say it has wiped out every cent of their fortunes. Chicago bankers and banks who hold approximately $4,000,000 worth of Diamond Match stock as collateral for money loaned, will not press the borrowers for a settlement, as to do so would be unwise. The banks have also decided to accept the stock of Diamond Match owned by the Moore Brothers at a cash value of 170. Such was the basis of settlement agreed upon at the meeting of bankers held late last evening. Probably the heaviest losers in the collapse next to the Moores themselves are the brokers who had been doing business for them on the exchange. Very few indeed are the brokers, too, who did not do business in that line.

Career of the Moore Brothers.

William H. and J. H. Moore, the members of the firm of Moore & Moore & Pursell, made their first move as promoters in putting on the market the stock of the Frazer Axle Grease company. While this company has been but little known, the Moores made considerable money out of it. The first corporation of any moment in which they were interested was the Diamond Match company, originally a Connecticut corporation formed for the purpose of controlling the manufacture of matches. It had not been successful, however, and at the time the Moores took hold of it it was in a disrupted state and competition nearly had caused its downfall. The Diamond Match company of Illinois was formed, which took over the properties of the former company. Since the formation of this company its success has been phenomenal, and out of it the Moores made fortunes for themselves and for others. O. C. Barber, the president of the Diamond Match company, has had control of its actual working, though the Moores have been recognized as the real people behind the company. Mr. Barber is a practical match manufacturer, and owned large factories in Akron, O. These factories were taken in as part of the assets of the old Connecticut corporation, and Mr. Barber, who had been the ruling spirit in the first corporation, became the working head of the new. The finances of the company, however, have always been in the hands of the Moores.

Not Speculative Property.

Diamond Match stock was not a speculative property here in the true sense of the word during the first two years of the company's existence. It went ahead making money and dividends were paid regularly. At the time of the organization the capital stock was $6,000,000. It kept extending its business and purchasing other match factories, and as it did so stock was issued at par to stockholders. Increases in the capital stock were made from time time until the last one in February, 1895, when the stock was increased from $10,000,000 to $11,000,000, the present capital. The last million dollars was used to save timber which had been burned in the forest fires in northern Minnesota, and this timber was cut and hauled to water for preservation. At the time of the last annual meeting President Barber estimated the value of this at $1,500,000.

Strawboard and Biscuit Companies.

In 1888 the Moores organized the American Strawboard company under the laws of Illinois, to control the manufacture of strawboard and wood pulp. The company owned twenty-five paper mills, located in eight states, and for a time it practically controlled the entire output of strawboard. The American Strawboard company has a capital stock of $6,000,000. For the last two years the Moores have not been interested to any considerable extent in this corporation. The last of the companies organized by the Moores was the New York Biscuit company, which was incorporated in 1890. This was a rival concern to the American Biscuit company, and bakeries in a number of states were purchased and the business of making bread and crackers actively engaged in. The capital stock of this company at the present time is $5,000,000. It owns bakeries in nine states, three having been purchased this year. The principal one of these was the Mason bakery in Baltimore, which was acquired by the company in March. The stock of this company has been an active speculative security since its formation. It is the belief of several financiers who have had considerable dealings with the Moores that the present failure has sadly wrecked, if not entirely wiped out their fortunes.

New York Interests Not Affected.

New York, Aug. 5.—This city is not actually affected by the failure in Chicago. The banks in this city are in no way affected by the failure, as they have made no loans on the stock of the two companies for a long time, neither have they bought the company's paper. It is believed, however, that the banks in New England, particularly in Boston and Providence, are pretty well loaded with Match and Biscuit stock, as well as the single name paper of both companies.

Little Affect at Boston.

Boston, Aug. 5.—Boston investors and business men are not seriously affected by the failure of Moore Bros. of Chicago, and the stock of the Diamond Match company and New York Biscuit company, as far as can be learned, is not held to any great amount in Boston and vicinity. Boston brokers, as a rule, do not think the failure will have much affect here, although it slightly depressed the stock market. Manager Edwards of the Diamond Match company's office in this city said that the failure was a surprise to him. He said it would not affect the business of the company, notwithstanding that Mr. Moore was one of its vice-presidents. Most of the stock, he added, was held in the west. The Boston agent of the New York Biscuit company thought its business would not suffer by the crash.

ARMY AND NAVY ORDERS.

Transfers of Officers in Both Branches of the Service.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Army orders have been issued as follows: First Lieut. H. E. Wilkins, is transferred from the Sixth infantry to the Second infantry, company F, relieving First Lieut. H. R. Lee, who is ordered to company D, Sixth infantry. First Lieut. C. A. Cartis, at his own request, is relieved from duty at the Howe Military school, Lima, Ind. First Lieut. W. H. Hart, Seventh cavalry, is granted three weeks' leave of absence. The following naval orders have been issued: Passed assistant surgeon G. H. Barber has been detached from the New York and ordered home and granted two months' leave. Ensign S. R. Hurlbut has been detached from the Marion and ordered to the Bennington. Lieut. J. B Blish has been detached from the Bennington and ordered to the Philadelphia. Passed assistant surgeon V. C. B. Means has been detached from the Maine and ordered to the New York. Boatswain J. B. F. Langton has been detached from the New York navy yard and ordered to steel inspection at Harrisburg, Pa.

CONCESSIONS FROM COREA.

A Syndicate of Americans Granted Permission To Build a Railroad.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—A dispatch to the Novoe Vremya from Vladivostock announces that Corea has conceded to a syndicate of Americans the right to construct a railroad from Seul, the capital, to Chemulpo, the main port and harbor. The Americans have the right to work the minerals along the line of this road. Other concessions have been granted to France and Russia. Seul, it is stated, is now quiet. The British sailors who were landed for the protection of the consulate of Great Britain have been withdrawn, and the American sailors who were sent ashore to protect the United States consulate will be withdrawn in a few days.

Gov. Morton Extends Clemency.

Albany, Aug. 5.—Joseph Daniels has had his sentence to Sing Sing prison commuted by Gov. Morton. Daniels is a young man who was convicted of grand larceny in the second degree at New York city on May 14, 1894, and sentenced to three years' imprisonment. Daniels is very low with acute tuberculosis and can live but a short time. Clemency is exercised so that he may be permitted to spend his last days with his friends. His term would have expired within a few weeks.

New York State G. A. R.

Albany, Aug. 5.—The reports of the 651 posts comprised within the New York state department of the G. A. R. for the six months ended June 30 shows that the membership on June 30 was 37,058, against 37,629 on Dec. 31 last. During that period 1,115 members were suspended, 321 transferred, 74 honorably discharged, 457 deaths, 525 mustered in, 677 reinstated, 301 transferred to this department. The posts expended about $50,000 in charity in the six months.

Dupont Bird Shooting Tournament.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—The second day's shooting in the Dupont tournament at Watson's park, Burnside, opened with increased enthusiasm. The entries were heavier, the attendance larger and the interest seemingly more intense than during the first day.

Appointed by the President.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The president has made the following appointments: Charles F. Banks, surgeon of the marine hospital corps. Walter B. Barker of Mississippi, consul at Sagua la Grande, Cuba. Joseph Hance of New York, consul at Cartenas, Cuba.

Has Not Opened Gold Accounts.

Montreal, Aug. 4.—General Manager Clouston of the Bank of Montreal denies the statements, in a dispatch from Chicago, that the bank has opened gold accounts in the United States and brought gold into Canada.

Civil Service Revision.

Albany, Aug. 5.—The civil service rules and regulations are to be revised and a reclassification of the employes in the state service and in the various civil divisions in the state is to be [illegible] at once.

HER ONE REGRET.

It Was That She Had Missed Hearing a Hand-Organ Play.

Nantucket people delight to tell the story of an old resident of that quaint island who confessed to a single regret—no more. Her family had lived for generations in the same house, and beside its old-fashioned hospitable fireplace she spent the greater part of her life, except in warm weather, knitting famous stockings and telling old time stories to anyone who cared to listen.

She was such a picture of peace and contentment, and her stories were so full of happy reminiscence untouched by any sense of what many people [illegible] have called the narrowness and bareness of her life, that a chance visitor was one day moved to ask: "Haven't you a single regret in your life? Is there nothing you would have liked that has not come to you?"

"Yes, my dear," replied the old lady, dropping her work for a moment, "there is one thing. Fifteen years ago, before my sister died, a man with a hand-organ came here one day, by the steamer. Folks say he played just beautifully; and my sister tried to persuade me to go down to the corner and see him and his instrument.

"Well, I didn't feel just like going, some way or other, and I didn't go. But she went, and she said it was just splendid.

"I try not to think about it any more than I can help," said the old lady, "and there are days when I almost forget about it. But I suppose really, if I were to tell the truth," she added, after a moment, with a little smile, "I do suppose that I shall regret not hearing that hand-organ, off and on, as long as I live!"—Youth's Companion.

All Within Professional Ethics.

Dr. F., a physician of Montpelier, was in the habit of employing a very ingenious artifice. When he came to a town where he was not known he pretended to have lost his dog, and ordered the public crier to offer, with beat of drum, a reward of twenty-five louis to whoever should bring it to him. The crier took care to mention all the titles and academic honors of the doctor, as well as his place of residence. He soon became the talk of the town. "Do you know?" says one, "that a famous physician has come here, a very clever fellow? He must be very rich, for he offers twenty-five louis for finding his dog." The dog was not found, but patients were.—London Telegraph.

A Principle at Stake.

"I am reliably informed," remarked one of the stockholders in the corporation, lowering his voice so it could not be heard by any eavesdropper or chance listener outside the door of the room in which the conference was going on, "I am reliably informed, I say, that we can put this ordinance through the city council for $40,000."

"Do the members of that body think we will be a party to any corrupt bargain with men destitute of honor!" exclaimed the chairman. "Do they take us for bribers. It is infamous! Besides," he added, in a voice trembling with indignation, "the figure they demand is too high. It isn't worth over $20,000 at the outside."—Chicago Tribune.

Sales Talk

With Hood's Sarsaparilla, "Sales Talk," and show that this medicine has enjoyed public confidence and patronage to a greater extent than any other proprietary medicine. This is because it possesses greater medicinal merit and produces greater cures than any other. It is not what we say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that Tells the Story.

All advertisements of Hood's Sarsaparilla, like Hood's Sarsaparilla itself, are honest. We have never deceived the public, and this with its superlative medicinal merit, is why the people have a abiding confidence in it, and buy Hood's Sarsaparilla almost to the exclusion of all others.

Customers Want Hood's.

"We order Hood's Sarsaparilla in large quantities and it is the only blood purifier which a druggist can buy in large quantities without risk. It is selling very rapidly and customers who buy it once are sure to call for Hood's the next time. We believe Hood's Sarsaparilla must possess true merit in order to retain its popularity. Its sales exceed all similar preparations and its praises are often heard." L. SOMMER & SON, Springfield, Illinois.

MISSOURI DEMOCRATS.

Indications Point to the Adoption of the 16 to 1 Men's Programme.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 5.—The democratic state convention meets today at noon. It is believed that the programme of the 16 to 1 men will go through without a hitch. The principal contest is for the gubernatorial nomination, and the four prominent candidates are State Treasurer Stevens, Judge Gibson of Kansas City, David A. Ball of Louisiana, and James R. Waddill of St. Louis. The chances are greatly in favor of Stevens' nomination. Nearly a dozen men are candidates for lieutenant-governor, but the indications are that Lieut.-Gov. Omeara will succeed himself. Ex-Congressman Wilson of Platte is slated for permanent chairman. The platform will endorse the declaration of the Chicago convention and will include in substance the address made by two democratic bodies at meetings held in St. Louis after the Perile Springs convention of last year.

A dridge's Gubernatorial Ambition.

Albany, Aug. 5.—Hon. George W. Aldridge, state superintendent of public works, when asked regarding his gubernatorial candidacy, said that he was entirely satisfied with the assurances of support he was receiving from every part of the state. Information has been received here that the delegates chosen from Saratoga county, though not instructed, are for Aldridge.

Bland Renominated.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 5.—The democratic convention of the eighth congressional district yesterday afternoon nominated Hon. Richard P. Bland by acclamation. The greatest enthusiasm for Bland was shown by the delegates.

OUR LADY OF MARTYRS.

Programme of the Chief Features of the Celebration at Auriesville, N. Y.

Auriesville, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Ten days from now, Aug. 15, will occur here the annual celebration of the feast of Our Lady, Queen of Martyrs, at the shrine erected to the memory of the Jesuit Father Isaac Jogues, who was killed on the spot by Indians, among whom he was a missionary, on Oct. 18, 1646. The celebration will be attended by thousands of Catholics from all over the country. The celebration will be under the auspices of the Jesuits and the sermon on that day will be preached by Rev. William O'Brien Pardow, provincial of the Jesuit order. One of the features of the celebration will be the unveiling of the crown of the statue of the Virgin with the titular Our Lady, Queen of Martyrs. The crown has cost several thousand dollars, and is made of diamonds, watches, jewelry and precious stones contributed by Catholics in different parts of the country. Most of the contributors are members of the Apostleship of Prayer. Many Catholics have given to the crown heirlooms and mementoes of friends and relatives. The contributions have been going on for several years. The crown was made by Tiffany of New York. It will not be used on the statue except on state occasions. At other times it will be locked up in a safe or vault. Another thing that renders the celebration interesting is the fact that the Jesuits expect the pope to announce the beatification of Father Jogues. This will be the first step towards making the martyr a saint.

The Vanderbilts' Honeymoon.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., who arrived here Monday evening on their wedding tour, spent yesterday very quietly. Strict orders were issued by them to the hotel proprietor not to admit any callers to their parlor suite. Late in the afternoon they made a short shopping tour. At 4 o'clock they took a Victoria and visited Saratoga lake and other points of interest.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The treasury gold reserve at the opening of business today stood at $110,090,456. The withdrawals yesterday amounted to $406,-700.

HIS STORY IS FALSE

Hillebrand's Confession Investigated by the Officials.

ALTOONA'S PROSECUTOR GOES HOME

He Is Thoroughly Convinced That the Late Convict Was Only Working To Assist a Former Fellow Companion in Crime.

Baltimore, Aug. 5.—Developments just made incline the police to the belief that the confession made by Hillebrand just before he committed suicide in the Maryland penitentiary last Saturday was a tissue of falsehoods devised and manufactured for the purpose of clearing his old companion in crime, Frank Wilson, who together with James Farrell is now awaiting the death sentence in the Altoona, Pa., jail for the murder of Henry Bennecka. The corroborative statements of Williams, Hillebrand's partner in crime, who told how he helped Hillebrand to bury $11,000 near Altoona, are now construed to have been put out in order that he might get a trip to Altoona and possibly a chance to escape. Proofs were put in evidence yesterday that old Bennecka was murdered on Sunday morning April 7, 1895, between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock. Hillebrand and Williams were at that time locked up at police headquarters in Pittsburg, where they had been arrested a few hours previously by Baltimore detectives. These facts clearly prove the confession a falsehood. District Attorney Hammond of Altoona, who has been here two days investigating the matter, returned to his home last night satisfied that all hands had been duped by Hillebrand and Williams.

The Investigation Dropped.

When asked if he would take Williams to Altoona to find the buried money, which the convict asked to be done, he said he most assuredly would not. When asked about the theory that Whitney's crime in Altoona had consisted of the killing of a man there prior to the Bonnecka murder, he said there was nothing in that theory, as the last murder before that of the old miser was that of Frank Mender, which occurred in April, 1894, for which Frank McCormick is now serving a six years' term in the Eastern penitentiary of Pennsylvania. The killing of Mender was clearly proven on McCormick, and he himself did not deny it, but claimed it was justifiable. Warden Weyler believes that when Hillebrand determined to commit suicide he also decided to again defeat the ends of justice, in so far as he could, by making it appear that his friend Frank Wilson was innocent of the Altoona murder.

TREASURY EMPLOYES.

Clerks and Laborers Must Confine Their Work To Their Special Departments.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Heretofore persons carried on the pay rolls of the treasury as laborers have done duty as clerks, and some clerks have done duty in capacities not included in the classified service. To correct these irregularities Secretary Carlisle has instructed the officials of the treasury not to permit employes under their control and direction, who, under the law, are not in the classified service, to perform the duties of offices or places which are in the classified service, and not to permit employes who are in the classified service to perform the duties of offices or places which are not in the classified service. A violation of these instructions, he adds, will result in the abolishment of offices not in the classified service.

Bright Outlook for Fruit Crop.

Boston, Aug. 5.—The American Agriculturist in its next issue will publish the following regarding the fruit crop of 1896: Taking the country as a whole, the fruit crop of 1896 may be put down as a full one. While there have been some shortages in the southern states, and also in territory west of the Rocky mountains, this fact has not cut much of a figure in the north or east, where yields of the early varieties have been abundant, and the prospects for later vine and tree fruits good to excellent.

Immigrant Swindlers Surrendered.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 5.—Gov. Griggs has granted papers for the extradition of Chas. Windsich, Lewis Reche and Emil Slicklich, confined in the Hudson county jail. They are wanted in New York on a charge of having impersonated United States customs officials and swindling two immigrants in Forty-second street out of $1,C00 in money and $1,100 worth of jewelry. Most of the jewelry and $600 of the money was recovered when the men were arrested in Hoboken some time ago.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

(Furnished by Weather Observer Neagle.)

Fair Tonight; Increasing Cloudiness Thursday; Not So Warm Thursday.

At 2 o'Clock Leggett's Thermometer Registered 92 Degrees.

A company has been organized in Chicago to insure the payment of salaries and wages to the employes of firms and corporations.

Lawyer Alex. C. Young, formerly of Somerville, and for a few years past associated with the son of the late ex-Governor Leon Abbett in the legal profession in Hoboken, is mentioned as a probable Congressional nominee in Hudson county by the Democrats. Mr. Young is an excellent young man and his many friends in this section of the State will be pleased to learn of his prominence.

James E. Martine is ready to jump into the thickest of the battle for the election of the Democratic candidates, and he will start the ball rolling on Aug. 19th, at Packer's Island, when he will indulge in a joint debate on the silver and gold currency question with Congressman Mahlon Pitney. The occasion is a big picnic of the farmers of that section, and it is probable that several thousand people will hear the debate.

This morning we were again treated to the monumental enterprise of a New York newspaper. Though the bicycle parade took place almost a week ago, the Advertiser appeared this morning with an alleged full account of the affair which was said to have been held last night. Accompanying it was a sketch pretending to be a representation of a section of the riders in fantastic costume. The story was written in the office of the Advertiser by a reporter, it is nine out of ten chances, who never saw a bicycle parade, and the illustration was simply an imagination of the artist.

It is reported on good authority that a talk on the silver question will be one of the features of the annual picnic of the Grangers of Essex, Union and Morris counties, to be held at Swinefield Bridge, Morris county, August 13th and 14th. The speakers will be Editor Collingwood, of Hackensack, editor of Rural New Yorker; Professor E. B. Voorhees, White House Station; Franklin Dye, secretary of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture, and Hon. Augustus Cutler, of Morristown. The latter, it is believed, will handle the silver question. He was a candidate for Governor in the last Democratic convention, but was turned down by the State machine.

Jerseymen who are interested in horticulture, arboriculture, pomology, etc., will have a chance to distinguish themselves at the coming International Horticultural Exposition, to be held at Hamburg, from May 1st until October 1st, 1897. Secretary Franklin Dye, of the New Jersey Horticultural and Agricultural Department, has received from Louis Retz, secretary of the Exposition Commission, a notice informing him that arrangements have been made with all the steamship lines to carry any exposition goods free of freight and charges and to grant to any persons that accompany exhibits to take care of them on the way, 50 per cent. reduction on the regular fare. The Hamburg State will give a large number of gold and silver medals. The board awards about $15,000 in medals and cash prizes. Besides special premiums of honor, amounting to about $10,000, have been already donated by merchants, and it is expected that this sum will be at least doubled.

West Front Street Improvements.

Charles H. Hand has signed a contract with William H. Voorhis, owner of the stores occupied by Randolph, the druggist, and Sherwin, the shoe dealer, for numerous alterations to the building. The upper stories will be fitted up into modern flats and the stores extended ten feet in the rear. The work will be commenced immediately.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints.—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Frederickstown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

"Boys will be boys," but you can't afford to lose any of them. Be ready for the green apple season by having DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure in the house. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

OF PASSING INTEREST.

Two years ago W. Hancock Clarke mailed from Jersey City a letter for his brother, Charles Jefferson Clarke, who was then with Hammond in the Transvaal, South Africa. Before the letter arrived Mr Clarke left for Europe. He made a tour of all the principal cities, the letter following him. It caught up with him at London, but Mr. Clarke had fallen sick, and was dead before the postman brought it to his hotel. The letter was then forwarded to the sender in Jersey City. Mr. Clarke was in Detroit when it came, and it was forwarded to him there. He has given the envelope to Frank Houghtaling, of Jersey City. It is covered with postmarks, the evidences of its more than 8,000 miles of travel.

Chief Marshal Warden, of Dunellen, is a remarkable man for one of his years. He is sixty-two years old and has never known what a headache is. Neither has he experienced any sickness, except once, and that was some seven years ago when he was laid up for a short time with malarial fever. The Chief is a great walker, and on Saturday afternoon he walked to this city and back to serve some papers.

Chickens generally flee from danger, especially the hatchet. Yet a full-grown hen, the parent of thirteen little ones, got in the way of a rapid bicycle rider on Plainfield avenue, Saturday afternoon, and was sent into eternity in the twinkling of an eye. An urchin remarked "And what'll the little ones do now, poor things?"

Prof. John H. Sayers, of East Front street, is a man of learning. He has studied the velocity of the wind, the rising and lowering of the tides, and the rapidity with which lightning, both Jersey and otherwise, travels. He claims that if the proposed trip to the North pole by baloon is successfully accomplished within twenty-four hours time, the auronauts will not have much time to linger on the way for meals.

It may be proper and all right, but it sounds rather odd, to see a banner out in front of the Salvation Army building which reads in bold, black hyerogliphics "Coming Out of Hell With a Night-cap On." The sign would perhaps be more appropriate were it placed in front of a saloon.

Col. John Deitrich, of No. 16 Arlington place, is a most interesting man to talk with. His experience during the seventy-five years of his existence would fill a good sized volume. On Monday the Colonel drove out to Judge Depue's summer residence, near the Mountain Park Inn, and called on his old friend, Judge Depue of the Supreme Court, whom he had not seen before in over fifty years. At first when the two gentlemen met, there were side glances of recognition, and almost immediately there was hand shaking and a talk over old times. Col. Deitrich is seventy five years of age and Judge Depue is sixty-eight. When the Colonel met the judge over half a century ago, he was working in a store for the latter's father, the late Major Benjamin Depue and boarded with the family at Centreville, North Hampton county, Pa., on the old stage route running from Milford to Philadelphia. The Colonel and the Judge, who, by the way is delighted with Plainfield's scenery and atmosphere, related many old time incidents and experiences and parted for the time being with a gladsome hand shake.

Rev. P. S. Gibson, pastor of Mount Olive Baptist church, is a much marrying man. The first year of his pastorate here he married sixteen couples, last year he wedded twenty-three more, and thus far this season he has launched out on the matrimonial sea eleven more couples, making fifty in all. Pastor Gibson has been most fortunate among his flock, for out of all these marriages, with a single exception, the parties have lived up to their agreement to "Love, cherish and obey." One reason, perhaps, why Rev. Mr. Gibson has so many knots to tie, is because he uses the brief marriage form of the Episcopal church, and the blushing brides do not have time to become tired or faint.

Sentence Was Suspended.

One unfortunate resident named Coriell, of the Fourth ward, was gathered in by the police on West Third street, yesterday afternoon, for being drunk and disorderly. The man is getting along the years and is quite feeble, and on account of his respectable family connections sentence was suspended.

Not a Great Deal of Interest.

Several meetings of the colored Republican executive committee have been called within the past ten days, but neither the members nor anyone else has shown up. So "Billy" Kline, the head mogul in the ring, is arranging for a private conference in his own parlors the latter part of the week.

LINE & CO., 37 SOMERSET ST.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—On Friday evening the Women's Relief Corps will meet in regular session.

—A leak in one of the water pipes on Elmwood place, has been repaired by the water company.

—The Crescent Wheelmen's new quarters on West Second street will be opened in a few days.

—Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., will meet this evening in their rooms in the Babcock building.

—The regular business meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held in their rooms tomorrow at 3:30 p. m.

—A new exercise wagon has been secured for the fire department horses. It was used yesterday for the first.

—The clerks in the butcher shops, it is said, are quietly circulating a petition for a two-weeks vacation.

—Sergeant Kiely, of the city police force, is doing the skirmishing act these warm nights, and at almost any hour he can be seen pedaling around the streets of the city.

—Mailcarrier James H. Frisby and his baby will leave September 1st for the Catskills, where they will spend a few weeks with Mr. Frisby's sister, who is domiciled there.

—While the family of W. H. Moore, of Westfield, was away last Sunday, some one entered the house and took half a dollar that was in a bureau drawer, and a bottle of wine.

—There was no meeting of the street committee last evening as Mr. Fisk and Street Commissioner Meeker were the only ones present. The meeting will be held next week, probably.

—Notice has been served on Fell & Costa, contractors at Cranford, to resume work on the sewers. Unless they resume work today the committee will take charge and complete it.

—John Dunster, of Bernardsville, while driving a team of horses, yesterday, was thrown from the wagon. Dr. Sutphen was summoned, and he found that three ribs had been fractured.

—Is your eyesight defective? The correct glasses properly fitted is probably all that is needed to give you your perfect vision. Give us a trial. Satisfaction guaranteed. Leech, Stiles & Co., eye specialists, at 107 East Front street, every Thursday from 10 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

—Plainfield is noted for many things, and among them are the fine band concerts. The same band will toot for a union picnic to be held at Washingtonville on the afternoon and evening of August 12th. The picnic will include the hamlets of Washingtonville, Mt. Bethel and Parsippany.

—Protection Engine Co., No. 5, of Bayonne, have been trying to get the Plainfield Cornet Band to play for them at an entertainment and reception to be held on October 1st, but Prof. Guttman had to decline the invitation because he is engaged for the Knights Templar parade here on that day.

—Previous to the Board of Education meeting in the Stillman High School building Monday evening, some of the members indudged in a little political gossip. One of them, a Republican, is quoted as saying: "That there is plenty of money in the country, but no business." It was never known to be worse. Paper and card mills are almost at a standstill, and coal and copper interests are in a depressed condition.

—Ethel, the five-months old child of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baker, of 50 Pearl street, North Plainfield, died at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon after twenty-four hours in spasms, resulting from brain fever. The little one had been ailing for about two weeks. For a whole day the child's eyelids never closed until death came. The little one was the youngest of eight children. Funeral services will be held from the house tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 and interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Rhodie Noah, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of blackberry cordial but got no relief. She then sent to me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and diarrhoea Remedy and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhoea but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by T. S Armstrong, Druggist.

MISSING HORSE AND BUGGY.

The Rig Taken From Under a Shed in the Rear of Dunn's Grocery Store.

A horse and buggy, owned by John I. Holly, of Park avenue, was driven to town at 9 o'clock last evening and tied under the shed in the rear of James M. Dunn's grocery store on Park avenue. Two hours later when the driver went after the rig it was missing, and although the police were notified of the alleged theft, no trace of it could be found. After a diligent search about the city and North Plainfield, with no effective results, about four o'clock this morning, and unnoticed, the entire outfit was returned to the shed and later it was taken to Roberts' livery stable.

Whoever took the rig from under the shed, evidently only wanted to ride out for recreation, as nothing was missing from the turnout when found.

Funeral of Lester Horton.

The funeral services of the late S. Lester Horton, were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of his mother, 55 Somerset street. Rev. W. E. Honeyman, who has been stopping at Mt. Freedom, Morris Co., was called home and officiated. A large number of the friends of the deceased were present. Those serving as pall bearers were Alex. Thorn, H. N. Spencer, S. O. Staats and David Pope. Interment was in North Plainfield Cemetery.

ASKED A KISS AND GOT BLOWS.

Aged Woman Likely to Die of a Beating Given Her by Her Husband.

Mrs. Catherine Hickory, who was so brutally assaulted by her husband last week, will die. Mr. Hickory is a noted character of Westfield, and has considerable money. He always carried a hickory stick in deference to his name, and on Wednesday night came home intoxicated. His wife, who is seventy years old, asked him for a kiss, and he stuck her repeatedly on the right side, breaking three ribs and bruising her severely. She was sent to the General Hospital, Elizabeth, and he was lodged in the County Jail.

Pleuro pneumonia has developed as the result of his blows, and Mrs. Hickory may die at any moment. Her ante-mortem statement was taken by Justice Neill yesterday afternoon, in it she sought to shield her husband.

The Elizabeth hospital authorities notified the police yesterday of Mrs. Hickory's dangerous condition, but there was a disagreement between the city and county authorities as to who should take her disposition, and hence a delay of twenty-four hours resulted.

IS AFTER AN OLD LEGACY.

Vermont Church Left $10,000 in 1869, Didn't Hear of it Until This Year.

For half a century Edward P. Marsh lived in Elizabeth and became wealthy by real estate speculations in Elizabeth and Plainfield building lots in the outskirts of these towns. In 1869 he died and left a will in which he bequeathed $10,000 to the Congregational church, of White River Village, Vt., the rest to go to his two cousins, Daniel and Leonard Marsh.

The latter paid no attention to the bequest to the church, but divided the whole property between them and became very wealthy as the suburban lots grew in value. The church in Vermont never heard of the legacy until last January. Now it proposes to secure the $10,000 and interest compounded on it from 1869, amounting to a very large sum.

The purchasers of lots from the Marsh estate in both Plainfield and Elizabeth, about fifty in all, have retained J. E. Powers to defend their titles, and the church has retained McCarter & Co., of Newark.

James C. Manning and family, of 39 Albert street, returned from Asbury Park today.

—Visit the Boys Brigade Camp at Boynton Beach this week. Trolley cars from Rahway. Bathing is fine, and plenty of weakfish are caught daily. w1; d3

It is a fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla, the one true blood purifier, has proved, over and over again, that it has power to cure, even when other medicines fail to do any good.

—Hood's Pills are purely vegetable and do not purge, pain or gripe. All druggists. 25c.

Why is it,

if catarrh is a constitutional affection, as those claim who have a blood tonic to sell, that physicians, in extreme cases, frequently advise change of air and climate to those suffering from it? Catarrh is a climatic affection, and nothing but a local remedy or a change of climate will cure it. Ely's Cream Balm, in all cases of catarrh, is so efficient as to do away with the necessity of leaving home and friends, causing instant relief and a perfect cure after short continuance.

est. My plan was to strike at the head and, surprising Mme. de Verneuil while the event still hung uncertain, to wres the secret from her by trick or threat The enterprise was desperate, for knew the stubbornness and arrogance o the woman, and the inveterate enmity which she entertained towards me more particularly since the king's mar riage. But in a dangerous case any remedy is welcome.

I reached Malesherbes, where madame was residing with her parents, a little before seven o'clock, and riding without disguise to the chateau demanded to see her. She was not yet risen, and the servants, whom my appearance threw into the utmost confusion, objected this to me; but I knew that the excuse was no real one, and answered roughly that I came from the king, and must see her. This opened all doors, and in a moment I found myself in her chamber. She was sitting up in bed, clothed in an elegant nighttrail, and seemed in no wise surprised to see me. On the contrary, she greeted me with a smile and a taunting word, and omitted nothing that might evince her disdain or hurt my dignity. She let me advance without offering me a chair; and when, after saluting her, I looked about for one, I found that all the seats except one very low stool had been removed from the room.

This was so like her that it did not astonish me, and I baffled her malice by leaning against the wall. "This is no ordinary honor—from M. de Rosny!" she said, flouting me with her eyes.

"I come on no ordinary mission madame," I said, as gravely as I could.

"Mercy!" she exclaimed in a mocking tone. "I should have put on new ribbons, I suppose!"

"From the king, madame," I continued, not allowing myself to be moved, "to inquire how you obtained possession of his cipher."

She laughed loudly. "Good, simple king," she said, "to ask what he knows already!"

"He does not know, madame," I answered, severely.

"What?" she cried, in affected surprise. "When he gave it to me himself!"

"He did not, madame."

"He did, sir!" she retorted, firing up. "Or if he did not, prove it—prove it. And, by the way," she continued, lowering her voice again and reverting to her former tone of spiteful badinage, "how is the dear queen? I heard that she was indisposed yesterday and kept the king in attendance all day. So unfortunate, you know, just at this time." And her eyes twinkled with malicious amusement.

"Madame," I said, "may I speak plainly to you?"

"I never heard that you could speak otherwise," she answered, quickly. "Even his friends never called M. de Rosny a wit; but only a plain, rough man who served our royal turn well enough in rough times, but is now growing—"

"Madam!"

"A trifle exigeant and superfluous."

After that I saw that it was war to the knife between us, and I asked her in very plain terms if she were not afraid of the queen's enmity, that she dared thus to flaunt the king's favors before her.

"No more than I am afraid of yours," she answered, hardily.

"But if the king is disappointed in his hopes?"

"You may suffer, very probably will," she answered, slowly and smiling; "not I. Besides, sir—my child was born dead. He bore that very well."

"Yet, believe me, madame, you run some risk."

"In keeping what the king has given me?" she answered, raising her eyebrows. "No! In keeping what the king has not given you!" I answered, sternly. "Whereas, what do you gain?"

"Well," she replied, raising herself in bed, while her eyes sparkled and her color rose, "if you like, I will tell you. This pleasure, for one thing—the pleasure of seeing you there, awkward, booted, stained, and standing, waiting my will. That—which perhaps you call a pretty thing—I gain first of all. Then I gain your ruin, M. de Rosny; I plant a sting in that woman's breast; and for his majesty, he has made his bed and may lie on it."

"Have a care, madame!" I cried, bursting with indignation at a speech so nameless and disloyal. "You are playing a dangerous game, I warn you!"

"And what game have you played?" she replied, transported on a sudden with equal passion. "Who was it tore up the promise of marriage which the king gave me? Who was it prevented me being queen of France? Who was it hurried on the match with this tradeswoman, so that the king found himself wedded before he knew it? Who was it—but enough; enough!" she cried, interrupting herself with a gesture full of rage. "You have ruined me, you and your queen between you, and I will ruin you!"

"On the contrary, madame," I answered, collecting myself for a last effort, and speaking with all the severity which a just indignation inspired, "I have not ruined you. But if you do not tell me that which I am here to learn—I will!"

She laughed out loud. "Oh, you simpleton!" she said. "And you call yourself a statesman! Do you not see that if I do not tell it, you are disgraced yourself and powerless, and can do me no harm? Tell it you? When I have you all on the hip—you, the king, the queen! Not for a million crowns, M. de Rosny!"

"And that is your answer, madame?" I said, choking with rage. It had been long since any had dared so to beard me.

"Yes," she replied stoutly; "it is! Or, stay; you shall not go empty handed." And thrusting her arm under the pillow she drew out, after a moment's search, a small packet which she held out towards me. "Take it!" she said, with a taunting laugh. "It has served my turn. What the king gave me, I give you."

Seeing that it was the missing key to the cipher, I swallowed my rage and took it; and being assured by this time that I could effect nothing by staying longer, but should only expose myself to fresh insults, I turned on my heel, with rudeness equal to her own, and, without taking leave of her, flung the door open and went out. I heard her throw herself back with a shrill laugh of triumph. But as, the moment the door fell to behind me, my thoughts began to cast about for another way of escape—this failing—I took little heed of her, and less of the derisive looks to which the household, quickly taking the cue, treated me as I passed. I flung myself into the saddle and galloped off, followed by Maignan, who presently, to my surprise, blurted out a clumsy word of congratulation.

I turned on him in amazement, and, swearing at him, asked him what he meant.

"You have got it," he said, timidly, pointing to the packet which I mechanically held in my hand.

"And to what purpose?" I cried, glad of this opportunity of unloading some of my wrath. "I want, not the paper, but the secret, fool! You may have the paper for yourself if you will tell me how madame got it."

"YOU HAVE GOT IT."

Nevertheless, his words led me to look at the packet. I opened it, and, having satisfied myself that it contained the original and not a copy, was putting it up again when my eyes fell on a small spot of blood which marked one corner of the cover. It was not larger than a grain of corn, but it awoke, first, a vague association and then a memory, which as I rode grew stronger and more definite, until, on a sudden, discovery flashed upon me—and the truth.

I remembered where I had seen spots of blood before—on the papers I had handed to Ferret—and remembered, too, where that blood had come from. I looked at the cut now, and, finding it nearly healed, sprang in my saddle. Of a certainty this paper had gone through my hands that day! It had been among the others; therefore it must have been passed to Ferret inside another when I first opened the bag! The rogue, getting it and seeing his opportunity, and that I did not suspect, had doubtless secreted it, probably while I was attending to my hand.

I had not suspected him before, because I had ticked off the earlier papers as I handed them to him; and had searched only among the rest and in the bag for the missing one. Now I wondered that I had not done so, and seen the truth from the beginning; and in my impatience I found the leagues through the forest, though the sun was not yet high and the trees sheltered us, the longest I had ridden in my life. When the roofs of the chateau at length appeared before us, I could scarcely keep my pace within bounds. Reflecting how Mme. de Verneuil had overreached herself, and how, by indulging in that last stroke of arrogance, she had placed the secret in my hands, I had much ado to refrain from going to the king booted and unwashed as I was, and though I had not eaten since the previous evening.

However, the habit of propriety, which no man may lightly neglect, came to my aid. I made my toilet, and having broken my fast standing, hastened to the court. On the way I learned that the king was in the queen's garden, and, directing my steps thither, found him walking with my colleagues, Villeroy and Sillery, in the little avenue which leads to the garden of the Conciergerie. A number of the courtiers were standing on the low terrace watching them, while a second group lounged about the queen's staircase. Full of the news which I had for the king, I crossed the terrace, taking no particular heed of anyone, but greeting such as came in my way in my usual fashion. At the edge of the terrace I paused a moment before descending the three steps; and at the same moment, as it happened, Henry looked up and our eyes met. On the instant he averted his gaze, and, turning on his heel in a marked way, retired slowly to the farther end of the walk.

The action was so deliberate that I could not doubt he meant to slight me; and I paused where I was, divided between grief and indignation, a mark for all those glances and whispered gibes in which courtiers indulge on such occasions. The slight was not rendered less serious by the fact that the king was walking with my two colleagues; so that I alone seemed to be out of his confidence, as one soon to be out of his councils also.

I perceived all this, and was not blind to the sneering smiles which were exchanged behind my back; but I affected to see nothing, and to be absorbed in sudden thought. In a minute or two the king turned and came back towards me; again, as if he could not restrain his curiosity, looked up so that our eyes met. This time I thought that he would beckon me to him, satisfied with the lengths to which he had already carried his displeasure. But he turned again, with a light laugh.

At this a courtier, one of Sillery's creatures, who had presumed on the occasion so far as to come to my elbow, thought that he might safely amuse himself with me. "I am afraid that the king grows older, M. de Rosny," he said, smirking at his companions. "His sight seems to be failing."

"It should not be neglected, then," I said, grimly. "I will tell him presently what you say."

He fell back, looking foolish at that, at the very moment that Henry, having taken another turn, dismissed Villeroy, who, wiser than the puppy at my elbow, greeted me with particular civility as he passed. Freed from him, Henry stood a moment hesitating. He told me afterwards that he had not turned from me a yard before his heart smote him; and that but for a mischievous curiosity to see how I should take it, he would not have carried the matter so far. Be that as it may—and I do not doubt this any more than I ever doubted the reality of the affection in which he held me—on a sudden he raised his hand and beckoned to me.

I went down to him gravely, and not hurriedly. He looked at me with some signs of confusion in his face. "You are late this morning," he said.

"I have been on your majesty's business," I answered.

"I do not doubt that," he replied, querulously, his eyes wandering. "I am not—I am troubled this morning." And after a fashion he had when he was not at his ease, he ground his heel into the soil and looked down at the mark. "The queen is not well. Sillery has seen her and will tell you so."

M. de Sillery, whose constant opposition to me at the council board I have elsewhere described, began to affirm it. I let him go on for a little time and then interrupted him brusquely. "I think it was you," I said, "who nominated Ferret to be one of the king's clerks."

"Ferret?" he exclaimed, reddening at my tone, while the king, who knew me well, pricked up his ears.

"Yes," I said: "Ferret."

"And if so?" Sillery asked, haughtily. "What do you mean?"

"Only this," I said. "That if his majesty will summon him to the queen's closet, without warning or delay, and ask him in her presence how much

OUR EYES MET.

Mme. de Verneuil gave him for the king's cipher, her majesty, I think, will learn something which she wishes to know."

"What?" the king cried. "You have discovered it? But he gave you a receipt for the papers he took."

"For the papers he took with my knowledge—yes, sire."

"The rogue!" Sillery exclaimed viciously. "I will go and fetch him."

"Not so—with your majesty's leave," I said, interposing quickly. "M. de Sillery may say too much or too little. Let a lackey take a message, bidding him to go to the queen's closet, and he will suspect nothing."

The king assented and bade me go and give the order. When I returned, he asked me anxiously if I felt sure that the man would confess.

"Yes, if you pretend to know all, sire," I answered. "He will think that madame has betrayed him."

"Very well," Henry said. "Then let us go."

But I declined to be present; partly on the ground that if I were there the queen might suspect me of inspiring the man, and partly because I thought that the rogue would entertain a more confident hope of pardon, and be more likely to confess, if he saw the king alone. I contrived to keep Sillery also; and Henry giving the word, as he mounted the steps, that he should be back presently, the whole court remained in a state of suspense, aware that something was in progress but in doubt what, and unable to decide whether I were again in favor or now on trial.

Sillery remained talking to me, principally on English matters, until the dinner hour; which came and went, neglected by all. At length, when the curiosity of the mass of couriers, who did not dare to interrupt us, had been raised by delay to an almost intolerable pitch, the king returned, with signs of disorder in his bearing; and, crossing the terrace in half a dozen strides, drew me hastily, along with Sillery, into the grove of white mulberry trees. There we were no sooner hidden in part, though not completely, then he threw his arms about me and embraced me with the warmest expressions. "Ah, my friend," he said, putting me from him at last, "what shall I say to you?"

"The queen is satisfied, sire?"

"Perfectly; and desires to be commended to you."

"He confessed, then?"

Henry nodded, with a look in his face that I did not understand. "Yes," he said, "fully. It was as you thought,

"WHAT!" THE KING CRIED, "YOU HAVE DISCOVERED IT."

my friend. God have mercy upon him!"

I started. "What?" I said. "Has he—"

The king nodded, and could not repress a shudder. "Yes," he said; "but not, thank Heaven, until he had left the closet. He had something about him."

Sillery began anxiously to clear himself; but the king, with his usual good nature, stopped him, and bade us all go and dine, saying that we must be famished. He ended by directing me to be back in an hour, since his own appetite was spoiled. "And bring with you all your patience," he added, "for I have a hundred questions to ask you. We will walk toward Avon, and I will show you the surprise which I am preparing for the queen."

Alas, I would I could say that all ended there. But the rancour of which Mme. de Verneuil had given token in her interview with me was rather aggravated than lessened by the failure of her plot and the death of her tool. It proved to be impenetrable by all the kindnesses which the king lavished upon her; neither the legitimation of the child which she soon afterwards bore, nor the clemency which the king—against the advice of his wisest ministers—extended to her brother Auvergne, availing to expel it from her breast. How far she or that ill-omened family were privy to the accursed crime which, nine years later, palsied France on the threshold of undreamed-of glories, I will not take on myself to say; for suspicion is not proof. But history, of which my beloved master must ever form so great a part, will lay the blame where it should rest.

[THE END.]

Pineapple Pancakes.

The Germans make these by adding stewed pineapple to a plain pancake batter of eggs, flour, and milk. Pour out the batter into a buttered frying pan that is large enough to cook it all. The pan should be not less than 12 inches in diameter, and the batter thin. When the batter has been poured into the pan, cover it at once with stewed pineapples and dredge them with powdered sugar. Put the pan in a quick oven and bake seven minutes; cut the cake into triangular pieces, like pie, when served.—Good Housekeeping.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? POLITICAL CAMPAIGN

Bryan's Letter To a Canton, O., Democratic Club.

PRAISES THEIR MORAL COURAGE

The Fact That They Are Willing To Array Themselves Against a Townsman of Great Personal Worth Shows the Depth of Their Convictions.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 3.—Mr. Bryan has sent a letter to John C. Harmony, secretary of the Bryan club at Canton, O. The letter is as follows: My dear sir—I am in receipt of your message conveying greetings from the members of your club, and beg to assure you of my hearty appreciation of their support. The fact that those of our citizens who believe that the United States is strong enough to have a financial policy of its own, are willing to array themselves against a townsman of high character and great personal worth, indicates the depth of their convictions. Whenever a great issue arises, the American people always prove their independence and moral courage, characteristics without which self-government is impossible. It gratifies me to know that the silver sentiment in its growth is disregarding party lines. Yours truly,

W. J. BRYAN.

At Headquarters in New York.

New York, Aug. 5.—There was a conference held last evening at republican headquarters in regard to the situation in Virginia. The national committee a few days ago appointed a committee of five members to act as an advisory committee in the state to assist in conducting the campaign. Col. William Lamb, the chairman of the state committee, resented the appointment of the advisory committee, thinking it was a means of superseding him. He accordingly came to New York to inquire into the matter. When the conference was over it was learned that it had been decided that Col. Lamb should appoint three other members on the advisory committee as soon as he arrives in Virginia. These names will then be wired to national headquarters in this city and passed upon. The campaign in Virginia will accordingly be carried on by Col. Lamb and his state committee, assisted by the advisory committee of eight.

At Democratic Headquarters.

Things are quiet at democratic headquarter at the Hotel Bartholdi. The only news of importance this morning was that Henry W. Cornell, son of ex-governor Alonzo B. Cornell, had volunteered his services to assist Ollie Teall in his work of enrolling silver republicans for the Bryan cause. Mr. Cornell's services were immediately accepted and he started in at once with his work.

Alabama Gold Democrats.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 5.—At the conference of anti-Bryan democrats which met here yesterday afternoon about a hundred delegates were present. There were democrats from a number of counties in the state. Hon. S. V. Dent of Barbour was made president of the conference and afterwards chairman of a provisional state committee; Capt. J. M. Falkner of Montgomery was named as provisional member of the national committee to attend the Indianapolis conference on the 7th inst. A committee of five was named to take steps to perfect organization throughout the state by naming a state committee. Resolutions endorsing Secretary Carlisle were passed by a rising vote. A recommendation was made to the state committee to bring about as soon as possible conventions for the nomination of sound money democratic congressional candidates in every district. The committee was also instructed to issue an address to the democrats of the state setting forth the purpose of this movement.

Bryan To Visit Murray Hill Park.

Murray Hill Park, N. Y., Aug. 5.—W. J. Bryan, democratic nominee for president, will soon visit St. Lawrence county, the republican stronghold of northern New York. On his way there he will visit Murray Hill Park at the invitation of president A. Corbin, jr., on behalf of the summer sojourners of the Thousand islands. The date is expected to be fixed for the middle of August.

Major McKinley's Callers.

Canton, O., Aug. 5.—The silverite democrats of Canton are still endeavoring to arrange to have the train which carries Mr. Bryan eastward stop a few minutes in Canton. They want Mr. Bryan to make a short speech, but he has not yet intimated his willingness to do so. Major McKinley continues to receive many callers. Some tell of prominent democrats in their several states who will vote the republican ticket. Reuben Herman of Baltimore told Mr. McKinley that the revolt of the sound money democrats in Maryland grows in force as the days go by and that it is spreading. Major McKinley received last night some advance sheets of the campaign text book. The book, which is a manual for political speakers and writers, will be ready for distribution in a week.

Out for Free Silver.

Owego, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Epenetus Howe, ex-member of the assembly from Tioga county and an ex-candidate for lieutenant governor on a greenback ticket, and who now resides in Candor, has announced his preference for free silver. He said in an interview that while he will not say that he will work for Bryan, he is for free silver as it is in line with his greenback belief.

FARR WAS TO BLAME

The Evidence Before the Coroner Against the Dead Egineer.

ALWAYS RELIABLE AND COMPETENT

His Disregard of the Danger Signals Not To Be Explained—Might Have Saved His Own Life by Jumping, But Stuck to His Post.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 5.—The inquest into the mea lown railroad collision will probably not be finished before to-morrow, but the testimony so far brought out seems to fix the direct responsibility for the accident upon the dead engineer of the Reading railroad express. Edward Farr. From the testimony, Farr's action in running at a speed of forty-eight miles an hour past a danger signal seems inexplicable, and, as the man is dead, the reason for it will probably never be known. Farr is given the reputation of having been an experienced engineer and a man of exceptionally high moral character, and not of a reckless or careless disposition. Only two weeks previous to the accident his train was signalled to stop at this very station, and be promptly brought his train under control.

Conductor Saw the Danger Signal.

One witness testified — Conductor Pinkerton of the express—yesterday afternoon that Farr saw the signal set at the crossing for he heard him give the regular signal in reply to notify the towerman that he had the signal—a blast of his whistle. Conductor Pinkerton intimated rather than charged that the signal was suddenly changed on Farr, as he heard the whistle blow furiously in a moment for what he took to be another signal blast. Still this witness was forced to admit that when he looked from the platform of the car the danger was set, and the posititon of the semaphor was corroborated by every other witness. It was shown that Farr made every effort to stop his train when he saw the coming collision and succeeded in reducing its speed from forty-five miles an hour to fifteen miles in a few hundred feet. He might have jumped after putting on the air brakes and reversing his engine, but he died with his hand on the lever of his engine.

Towerman's Straightforward Story.

Tower operator George F. Hauser, who set the signals, told a straightforward story as to the positions of the semaphores, and declared that he did not move the signals of the Reading line from the way they were set when he entered the tower, which was at danger, but only moved those on the West Jersey road to a clear track. Witnesses testified that it is usual to give a first class express right of way on railroads over such trains as the excursion, and that Hauser did an unusual thing in giving the latter train the right of way. Still as the danger signal was set for him Farr should have stopped even if it was usual for his train to get the right of way. Fireman Hollahan of the express testified that he did not see the signals until the train was within twenty-five feet of the distant signal and it was set at danger. He knew nothing of Farr's action, as he could not see him from his side of the cab across the top of the boiler, and saved his own life by running back to the tender. Engineer Greiner of the excursion train testified that he got a clear signal and went over the tracks at the crossing at the rate of thirty miles an hour. He did not notice the express particularly until it was nearly atop of his train as he was attentively watching for his signals and supposed the express would stop at the danger signal.

Money for the Cause of Cuba.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—It is reported that the Cuban junta in the United States this week raised a fund amounting to $375,000. Part of the money has been changed into gold, and is now on shipboard bound for Cuba where it will be placed in the hands of the officers commanding the insurgent army. The balance has been retained by the heads of the junta in Philadelphia and New York, who will use it in a way that will best serve the Cuban cause.

Honor for Canadian Artillerymen.

London, Aug. 5.—In the National Artillery association competition at Shoeburyness the visiting Canadian artillerymen yesterday afternoon defeated a picked British team in the contest for the London Fry challenge cup, which trophy has been held by the Canadians since the last contest in 1886. The contest was an exciting one and the Canadians are elated over their success.

New Foundland's Finances.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 5.—In the legislature last night the government supporters voted down a motion made by a member of the opposition asking Gov. Murray to cause the treasury officials to lay on the table a statement showing the exact amount of the customs revenue belonging to the fiscal year ending with June, 1896, to help swell the surplus.

200 to 1 Shot Landed.

St. Louis, Aug. 5.—Bob Millican, a plug that never won a race in even second class company, went to the post yesterday in the third race at 200 to 1, backed down from 500 to 1, and won easily from a fair field.

Weyler Becoming Desperate.

Havana, Aug. 5.—Captain General Weyler has extended the provisions of his recently issued decree relative to the seizure of filibustering expeditions so that the crews of filibustering vessels, as well as their captains, shall be exempt from all responsibility.

SPORTS

WEDNESDAY, August 5. Sun rises 5 a. m., sets 7:11 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:11 p. m. and 4 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The Y. M. C. A. League run will be held August 19th to Summit, instead of the 6th, as heretofore reported.

Max Honeyman and his cousin, Fred Zandt, started early this morning on their wheels for Jamesburg, Middlesex county. Max will remain at his cousin's home for a week or longer.

One hundred of the Bayonne Wheelmen, together with their friends, will have a bicycle spin to this city, weather permitting, on Sunday, August 30th, and they have ordered covers spread at W. J. Stevenson's on North avenue.

The scorcher is the pet abhorrence of everyone except himself and those of his ilk. He is the homeliest of all the natural products of ungraceful exercise. There is only one place where he looks well, and that is on the bridge of a police court. The Brooklyn bicycle squad alone gathered in some fifty fast riders last Sunday, and the wheeling policemen bid fair to make a record before long. This is the only way in which the pest can be crushed out. You can tell a scorcher as far as he can be seen. Nine out of ten of them can't do many "stunts" riding. The scorcher's great hold is on a crowded road, where he excites a feeling of disgust in the mind of the man or the woman who has to look at at him. He has every earmark of a man who is showing off, and saying to himself, "Just look at me. Whew! how I go. I could go faster if I wanted to. Ain't I great?"—Sun.

The great National race meet will take place in Louisville, Ky., next week. There will be six days of it. It is expected that more persons will watch the programme run off than have ever witnessed a previous National meet. The Meet Club, under whose auspices it will be held, has already made preparations to receive and take care of 25,000. The entertainment programme for the visitors outdoes anything before attempted, and the racing lists and prizes surpass in the same degree whatever has been done before. Smokers, receptions, watermelon feasts and runs into the country have already been provided for. As an object lesson for the watermelon feast a trainload of watermelons, over 3,000, has already been ordered. The menu for the two smokers calls for 5,000 cob pipes, ten bushels of tobacco, 100 gallons of punch, 10,000 sandwiches, scores of boxes of crackers and cakes, besides much else in the drinking and eating line.

INS AND OUTS.

The St. Mary's Cadets defeated Joe Farley's Badgers on the Y. M. C. A. grounds yesterday by a score of 16 to 9. The battery for the former was Mack and Taylor, and for the latter Randolph and Hatchett.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

John Petrie, of East Sixth street, spent yesterday out-of-town fishing.

Prof. George Worth, of Montreal College, who has been visiting the family of John Goff, of West Third street, left town this morning on a short business trip.

Married Near High Noon.

Richard Perrine, of East Fifth street, and Miss Euphemia Mattox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Robert Mattox, of Webster place, were married at noon today. The ceremony took place in City Judge DeMeza's private reception room. The witnesses were ex-City Judge Wm. R Codington and Wm. Stimpson, the latter a representative of the News.

Trial Postponed.

The examination of James Williams on charge of committing burglary in Dealaman's grocery store at Dunellen, was adjourned this morning in the Middlesex county court until Sept. 2d, owing to the absence of one of th important witnesses.

remarked the Mayor to Mr. Kyte.

By this time the Sheriff had partially regained his composure and he made an appeal to the effect that it was very late when he left home, that he intended to be back long before dark, but was delayed at the home of Councilman McKown on official business. He considered this ample mitigation for exemption from any fine.

"Here too," chimed in the Assessor, "I was on official business."

The Mayor gave the matter a little more thought and then he changed his decision by revoking the fines of both, and warning them that if they were ever guilty of such violations again they would be punished to the fullest extent of the law.

Sheriff Kyte avers that he will go to the seashore for a month to escape the chiding which he is expecting from his constituents. The Assessor will stay home and live down the awful official record.

A Woman's Heart.

Myers—Do you think Angie loves me?

Tomson—Well, I'll tell you how you can find out. You go across the room and begin to flirt with Miss Purpleboom. If Angie gets mad and looks daggers at you, you might as well hang up your fiddle—it's all on the surface; but if she appears as calm as a June morning and smiles like an angel, her heart is yours. Try it and I'll watch.—Bay City Chat.

A Wonderful Memory.

"I always like to see little children. They remind me of the day when I was a boy myself," said Judge Peterby to Miss Elderly, an aged maiden lady.

"Can you remember as far back as that?" asked Miss Elderly, very sarcastically.

"Yes, indeed. I have a wonderful memory, Miss Elderly. Why, I even remember seeing you when you were only 18 years old," replied the judge.—Texas Sifter.

Sure to Please.

"I don't see how you design all those lovely suits for little boys," gushed the enthusiastic woman.

"It is easy enough," said the ladies' and children's tailor. "I try them on my own boy. If the suit makes him utterly miserable I know I have scored another success with the mothers."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Decision Reversed.

"Wasn't that young Mr. Tiff who left the house as I came in?" asked the judge of his eldest daughter.

"Yes, papa."

"Did I not issue an injunction against his coming here any more?"

"Yes, papa; but he appealed to a higher court, and mamma reversed your decision."—Tit-Bits.

The Annoyance.

"I hope," said Willie Wishington, as he prepared to smoke, "that cigarettes do not annoy you."

"Oh, no," Miss Cayenne replied; "cigarettes do not annoy me. But the people who smoke them usually do, very much."—Washington Star.

Inspector Pangborn, of the Borough Health Board, is after scavengers who insist on dumping their stuff this side of what is called the dead line. Mr. Pangborn says the the practice must be stopped.

No "Flim Flam" Game
To Be Worked on Early Purchasers of
The Spalding Bicycle

After the adoption of our 1896 model and a careful estimate of the cost of manufacture, we placed the price on the Spalding Bicycle at $100. The price is now $100 and will continue at $100 throughout the season, no matter what other manufacturers may do.

We don't believe it is fair, honest or good business policy to sell a standard article like the Spalding Bicycle at one price in May and reduce its value in June by a material reduction in price. As a matter of common fairness to early purchasers of Spalding Bicycles and as an evidence of good faith on our part we will, in case of reduction in price during the season, send a rebate check to every purchaser of a Spalding Bicycle of the amount of any such reduction that may be made by us during the season This is our meaning of a

GUARANTEE OF PRICE.

Ride the Spalding and you will be happy, contented and assured that you will not be "flim-flammed" in price or quality.

PLAINFIELDERS WHO WANT $500 DAMAGES FOR THE ACCIDENT.

The Party Were Out Fishing and Were Dragged, at the Peril of Their Lives, Through the Water for Nearly a Mile.

What promises to be a very interesting lawsuit has just been started by Counsellor William K. McClure, into whose hands it has been placed. Last Saturday a party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Marshall, James Stryker, A. A Stryker Robert Garvey and Frank Manchester, of this city, went to South Amboy fishing. They all had excellent luck fishing and by the middle of the afternoon they had captured about 250 porgies. They had an oyster boat which was anchored outside of the course of the larger boats. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon, a large two-mast schooner manned by an Italian crew, and owned by Sayer & Fisher, of Sayerville, came along under full sail. The schooner was out of its course and as a result struck the oyster boat, containing the Plainfielders, on the broadside. The two boats hooked and the oyster boat was carried nearly three-fourths of a mile before it could be unfastened. In the meantime the Plainfielders were thoroughly frightened and lost several articles of value. Mrs. Marshall was nearly thrown into the water and the whole party came within an ace of drowning. For this reason a suit has been brought for damages against Sayre & Fisher for $500. The case will come up in September, and the result will be watched with considerable interest by a number of people. The Plainfield party expect to make another fishing trip Saturday and they look for better luck, and hope that they will meet with no accidents.

Where Breezes Blow.

The members of St. Mary's church and Sunday-school and their friends could not have selected a more perfect day for their annual outing to Glen Island. It required thirteen cars to convey the large crowd to New York where they will board the steamboat Laura M. Starin. They will undoubtedly have a delightful sail to the island and back, and their stay at the later place will probably be one of pleasure. The committee in charge arranged every detail for a successful day and their efforts have already been rewarded.

Tramp Left in a Hurry.

One of a couple of tramps in Westfield yesterday went to the house of Mrs. Frazee and asked her if she wanted the front door painted She replied that she did not, and then the tramp said that he would not paint the door if she would pay him fifty cents, otherwise he would paint it. He had an old brush and a pot of green paint. Mrs. Frazee ordered him away and refused to pay him. The tramp started to paint the door, and Mrs. Frazee went to the back yard and let loose a dog. The tramp left in a hurry.

Not as Bad as Pictured.

The Plainfield Board of Education is wrestling with a school janitorship vacancy. Every member of the board and every prominent citizen of the town appears to have a candidate for the position. The contest, for the time being, overshadows everything else in Plainfield and is bringing out as much feeling and eloquence as the silver controversy. Plainfield always was a great place for political warfare and it is keeping up its reputation.—World.

Looks Like a Cow Path.

At a meeting of the City Council, held a year ago this month, petitions were presented praying for better sidewalks on East Front street, between Richmond street and Farragut avenue. The matter was referred to the proper committee, reported favorably upon and it went into effect in due course of time. But the provisions of the ordinance have never been faithfully carried out, and today the southeast side of the street more resembles a cow path than a walk in the swell section of the city.

Overcome by the Heat.

Old "Hugh Mid" has been shedding his rays on Plainfield people promiscuously during the last few days. Yesterday afternoon George Cristersen, who is employed by M. Udahl, and who was working about the shrubery on A. D. Thompson's Netherwood farm, was overcome by the heat and had to be taken home. Medical restoratives were administered, and today the patient is up and around, although not yet out of danger.

It doesn't matter much whether sick headache, billiousness, indigestion and constipation are caused by neglect or by unavoidable circumstances; DeWitt's Little Early Risers will speedily cure them all. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

A HORSE'S PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

Stepped on a Rolling Stone and Sprained His Ankle and Shoulder.

A peculiar accident happened to Coddington & Ackerman's horse yesterday afternoon on Somerset street, near Craig place. The horse was in charge of Henry Ackerman one of the firm, and suddenly stepped on a large stone which caused the animal to stumble. It was noticed immediately that the left fore leg was useless. Mr. Ackerman examined the leg and learned that the ankle was sprained, as well as the shoulder. With a great deal of difficulty the horse was taken to H. J. Martin's blacksmith shop where it was kept over night. Today the animal was removed to the owners' barn and medical aid was called. There seems to be some doubt as to whether the horse will recover from the injury.

Nothing Wrong but the Spelling.

One of the members of the Asbestos Club, who have quarters in the Love building, says that one of the older members was authorized and empowered to purchase a black-board whereon could be announced the result of the next election, and until then for the posting of political gossip, such as "16 to 1," etc. The board, three feet square, was bought, lettered and delivered yesterday, and the top line on it reads, "Bullitin." Some of the members of the culb took exception to the heading, and one in particular remarked: "Bully-Tin! why, dang it, I'd rather have sheet iron."

Many Excursions Today.

Today has been a very busy one for the Central Railroad Company, likewise for the storekeepers at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove. This morning two long and heavily loaded excursion trains passed through the city from Trenton. Another was from Flemington and still another train rolled away from Fanwood and Westfield, carrying hundreds of excursionists to this favorite seaside resort. St. Mary's church excursion also conveyed some eleven carloads to Glen Island.

Paid Their Bills.

The captain and staff officers of the original Salvation Army in this city were given a notice on January 1 to the effect that they must vacate their quarters in the Elkwood building within three months, because there was a deficiency in the necessary amount of rent. They were also, it is said, behind with the janitor's fees. Money was forthcoming from headquarters, however, and recently Mr. Boice received a $50 check from that source, so the army is all right for a time at least.

Sweet Singer and Pleasant Speaker.

Miss. Kathryn Krymer, contralto soloist of the choir of Dr. Madison C. Peters' church, New York city, will render vocal solos at the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday at 4:15 p. m. The meeting will be addressed by Rev. James F. Riggs. D. D., of New Brunswick. The hall in which the Sunday afternoon meetings are held is cool and comfortable. Iced lemonade is provided for those who attend the meetings.

Released From Jail.

George Campbell, formerly agent for Barnum & Bailey's Circus, was released from the Union County Jail, where he had been held on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree. Campbell was arrested at Lyons Farms some days ago to await the action of the New York authorities, who alleged that he was a fugitive from justice.

Drake Opera House to Be Sold.

The Drake Opera House, Elizabeth, will be sold by Sheriff Keefe at auction next Wednesday to satisfy a mortgage of $52,000 held on the property by the Prudential Insurance Company. The building cost nearly $100,000. The probability is that a syndicate will be formed to buy in the property.

Middlesex Board of Election.

The Middlesex County Board of Election met yesterday morning in the Court House. All the four members were present. The Board formed an organization by electing Judge Brown chairman and W. V. Spader secretary. The Board then adjourned to meet on Wednesday, September 2d.

New Building Sites.

The farm of the late James H. Partridge, extending from Orchard street, Cranford, nearly to Garwood, has been divided into building sites by the construction of three new streets, Spring Garden street, Estelle place and Second avenue.

—Unity Lodge, K. of P., met in the Elkwood building last evening and transacted only routine business.

The whole system is drained and undermined by indolent ulcers and open sores. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve speedily heals them. It is the best pile cure known. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

MANY PEOPLE YOU KNOW

SOME ARE COMING AND SOME ARE GOING FOR THE SUMMER.

The Warm Summer Weather Drive People to Country, Seashore and Mountain With the Hope of Recuperating.

F. E. Kinsman, of this city, has returned from a business trip to Boston.

Fred Casper, of East Front street, is again confined to bed with rheumatism.

A. D. Cook and family, of East Seventh street, are stopping at Mount Pocono, Pa.

Charles L. Case, of Central avenue, returned home yesterday from Narragansett Pier.

Miss Addie Lewis, of 148 Grove street, has gone to Clinton for a two weeks' vacation.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, of Kansas, who have been visiting in town, left today to spend one month at Asbury Park.

Daniel McCarthy, of Third street and Central avenue, is stopping at the Americus, Atlantic Highlands.

Mrs. E. P. Thorn has gone to Babylon, L. I., where she will spend two weeks visiting Mrs. Augustus Pitou.

Harry Baglan, of the borough, started today for Philadelphia, Baltimore and the South on a business trip.

Miss Kate Mulhearn, of West Fifth street, has returned after month's vacation spent at her old home in Pennsylvania.

Amos Vail, alias "Friday," was in town this morning looking after his blackberry and huckleberry crop, which he has gathered.

Samuel Dreier and daughter, of Front street and Madison avenue, are at home again after a brief stay in New York, on the east side.

Louis Kuntz and Henry Wickser, of East Front street, rode their wheels to Metuchen and other near-by towns and reached home at 1:30 a. m.

Cyrus E. and Willis R. Moore, of New street, have gone to Asbury Park for two weeks. Their stopping place will be at the Grand Central Hotel.

Counselor John H. Van Winkle and son, John H., Jr., go to the Grand Avenue Hotel, Asbury Park, on Saturday for the remainder of the month.

The many Plainfield friends of Mrs. Frank Van Winkle will learn with regret regarding her severe illness at her home in East Grange.

James Daley and William Townley, of the Fire Department, went on the Catholic excursion today. Abner Bartlett and James Bailey are doing duty in their place.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin and family, who have been spending the summer with Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Townsend, of Coddington avenue, left today for their home in Brooklyn.

Tieman Horn, of the United States Army, has been transferred from Fort Reilley, Kan., to Fortress Monroe. Mr. Horn and wife are now guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sattels, of East Sixth street.

Through the agency of E. C. Mulford and Son, John R Benedict and family of Brooklyn have leased Mrs. E. A. Mosher's house at 444 West Fifth street, which they will occupy on and after September 1.

Charles W. Tallman, of Maple avenue, North Plainfield, took a spin on the steamer Grand Republic, up the Hudson, last evening. He went simply on a pleasure trip, and to divert his attention from business cares.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Higgings, of Howard street, held a sort of family re union at their home last evening. Relatives and friends to the extent of thirteen were present and spent the evening in singing, dancing and other harmless amusements.

Mrs. S. P. Mulford and son Harold, accompanied by Mrs. Mulford's mother, Mrs. Louis Schmitt, and her sister, Mrs. Herbert Winslow, all of New York City, went yesterday to the Mountain View Inn, where they will remain for an indefinite period.

Through the magnaminity of the Central Railroad Company, Mrs. S. A. Meader, the efficient station agent at the Clinton Avenue station, is enjoying a two-weeks vacation at Cayuga Lake Hotel, Shelldrake, N. Y. She left yesterday. The company placed a man in her position during her absence.

Miss Mary Anderson, with her mother, Mrs. J. L. Anderson, of West Front street, are stopping at the Mountain Park Inn, where they have gone for the benefit of Miss Anderson's health. Her improvement is, however, unfortunately slow, and last night her condition was so serious that Rev. Father Millerwas summoned to prescribe the sacred rites of the church.

—The Street Commissioner has a force of men at work trimming the trees along East Front street. This is an essential duty and should have been attended to ere this. In many places the trees form a perfect arch over the street, and after a rain, with no penetration of the sun, water lays stagnant in the gutters.

—Superintendent John Adleman, of the street railway service, reports that the company will soon put in a culvert between the tracks near and under the Watchung avenue railroad bridge. The proposed culvert will be eighteen inches in diameter and is designed to carry off water which usually backs up and flood the track, gutters and sidewalks at that point.

VOLUNTEERS COMING.

Old Time Fire Laddies to Have a Festive Time in This City.

Ex-Chief Bates, George Nott and Isaac Bush, a committee from the New York Volunteer Firemen's Association, stopped in Plainfield last evening, on their way home from Easton, Pa., where they had been to arrange for their Association their attendance at the centeninal celebration of the Easton association the first week in October. The committee held a conference with the Exempt Firemen's Association of this city, and arranged for the appearance of the New York Volunteers in this city, Saturday, October 3d, on their way back from Easton.

There will probably be 150 visitors, and they will be the guests of the Exempt Association. There will probably be a parade and an exhibition of some kind during the day. The Exempt Firemen's Association will arrange all details for the event which will be a memorable one.

She Put Five Men to Flight.

A woman named Gregory, who lives between Elizabeth and Rahway, went to her door last Tuesday afternoon and found five tramps, who demanded something to eat. She closed the door, and going to a window, told the men they would have to go elsewhere, unless they came to the house one at a time and took turns at her table. They declined to agree to this arrangement, and swore that they would batter in the door if she did not comply with their wish. The woman then replied that she had three dogs in the house, a rifle and two pistols, and that she would shoot if the men did not leave the place. She at once released a bulldog, and when the fellows saw it coming out the door they fled to the woods.

Struck With an Oak Plank.

About 7 o'clock last Monday night there was a row on Spring street in Westfield. As a result, Mary Eramo is unconscious. Just how the disturbance started could not be learned. It was charged that Tony Long struck the Eramo woman on the head with an oak plank. The man was arrested by Officer Marsh and Dr. Cooper was called to attend the woman. Long was committed to the county jail yesterday morning by Judge Collins to await the result of the woman's injuries.

Just What The Press Advocated.

Some time ago The Press advocated the erection of small waiting rooms at the several terminals of the street railway, and evidently acting under the suggestion, the company has erected a neat and substantial waiting room for passengers at the Somerset street terminus near the mountains. "Billy" Brokaw did the carpenter work, and this morning the new station was thrown open for the reception of passengers.

To Make Electrical Machinery.

The Imperial Electric Company of Westfield filed articles of incorporation yesterday with the Clerk of Union county. The company's capital is $60,000 and the incorporators are John Linder, of Brooklyn; W. B. Elliott and J. W. Eskhorn, of Westfield. The company will make electrical machinery and electrical supplies. The factory will be at Westfield.

Caught Her Hand in the Machine.

Miss Ida Hedden, of Kensington avenue, accidently caught her left hand in the machinery at the carpet works, where she was employed, yesterday, and had a finger or two so badly lacerated that it was found necessary to take her in a carriage to Dr. Jenkins' office, where the wounds were fixed up.

Look at This.

The next excursion to Asbury Park will be the Crescent Avenue Sabbath-school, accompanied by the St. Stephens and Church of the Redeemer, Episcopal and Bethel chapel schools, on Tuesday, August 11th, leaving Plainfield at 8 o'clock sharp, stopping at Netherwood and Long Branch.

Dinner on the Mountain.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. French entertained the following party at dinner at Mountain Park Inn last evening: Rev. and Mrs. Charles R. Mitchell, Rev. and Mrs. George H. Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. French, Miss Hattie French and Elston M. French.

An Ardent Bryan Man.

Clarence Ladd-Davis, of New York, is the guest of his brother in-law Col. Julian Scott, the artist. Mr. Davis is an ardent supporter of Bryan and Sewell and will probably address the people of Plainfield during the campaign.

Miss Watters, of Clinton avenue, is sojourning at Asbury Park.

NOT COMING THIS WAY.

TROLLEY COMPANY ABANDON ITS ROUTE TO THIS CITY.

The Capitalists Declare That They Will Not Build on the South Side of the Central Track—That Ends All Talk.

For some time there has been talk of a trolley road to Plainfield, to connect the systems in that city and it has been rumored on several occasions that the capitalists of the Consolidated Traction Company would be the builders and operators of the proposed new line.

When the matter of route was broached it was found that so much opposition had developed to running the line on the county road—Westfield avenue—that the only route feasible would be along the South side of the Central Railroad tracks. A number of property owners were interested in getting the route located along the south side in order to develop their lands.

The proposition to build a trolley line between this city and Westfield has been considered for some time by the officials of the traction company. The idea was to connect the Plainfield system with that in this city, and thereby establish connection with the systems in Newark and Jersey City. The Plainfield system is owned by the Rikers, capitalists of Newark, and they intend to extend their line as far as Westfield. It was in that borough that the two systems were to connect.

Yesterday John D. Crimmins, the well-known capitalist, and B. M. Shanley, the rich contractor, visited this city for the purpose of looking over the proposed route between here and Westfield. They were met by John W. Whelan, who escorted them over the territory. The party drove in a large carriage.

They went out West Jersey street, then through Jersey avenue to Roselle, and still along the south side of the Jersey Central through Cranford and Westfield, carefully noting the various towns, and the general lay of the country. All of the practical questions concerning the establishment of the proposed line were carefully considered.

When they had visited the entire district, Mr. Crimmins stated that positively and absolutely the traction company would not build a line on the south side of the Central railroad, and further stated that anybody who wanted to might go aboad, as the traction company was positively out of the field.

This decision was reached, Mr. Crimmins announced, because of the bad condition of the streets on the south side, along the proposed route.

Then the party took another drive over the route that has been talked of for a trolley line between this city and Rahway. The object of such a line would be to connect the traction companys system with the Rahway road that runs down through Woodbridge to Boynton Beach.

While such a connecting road might be profitable in time, Mr. Crimmins expressed himself as not favorably impressed with the scheme, and the traction company will not go into it, at least not at present.—Elizabeth Journal.

An Exciting Runaway.

An exciting runaway occurred on Somerset street last evening about 6:30. The rig belonged to Peter Rose, of Netherwood Farm, and he and his family had stopped on Somerset street to make a call. They were preparing to go home and Mr. Rose was lifting his little girl into the front part of the wagon. While doing this the horse started on a lively run up Somerset street. John Kitchen saw the runaway and attempted to catch the horse, but it remained for William Morrison to perform the brave act. The animal was stopped near Coddington avenue, and not the slightest damage resulted.

Justice Newcorn's Court.

The contract cases of Griffen against James; Griffen against Voorhees; Griffen against Drake, and Griffen against Beerbower, were tried in Justice Newcorn's court yesterday, and judgment was rendered the plaintiff in each case. The cases of Griffen against McKee, and Griffen against Reed, were adjourned one month.

Oscar Terry, of East Front street, who is in the employ of Fred Endress, is confined to his home by illness, and Edward Mundy is taking his place until he recovers.

Theories of cure may be discussed at length by physicians, but the sufferers want quick relief; and One Minute Cough Cure will give it to them. A safe cure for children. It is "the only harmless remedy that produces immediate results." For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

GOLD MEN UNDECIDED

May Decide Not To Nominate a Third Ticket.

MEET AT INDIANAPOLIS TO-MORROW

About Three Hundred Prominent Democrats Expected To Be Present—Cities Mentioned as Place for Convention If It Is Decided To Hold One.

Indianapolis, Aug. 6.—The provisional national committee of the sound money democracy which is to decide the question of calling a convention to adopt a new platform and nominate a presidential ticket will meet here to-morrow. About 300 prominent democrats are expected to be present and arrangements for their entertainment have already been made. The declaration of Bourke Cockran against another ticket and the silence of President Cleveland and his cabinet have tended to create a divided sentiment as to the advisability of another nomination and the opinion of some of the leaders of the movement is that there is no certainty of the representatives of thirty-six or more states who will be at the conference to-morrow joining unanimously in a call for a national convention which will include a nomination for president and vice-president. Hon. Allen C. McDermott of Belmar, N. J., who made a valiant fight for gold in the Chicago convention, wrote the committee in Chicago that he thoroughly supported the movement and that New Jersey would be fully represented at the conference, adding that New Jersey's electoral vote would not be for Bryan.

Places Mentioned for the Convention.

It has not been decided where the convention will be held, if it is decided to hold one. It is claimed that a majority of the members favor Chicago, but it is not likely they will vote to send the convention there unless they are given assurance that the people of that city are willing to defray the expenses of the gathering. Minneapolis, Detriot, Indianapolis, Louisville and Cincinnati will also be considered for the honor. It is estimated that $10,000 will cover all the expenses of the convention. This amount will be sufficient to pay the rent of the hall and the expenses of the committee on arrangements, together with the cost of music, printing and decorations. It is not expected that in this particular instances the city securing the convention will be asked to pay all bills, as was done at the other conventions.

Chicago Headquarters Closed.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—The headquarters of the national executive committee of the democratic gold movement, which has been maintained at the Palmer house since the sound money movement was started, was closed last night. The records, books and other documents will be sent to Indianapolis to-day and there be transferred to the national committee. The executive committee as at present organized will cease to exist after to-morrow. Its purpose has been accomplished, and the future control of the gold movement will be in the hands of the larger organization. Mr. Robbins and his associates are not sorry to be relieved of the great labors they have been supporting since this movement started. As soon as the national committee has called a convention, in all probability, and certainly as soon as the convention has been held, headquarters will be established permanently in Chicago. There is already some talk of asking Bourke Cockran of New York to act as chairman of the national convention, and an effort will be made to secure his consent.

HE FELL 1,000 FEET.

Young Abbott Was an Enthusiastic and Experienced Mountain Climber.

Boston, Aug. 6.—Phillip S. Abbott, news of whose sad death on Tuesday by falling over a precipice while mountain climbing, was received from Winnipeg, Man., was only 22 years old and well known in Boston. He resided in Milwaukee, Wis., and was assistant attorney for the Wisconsin Central railroad. He was an enthusiastic and experienced mountain climber. Mr. Abbott was a son of president Edwin H. Abbott of the Wisconsin Central railroad and had his office in Milwaukee. President Abbott lives in Cambridge. Complete details of the sad accident have not yet been received. One of the dispatches from Winnipeg said that a party of Americans headed by Prof. Fay of Yale college were mountain climbing near Lake Louise, when one of the party, Mr. Abbott, missed his footing and fell over a precipice to the bottom of the canon, 1,000 feet below and was dashed to pieces. His companions could see his body lying on a rocky projection of the mountain, but were unable to reach it.

A Female Acrobat Drowned.

Baltimore, Aug. 6.—Miss Frances Thurman (Mlle. Zoe) a professional acrobat, was drowned last evening at Curtis Bay, a resort a few miles from this city. Miss Thurman's act was to take a strap in her teeth and stride 350 feet on a steel cable extending from a tower in the river to the shore. The tower collapsed when half the distance was traversed, and the woman sank before assistance could reach her. Miss Thurman's home was at Narrowsburgh, N. Y. She was 34 years old, and had been an acrobat since early childhood.

Resignation of the Patriarch.

Constantinople, Aug. 6.—The Armenian patriarch has resigned, and his resignation has been accepted by the sultan. The office will be temporarily filled.

THE CHICAGO FAILURE.

Arranging a Settlement of the Moore Brothers' Affair—May Pull Through.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—What little excitement was occasioned by the failure of the Moore Brothers has completely died out. The only trading in stocks that is being done in Chicago now is through the New York market. Not even curb prices are made for local securities. No one is at present in a position to say just when the exchange will be reopened. President Jameson says that all that can be said in regard to the matter is that there will be no more sessions until the trouble which caused the closing of the exchange is completely straightened out. W. H. Moore, who has been managing the eastern end of the speculative deal in the stocks of the Diamond Match and New York Biscuit companies, has returned home and is assisting in the work of straightening out the affairs of concern. He said that he believed the embarrassment would prove to be only temporary, and that with the resources which were now in sight Moore Brothers ought to be able to pull through and arrange a satisfactory settlement with their creditors. A cable dispatch from President Barber of the Diamond Match company has been received, stating that he and Director Smith will not return to this country at present. A number of important deals are pending in Europe, and it will be impossible for them to leave for some time without running a risk of injuring the interests of the company. A meeting of the governing committee of the stock exchange yesterday afternoon to receive a statement from the Moores as to the condition of their affairs was adjourned until this afternoon as the statement was not completed. The matter of arranging a settlement has been delegated by the governing committee to a sub-committee composed of President Jameson of the exchange, C. C. Yoe, A. M. Day and P. A. Valentine, representing P. D. Armour. This committee has had a number of conferences with bankers and the Moores, but nothing definite has yet been accomplished. It is very likely that a syndicate will be organized to underwrite the stock at a price to be determined upon. This price, in the opinion of most persons at all familiar with the situation, will not be better than 165, and may be marked down to 150.

LI HUNG VISITS THE QUEEN.

Flattering Attention Shown the Aged Chinese Statesman in England.

London, Aug. 6.—Li Hung Chang, as the guest of the nation, is receiving flattering attention during his stay in England. The aged Chinese statesman and his suite went by special train yesterday to Portsmouth to cross the Solent to the Isle of Wight and visit the queen at Osborne. He was received at Portsmouth by a number of distinguished naval officers and others, and a salute of nineteen guns was fired when he boarded the royal yacht Alberta, which was in waiting. Upon leaving Portsmouth the yacht made a detour and gave him a view of the large fleet of warships assembled there, and also the fleet of pleasure craft. The Chinese statesman was saluted by the fleet and continued on his way to Trinity wharf, Cowes, where he was received by the Prince of Wales, who escorted him to Osborne. The Marquis of Salisbury, who presented Li Hung Chang to the queen, had preceded the Chinese envoy to the Isle of Wight.

Li Hung's First Secretary.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 6.—Won On Pong, first secretary of Li Hung Chang, accompanied by an interpreter and body servant, who arrived in this city Tuesday night from Victoria, has left for San Francisco from which place he will go direct to Washington. His title is "military second degree." He is nearly six feet tall and weighs about 200 pounds.

Musicale at the McKinley Residence.

Canton, O., Aug. 6.—Major and Mrs. McKinley gave a musicale last evening. About sixty of their friends were present.

Saving His Capital.

"You're a goose!" angrily exclaimed a Dallas man to his wife, who continually chided him about his excessive extravagance. "You do nothing but cackle, cackle, cackle all the time."

"Yes, dear," she sweetly replied, "but you must not forget that the cackling of geese saved the capital of Rome, and if cackling can save your capital, I'm going to keep it up."

And she did.—Texas Sifter.

He Was Used to It.

"Were you ever in a cyclone?" asked a Dallas man of a friend who had just returned from a trip east.

"I should say I was. I was in St. Louis when it struck that town. I was eating dinner when the breeze came along and turned the house upside down."

"What did you think of it?"

"Think? I thought my wife had lost her temper again."—Texas Sifter.

An Earnest Plea.

Oh, give me not the "marble heart,"
Nor yet the "icy mitt,"
Nor treat me to the "frigid fist,"
Nor answer me with "nit."
Don't make me "stand upon my head,"
Nor "t'row me in the air,"
Nor "pass me up," nor "turn me down,"
Nor give the "glassy glare."
But if you must reject my suit,
Why please to let me know
The sorrow of my lonely fate,
By simply saying: "No"
—Detroit News.

No Doubt of It.

"Hopeless, utterly hopeless," said the keeper, as he opened the door and let the visitors see a man whose face wore a smile of triumph.

"He thinks he has invented a bicycle lamp that will stay lit."

The visitors shuddered and passed on to another room, where they found a man who was trying to write a currency plank for a party platform.—Truth.

Wrangling Again.

Brooks—I have been told that a man learning to swim should imitate as closely as possible the motions of a frog.

Rivers—I don't know. Did you ever see an otter swimming?

"Yes."

"Well, that's the way you otter swim."—Chicago Tribune.

Paternal Solicitude.

Daughter—This piano is really my very own, isn't it, pa?

Pa—Yes, my dear.

"And when I marry I can take it with me, can I?"

"Certainly, my child; but don't tell anyone. It might spoil your chances."—Tit-Bits.

Surprising.

Banner—The foreigners are getting an awful hold in this country.

Crosby—They are, indeed. Why, I read over a list of men naturalized by the court yesterday, and, by thunder every one of them was a foreigner.—Philadelphia North American.

In Every One's Way.

Hojack—You may talk about Jaysmith all you please, but he's all right in his way.

Tomdik—My experience with him is that he is always right in some one else's way.—N. Y. World.

Plenty of Warmth.

Tom—So you've been married a year! Now, say, Gus, honest Injun, does your wife greet you as warmly as she did at first?

Gus—Warmly? She fires up every time I open my mouth.—N. Y. Weekly

A Radical Treatment.

"You have been living too high," said the physician. "You'll have to stop it."

"I realize that," was the reply. "That's why I sent for you. Now I won't be able to afford it."—Washington Star.

Perfectly Plain.

Tired Tatters—Yes, sir, pard, it pays ter be honest.

Weary Wraggles—I know, now, Tatters, why ye're so durn poor.—Louisville Truth.

Knows Only One.

Friend—Your wife seems like a different woman when she is speaking.

Tompkins—So? I'm afraid I don't know the other.—Town Topics.

The Anglers' Paradise.

"Was it a good place to fish where you were?"

"First-class; every other shop in town had fish to sell."—Chicago Record.

Depression of Spirits

so common in summer-time, accompanied by loss of energy, lack of thought-power, means a deficient supply of nourishment. The vital force is lost. It isn't a question of muscle and sinew, but of resistance and endurance. At any age but especially in youth, it involves the risk of lung disease. Loss of flesh and a cough are threatening signs.

SCOTT'S Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with the Hypophosphites, meets these cases perfectly. It tones up, fattens and strengthens.

CAME TO IN A GRAVE

A Hypnotic Subject Makes Things Lively Under Ground.

HE WAS VERY HASTILY DUG UP

Objected to the Experiment Being Repeated, But the Hypnotist Placed Him Under Control and He Is Again Buried.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 6.—Prof. Boone, a well-known hypnotist, put J. J. Wyatt under his mysterious influence Tuesday last, and announced that he would bury his subject and revive him Friday, after an interment of three days. Wyatt had previously consented to the arrangement, and burial took place at Fairview park Tuesday night at 10:30, a tube being passed down to where he lay. He was buried four feet under the ground and a guard was placed at the "grave." Shorly before noon yesterday Wyatt came out from under the influence and realizing his situation began screaming like a wild man. He was hurriedly dug up and it was sometime before he could be cooled down. He protested against a second interment, but Professor Boone soon got him under control and Wyatt was again put down in the earth. The experiment is attracting much attention.

RESCUE OF THE DOG.

A Big Newfoundland Taken from a Derelict in Midocean.

New York, Aug. 6.—The German oil tank steamer Mannheim in port here had an unusual incident during the voyage over. About 6 p. m. on July 27 in midocean a bark apparently sinking and flying signals of distress was sighted. Capt. Ockelmann approached the derelict as closely as he could and sailed around her several times, blowing the steam-whistle continually, but no signs of life at first appeared. Finally a large black dog was seen rushing frantically about the deck and barking in great excitement. Although there was a dangerous sea running, Capt. Ockelmann decided to board the bark and ascertain some definite particulars about her. He could make out her name to be Ernest and that she was German. Accordingly a boat was lowered and rowed close to the bark. Taking advantage of a favoring lurch of the vessel, the mate of the Mannheim managed to scramble upon her deck and ran into the cabin to ascertain if there was anybody left on board. It was evident that the vessel had been but lately abandoned, and there were on hand evidences of a hasty departure. There was no sign of life visible except the big black dog, who kept up a joyful barking and jumped around the mate in the most eager manner. As the vessel was doomed, there being nearly ten feet of water in the hold, the mate decided to set fire to her so that she might not become a menace to navigation, as she lay directly in the path of the transatlantic liners. A huge fire was built in the after-cabin, and picking up the ship's papers and calling to the black dog the mate made his way over the side and into the lifeboat accompanied by the dog, that whined its anxiety. The last seen of the Ernst a mass of flames was pouring out of the companion hatches of the after-cabin. On arrival in quarantine here Capt. Ockelmann was much interested to learn that the crew of the bark had been rescued by the French liner La Bourgogne earlier on the same day on which he boarded her. The dog, a very intelligent Newfoundland, was running around the Manheim's decks apparently happy and contented.

Robbed His Employers.

Boston, Aug. 6.—James B. Walker, 22 years old, is under arrest charged with the embezzlement of nearly $2,000 from the Weeks & Potter Co. of No. 360 Washington street, by whom he was employed as assistant cashier. Walker admitted his guilt. A small salary and expensive habits were the cause of the young man's downfall, although he has managed to put in savings banks about $1,000 of his ill-gotten gains. Walker is single.

FIELD OF POLITICS

Free Silver Sentiment Said To Be Growing in Pennsylvania.

DEMOCRATS EXPECT BIG GAINS

Congressman Mercer Says Nebraska Populists Are Opposed to Bryan on Account of His Free Trade Views—Hanna To Stop over in Philadelphia.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Chauncey F. Black and Mr. Kerr, ex-clerk of the house of representatives, both distinguished democrats of Pennsylvania, are claiming that the democrats will have at least eight of the congressional districts in that state after the next election, instead of the two now represented by democrats in the Fifty-fourth congress. The districts thus claimed are the thirteenth, eighth, twenty-fourth, third, seventeenth, nineteenth and the Scranton district. Both these gentlemen assert that the growth of the free silver sentiment is something unprecedented and all the mining sections of the state will give a support to the democratic ticket hitherto unheard of in the history of the politics of Pennsylvania.

Says Populists Are for Protection.

Representative Mercer, secretary of the republican congressional campaign committee, who returned yesterday from Cape May, after going over his accumulated mail said: "You would probably not believe it unless you understood the populists of Nebraska as I do, but the fact is that a very vigorous fight is being waged against Mr. Bryan by the populists on the protection question alone. A great many letters have reached here during my absence appealing for protective tariff literature. Many of these letters have come from populists whom I know and they are all opposing Bryan on account of his free trade proclivities. The people of Nebraska believe in protection and I believe that that issue will become dominant before long. It certainly will as soon as the people get over the spell which has been thrown over them by the free silver campaign that has been inaugurated with such gusto in some sections of the west. The fact that Mr. Bryan represents a free trade sentiment is not helping his cause even among those who favor him on account of his monetary views. It is a long time before election day and many changes will come before then. Every day sees the silver craze growing less and less brilliant in the west."

National Prohibition Nominations.

Alliance, O., Aug. 6.—Charles E. Bentley of Lincoln, Neb., and James H. Southgate of Durham, N. C., have filed their letters of acceptance of the national prohibition party's nominations for president and vice-president respectively. Mr. Bentley strongly urges the cause of prohibition and holds that suffrage, without distinction of sex, is a cardinal principal of the party. He then declares that the party's policy is opposed to the national banking system, and favors government ownership of national monopolies, the public school system, and a juster and more equal distribution of wealth. He denounces the Wilson and McKinley tariffs as shields of trusts, and makes a demand for general reform of the government. Mr. Southgate's letter simply commends the national party's principals and calls attention to its broad platform and the radical reforms suggested therein.

Senator Chandler's Plan.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 6.—The Monitor, Senator Chandler's paper, last night contained the following leader from his pen under the caption "What Will the New Hampshire Sound Money Democrats Do?" "That is their business and not ours. But if they desire not to divide the sound money votes and swell the majority for the McKinley and Hobart electors to 20,000, we hope the republicans will meet them more than half way. Four McKinley and Hobart electors, including two republican electors and two sound money electors, would bury the Bryan ticket under a larger majority in proportion to the vote cast than would be given in any other state in the Union. The Monitor favors this plan. What say the republicans of the state?"

Hanna To Visit Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Aug. 6.—John Wanamaker yesterday telegraphed to Chairman Hanna of the national committee, on behalf of the business men's campaign committee of this city, asking that he stop in this city on his way west from New York and see the subcommittee, composed of Rudolph Blackenburg, Howard French, John H. Converse and others, for the purpose of talking over the political situation. The following reply was received from Mr. Hanna: "Telegram received. I will stop at Philadelphia on my return west, probably this afternoon. Will be glad to meet your friends at that time. Please advise most convenient time and place."

Declines To Serve as Elector.

Allentown, Pa., Aug. 6.—State Chairman Wright has received a letter from John B. Hinckson of Chester, who is on the state ticket as a democratic elector, stating that his views on the Chicago platform are such as to preclude the idea of his being on the ticket and that he will at the proper time present his resignation.

Endorsed the Chicago Ticket.

New York, Aug. 6.—The general and district committee connected with the Tammany hall organization of the fifth assembly district at their regular meeting last night endorsed the nominations of Bryan and Sewall. The meeting pledged its support to the candidates of the democracy put in nomination at Chicago.

THE DAILY PRESS

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

Published Daily, except Sunday, at 3:30 p. m.

105 North avenue. Telephone Call 61.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., AUG. 6, 1890.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

(Furnished by Weather Observer Neagle.)

Fair Tonight and Friday; Probably Followed by Local Thunderstorms; Not So Warm Friday Afternoon.

At 2 o'Clock Leggett's Thermometer Registered 95 Degrees.

A call has been issued for a meeting of the New Jersey Democratic State Committee for Wednesday, August 19th, at Taylor's Hotel, Jersey City. The date for the convention to nominate Presidential electors will be fixed, and it is also probable that the action of the Chicago Convention will be passed upon. Senator Smith, who is the chairman of the committee, is in Europe and, of course, will not be at the meeting.

Ex-State Senator H. D. Winton, who was appointed the New Jersey representative in the gold men's conference committee at Chicago, says of New Jersey's participation in the third-ticket movement: "There is no sound-money Democratic organization in New Jersey. Therefore no one is authorized to represent the State in Friday's conference at Indianapolis. When the call is issued for the convention to nominate candidates New Jersey Democrats will select delegates."

It is almost certain that the next four band concerts will be held on the vacant lot near the Babcock building. They will naturally attract an immense throng of people and benefit the merchants, more or less, of that end of the town, it is suggested that they make an effort to have the lot put in such shape that it can be occupied without coming in contact with a great mass of weds. Doubtless such action would result in many people bringing camp-chairs to set on while the concert is in progress, and thus make them even more popular than they are now. Councilman Frost will see to it that there is plenty of electric illumination for the occasion.

Now that Plainfield is plagued with the bicycle scorcher, the following from The Evening Sun is very opportune:

The greatest known nuisance is certainly the scorcher, because he is a deliberate menace to the safety of many members of the community. Homely, lank and lantern-jawed as nature has unkindly made him, when he is caught he deserves a good clubbing and a handsome fine. There is another genius, second only to the scorcher kind. This latter kind are of the hopeless type. The epithet which most nearly applies to him is "wabbler." He is encountered everywhere, in crowded city streets and on narrow country road. You cannot get past him without taking your life in your hand. He seems to possess an occult faculty that will enable him to intercept you at any stage of the game. This he does naturally. It makes no difference whether he hears you coming or not. Instinct teaches him how most effectually to block your path. It is said that he cannot keep his wheel straight to save his life, and that when he hears the whirring of an approaching bicycle his trouble attacks him in an aggravated form. This is not true. It is the absolute kndwledge that one of his victims is approaching that possesses him. He would cross his path whether he knew a wheelman was approaching or not. A confirmed wabbler should be arrested on sight and locked up. Later his wheel should be confiscated, he should be put on the blacklist and any one selling or lending him a machine should be heavily mulcted in gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness, after which the machine should be sold and the money obtained devoted to the improvement of country roads.

—Iona Council, No. 14, D. of P., will have a day's outing at Boynton Beach on August 13th, leaving Red Men's Hall at 8 o'clock.

—The Pennsylvania State Volunteer Firemen's Association will hold their annual convention at Johnstown in October. Mr. Blum, of Somerset street, will probably attend.

—A special meeting of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will be held in the post rooms this evening at 8 o'clock for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee on rooms, at which time the post will take final action in the matter of changing their headquarters.

NEW MARKET.

Miss Irene Day will start next week for Ocean Grove for a few weeks' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown have been entertaining Mrs. Wolverton, of Belmar, for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Vance, of Prospect avenue, are entertaining Mrs. Jones, of Bedminister.

Miss Annie Webster, who has been visiting friends in town, has returned home to Perth Amboy.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints.—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Fredericktown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cures colds, croup and whooping cough. It is pleasant, safe and reliable. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Mamie Doud, of Duer street, is visiting relatives at Troy, N. Y.

MUST JERSEY HAVE LAY JUDGES?

The Law Which Abolished Them To Be Tested in the Courts.

The act of last winter abolishing the office of Lay Judge in New Jersey is to be tested as to its constitutionality. Yesterday Lawyer George E. Burgeois sued out a writ of certiorari in the Supreme Court in the case of David Marinelli, who was prosecuted in Atlantic county for a violation of the fish and game laws and fined $20. Lawyer Burgeois contends that the Atlantic court which tried the appeal from the Justice's court was improperly constituted owing to the absence of a Lay Judge. The case cannot be argued until fall, and the decision will probably not be rendered before November.

The Hospital Side of the Case.

The story published yesterday in The Daily Press regarding the case of William Nestor, of Scotch Plains, was furnished by thoroughly responsible parties, but a further inspection of the case gives this paper the idea that the informants may have been misled by Nestor whose story was published yesterday. It now appears that Nestor was not a hospital patient, and that he was told he could come to the hospital every day and have his wound dressed, but that did not suit him. He wanted to remain at the hospital for treatment. This he could not do as the institution was filled with patients at the time. As stated, the authority upon which the story was published was perfectly reliable, but there may have been disception on the part of Nestor.

Got the Carriage.

A neat, but perhaps expensive trick was played upon "Mat" Eagany, of Dunellen, on Monday. He was standing in his tin shop, talking business and his horse was standing in front of the place. Two men claiming to have come from Balantine and VanFleets carriage repository in Someville, wandered in the store, one with a note and chattel mortgage on Eagany's wagon, and while he was talking to the proprietor the other man unhitched the rig and took the wagon away to a nearby stable, the whole tranaction was at first thought to be a joke, but later developments proved that it was not intended as such.

Almost as Fast Again.

The representatives of the Gamewell Fire Alarm Company, who furnished the system in use in the borough, have been working for the last few days in remedying some imperfections in the striking apparatus on the new fire bell. The principal fault was that the strokes were too slow, they being at intervals of three seconds. By the rearrangement the strokes will be only one and three-quarter seconds apart. A test of the system will be made this evening at 8 o'clock. A faster stroke was advocated by The Press when the bell was first put in position.

Entries for the Baby Parade.

The entries for the annual baby parde, which occurs on August 15th, at Asbury Park, have been opened, and during the last two days a large number of entries have been made. It is expected the number of little ones appearing this year will be larger than at any of the previous years. The prizes offered are more numerous and valuable than ever. The judges have been selected, but their names have not been made public, nor will they be until all have accepted.

—The Jersey Central reports gross earnings for June of $1,941,337, a decrease of $20,852 as compared with the same month of last year, and net $386,893, a decrease of $87,779. For the six months ending June 30th the gross earnings were $5,832,592, a decrease of $88,899 as compared with the corresponding period of last year, and net $1,850,782, a decrease of $319,914.

An evening dance and outing was held at M. J. Cashin's, 506 West Fifth street, Tuesday evening. Some forty couples were present and danced to Prof. Sam Frazee's music.

Mrs. Rhodie Noah, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of blackberry cordial but got no relief. She then sent to me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and diarrhoea Remedy and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhoea but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by T. S Armstrong, Druggist.

OF PASSING INTEREST.

A young Indian girl of the Chippewa tribe was adopted when three years of age by a Michigan farmer, for the sole purpose, it is said, of satisfying his hobby that women, if properly trained, can run faster than men. She is now 19 years of age, weighs 117 pounds, and, it is claimed, can outrun any man with whom she has ever raced.

A fact of much interest is the arrival of thirty Chinese boys at Robinvale, near Metuchen, pictures of whom, in native dress was given in The Mail and Express of Saturday. These boys have brought to this country by Rev. Huie Kin, superintendent of the school in University place, New York, under the care of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. The recent war with Japan has taught the Chinese that they have much to learn, and the parents and guardians of the recent arrivals have asked for their education at this school. The parents are responsible for the cost of transportation and tuition. Mr. Huie Kin has frankly acknowledged that the best efforts will be used to convert them to Christianity, and the parents have sent them, knowing of this probability.

THE STAFF.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Dr. E. B. VanD. Hedges returned this morning from a professional visit to Quisset, Mass.

Miss Annie Daly, of West Third street, will spend next week with friends in Raritan.

Philip Swain and daughter, Miss Swain, of Craig place, are visiting relatives at White House.

Miss. Debra Corle, of Neshanic, has been a recent guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Corle, on New street.

Mrs. J. M. Crane and daughter, Miss Arleen Crane, of West Eighth street, are stopping at Branchport, near Long Branch.

Among the letter-carriers now on their vacation are Patrick Reville, Edward Hann, Edward Dunn and Edward VanWinkle.

Miss Kezie Miers and Daniel Miers, of Annandale, have returned home after a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. John H. Higgins, of Stone street.

George Bowman and family, of Brooklyn, have rented through Mulford's agency, J. B. Mill's new house on Carleton avenue near Putman avenue, from August 20.

Samuel Robinson, a motorman, of Newark, has been visiting his brother-in-law, John H. Higgins, of Stone street. He was never before in this city and is perfectly charmed with its beauty.

William Frey, a former employe at the Pond Tool Works, died at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., yesterday. The body is expected here today, and until the body arrives no funeral arrangements can be made.

George Bird, of Messrs. Reed & Coddington's office, has gone to Hunterdon county for a vacation. He will also visit friends in White House and other places in the peach growing district.

Struck on the Head With a Brick.

Edward Kline, an employe on the new City National Bank building at Front street and Park avenue, was struck on the head by a falling brick this morning and quite severely injured. Dr. Bohan, A. M. Griffin's shop doctor, dressed the wound and the patient is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

Why is it,

if catarrh is a constitutional affection, as those claim who have a blood tonic to sell, that physicians, in extreme cases, frequently advise change of air and climate to those suffering from it? Catarrh is a climatic affection, and nothing but a local remedy or a change of climate will cure it. Ely's Cream Balm, in all cases of catarrh, is so efficient as to do away with the necessity of leaving home and friends, causing instant relief and a perfect cure after short continuance.

Don't trifle away time when you have cholera morbus or diarrhœa. Fight them in the beginning with DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure. You don't have to wait for results, they are instantaneous, and it leaves the bowels in healthy condition. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

In Aid of Prisoners.

The Willing Workers' Club of Mt. Olive Baptist Church will give an entertainment in the lecture room to morrow evening, the proceeds from which will go to the fund for the release of the Louisburg prisoners in the South.

A year ago last June Mrs. Lucy Jane Pollard was murdered there and Solomon Marable was arrested, convicted and hung on July 3 last. This entertainment is given with a view of getting sufficient funds to engage counsel in the case. Some of the accomplices have not yet been brought to trial.

NOTES OF THE DAY.

Nearly $1,500,000 worth of articles are pawned in London weekly.

France proposes to follow Italy's example and tax the income from the government bonds.

American ebony is one of the heaviest woods known, weighing 83.18 pounds to the cubic foot.

The Bank of England has 1,600 officials on its rolls, and 1,000 clerks. If a clerk is late three times he receives a warning, and the fourth time he is discharged at once.

Lander, Wyo., a town of nearly 2,000 inhabitants, enjoys the distinction of being the furthest removed from a railway of any incorporated town in the United States.

Gen. Sir John Adye, in pleading that old soldiers should be employed in the postal service of Great Britain, says that about 15,000 men every year return from the army to civil life at an average age of 26.

Cincinnati wheelmen are making strenuous efforts to have an ordinance passed which shall regulate the sprinkling of streets. It is suggested that "a path three feet wide shall be left at either side of the street."

BITS OF WISDOM.

A good laugh is sunshine in a house. —Thackeray.

In law nothing is certain but the expense.—S. Butler.

The envious man grows lean at the excess of his neighbor.—Horace.

Angling is somewhat like poetry; men are to be born so.—Izaak Walton.

Sow good services; sweet remembrances will grow from them.—Mme. de Stael.

Who plays for more than he can lose with pleasure stakes his heart.—Herbert.

Some who affect to dislike flattery may yet be flattered indirectly by a well-seasoned abuse and ridicule of their rivals.—Colton.

Those who make us happy are always thankful to us for being so; their gratitude is the reward of their benefits. —Mme. Swetchine.

The spirit of a person's life is ever shedding some power, just as a flower is steadily bestowing fragrance upon the air.—T. Starr King.

Time's gradual touch has moldered into beauty many a tower, which, when it frowned with all its battlements, was only terrible.—Mason.

GREATEST GREAT MEN.

The greatest theologian was St. Augustine, whose body of theology at present constitutes the major part of the doctrine of the Roman Catholic church.

The leading experimental philosopher was Bacon, who deemed that the substance of all philosophy lay in testing the accuracy of the knowledge already gained.

The most learned philosophical historian was Buckle. It is estimated that a single foot-note in his "History of Civilization" must have cost five years of research.

Virgil was the greatest pastoral poet who ever lived. Standing next to Homer as a writer of epics, he nevertheless, in some passages, excelled his famous master.

The greatest of all dramatists in any age or country was Shakespeare. He excelled in every line of drama, tragedy, comedy and history, and in each was equally good.

The first and, in most respects, the greatest of all tragic poets was Aeschylus. His delineation of the tragic elements of human conduct has never been surpassed.

Two Dreams.

She said: "I dreamed of angels,
They filled the heavens blue;
Now was there e'er a sweeter dream?"
He said: "I dreamed of you!"
—Detroit Free Press.

It is a fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla, the one true blood purifier, has proved, over and over again, that it has power to cure, even when other medicines fail to do any good.

—Hood's Pills are purely vegetable and do not purge, pain or gripe. All druggists. 25c.

CHAPTER I.

What was called a union revival was in progress at the principal meeting house in Broomfield, an old and gullied village in the southwestern part of Missouri, and the exhorters, vigorous advocates of a change of heart and purpose, were warm in their work when the slight flutter of a counter excitement arose amid the congregation. Old Bill Aimes, strong among the exhorters, and who long had enjoyed the name of "Wheel Horse," looked toward the door and saw a strange young woman slowly and with long strides walking down the aisle. She was exceedingly tall and with a complexion that seemed to darken as she drew near, but she was not ungraceful and neither was her face wanting in attractiveness. Her tailor-made gown was a mark of ultra fashion in this out-of-the-way place; and her air, her swing of motion bespoke the forced independence of city life. She paid not the slightest heed to the gazes bent upon her, but with easy freedom took a seat and modestly turned her eyes toward the altar where the mourners in split and shivered accents were pitiably begging that the old Adam born within them might be cast out into utter darkness. And now the whisper went round: "Who is she and where did she come from and what is she doing here?" Some of the children climbed upon the benches to stare at her, and old Bill Aimes, always a bold man, looked straight at her and shouted his exhortation as though he would have her believe that she had arrived just in time to escape the awful fury to come. But the woman sat there not the least disturbed; and when the services were brought to a close she got up without looking about her and walked straightway to the tavern, a short distance down the street. It appeared that she had already engaged a room, for she walked upstairs without halting, and a few moments later a boy came down with a note in his hand. Bill Aimes was standing near the door of the hallway, and as the boy came down the old man called to him and told him to stop a moment.

"Boy, what have you got there?" the old fellow asked.

"A note, or something of the sort," he answered.

"What are you going to do with it?"

"She told me to take it to the editor of the Sentinel."

"Well, let me see it." The boy hesitated. "Let me see it, I tell you. Ain't I the mayor of this town, you young rascal, and ain't it my business to know it if any underhand business goes on here? Give me that thing."

The idlers who stood about applauded the mayor and the boy handed him the note. "Here, Alf," he said, speaking to a young fellow, "read this here thing. Left my backskin at home and ain't got nothing to rub my glasses with. Read it." There was a titter

"BOY, WHAT HAVE YOU GOT THERE?"

among the idlers. "What are you fellers gigglin' at? Think I can't read? Hah? Is that what you think? Why, I gad—Lord forgive me for the expression—I read the Declaration of Independence at a muster before either of you was born. What does that thing say, Alf?"

Alf spelled and spluttered for a moment or two and then read the following:

"MY DEAR SIR: Meet me at once in the parlor at the hotel on important business. Respectfully, POLLY LOPP."

The old man took the note, looked at it, turned it over, looked at it again, folded it and returned it to the boy. "I don't understand it, but I reckon it's all right," he said. "Take it to him, and say, you, watch him when he reads it, and come back here and tell me how he looked."

It did not appear that the boy had more than reached the shanty where the paper was printed when they saw the editor coming hastily toward the hotel. To him the prospect of an important business conference no doubt produced a strange sensation. Year after year he had "scrapped" for a living in that village, printing funeral tickets, horse bills, and through his sheet urging his party to organize and overthrow the political enemy of his country. The idlers about the door of the hall made way for him as he approached, but the mayor, showing a disposition to block his path, asked him to wait a moment. The editor gave him a look of strong reproof. "I have no time for gossip," he said. "I have important business."

The crowd stood about the door, waiting for him to come down, and when he did those who were best acquainted with his sad and careworn countenance agreed that he looked years younger. Now, what could it all mean? The mystery was deepened.

"Jest hold on a minute," old Aimes called after him. The editor faced about and said: "Well, what do you want?"

"We want to know something that we've got a right to know," Aimes replied. "There's something goin' on here and we want to know what it is. You never saw that woman before, and why should you have important business with her? We don't know but she's some female anarchist come here to blow up these here American institutions."

The editor laughed, and for the first time since his defeat as a candidate for the legislature. "She's nothing of the sort," he said. "To tell you the truth she has just leased my paper for a year with the privilege of buying, and she assures me that it shall maintain its present high standard of morality and integrity. She takes charge to-morrow and you have nothing to fear from her."

"But where is she from?" Aimes asked. "We don't want women comin' in here among our folks without we know where they are from."

"She came from Chicago."

"What, and you are sure she ain't an anarchist? Look here, colonel, you ought to have gone a little slow in this matter. She might hoist the red flag at the head of your paper and then where would the country be?"

"No danger of that," the editor laughed, and off he walked, leaving old Aimes to stand there and wonder whether or not he should call on the woman and get a few points from her. He decided that he would, and upstairs he went. He looked in at the parlor door and saw the young woman sitting on the sofa with a book in her hand.

"AHEM! EXCUSE ME; MAY I COME IN?"

"Ahem, excuse me; but may I come in a moment?"

"Yes," the woman answered, putting aside the book. The old man entered, took a chair, moved it about and finally settled down near her.

"Putty hot," he ventured to remark.

"Yes, rather."

"Hotter than it was yistidy, I believe," he observed.

"Yes, or day before yesterday, either," she replied.

"I gad, I reckon you are right."

She slowly turned her head and looking straight at him said:

"You were exhorting in the church just a short while ago, I believe?"

"You are right. I always take an active part in our revivals. But we hain't done much this time and the meetin' closed to-day."

"I thought you were the man, and I am therefore a little surprised to hear you say 'I gad' after hearing you so fervently urge people to turn from frivolous ways."

Old Aimes puffed and fanned himself with his straw hat. The woman took up her book and looked at it. "Miss, I knock under. You are right. But I don't mean no harm by usin' such words, and I want to say they are the strongest I ever use. Bleeged to you for callin' my attention to 'em. But I have come to see you to ask you a few questions, and I hope you won't think them out of place, or anything of that sort, for you see country people pride themselves on bein' more respectable than most any other folks are, and the truth is they have to be mighty particular and all that sort of thing, which I hope you will understand without any trouble, and the questions I want to ask you are simply these here: How did you happen to come here and—"

"How did you happen to come here?" the woman broke in, raising her eyes from the book and mildly fixing them upon the old man. And she appeared to be making a study of him, his squint eyes, his purple cheeks, bushy eyebrows, fat nose; and she noticed that the bosom of his cotton shirt was unbuttoned at the top, revealing the grayish hairs on his chest. "But before you answer," she added, still looking at him, taking, it seemed, an enjoyable measurement of his discomfiture, "let me ask you if you would mind buttoning your shirt."

"I gad, miss," the old man puffed, "you are somethin' of a Tartar, I reckon. I've lived here all my life and have been mayor here for ten year and have wore my shirt this way every spell of hot weather, and you are the first one to tell me to button it; but dinged—excuse the expression, for it's the strongest I use—I say dinged if I don't do it. Now, miss, the shirt's buttoned, so go ahead with your rat killin', as the feller said."

"I have no rat killing to go on with. I merely asked you how you happened to come here."

"Yes, but blast my hide—excuse me for that expression, if you please, for it is about the strongest I use—you've got no right to ask me that question."

"Well, then, you have no right to ask me how I happened to come here."

"Miss, I tell you that I'm the mayor of this here town, but we'll let that pass. Would you mind tellin' me your name?"

"My father's name was Lopp and in remembrance of a great-aunt I was called Polly."

"Ah, hah, I reckon it was all right to recollect the old lady and all that sort of thing, but from what I can gather from the papers Lopp is a sort of anarchist name, ain't it?"

"I have never known an anarchist of that name," the young woman answered, smiling.

"They may be, miss, but I don't like the name any too well, but we'll let that pass, as the feller said when he seed the wild cat." He was silent long enough to unbotton the top button of his shirt and then he went on: "We understand that you have leased the paper here, and we'd like to know why, for when a paper is leased there is generally some sort of ax to be ground, so I would just like to ask you what sort of ax you have brought with you?"

The woman threw down the book, laughed at the old man, and, clasping her hands back of her head, leaned back, still laughing at him.

"Miss, you are as much tickled as if there was a bug on you. Hah, don't you think there's a bug on you? I have generally commanded a good deal of respect among women folks and you needn't laugh at me any more than you can help, even if there's a bug on you, but what I want to get at and I'm going to get at it mighty sudden is this here: Before we can allow you to associate with us we must know somethin' about you, and it is as little as you can do to tell us what we want to know."

"You have asked me for my confidence," she said, looking at him with demure mockery, "the precious confidence of an unprotected woman, and oh, how willingly would I give it you but for the fact that I have not known you long enough. But I confess that you have invited my confidence by seeking to unbosom yourself." She looked at the old man's shirt and he puffed and buttoned it.

"Miss, I'll be slathered—now that is really the strongest expression I use—if you don't sorter git away with me. But won't you tell me somethin' about yourself?"

"Why, yes, I will give you my tenderest confidences."

"Oh, now, here, don't chaw me. I am the mayor of this town. I tell you, and if you are goin' to run a paper here you had better keep in with me. The city council takes ten copies and I could have them cut off at any time."

She raised her hands as if imploring him not to cut them off, and he, looking down at his shirt to see if it were buttoned, showed his yellow teeth, and continued: "Yes, you better keep in with me. Man tried to run a paper here once without keepin' in with me, and what do you reckon became of him?"

"Went to the legislature, I suppose."

"Hah! Who told you? Dinged if he didn't go there, but he left his paper dead as a padlock."

"I haven't anything to hide," she said "and I don't mind telling you that, having grown very tired of city life, I have come here to rest awhile, but not being able to rest without work I have decided to lease this little paper and play with it."

"Talk like a woman in a show, dinged if you don't. Not being able to rest without work is a new one on me; but we will let that pass."

"Just as well, I suppose. Yes, it is my purpose to live here a year, and then if I like the place well enough I may remain permanently."

"Ah, hah," said the old fellow, "that is to say, you mought git married and settle down here. Putty good plan, I reckon, for I hear 'em say that marriage is about played out in the cities. I have seed better lookin' women than you air, but then, I reckon, you mought do on a pinch, and you never can tell jest how soon a pinch is goin' to take place. My old woman has been dead about two year and I 'lowed after while that I mought pick up a chunk of a wife, may do so this fall if my corn down here on the creek turns out well."

"YOUR SHIRT COLLAR IS UNBUTTONED AGAIN."

"Your shirt collar is unbuttoned again," she said.

"Blast me if I don't go to the blacksmith shop and git me a horseshoe nail jest to accommodate you. So you are goin' to run the newspaper. Never hearn of a woman runnin' a paper, but I have hearn of 'em ridin' straddle and I don't see why a newspaper shouldn't come next."

"By the way," she said, "I should like to find some pleasant place to board. I don't care to stay at this hotel."

"You are talkin' sense, now, miss. Let me see: I live about a quarter of a mile from here—just an easy walk—and if you don't mind you may board there. My daughter Nell lives with me and—like her. Oh, she eats more book-learnin' than a sheep do straw, always a-can-win'-em, and you'd git along well together. She's too smart for this town, and you and her could trot together right well. Well, I'll send her over to see you. I reckon you are all right, leastwise you understand takin' care of yourself. Good day."

She arose and as he reached the door she called him. "What is it, miss?"

"Nothing, only I hope that you will not forget to go by the blacksmith shop."

The old man puffed and tramped heavily down the stairs, and at the bottom he found Alf and the other fellows waiting for him. "Don't put yourself to no uneasiness on her account, gentlemen," he said. "She can take care of herself, and if she can't, I gad, I can take care of her or come mighty blame nigh it; but I reckon that expression is a little too strong for a man that thinks as much of a revival as I do, and I ask the Lord to excuse me."

"But hold on and tell us somethin' about her," Alf insisted.

"I don't know a blessed thing about her except that she's all right, and that's all anybody need to know."

Shortly afterward a young woman called at the hotel, introduced herself to the stranger and said that following the advice of her father she had come to ask Miss Lopp to board with her. "We have a great, big old-fashioned house," she said, "and you may have all the room you want, so don't say you won't. Will you please not say you won't?"

The visitor had taken a seat on the piano stool and not ungracefully was slowly turning herself half round and then back. She was a comely girl and it was evident that she was the belle of the neighborhood; and it was also evident that she cared nothing for this distinction, that she had studied and read herself beyond any companionship that the village might offer, and that simply to be admired had long since grown tiresome to her. Miss Lopp never forgot that pleasing picture, the dark eyes half humorously pleading, the abundant hair caught up here and there as if by graceful and yet careless dips, the pleasing face and yet a countenance bespeaking strength of will—physical vigor and grace.

"You must not say you won't" the girl went on, giving Miss Lopp no time to answer, "until you know how much in need of a sensible companion I am. Father—and let me request you not to pay any attention to his strong expressions for he is really the best man you ever saw—well, he does everything he can to lighten my loneliness, but he can't do so very much, you know, being only a man, and I am actually hungry for some one to talk to."

"I don't see how I can resist so strong an appeal," Miss Lopp replied.

"There, I knew you couldn't say you wouldn't when you were brought to understand it all. And we'd better go now," she added, springing off the stool. "You shall have a large front room, but it has a rag carpet, woven half sentimentally by a woman that lives not far from here—by half sentimentally I mean that she thought so much of me she wove it for half price. But you don't mind that, do you?"

"What, the sentiment or the half price?"

"Why, the rag carpet, of course. I didn't know but you might expect velvet on the floor."

"My dear child," said Miss Lopp, "it was not the thought of a carpet that brought me into this neighborhood, and to tell you the truth I don't care whether the floor is covered with a rag or with sawdust."

"Oh, I just know that I shall like you, because you are not stupid with evenness of talk and kiln-dried manners. So come on and we'll go over right now."

And so Miss Lopp was installed in a large room in an old-fashioned house. Her two front windows commanded the drowsy village, the town cow that looked as though she had been patched, having so often been scalded by irate housewives; the prowling hog, the sport of every dog that found himself without amusement, the hitching rack where farmers' nags squealed and bit at one another. But the two other windows looked upon a garden, rose-tinted here and there, the dark shade lying between rows of high peas, a tangle of plum bushes, a long slope and a creek.

The office of the newspaper was found in a jumbled state, with black and light types mixed together, but with the assistance of a boy who had long been an apprentice, a decent order was brought about, and from the very first number the paper showed an improvement. The paragraphs were written with a vigor that made the villagers wink as though their eyes had lighted upon something too bright for them; and the editorials on national and international subjects were set forth with that dignity which the farmer demands that his editor shall observe. A show of frankness soon wins the confidence of a southern town, and Miss Lopp became so evident a favorite that within a month after her arrival her paper had picked up an additional circulation of fifty copies, a marvelous growth, a newspaper miracle in Broomfield.

Nell soon learned to pick up type, and was therefore Polly's closest and most valued companion. They were rarely seen apart; they strolled in the woods like lovers, and together they begged contributions to the mite society.

One afternoon, as they were going home to enjoy the cool of the garden, Nell, swinging Polly's hand as they moved along, declared that she had never been so happy. "I feel that I am useful," she said; "I feel that I am the dearest friend of a woman who knows something. And do you know what I have been thinking of? I have been thinking that we ought to make a vow never to separate. I told father the other night that I should never marry, and if you will take up the same resolution why we will live together. There's the stage, and look, there are

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redying. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

MASSACHUSETTS Y. M. D. CLUB.

Poll of the Members on Their Position Regarding Chicago Ticket and Platform.

Boston, Aug. 6.—Earnest C. Marshall has finished his poll of the Young Men's Democratic club of Massachusetts. At its first meeting the executive committee of the club voted to repudiate the Chicago ticket and platform, and this action did not meet the approval of certain members, among others Mr. Marshall. For the purpose of ascertaining how the members of the club in general viewed the action of their executive committee, Mr. Marshall sent out a circular to every member. Mr. Marshall now gives out the following figures: Whole number of members voting 379. Of this number 242 sustain the action of the executive committee and 134 vote "no," putting themselves on record as favoring both the Chicago ticket and platform. Three members are undecided. This poll is less than one-third of the total membership of the club. The figures are totally different from the poll made by the executive committee of the club. In response to the inquiry of the committee 635 members responded, of whom 550 voted in favor of sustaining the exective committee in repudiating the ticket and platform, and only 85 members went on record as favoring Bryan and Sewall.

Spreckels Not a Candidate.

San Francisco, Aug. 6.—Claus Spreckels, the sugar king, denies that he is a candidate for United States senator from California. He says that he has no political aspirations whatever and is interested at present only in the development of the beet sugar industry

MRS. ABBEY'S DIVORCE SUIT.

Many Acts of Cruelty and Desertion the Charges.

New York, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Florence G. Abbey in her petition for a legal separation from her husband, Henry E. Abbey, of Abbey, Schoeffel & Grau, theatrical managers, alleges many acts of cruelty. While the papers were served on Mr. Abbey on July 28, the matter was kept secret until a notice was filed in the supreme court that on August 10 the plaintiff's counsel would make application for $100 a week alimony and $500 counsel fee. Mrs. Abbey swears that her husband abandoned her on April 25, 1896. She says that he left her in destitute circumstances and has not since contributed to her support. She says that when he went away from her it was on a pretence of taking his daughter to Long Branch for a few days. Neither father nor daughter returned. To this daughter and and to her husband's son Mrs. Abbey swears that she always acted the part of a good mother. She declares further that Mr. Abbey has been addicted to drink and on a number of occasions struck her and bruised her. She mentioned one occasion in 1892 when she found him intoxicated at the Savoy hotel in London and tried to take him home. He struck her then, she alleges, and blackened her eyes and bruised her arms. She swears that at another time he threatened her life with a razor and choked her. The business of Abbey, Schoeffel & Grau is to be continued, she declares, and her husband will receive a salary of $10,000 a year, from which he should be able to contribute to her support. Mrs. Abbey was formerly Miss Florence Gerard and was well known in theatrical circles. She married Mr. Abbey in November, 1892, at St. Paul's church, Boston. Mr. Abbey was at the time a widower with two children, one of whom, a boy of 7, has since died.

Carlisle to Visit Cleveland.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Secretary and Mrs. Carlisle will leave here to-morrow to visit the president and Mrs. Cleveland at Buzzard's Bay. The trip, it is said, will be made from here on the lighthouse tender Maple. At Tompkinsville, S. I., the party will be transferred to the lighthouse tender Mistletoe, and will thence proceed along the coast to the president's summer home. It is suggested that the president and Mr. Carlisle may decide to confer on political matters and Secretary Olney, who is summering in the immediate vicinity, will also attend the conference.

False Story About the Peary Steamer.

Glocester, Mass., Aug. 6.—The statement sent out yesterday that a letter had been received in this city from Prof. Ralph S. Tarr of Cornell university, geologist of the Peary Arctic expedition, and that the vessel on which they sailed was jammed in the ice on the Greenland coast, is without any foundation whatever. Prof. Tarr's father says that no letter of recent date has been received, and he did not know how such a story could originate.

Lucy Parsons' Home Burned.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—The residence of Lucy Parsons, of anarchist fame, was destroyed by fire yesterday. Mrs. Parsons had a large library, the collection of her husband, and there were also in her possession many relics of Parsons' prison and other experiences which were destroyed. Mrs. Parsons lived in Avondale, and the house was remote from fire protection. The loss is about $2,500.

More Honors for the Canadians.

London, Aug. 6.—In the competition at Shoeburyness, under the auspices of the National Artillery association, yesterday afternoon, the queen's prize for garrison artillery was won by the Canadian team, which also secured the third prize in the number two garrison competition.

Treasury Gold Takes a Slight Tumble.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The treasury gold reserve at the opening of business to-day stood at $109,614,431. The withdrawals yesterday amounted to $387,800.

SPAIN'S HARD LOT

The Riots in Valencia Were Serious Republican Uprisings.

SEVERAL STORES OF ARMS DISCOVERED

Compromising Letters from Buenos Ayres and the United States Seized—The Leader of the Insurgents a Brother of a Cuban Rebel General.

London, Aug. 6.—A dispatch from Madrid to the Central News represents the tax riots in the province of Valencia as serious republican uprisings. The leader of the insurrectionists, Bernardo Toledo, was at one time a student of medicine in New York city and his brother is now in command of a band of insurgents in Cuba. Among the persons taken into custody in connection with the disturbances is one who had in his possession when arrested a number of compromising letters, some from Buenos Ayres and others from the United States. Stores of arms have been discovered in two places and several arrests have been made in Madrid, where extraordinary precautions have been taken to prevent an uprising. It is suspected by the authorities that conspiracies exist in Gerona and Saragossa. The anti-Protestant feeling among the populace, the dispatch says, is spreading, and is especially strong against Americans, who are suspected of promoting the agitation.

Efforts in Competitor's Prisoners' Behalf.

Havana, Aug. 6.—United States Consul-General Lee has resumed his efforts to secure the transfer of the men captured on the filibustering schooner Competitor to better quarters than those they now occupy. Several of the prisoners are ill and have requested that they be supplied with food of a better quality than they have heretofore been given. The consul-general proposes that the friends of the prisoners in the United States be allowed to contribute funds with which to procure the necessities for the imprisoned men. Fulgencio Sanchez Orrihuilla and Pedro Ofarrill were shot at Matanzas yesterday, they having been convicted of the crime of incendiarism and rebellion.

Confirms the Report.

Madrid, Aug. 6.—In the chamber of deputies last evening Senor Cos-Gayon, minister of the interior, confirmed the report that two bands of rioters under the leadership of Bernardo Alvarez, (not Toledo, as before stated) a retired colonel of the Spanish army, had been dispersed and their weapons, most of which were flintlocks, seized. The government, Senor Cos-Gayon stated, believed the disturbances were ascribable to friends of the Cuban revolutionists, assisted by protestant and Masonic leagues.

Ochando's Return to Spain.

Madrid, Aug. 6.—A dispatch to the Imparcial from Havana says that Gen. Ochando, Captain-General Weyler's chief of staff, returns to Spain partly because his health is not good and partly on account of a sharp letter he recently received from the home government.

Starved and Overcome by Heat.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 6.—Lewis George Clark, the prototype of George Harris in Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin, was overcome by heat on the street here yesterday and carried to the hospital in an ambulance. Clark is almost starved, having lived for weeks on bread and water, and it was while trying to find some food that he was overcome. His condition is critical.

Against the Entry of Foreign Hogs.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Consul Germain, at Zurich, reports to the state department that the Swiss government on July 17 forbade the entry of foreign live hogs into Switzerland except upon special permits issued by the department of agriculture, provided they weigh over 132½ pounds, with certain local guarantees as to their keeping until slaughtered in the presence of health officers.

Secretary Herbert Going to Europe.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Passage has been engaged on the American liner St. Louis from New York on Aug. 12 for Secretary Herbert, his private secretary and Miss Herbert, and return passage on the Paris about a month later. Rumors connecting the secretary's trip to Europe with alleged matrimonial intentions are authoritatively contradicted.

Women Can't Serve as Jurors at Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Judge Windes yesterday refused to permit Mrs. E. D. Michner and Mrs. M. F. Stafford to serve as jurors in the criminal court. These are the women who on Monday last were conditionally accepted by Judge Horton and who were directed to appear for service in Judge Windes' court.

Several Heat Prostrations in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Yesterday was the hottest day Chicago has seen this season and before the middle of the afternoon the thermometer had reached ninety-six and between fifteen and twenty people had been picked up on the streets, overcome by the heat.

Armor Plate for the Russian Navy.

Bethlehem, Pa., Aug. 6.—A ballistic plate weighing twenty-one tons, a part of the side armor of the Russian battleship Rostislar, was last night shipped by the Bethlehem Iron company to Admiral Virchowsky, commander of the port at St. Petersburg.

Fusion in Oklahoma.

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 6.—The democratic and populist territorial conference agreed on a plan of fusion at a meeting held here yesterday.

SPORTS

THURSDAY, August 6. Sun rises 5 a. m., sets 7:11 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:11 p. m. and 4 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Sandford Robinson, of West Second street, will enter several races at Bergen Point on Saturday.

Joseph O. Haynes has been added to the committee having in charge the cycle carnival to be held September 5.

Frank Day has purchased an Olympic wheel of the Governor, corner of Park avenue and West Second street, for his little daughter.

Two bicyclists collided at the corner of Park avenue and Second street last evening, but neither wheel was much injured. An exchange of cards was about all that passed between the two.

Miss Mamie Flemmer, Miss Josephine Schaffer, Mrs. Geo. Gerkin, Mr. Burnell, Eugene Crow and Andrew Schaffer, of Brooklyn, who rode to Plainfield and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Laine, of East Second street, have returned home.

A few members of the Crescent Wheelmen met last evening and discussed informally the question of holding a parade. It was thought that the better plan would be to join in the bicycle carnival to be held September 5th. As there was not a quorum present nothing definite could be decided upon. It will probably be two weeks before the new clubhouse will be ready for occupancy. A meeting will be held in the near future to take definite action regarding the parade. Several of the delinquent members have paid up and the balance of the names have not been posted for the reason that the committee desires to give them an opportunity to pay their dues.

The six days' races for the championship of the world, scheduled to take place in Madison Square Garden, New York city, December 7 to 12 inclusive, already promises to be a great success. Such famous professionals as Shock, Waller, Alberts and Golden have sent in their entries, together with others, and it is expected that "Charlie" Murphy, the Brooklyn flier, now in France, and Harry Maddox, the fisher lad of Asbury Park, will also figure in the great struggle. "Fred" Titus, who was a star in the days of Class B, may also compete. There is no doubt about the entry list being the most attractive ever secured. There will be short races for professionals and amateurs every evening during the progress of the long event. Entry blanks can be secured from A. G. Batchelder, 1427 American Tract Society Building, or P. T. Powers, 105 Pulitzer Building, New York City.

Stillman Begins a $20,000 Suit.

Suit was begun yesterday in the Supreme Court by O. O. Stillman, a New Brunswick jeweler, against the Brunswick Traction Company to recover $20,000 for the death of his father, Samuel Stillman, as the result of a collision with a trolley car on the Milltown road on Thursday, July 2d. Howard MacSherry is counsel for Mr. Stillman, who is the administrator of the estate.

For the Fresh Air Fund.

INS AND OUTS.

One of the most interesting games of the season will be played on the Y. M. C. A. grounds on Washington avenue in the rear of West Front street, Saturday afternoon between the famous New Jersey Athletic Club and the Y. M. C. A. teams. The New Jersey's have long borne the reputation of being one of the strongest amateur teams in the State. The Y. M. C. A. will have their strongest team out, and have hopes of coming out of the struggle victorious. All followers of the game should surely be on hand by 3:30 p. m. and cheer the boys on to victory. Following will be the batting order of both teams:

Y. M. C. A.	N. J. A. C.
Townley, cf.	Pale, ss.
McKelvey, rf.	Bieling, 2b.
Dennis, c.	Langford, W., lf.
Major, ss.	Whyte, W. A., c.

Schenck, lf.	Langford, 1b.
Cory, 3b.	Jenkins, cf.
Enwright, 2b.	Whyte, W. J., rf.
Burt, p.	Welch, p.

The New Jersey's recently defeated the Woodbridge team, composed of the famous "Brown brothers," 4 to 2.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

The events of the race to be held by the Middlesex Athletic Club of Spottswood, N. J., on Aug. 29, at the Middlesex Driving Park (near Old Bridge,) will be one-mile novice; half-mile open; one-mile handicap; half mile handicap; five-mile open; and one-mile open (Championship of Middlesex Co.) This track is the finest in this part of the State, and a large number of good riders are expected.

Battleship Maine Injured.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The Maine, while coaling at Key West, touched bottom and slightly bent several of her plates. When docked at Norfolk yesterday the plates were examined and the injuries found to be slight. No attempt will be made to straighten the plates at present, but as soon as the vessel is cleaned she will join the north Atlantic squadron.

POLITICAL POT SIZZLES.

AT PRESENT THE TALK IS ABOUT SENATOR AND SHERIFF.

For Sheriff William Kirk is Said to be a Strong Candidate—George Kyte Looked Upon With Favor For State Senator.

The Elizabeth Journal yesterday published the following political gossip:

Union county this fall will elect three assemblymen, a senator and a sheriff, and there promises to be a lively run for the nominations on both the Republican and Democratic sides. Then too, the county will vote for congressman as well as presidential electors.

At present the only talk is about candidates for senator and sheriff. They are the two offices in which the people of the county are at present taking the most interest, assembly and congressional talk being temporarily sidetracked. The Republican congressional nomination, however, will probably be given to Congressman Charles N. Fowler.

For the senatorial race Senator Foster M. Voorhees seems to be the favorite of the Republicans, as he has made such a clean, fine record at Trenton. But "Our Foster" has a large law practice, and, while his friends intend to insist that he run, some of the more intimate of his political colleagues say that he has not yet decided to slight his practice for another term in the senate chamber.

Sheriff George Kyte of Fanwood is being put forward by some of his friends as a claimant for the Republican nomination for senatorial honors, and a number of them expect to secure the running place for him. They claim that his chances of securing the nomination are good, but recognize that should Senator Voorhees be prevailed upon to stand for a renomination their candidate would have a hard row to hoe.

Many of the Democrats are looking toward ex-Senator and Prosecutor Fred C. Marsh, to lead them in the senatorial contest and many of them believe he is the only one who would be able to come near carrying Union county for the Democrats should the Republicans renominate the present incumbent.

There are other Democrats, however, who claim to have other strong candidates but they are not saying much about them yet.

There will be but little opposition among the Democrats to the candidacy of ex Sheriff Hicks for the shrievalty nomination. He was prevented from being re-nominated for a second term by the operation of the law prohibiting a sheriff from succeeding himself, and the members of his party seem to think he ought to have another opportunity to try for the office.

The candidates on the Republican side, however, are not so few. The Republicans are very sanguine of carrying old Union again, and believe that the nominations will be almost equivalent to an election. Therefore quite a scramble is expected for the shrievalty, which returns a good salary, and is considered a splendid political position.

While but one or two of the candidates have yet publicly announced themselves, they are already at work among the leaders, and their friends are beginning to boom their claims.

Ex-Councilman Robert Houston is being urged by his friends as the rightful candidate. He was one of the most prominent candidates in the field three years ago, but withdrew in favor of Sheriff Kyte. His loyal supporters will urge this as the reason why he should be awarded the plum this fall.

Freeholder W. H. Hulskamper, who was also a candidate at the last shrievalty struggle, is likewise being boomed by his friends.

Capt. Joseph G. Ogden is a third Elizabethan in the field, and he is going to hustle, it is said, while ex-Sheriff F. F. Glasby, also of the Ninth ward, completes the quartette of Elizabeth's claimants for the nomination.

Plainfield has a strong candidate in William Kirk, while Fanwood wants Deputy Sheriff Miller to have the office.

Then the friends of Deputy Sheriff James Clark are backing him for the place, and he has a great many of them.

Altogether there is a sufficient number of aspirants in the field to make a lively, healthful competition for the party's choice, and it is expected the hunt for delegates will begin as soon as the summer vacation season is over.

Theories of cure may be discussed at length by physicians, but the sufferers want quick relief; and One Minute Cough Cure will give it to them. A safe cure for children. It is "the only harmless remedy that produces immediate results." For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

HIS HEAD ON THE RAILS.

DESPERATE ATTEMPT OF A PLAINFIELDER TO END HIS LIFE.

Dr. Glenn, of Craig Place, Vainly Endeavors to Commit Suicide at Poughkeepsie—Suffering From Melancholia.

The New York Sun this morning published the following from Poughkeepsie:

"A well dressed man, 50 years of age, tried to commit suicide at the Hudson River Railroad station this afternoon by laying his head on the rails between the wheels of the 4:50 p. m. train for New York. He was discovered by the engineer of a freight train on the north-bound tracks and was pulled from his dangerous position by the fireman and Archie Plain, the Poughkeepsie Cab Company's agent at the station. The stranger turned out to be Dr. I. R. Glenn, of 48 Craig place, Plainfield, N. J., a drummer for the Rumford Chemical Works of Providence, R. I. After visiting several hotels, where he asked for rooms with gas in them, and three gun shops and two drug stores, he was taken into custody by Policeman Miller. Sergeant Welton searched him and found on his person a brass check giving his name and address, $200 in cash, a gold watch, and a certificate of deposit of $2,000. Drs. Powell and Marill examined Dr. Glenn and give it as their opinion that he is suffering from melancholia. A despatch telling of his plight was sent to his home. He will be held until word is received what to do with him."

A reporter for The Press called at Dr. Glenn's home this morning and found that Mrs. Glenn had gone to Poughkeepsie. Miss Glenn said that they knew nothing more of the attempt to commit suicide than the brief telegram conveyed last night. She said that she could not account for her father's actions unless it was the excessive heat had affected his brain.

Dr. Glenn has been a resident of this city for a number of years but only practiced for a short time. For sometime he has been connected with Rumford Chemical Works, who prepare Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Editor Day on Corn.

The superintendent of the sewer farm, Clarence Slape, at the request of the Plainfield council, favored the newspaper fraternity and city officials with a goodly supply of corn grown on one of the beds last Saturday. A Plainfield editor after eating his sample says: "He is bound to confess it is excellent corn." We are bound to confess that we supposed we had received a dozen ears of the finest looking corn for our Sunday dinner that we ever saw and cheated the butcher and produce dealer out of our usual Sunday order. When we attempted to fill upon corn we found that field corn was our portion and being unaccustomed to horse fodder, we sought out our relatives in New Market to satisfy the inner man. If this was intended as a joke it was nicely played and we will watch for an opportunity to get "hunk."—Dunellen Call.

For More Prompt Service.

A new arrangement has been introduced at fire headquarters which will no doubt be generally used. The electric wires have been so arranged that at the first tap of the gong the chemical engine team appears instantly, thus doing away with the push button. The new scheme was tried yesterday and works perfectly. A fair test will be given and if it is all right the same arrangement will be adopted all around.

Justice Newcorn's Court.

The case of Lines against Verrette, on contract, was tried yesterday in Justice Newcorn's court and judgment was given the plaintiff. The following summons have been issued in Justice Newcorn's court: Plainfield Beef Co., against Smalley; Plainfield Beef Co., against Dolan, returnable August 13th.

For Naturalization Purposes.

There are a great many people who are desirous of becoming citizens of the United States in time to be able to vote this fall, and for the accommodation of all such and all others who desire to become naturalized, County Clerk Howard has decided to keep his office open again tonight.

Bought Fish at the Car.

The car of the Atlantic Fish Company arrived in town early this morning and was sidetracked near the freight house. A string of customers, with baskets, waded through the dust to the car and made their purchases.

—The Pond Machine Tool Company Works are turning out some very heavy castings these days. Over forty tons of molten iron were poured Tuesday, which included the pouring of two ten-ton planer tables and a fifteen-ton planer bed.

ALL OVER THE TOWN

NEWS IN SHORT PARAGRAPHS THAT INTEREST ALL PLAINFIELDERS.

Gathered by Enterprising Press Reporters From Both Sides of the Brook and Tersely Served for Your Perusal.

—Borough council meets this evening, when business of importance will be transacted.

—A new crosswalk has been laid across Westervelt avenue, at its intersection with Orange street.

—It is to be hoped that you haven't forgot that Leggett's soda is being generally used by Plainfield's thirsty public.

—People are beginning to wonder when the city is going to repair Front street. There is no question as to the urgent need of the work.

—Two colored banjoists of more than ordinary ability were about North Plainfield last evening gathering in the nickels and pennies.

—At Evona, the western section of the city, yesterday the thermometer stood 107 in the shade and in places where breezes were quite numerous.

—The work of macadamizing Westervelt avenue is going rapidly forward. Two blocks have been about completed within the past week.

—A regular meeting of Paugh-Caugh-Naugh-Sinque Tribe, No. 193, met in the Elkwood building last evening, but the business was only of a routine nature.

—William Calloway, of Westervelt avenue, was bitten on the left hand a few days ago by some strange insect. Now his left hand and arm are swollen to unusual proportions and the wound is very painful.

—One of the few chances left to spend a day at the seashore will be given next Tuesday, when the Crescent Avenue church and Sunday-school will go to Asbury Park. This is a most desirable time in the summer to take a day off.

—A party of some sixteen or eighteen fishermen left North Plainfield at 1 o'clock this morning for Perth Amboy. So when they return tonight the town will be flooded with both fish and fish stories.

—Daniel Taynor, of North Plainfield, while fishing for porgies at Amboy a few days ago, caught on his hook a young shark which was 25½ inches in length. The shark is being stuffed by a local taxidermist.

—One of the Swift Beef Company's teams became frightened at a water wagon on Park avenue this morning, and started to run away. The team did not get over a hundred yards away, however, before they were captured.

—P. McCee McClinot, of Duer street, extreme northwest, says the present hot wave here is nothing compared to Panama, where the thermometer oftentimes registers 160 in the shade. So far as hot weather is concerned Panama only beats Plainfield by 20 degrees.

—Fishermen from this city report a heavy run of porgies at Sandy Hook. Yesterday Henry Widemeyer, of North Plainfield, and a party of friends, went out in a catboat and landed over 125 fine porgies, besides a number of larger fish.

—The Union and Middlesex County Traction Completed the entire line yesterday from Rahway direct to Boynton Beach. The first car was operated to Boynton Beach from the Sewaren station at 3:45 p. m., and went through without a hitch.

—A. D. Thompson's building at Muhlenberg place and South Second street has been vacated by H. S. Hartwell, who has gone to Dunellen, and George Martin, of Neshanic, one of his farm overseers, has moved into the building. Mr. Martin arrived in town Saturday.

—James Frisby, the mailcarrier, performed a manly act at the North Avenue station this morning. As the 7:58 fast train was approaching a lady was crossing the track to board the cars standing on the opposite side, as she did not see the train coming Mr. Frisby gallantly rushed to the lady's rescue and helped her on the car just as the engine sped by.

—A farmer, unknown, residing a few miles out of the city, came to town yesterday morning for the purpose of joining the Catholic church excursion. He drove in with a farm wagon and evidently thinking it would be all right, left his rig on North avenue, near the station. The attention of Roundsman Mattox was called to the rig, and it was removed to Roberts' livery stable.

Julius Guttman, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. Guttman, of West Second street, is spending two weeks with his uncle in Newark. On his return, a daughter, Miss Hannah, will go there for a three weeks stay.

Rev. P. S. Gibson, pastor of Mt. Olive Baptist church, was to leave for the South on the 1:17 train this morning, but he was detained over on account of the marriage of Mrs. Rosa Stout and John Venable, which was announced for last night, being postponed.

Charles Mulholland, of Somerville, sporting editor of the Unionist-Gazette and an all-round good fellow, was a welcome visitor to the Press composing rooms yesterday. Mr. Mulholland is interested in the Bound Brook and Raritan street railway, and he greatly admired Plainfield's model system.

THE OWNERSHIP FIXED.

AN IMPORTANT SUIT TRIED AT WASHINGTONVILLE YESTERDAY.

A Compady Gets a Judgment and Try to Levy on Property Which Belonged to the Mother of Man Under Prosecution.

Several years ago Moller & Company, of New York, dealers in fertilizing material, brought a suit against Gerard H. Underhill, of Washington Valley, in Justice Crosley's court to recover the sum of $120, the price of three tons of fertilizing material. Lawyer S. S. Swackhamer represented the New York firm. At that time judgment was given the plaintiff. Accordingly an execution was issued and Constable George Steward was authorized to make a levy on certain goods. When he attempted to make the levy Mrs. Underhill, mother of the defendant, claimed that the goods belonged to her and she refused to allow the goods to be levied upon.

This fact caused Lawyer Swackhamer to bring suit to prove right of property. The defendant secured Reed & Coddington and the case was tried before Justice Speer and a six-men jury at Washingtonville, yesterday.

One of the strong points made by the plaintiff was that if Mrs. Underhill owned the property why should her son produce a bill of sale showing that he had sold her the goods which defendant already claimed was her property. The jury composed of Geo. Bullman, Sam. Taynor, Mr. Coddington, Frank Mobus, Wm. Bicknell and Theo. Bartels, were out five hours and returned with a verdict for the defendant. The plaintiff will now take the case to the Court of Chancery for the purpose of having the bill of sale set aside as fraudulent. The defense made s strong plea and attempted to prove that the goods were owned by Mrs. Underhill. There was a large crowd of spectators present who were anxious to see Judge Speer try his first case. The trial was held at Demler's hotel.

SOUND MONEY IN NEW JERSEY.

Steps Taken to Organize the Anti-Bryan Democrats of This State.

A call has been issued by William J. Curtis for a meeting of New Jersey sound money Democrats in Taylor's Hotel, Jersey City, this afternoon. It states that the purpose of the meeting is to effect a temporary organization, to place New Jersey in a position to send delegates to the sound money Democratic Convention.

Mr. Curtis has assured himself, by conference with many leading Democrats in the State, that enough of them favor the nomination of a third ticket to insure the success of the movement. No State ticket will be placed in the field by the gold men.

The Honeyman Party.

The latest from the Honeyman party is that they were enjoying the best of health at Interlaken, Switzerland, and about to make an excursion to the Grindelwald glacier. They had no rain, save a slight shower or two, between Liverpool and Interlaken. The English coaching trip, and the visits to London, Paris and Geneva had been made in perfect weather. No accidents nor breaks had occurred. The party next visit Lucerne, cross the Alps to Italy and go to Venice, Florence and Rome. They subsequently recross Switzerland and go down the Rhine.

Williams Pleaded Guilty.

James Williams, who was recently arrested on the serious charge of breaking and entering Adam Dealaman's store, at Dunellen, on the night of Friday, July 3d, and who was arrested and taken to the New Brunswick jail for trial, was on Wednesday sentenced to State Prison for seven months. Williams, it is said, bears a bad reputation, and it is a surprise to many that he escaped with a sentence of less than two years. Chief Grant is in possession of the prisoner's shoes and hat.

Couldn't Change the By-Laws.

It was proposed to change the by-laws at the meeting of the Reform Club held last evening, but there not being a quorum present, the matter had to be laid over until the next meeting. The few members present discussed informally the condition of the club in a general way, and transacted routine business.

—The matter of having a new fire department house on Harrison street in the borough, will again come up for consideration at the borough Council meeting Friday night.

It doesn't matter much whether sick headache, billiousness, indigestion and constipation are caused by neglect or by unavoidable circumstances; DeWitt's Little Early Risers will speedily cure them all. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

A DAYLIGHT CARNIVAL

PLAINFIELD TO HAVE THE BIGGEST BICYCLE PARADE EVER ARRANGED.

All Business Men Interested, and it is Said That $1,000 Will Be Raised and Distributed in Costly Prizes.

"Grand Daylight Carnival" is the name chosen for what will undoubtedly be one of the largest, if not the largest, bicycle parade ever held in this country. It will be held in this city Saturday afternoon, Sept. 5th, at 3 o'clock, and plans are now under way to make the event one of triumph in the bicycling world. The original committee met last night at F. L. C. Martin's cycle store and the enthusiam manifested was something remarkable, considering the warm weather. Those who compose the committees are among Plainfield's best business men, and there can be no doubt as to the success of the event. It was decided to invite all cycle clubs and riders within a radius of fifty miles, and as an inducement for them to come and join the parade elegant and costly prizes will be offered, including diamonds, jewelry, etc. Great care was exercised in the selection of committeemen, and they will all do their best to give Plainfield such a time as it has never seen before.

Nearly $1,000 has been subscribed toward the carnival, and there has scarcely been any effort made toward collecting money. There is a grand opportunity for Plainfielders, especially the business portion, to give the city a far-famed reputation, as there will be thousands of strangers in town that day.

Surely, Saturday, September 5th, will be a gala day for Plainfield, and nothing remains now but for everybody to put their foot to the wheel and give it a push that will count. Let everybody do something, no matter how little, and the result will be recorded in history as one of the greatest of events. Hereafter the meetings will be held in the Board of Trade rooms.

The next meeting will be held Thursday evening, August 13th, at 8:30.

Below will be found the officers and committees: Chairman, J. Fred MacDonald; secretary, F. R. Stevens; Treasurer, Edward White.

Finance committee—Edward White, J. Fred MacDonald, T. J. Carey, L. B. Woolston, H. H. Coward.

Parade and invitation—F. L. C. Martin, Nate Titsworth, Chas. B. Morse, J. Hervey Doane, L. G. Timpson, F. R. Stevens, M. F. Elderton, C. C. Lister, Thos. H. Cuming.

Prize—L. G. Timpson, Ed. White, J. Hervey Doane, S. P. T. Wilbur, C. W. Runyon.

Advertising—C. B. Morse, L. G. Timpson, Edward White, M. F. Elderton, H. J. Martin.

Entertainment—H. E. Rider, W. L. Price, H. J. Martin, W. H. Rogers, T. J. Carey, John Vetterlein.

Transportation—J. A. Haynes, L. B. Woolston, Thomas Hanna.

Police—Sergeant Kiely, Roundsmen Frederickson and Mattox.

FRACTURED HIS ANKLE.

F. B. Thorn Sustained a Severe Injury in Getting Off a Train.

F. B Thorn, of 333 East Third street an engraver for the American Bank Note Company, New York, sustained an injury last evening, while returning from New York, which will confine him to the house for several weeks. He left Jersey City on the 5:30 train, and when he reached Plainfield he failed to recognized that he was home.

He was carried to Grant avenue, and hastily attempted to alight from the train. In doing so he slipped and two bones just above the ankle were fractured. The agent assisted him to the station, where it was learned that the bones were fractured. Mr. Thorn's family were notified immediately and a carriage was dispatched to bring him home. Dr. Boone was called and treated the injury properly. Mr. Thorn suffers considerable pain, but is doing as well as can be expected.

One Cool Place, Anyway.

It may have a consoling effect upon sweltering humanity to know that the excursionists on St. Mary's church excursion to Glen Island, yesterday, were so cool sailing up the river that spring overcoats were in order. On the way home, however, old "Hugh Mid," was along, and the trip was an exceedingly hot one.

—At the meeting of Miantonomoh Tribe, I. O. R. M., this evening, there will be one adoption and an excellent programe will be rendered in the good of the order.

REED RENOMINATED

The Enthusiasm Shown Surprised Even His Greatest Admirers.

PEOPLE TURNED OUT IN RAIN AND MUD

Fully 2,000 Persons Packed the Convention Hall at Portland—He Made a Short Speech Declaring the Importance of the Currency Issue.

Portland, Me., Aug. 7.—Although there has never been the slightest doubt about the renomination of Thomas B. Reed for congress, yet the enthusiasm displayed by the republicans at the First district convention must have surprised the speakers' most ardent admirers. Through a pouring rain and with the roads leading into the city from the surrounding country well nigh impassable from mud, farmers and delegates from all over the district turned out by the hundreds, and, together with the citizens of Portland, packed the convention hall to the doors. It was estimated that there were at least 2,000 persons present in the hall when the chairman of the district committee, Emory C. Brewer of Freeport, called the convention to order. Wilford G. Chapman was introduced as the temporary chairman of the convention, and in taking the chair referred to the great interest with which the proceedings of the convention were being watched all over the country. He expressed regret that Mr. Reed was not the presidential candidate of his party. J. T. Davidson, from York county, nominated Mr. Reed, E. C. Reynolds of Portland seconded it, and a motion to make the nomination by acclamation was carried amid great applause, and in response to loud calls for Mr. Reed a committee was sent to bring him before the convention. He was escorted to the platform. He thanked the convention for the unanimous nomination, and added:

Mr. Reed's Speech.

"We in Maine have got to make up our minds on the great issues of this campaign, and a great deal depends on what we do in September. When we see two men standing on a corner and both men seem uneasy and unable fully to comprehend what they are talking about, you may rest assured that they are talking about the currency. I shall not attempt fully to explain the currency question to you but I shall say something about it. We often hear that silver was demonetized in 1873, stealthily and by the influence of foreign emissaries. As a matter of fact, the Congressional Record of that date had 196 columns of speeches on the silver question, and the foreign emissaries had nothing to do with it. No fraud or wickedness was practiced in 1873. The only question is what monetary system is the best? You hear a great deal about bimetallism. The platform of the Chicago convention was not a bimetallic platform and don't let them try and make you believe that bimetallism is what they are after. The democrats talk about the fall in prices of cotton and wheat because gold has appreciated in value. My friends, every one in this country, even the farmers, are liable to meet with some trouble in their business. More people go into the business and the profits of the business decrease because there are so many to divide them. Why has wheat gone down? Not because silver was demonetized but because Russia and Argentine republic are raising millions of bushels of wheat and they can sell it here as cheap as our farmers can. Now we will always have money even if we demonetize every dollar of gold and silver in the world. And we may have silver money, perhaps, but are you any better off if you have your property reckoned in half dollars as it will be on a silver basis, rather than in dollars as it is at present. No, we don't want silver because the road is a thorny one to travel, and after you travel it it will be still more thorny and rougher. Credit plays a great part in the silver question. If your merchants buy goods from England you will find that credit amounts to a great deal, and on the silver basis we will pay a big sum for this credit This is why merchants do not want a silver basis. They say that on a silver basis you will scale down our debt one half. Would you do it and deprive the man you owe of one-half of what you owe him? Shall the nation do it? I say no, and not from sentiment do I make this statement, but from a selfish reason. We must preserve our credit in the world, and if we adopt a silver basis we will ruin it the world over. We want no silver basis to help us out of these hard times because the silver basis is dishonorable. Distrust brought on these hard times in 1893 and hard times will last until we turn down these silverites, and when we settle this thing for good and all in November we will hear no more of hard times." Following Mr. Reed's speech, the committee on resolutions reported a strong endorsement of the action of the St. Louis convention, pledged loyal support to McKinley and Hobart and to candidate for governor, Llewelling Powers, and the resolutions closed by pledging the first district to make Mr. Reed's election as nearly unanimous as possible. The convention then adjourned.

GOLD MEN ASSEMBLE

Many Present for the Indianapolis Conference To-day.

35 STATES WILL BE REPRESENTED

The South and East Not Unanimous for Another Convention, But the Majority of the Committee Favor Both a Convention and a Ticket.

Indianapolis, Aug. 7.—The delegates to the conference of the provisional national committee of the gold democrats, which will hold its first session this afternoon, began arriving last evening, and this morning trains brought in other delegates. The first to reach the city was M. L. Crawford of Dallas, Tex., and J. H. Smith of Fort Worth. The Texas delegates had little to say of the proposed conference, but from their inferences it may be said that they are not in favor of a gold convention. It is apparent that there will be not a little opposition to a third ticket coming from the southern and eastern states. "As for myself, I think a third ticket is a good thing," said Mr. Ballard of Atlanta, "but most of our people don't believe in it. They want to see the Chicago ticket defeated. The eastern people, so far as I can learn, feel very much the same way. Another point that holds them back, is that by declaring for a third ticket they might lose their hold upon the organization, and once they should lose that they would be practically out of politics. I want to make sound money speeches in the campaign, but I would rather do it in behalf of a straight sound money democratic ticket than for a republican candidate. I want to be able to look any democrat in the eye and tell him I'm as good a democrat as he is."

States Represented.

The arrivals assure a large representation of democrats, aside from the members of the committee. It is known that thirty-five and possibly thirty-nine states will be represented by committeemen selected from the following states: Alabama, California, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Carolina, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wiscousin. Aside from these, Maine Louisiana, and North Dakota are expected to send representatives. The meeeing of the committee will be held at the Commercial club, beginning at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and it is not likely that the committee will at this session determine anything further than the question of whether or not to call a convention. The situation in each state will be carefully canvassed before a conclusion on this subject is reached. While the sessions of the committee will not be open to the public not only the committeemen, but all of the sound money democrats who have come to the city, will be invited and their views consulted. If it is determined to call a convention, which is entirely likely, Indianapolis will make a strong plea for the gathering. A canvass made this morning of the sentiments of thirty-five of the committeemen shows that twenty-nine of them will favor another convention and ticket. The six who are opposed include Texas, Georgia, Alabama and three eastern states.

To Arrest Smugglers.

Montreal, Aug. 7.—The authorities have determined to take immediate action against smugglers of Chinamen or phenacetine into the United States. The secret service bureau has received information that fifteen warrants have been issued for the arrest of smugglers, some in New York, Boston, or elsewhere. The smugglers include white men, Chinamen, and several white women.

In Violation of the Raines Law.

Albany, Aug. 7.—Many compiaints are being received at the state excise department to the effect that cider is being sold in different rural sections of the state in violation of the Raines law. The department has held that fermented or hard cider cannot be sold in quantities of less than five gallons without a license. Special agents have been instructed to look out for these violations.

Erie Railroad Earnings.

New York, Aug. 7.—The Erie Railroad company, all lines, reports its operations for June as follows: Gross earnings, $2,618,091.41; increase, $167,680 40. Operating expenses, $1,877,923 35; decrease, $28,851.61. Net earnings, $740,168.06; increase, $195,866.01. Included in the expenses of 1896 is one-twelfth of the entire taxes of the year.

Matabele Warriors Routed.

Cape Town, Aug. 7.—The troops composing Plumer's column have utterly routed the impis or regiments of the big chiefs Sekombes and Umiugulus and three other impis. The engagement took place Wednesday. Major Kershaw and four sergeants were killed and fifteen men wounded on the side of the British.

To Buy New York City Bonds.

New York, Aug. 7.—A syndicate is being made up to take the $3,805,962.56 of New York city bonds which were not sold for when offered last week and which have been re-advertised. The syndicate will include the leading banks which deal in investment securities.

NOT AFTER JINNY.

It Is Settled, the Traveler Was Made Welcome.

I was riding along a country road in the vicinity of Memphis, when I came to a newly-painted frame house which gave such shining evidence of prosperity that it was an attraction to the barren landscape around it. A long, lean man, stoop-shouldered and ungainly, sat on a post in front of the spick-and-span doorstep, and held an old rifle across his knees, at the same time that he peered from under his shaggy brows in all directions, as if he were in ambush and expected to be surprised.

I wanted several favors at this man's hands, if possible, one of them being supper, another an invigorating draught of moonshine whisky, and finally, and the only demand I was certain of, a route to Memphis by that particular road.

"Evening," I said in as jocular a tone as I could assume. "Guarding the new paint?"

"Evenin', stranger," he answered, as short as pie crust.

"Could you tell me how to reach Memphis to-night?" I asked.

"Foller yer nose!"

"Then I am on the right road?"

"Git!"

He leveled his rifle at me, and my horse shied at the sudden movement. At the same time I heard a cackling laugh through the half-open front door.

I was disconcerted, but hardly alarmed, as it was evident that the man was nothing worse than a crank, so I assumed an air of injured innocence and asked:

"Do you take me for a sheriff or a revenue officer, because I am neither one nor the other?"

"No, young feller, I take you for one of them silly gentry as want ter come courtin' my gal Jinny, since they heerd tell that her mother's stepuncle, Job Morrill, left her a hunderd dollars in his will!"

At this moment the door opened wide, and the homeliest girl I ever saw in my life filled the space with her ample circumference. She smiled at me so sweetly that I felt it imperative to hasten on my journey or let the old man shoot me on the spot.

"Pop, you needn't be afeard of that un; he's sassy enough to look out fer hisself," she chirped.

"So be, mister, ef Jinny favors yer, and et ain't her money you be arter, come rite in and take suthin'."

Again my intelligent horse shied, and before I could control him I was half way to Memphis, and out of reach of the old man's gun and the inhospitable imputation of wanting "Jinny's" money.—M. Quad, in Detroit Free Press.

Just What He Deserved.

"Can I get anything on this watch?" asked the society burglar, as he presented a stolen chronometer at the sign of the Three Balls.

"About four years, I should think," replied the detective, who had been waiting for the missing goods to turn up.—Tit-Bits.

"Why is it?" "O, simply because Hood's Sarsaparilla has more real curative merit than any medicine I ever sold."

This is of daily occurrence in almost every drug store. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the standard remedy which has cured more sickness, relieved more distress and made more happiness by bringing people health than any other medicine. Its wonderful cures of the worst cases of scrofula, running sores, ulcers, salt rheum, etc.; of dyspepsia and other troubles where a first class tonic and aid to digestion was needed; of catarrh, rheumatism, malaria and other troubles arising from or promoted by impure blood, have made of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites, can be taken as easily in summer as in winter. Unlike the plain oil it is palatable, and the hypophosphites that are in it aid in digestion and at the same time tone up the system.

For sickly, delicate children, and for those whose lungs are affected, it is a mistake to leave it off in the summer months. The dose may be reduced if necessary.

We recommend the small size especially for summer use, and for children, where a smaller dose is required. It should be kept in a cool place after it is once opened.

THE REVISED EDITION

Mr. Bryan's Chicago Speech Ready for Circulation.

CHANGES SAID TO BE IMMATERIAL

Carefully Gone Over by Its Author for Alteration in Grammatical Construction, Punctuation, Etc.—Some of the Corrections He Has Made.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The first instalment of the revised edition of Mr. Bryan's Chicago speech has been received at democratic headquarters and will soon be circulated as there is an enormous demand for the document. The changes, it is said, have been immaterial and do not in any way interfere with the original text or change the sentiment. It bears the evidences of having been carefully gone over by its author for the alterations in grammatical construction and verbiage number 118. The work of revision, while quite elaborate, has been chiefly confined to the insertion or elimination of words, and the transportation of words and phrases. The grammar has been vastly improved and the whole speech smoothed over. Chief among the corrections made is a reduction from thirty to twenty years as the period fixing the time during which the republicans have tried to secure an international agreement. An entire new sentence appears at the conclusion of the paragraph in which Mr. Bryan defies the finding of a record in history where the common people of any land have declared in favor of the gold standard, this new sentence reading as follows: "They can find where the holders of fixed investments have declared for a gold standard, but not where the masses have." The extracts from the speech of Secretary Carlisle is quoted, as is also the closing reference to the "crown of thorns and the cross of gold," thus removing the charge of plagiarism that has been made in some quarters. The entire speech has been reparagraphed and much attention given to the punctuation. "The speech will be found," said Senator Faulkner, "to contain only such corrections as are needed to correct the errors that might naturally be found in a speech that had been taken down stenographically and not subjected to the scrutiny of the man who delivered it. There is an enormous demand for it, and we will endeavor to satisfy the people and give to it the widest possible circulation."

GEORGIA POPULISTS.

The Convention at Atlanta—Watson's First Speech of the Campaign.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 7.—When the populist convention reassembled at 10 o'clock this morning the indications were that the "middle-of-the-road" men had materially strengthened their position since adjournment yesterday afternoon. The session promises to be very exciting. Permanent Chairman Judge Hines, in his speech, outlined the position of the majority. He declared that the populists were today masters of the situation. He said he could not go the "whole democratic hog," and asked the populists "not to be alarmed by the very silly prating of the foolish chairman of the democratic national committee." "I beseech you," he said, "to put out a full electoral ticket for Bryan and Watson. It will not do to countenance Sewall, the democratic nominee for vice-president. If we propose to fight the national banks and great trusts, we cannot take a man who is identified with both." Numerous resolutions were introduced, all of which were referred without debate to the committe on platform. Several of these demanded the withdrawal of Sewall by the democrats, and took the position that nothing would be considered in the way of fusion on the electoral tickets unless based on Sewall's withdrawal as the condition precedent.

Watson's First Speech

Thomas E. Watson made last night his first speech since he was nominated for vice-president by the populists at St. Louis. He had an audience of 6,000 at the Moody tabernacle here. The audience was made up of members of all parties, but they were mostly third partyites. He said that there has never been known since 1860 such a "political upheaval as at present confronts the country. What caused it? Some say it is a demand for the free coinage of silver. That is partly true, but there are other things. This country is in revolt against Grover Clevelandism, which is the twin brother of John Shermanism. The people of the south, who have so long been trained to one opinion, have broken their party ties."

Texas Populists.

Galveston, Tex., Aug. 7.—The populist state convention late last night nominated Jerome C. Kearby for governor and H. S. P. Ashby for lieutenant governor by acclamation. There was a strong effort made to amend that plank in the platform referring to national politics so as to declare that the convention endorsed the action of the Texas delegates to the populist convention at St Louis, and announcing that Texas would not stand by Bryan unless the democrats accepted Watson as Bryan's running mate. The amendment was sent to the platform committee and will be heard from to-day.

Kansas Populists and Democrats.

Abilene, Kan. Aug. 7.—After a lively fight over the report of the conference committee, the populist convention yesterday afternoon nominated the electors named by the democrats at Hutchinson. In the fight for nomination of a congressman-at-large Rev. E. L. Bodkin, a Methodist preacher and lately a member of the prohibition party, was successful.

PURELY BUSINESS VISIT.

Mr. Hanna Wasted No Time During His Brief Stay in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Aug. 7.—Marcus A. Hanna's brief visit to this city yesterday was not a social affair in any respect, but a purely business matter in the interest of Major McKinley's presidential canvass, and the national chairman was engaged every minute of his stay here. Mr. Hanna arrived at 3:12 p. m. from New York, and had as company over ex-Congressman Butterworth of Ohio, who met him by chance on the train. Charles C. Harrison, the sugar refiner and provost of the University of Pennsylvania, met Mr. Hanna at the station and escorted him to the Stratford hotel, two squares away. Waiting to meet him were the following gentlemen: Ex-postmaster-general John Wanamaker, ex-minister to Russia Charles Emory Smith, editor of the Philadelphia Press; Thomas Dolan, the manufacturer; Rudolph Blankenburg, chairman of the subcommittee of the business men's committee; John H. Converse, of the Baldwin Locomotive works; Theodore C. Search, president of the National Association of manufacturers; Howard B. French, the wholesale druggist; mayor Chas. F. Warwick; Thomas McKean, a director of the Pennsylvania railroad; Gen. William A. Sewell, United States senator from New Jersey, and a number of other business men. All the above are republicans, but three democrats were present at the consultation. They were: William M. Singerly, proprietor of the Philadelphia Record; Joseph F. Sinnott of the distilling firm of Moore & Sinnott, and Frank Thomson, vice-president of the Pennsylvania railroad. After Mr. Hanna had been introduced by Mr. Wanamaker to those gentlemen present whom he did not know the consultation began. Mr. Converse was the first speaker. He explained that the object of the business men's national campaign committee was to cooperate with the republican national committee and assist it in the coming campaign by the raising of money for campaign expenses, the dissemination of sound money literature, and the establishment of headquarters for this purpose in the various cities in different parts of the country. Headquarters have now been established in Boston, and it was stated that Mr. Blankenburg would go to Chicago on Monday next to see some business men there and establish headquarters in that city.

No Money Subscribed.

The discussion became general, and the question of raising money for campaign expenses was talked over, but no subscriptions were made. Mr. Singerly said that the question of the present campaign was one greater than that of party politics, and that it was a question of preserving the national honor and financial integrity. Mr. Hanna said that he was in hearty sympathy with the objects of the association, and expressed himself as grateful for the help it would accord the national committee in its work. He stated that he thought of organizing some such committee himself, but it would not be necessary for him to do so. From 5 until 7 o'clock Mr. Hanna was entertained at dinner at the Union League club house by Silas W. Pettit, president of the club. About forty gentlemen were at the dinner. Mr. Hanna at 8:50 left over the Pennsylvania railroad for Cleveland.

Tickets for Bryan Notification Meeting.

New York, Aug. 7.—Over 16,000 applications for tickets of admission to the Bryan notification meeting at Madison Square garden have already been received, although there are only places for 9,000.

Mayor Pingree for Governor.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 7.—Mayor Hazen D. Pingree of Detroit was nominated for governor on the fourth ballot by the republican convention here yesterday afternoon.

Hot Day at Saratoga.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The temperature here yesterday has been the most excessive of any time this season, and accompanied by intense humidity. In the afternoon the thermometer marked ninety-five degrees, which, however, dropped to eighty by evening, with a cool breeze.

England's Cereal Crops.

London, Aug. 7.—In its second report of the season of the crops in Great Britain, the Times, taking 100 per cent. as representing the average, shows the condition of the wheat crop to be 106 per cent., that of barley a fraction lower, and that of oats 94 per cent.

Firemen Killed and Injured.

Trenton, Aug. 7.—By the falling in of the roof during a fire at the terra cotta works owned by O. O. Bowman & Co., Charles Wood was killed, Alexander Grugan was fatally injured, and John Stiefbold and Harry Kulp were less seriously hurt. All were firemen.

Deaths from the Heat.

New York, Aug. 7.—The torrid weather in this city yesterday caused a large number of cases of heat prostration. Only two, however, resulted fatally. There were also two deaths in Brooklyn from the heat.

Suspected Murderer Remanded.

New York, Aug. 7.—Jacob Levy, 18 years old, a waiter, who was yesterday afternoon arrested on suspicion of having murdered Annie Bock late Monday night, was remanded until this afternoon.

Steamboat Accident Report False.

Cleveland, Aug. 7.—There is no truth whatever in the report to the effect that an excursion steamer plying between this city and Euclid Beach park had capsized.

Conditions Favorable for Local Thunderstorms Tonight; Probably Fair Saturday; Slightly Cooler Saturday Morning.

At 2 o'Clock Leggett's Thermometer Registered 96 Degrees.

Senator Bradley, of Asbury Park, declares that he is out of all kinds of politics.

Ex-Congressman J. Nelson Pidcock, of the Fourth District, is preaching free silver to the farmers of Hunterdon county.

John Kean has erected a large flagpole at his home in Union county, and this is understood to be a formal declaration of his gubernatorial candidacy.

Only coin and greenbacks are legal tender. A creditor is not compelled to receive either silver certificates or national bank notes in payment of a debt. A depositor in a national bank or trust company is not obliged to accept either silver certificates or national bank notes in payment for a check presented by him in order to close out his account.

There is plenty of good timber in the Senatorial domain of the Republican party in this county for this fall's cutting. Among those we have heard mentioned for this high office are Peter J. Staats, one of the best known of Franklin township farmers; Hon. C. S. Hoffman, of Bridgewater, the prominent coal merchant, and Hon. Charles A. Reed, who served the county well in the Assembly last year. Here is a chance for a good choice, and the man chosen will win.—Unionist-Gazette.

DUNELLEN.

Miss Libbie Dennick is entertaing her sister, Mrs. Gildersleeve, of New York.

NEW MARKET.

Mrs. Mechnitts and daughter, of Jersey City, are visiting J. Dunn.

Miss Emma Nelson and her sister, Mrs. Harry Rand, are enjoying the sea breezes at Asbury Park for two weeks.

Mr. Schenck, of Brooklyn, who has been visiting Harry Rand, has returned home.

Constable A. Van Arsdale, of Piscataway township, has sent in his resignation from that office.

C. L. Rogers new house is nearing completion, the carpenters being almost ready to put the roof on.

Accused His Son and Then Went His Bail.

Peter Hoagland, the sixteen-year-old son of George Hoagland, of South Bound Brook, was taken to the Somerset county jail on Friday under commitment by Justice Brampton for attempting to assault with a knife and threatening to kill his father. The father figured as the complainant. On Monday the senior Hoagland came to the jail and inquired what his son was charged with. When informed of the nature of the commitment he declared it was not true and became bondsman for his son to the extent of $1,000, and the latter was released.

A Distressing Death.

The funeral of William Frey, whose body reached here from Poughkeepsie, N. Y, yesterday afternoon, will take place from the home of his mother, No. 213 Plainfield avenue, tomorrow morning. He had been ailing for some time past from heart and dropsical troubles, and his sudden death is more distressing from the fact that he was soon to have been married to an estimable young woman in this city.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints.—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Fredericktown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

SEEKING HIS FREEDOM.

Efforts Being Made to Secure the Pardon of an Unfortunate in Prison.

Efforts are being made in Westfield to obtain the pardon of Peter Felter, who is an inmate of the State prison. He is a German, sixty-two years of age, and has been known throughout the county for many years as a peculiar character. Shortly after the Franco-Prussian war he made himself notorious by his denunciations of Bismark and his policy, and at the time was considered insane.

In 1873 Felter was sentenced to eight years in prison for entering a store. He served his time, and, on allowance for good behavior, was released in 1879. He went from Trenton to Newark, and was concerned in a row in which an officer was shot in the hip. The other participants accused him, and, although he denied the charge, he was sentenced for a term of twenty-one years. This sentence would have expired a week ago last Wednesday if the due allowance had been made for good behavior. But Felter has not behaved himself. His peculiar ways have been continued ever since he went to prison, and by his infractions of prison rules he has sacrificed considerable of his time. His friends have known this, and in their petition they have asked that the Board of Pardons overlook his weakness. Principal Keeper Moore says that the misbehavior took place under the administration of Keeper VanHouten, and that unless the Board grants the pardon he will have to stay in prison until April 14th, 1898.

The petition has been numerously signed and the old man's family have promised that if he is released he shall be sent to his old home in Germany, and that he will not trouble the New Jersey authorities again.

WESTFIELD'S CROP OF HOBOES.

They Scare Women and Keep the Neighborhood in a Worry.

Westfield is again being overrun with tramps. In the past few days and nights the constables have arrested several who rendezvous in an old red barn near a place called the Ripley Sprouts, at Garwood, about a mile from Westfield. Unless the tramps can give a pretty good account of themselves they are taken to the county jail, at Elizabeth, and kept there a month or two.

Some of these fellows have nearly scared the life out of women.

The hoboes travel in parties of from fifteen to thirty; steal fruit and vegetables, and are very daring and abusive. It is estimated there are two hundred tramps around Westfield.

Sold for $80,000.

It is understood that the purchase price of the Hotel Netherwood, which has been sold to Dr. Robert Hunter, of New York, was $80,000, to be paid in installments extending over a period of years. The new owner will probably establish a sanitarium there this winter.

Urged People to Forget Party.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of Plainfield, occupied the pulpit of the Second Reformed church on Sunday. In the evening he referred to the perilous political situation this year, and urged people to forget party and vote for the best interests of the country.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The Y. M. C. A baseball grand stand will be in the shade tomorrow afternoon for the big game.

—Michael Dorgan is one of the several new motormen who are being trained into service for the street railway service.

—Bull Frog City has outgrown its name. Some of the residents there now claim it to be the "Colorado near Washington Rock."

—Doane & Edsall must have room for fall and winter goods, and they are now disposing of the summer stock at low prices.

—Judgement was given the plaintiff yesterday in the case of Dorwood against Arthur, which came up in Justice Newcorn's court.

—The test of the new fire bell in North Plainfield last evening was a decided success to many of the residents in the borough.

—The meeting of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., held last evening was for the purpose of hearing the report of the oommittee on rooms. Nothing definite was done, however.

—Game and Fish Warden Squires, of North Plainfield, accompanied by two other members, will make a trip through North Plainfield on Sunday in search of violators of the game and fish laws.

—The members of the Climax Gun Club will hold their regular monthly shoot on the club's grounds next Wednesday, when it is expected some of the crack shooters of the club will participate.

—The death of Edith Stelle, the infant daughter of Francis E. Marsh, occurred yesterday at Mt. Pocono, Pa. The funeral services will be held from 915 Madison avenue next Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock.

—Six dollars and thirty-one cents was the amount realized from Mamie Thatcher's open-air fair day before yesterday, and the amount will be turned over to the fresh air fund. The fair was continued yesterday.

—Aside from the sail on the delightful river, yesterday, the St. Mary's excursionists to Glen Island had but two hours there. They arrived at the island about 2 o'clock and the boat was chartered to leave for the return trip at 4, giving the excursionists about two hours on shore.

—W. S. Potter, of this city, New Jersey agent for the Carabelle Lumber Company, with mills on the Gulf of Mexico, reports that politics will have nothing to do with the running of their mills. The mills now are and have been running on full time and they are doing a big South America trade.

—Yesterday morning, between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock, thieves entered the home of Wm. Koehler, situated near Duke's Farm, Raritan, while the family were asleep, and removed therefrom a large number of valuable articles, including all of the men's clothing, several gold watches, some silverware and a quantity of other articles of value. The theft was not known until the men awoke in the morning and found that their clothing was gone. There is not the slightest suspicion as to who the thieves are. The matter has been placed in the hands of detectives.

Getting Ready for the Annveisary.

At a meeting of the Gesang and Turn Verin Society last night it was decided to close the German school during the hot weather. The anniversary exercises of the society will be held October 19th and preparations are being made to have a big time. Several societies from towns in this section will be in attendance. The following committee have charge of the affair: Ignotz Kohner, Louis Moraller, Henry Vogel, Charles M. Myer, P. Postler, Otto Keller and F. Conde. The society accepted an invitation to go on an excursion with the National Turn Verein Society two weeks from Sunday.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Mrs. Rhodie Noah, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of blackberry cordial but got no relief. She then sent to me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and diarrhoea Remedy and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhoea but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by T. S Armstrong, Druggist.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

ELM BEETLES.

They Should Be Given Pains In Their Stomachs.

Prof. John B. Smith, the entomologist of the New Jersey State Experiment Station, connected with Rutgers College, of New Brunswick, has devoted a great deal of time to the subject of elm beetles and how to exterminate them. The ravages of these insects have caused widespread regret in various of New Jersey, New York and Connecticut, particularly New Haven, over the destruction of hundreds of noble elm trees, and Prof. Smith was particularly busy last season explaining his experiments and advising precautions against the insects.

He has found that the pests are vulnerable to stomach poisons, and he makes his exterminator on the following formula: One pound of Paris green or London purple, mixed with 150 gallons of water; add a sufficient quantity of stone or shell lime, a pound for each pound of the poison; in order to give better adhesive qualities, add two quarts of glucose or thick molasses to every 100 gallons of mixture; when the water and lime have come to a boiling point, put in poisons. This formula will have no bad effects upon the trees, for the soluble arsenic is neutralized by the lime. Another exterminator prepared by the professor is: Lead acetate, 11 ounces; sodium arsenite, 4 ounces, in 100 gallons of water; add adhesives to the mixture as before; thoroughly stir and apply.

The cheapness of these preventives and exterminators is remarkable. A hundred gallons of the first formula, which will thoroughly spray four large elm trees, cost about 15 cents. Arsenite of soda in the second mixture may be obtained at about 8 cents a pound, and acetate of lead at 14 cents a pound.

One of Professor Smith's contemporaries has recommended an emulsion of kerosene as a remedy. This he declares ineffective because nonpoisonous.—Scientific American.

"Rapid Transit or Things That Go."

The triplet soiree to be given by the Women's Missionary societies of this city, to be held in Central Hall, corner of North and Park avenues, August 12th, 13th and 14th, promises to be one of interest and attractiveness. First, Because it represents the greatest cause known to man, the cause of education, and it is managed by a proper committee of persons who will guarantee satisfaction to all who come. Second, Because of the many attractions which will be in progress each evening which will consist of jubilee singing, recitations, cake walks and a pigeon chase, the person capturing it will receive an 18 k. gold ring. Third, Because it is to aid a most needy institution, the Normal and Industrial School at Way Cross, Ga., the only one accesible to 60,000 colored people. Fourth, Because it claims the interest of a class of men and women whom all the nation will bless for their philanthropy and patriotism. A class who watches the cause of education with charitable hearts. Fifth, Because C. L. Woodruff, of New York, will lecture on "Rapid Transit or Things That Go." Mr. Woodruff is president of the Children's Aid Society, and a fluent speaker, and Rev. A. A. I. Egerton will also speak. Subject, "Is the Negro a Failure."

Why is it,

if catarrh is a constitutional affection, as those claim who have a blood tonic to sell, that physicians, in extreme cases, frequently advise change of air and climate to those suffering from it? Catarrh is a climatic affection, and nothing but a local remedy or a change of climate will cure it. Ely's Cream Balm, in all cases of catarrh, is so efficient as to do away with the necessity of leaving home and friends, causing instant relief and a perfect cure after short continuance.

Don't trifle away time when you have cholera morbus or diarrhœa. Fight them in the beginning with DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure. You don't have to wait for results, they are instantaneous, and it leaves the bowels in healthy condition. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

GREAT IN MEMBERSHIP

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETIES ALL OVER THE WORLD.

In This Country the Presbyterians Lead With the Greatest Number of Societies—Over Two Million Members.

Now that Plainfield is so interested in Christian Endeavor affairs, the following will be read with interest:

Of the States and Provinces that now have each over one thousand Young Peoples Societies of Christian Endeavor, the Keystone State of Pennsylvania still heads the list with 3,273; New York next, 2,971; Ohio, 2,311; Ontario has now passed to fourth place, with 1,817; Illinois, 1,802; Indiana, 1,352; Iowa, 1,302.

The figures do not include the numerous other kinds of Christian Endeavor Societies that are now fast becoming sturdy branches of the mother tree, such as the Junior, the Intermediate, the Mothers' and the Senior.

The Junior "branch" claims our first attention. God be praised for its growth. It is said a root of corn will grow an inch in fifteen minutes, and the Junior branch bids fair to surpass that. There are now 10,084 Junior societies. Pennsylvania leads with 1,224, then New York not very far behind with 1,104; Illinois, 836; Ohio, 716; Indiana, 498; Iowa, 468; Massachusetts, 461; California, 442. Notwithstanding many of the States have made splendid advances in Junior societies. Pennsylvania will for the third time secure the Junior "badge" banner for the largest gain in number of Junior societies.

Next in numerical strength comes the Intermediate society. There are now 115 Intermediate societies enrolled, and many more of which we have no record. Illinois leads with 17 recorded. California, Indiana and Ohio each have enrolled.

All Canada has 3,292 societies, and in foreign and missionary lands there are now 6,399 societies enrolled. The United Kingdom has over 3,000; Australia, over 2,000; France, 66; West Indies, 63; India, 128; Mexico, 62; Turkey, 41; Africa, 38; China, 40; Germany, 18; Japan, 66; Madagascar, 98; and so on till every country in the world is represented, save three or four, making a grand total of 46,125 branches.

In the United States the denominational representation is as follows: The Presbyterians still lead, with 5,458 Young People's societies, and 1,077 Junior societies; the Disciples of Christ and Christians, 2,941 Young People's societies and 927 Junior societies; the Baptists, 2,679 Young People's societies and 927 Junior societies; Methodist Protestants, 975 Young People's societies and 302 Junior societies; Lutherans, 854 Young People's societies and 268 Junior societies; Cumberland Presbyterians, 805 Young People's societies and 289 Junior societies, and so on through a long list.

In Australia the Wesleyan Methodists lead, and Congregationalists, Baptists, Presbyterians follow.

Ten years have passed, and the "round million" (predicted by Doctor Twitchell) has been rolled up, and more, for there is today in the 46,125 societies throughout the world a total membership of 2,750,000. And the best of it all is that from our Juniors 21,500, and from our Young People's societies 210,400, have this year joined the churches of America. Praise God for that! In all, 231,600 have from Christian Endeavor taken their place in the church of the living God.

There is not a little difficulty experienced by wheelmen who are about to spend several days touring on their bikes as to the proper clothing to wear. The following advice by a veteran wheelman may not be out of place. He says: "When I go to places where I would not care to appear in the regulation uniform, and do not want to take the trouble to carry an extra suit, I simply wear the long stockings and an ordinary suit, turning the trousers up from the bottom with the folds inside wqile riding. It only requires a little time to unfold them, giving me the regular suit. The trousers may thus be shortened to knickerbockers without much trouble, and thus serve in the capacity of a riding suit.

three passengers, men, and they are coming this way."

Polly made no reply, but, leaning forward, looked eagerly at the men. They had been looking about them, but upon seeing her they came quickly forward, and as they approached one of them called: "Hello, Polly!" and then each one said: "Hello, Polly!"

Several of the townspeople were within hearing, and they loitered near to see what might follow. Polly spoke to the strangers, and then requested Nell to walk on, that she would overtake her. Nell hesitated. "Won't you please walk on?" Polly insisted. "I'll soon catch up with you."

Nell obeyed, though not without muttering an objection, and Polly stood in the road, talking to the strangers. What could it mean? Why were they so familiar with her and why should she desire to see them alone? They turned and slowly walked toward the stage coach, which was to go out again at once, to take passengers to the railway ten miles distant, and Polly talked to them in low tones and then they all nodded and smiled. Nell and the villagers were watching them, and so was old man Aimes, and just as the three men had seated themselves in the coach, the old man, commanding the driver to wait a moment, walked up to the door and said:

"I am the mayor of this town."

"Sorry for you," one of the men replied.

"Well, by Satan's hoofs, I like that, but excuse the expression for it's the strongest I ever did use; but what do you mean by sneakin' in here without lettin' anybody know you was comin' an' sneakin' out again without lettin' anybody know why you did come? Now what have you got to say?"

"MISS POLLY, WHAT DO IT MEAN?"

"Shut the door, old man. Tra loo."

"Wait!" the old man commanded. "Who are you and what did you want with this young woman?"

"Go on, driver. So long, old top." And off they went.

"Miss Polly," said the old man, turning toward the editor, "what do it mean?"

"Your shirt collar is unbuttoned again," was all she said.

CHAPTER II.

That evening in the house of old man Aimes there was a silent supper party. Nell's flowing friendship had been rudely checked and a sharp heel had been set upon the old man's dignity. And it looked as though a coolness must necessarily follow. The strangers had brought a mystery with them and had left it in the village, and in this mystery stood Polly Lopp.

Not a word had been spoken. Polly arose to leave the table. Nell looked up and her countenance was sorrowful, not so much that there might be a compromising mystery, but that it was kept dark from her.

"Goin', Miss Polly?" Aimes asked.

"Yes, I am through with my supper."

"But wait a moment. Now there's no need of foolishness between us; we are your friends and you ought to speak out. Them men comin' here and bein' so familiar like with you will cause a scandal, and it's for me to determine as the mayor of this town whether or not I can stand by you. But first you must tell me—never mind about my shirt bein' unbuttoned and all that sort of thing—you must tell me somethin' about them men. Now will you?"

"Yes. They came and they went away. That is all you need to know."

"Not be a slackerin'—excuse my strength—no, it ain't. Where did you know them?"

"I might have met them in a city."

"Hah, what's that? Might have met them in a city, but why? That's what I want to know. Didn't you hear one of them refer to me as 'old top,' and I've been ten years mayor of this town? Hah, didn't you hear that? And why, then, should you have met them in a city, or anywhere else?"

"When I probably met them years ago perhaps I was not aware that they were going to refer to you as 'old top.'"

Nell laughed, and the old man scratched his head. "Well, now, we'll say that you couldn't help meeting them," he went on, "but we can't say that you had to become so well acquainted with them as to let them call you Polly. I gad, I don't call you Polly, and I'm the mayor of this town and have been for ten years this comin' July, I gad. Hope the Lord will in the meantime excuse both I gads. Hah, now answer me that, will you?"

"All that you need to know, Mr. Aimes, you shall know in time."

"Hah, in time? But what will the people of this town think when they come to me to find out and I put them off with your sayin' that they shall know in time? I gad, miss, when the people of this town want to know a thing there ain't no sich thing as time—the whole scheme is an eternity until they find out, and unless they find out before the next election I'm beaten as sure as a horn, and I've been mayor so long now that I can't quit. Set down here now and tell us, won't you?"

"Not this evening. Nell, I'm going out into the garden."

Polly was sitting in the summer house when Nell joined her. They were silent for a time and then Nell said: "I am so sorry that anything should have happened. I was as happy as I could be until then. Tell me, dear, what it all means, and I'll promise to stand by you, no matter what it is, for I do think so much of you. I do, Polly, I love you, in fact, and now it does grieve me so to have anything come between us."

Polly took her hand and, holding it, replied: "There are many features of life in a city, and some of them might seem strange to you. That I should have become acquainted with those men was a happening; that they should have come to this place is another happening, and neither happening amounts to enough to cause any real uneasiness on the part of my friends. So I beg of you not to let it worry you."

"Oh, it doesn't worry me so far as I am concerned, but what will the people say? Indeed, what won't they say?"

"Nell, the view and the opinion of a village are necessarily narrow; here people are suspicious of strangers and are ever on the lookout for an opportunity to suspect one another, so it would be quite impossible for me to make an explanation that would be satisfactory to them."

"But, my dear Polly, you can make an explanation that will be satisfactory to me."

"Not now, my dear, but after awhile I will. Your father is calling you."

The old man stood at the garden gate, whooping the name of his daughter, and when she had come to him, having left Polly sitting on a bench in the summer house, the old fellow said: "Nell, go it into the house and stay there till I come, and when I do come I may have some mighty interestin' news for you."

The girl passed on without replying, and the old man joined Polly in the summer house. He sat down on the bench near her, fanning himself with his straw hat, and it was some time before he spoke.

"Hotter'n it was last night," he said.

"Hotter than it was night before last, I think," the woman replied.

"I gad, I guess you're right. You always raise me one; must have played poker in your time."

"But if I were to play poker I might not always raise; I might sometimes simply call."

"Gad, I believe you have played; but that ain't what I want to talk about. See this?" He touched his shirt collar and it was fastened with a horseshoe nail. "Been a threatenin' to git it for a long time and got it jest now in honor of you, don't you see? But it ain't nothin' to laugh at. Will you let me tell you somethin'?"

"Yes, I am going to sit here a few moments longer."

"Don't exactly like the way you put it, but I reckon it's all right." He was silent, fumbling with the nail at his collar; he sighed deeply, threw his hat on the ground, thrust his hands into his pockets and leaned back against the vine-woven lattice work. And in the twilight she could see that his face was hard-set and his countenance eager.

"What were you going to tell me?" she asked.

"Somethin' powerful important to both of us, but you'll have to let me git at it in my own round-about way. By this time the whole town is discussin' the fact that three men, strange men at that, come here and called you Polly. And mebbe in the mornin' they will tell you that you better git out. Then what?"

"I'll tell them to go to a place not on the school maps, but well located in spiritual geography."

"I gad, that's the way to talk to avoid strength, but it won't do to tell 'em no such a thing. There is a way by which the whole affair may be made smooth."

"It is smooth enough now," she replied.

"I'll be dinged if it is; it's as rough as a toad's back; but we can smooth it. Now here," he leaned toward her. "I say now here, you marry me and the whole affair will be settled, for they won't dare to talk about the wife of the mayor of this town. Hah, what do you say? You see that I've got about the best place around here, and I was down the creek yesterday evenin' and that corn is goin' to turn out monstrous, hah? You can go right down to the store and trade out ten dollars' worth at a snort, hah? Then Nell can help you right along in the printing office and it shan't cost you a cent. As I told you once before, you ain't so powerful good lookin'. Your face ain't got that saft look that it ought to have, but we can't expect everything of a woman from the city, you know. Oh, I know I'm gittin' old, but I bet a dollar that I can jump over that I can pole right yander."

"I'll take the bet," she replied.

"Hah, what's that? You don't want to see me jumpin' round in the garden path at night like a toad, do you? Wouldn't like to have it said that you married a man simply because he could jump over a pole, would you? Look, don't you see I have got this here horseshoe nail jest to please you? Look how I am putting myself out."

"But you haven't told me that you love me," she said, and in the gathering darkness he could see her looking down.

"Haven't I? Well I do. Love you well enough to let you go to the store and trade out ten dollars' worth at a snort, and if that ain't love, hanged if I know what is. Yes, I even love you more than that—I'll let you trade out fifteen. Now what do you say?"

"Mr. Aimes," she said, and her voice was low and sympathetic, "your earnest pleading warms my heart toward you, and it therefore grieves me to tell you that I am engaged."

"The horn spoon you say! But who to? But not to one of them men, I hope."

"No; not to one particularly, but to all three."

"The off ox you say! But you can't marry all three of 'em."

"No, I can't; but I can wait and see which one I really want."

"Miss," said the old man, catching up his hat and arising, "you come mighty near being the blamest creeter I ever saw."

He stood there fumbling with his collar; he took out the nail, held it a moment in his hand, and then, throwing it away, said: "Thar, I have flung my love and your honor out into bushes. Good night."

There was a great deal of talk in the village, and at one time it appeared that the mite society, for whose benefit Polly had so ardently begged a nickel here and there, would issue an edict against her; but the tide was finally turned by the president of the association, a widow with a business eye. She saw that to cut off the newspaper was to throw away a valuable adjunct, and so it was agreed that Polly might remain in the society and rest simply under a mild degree of suspicion. The question was discussed in the church, but the preacher, strong in his belief that church notices and abstracts of sermons should be printed, called a determined halt.

How much longer the affair might have been discussed, and into what remote and executive corners of affrighted virtue it might have been dragged, it would be difficult to say; but the arising of a new topic put it all aside. And this new topic was one of real excitement. Not far away in the hills lived a gang of desperate men, the Abe Peters boys, they were called. It was known, or at least it was strongly suspected, that they had robbed railway trains. Determined efforts on the part of the law had failed to bring them to justice. It was believed that they had formed an alliance with the Dalton gang, but this their leader denied, and offered, on condition of a pardon for himself and friends, to help the officers bring the Daltons into court or to kill them. This offer was accepted. The Daltons were killed or so badly crippled that nothing further was to be feared from them. Well, after this the Peters gang fought off the temptation to rob trains, but could not forego the pleasurable recreation of riding into a village now and then and shooting out the lights. So, just about the time the talk concerning Polly and the three men was sinking to a mere whisper of dying scandal, the Peters brothers rode into Broomfield, shot the town cow, wounded the prowling hog and shattered a lamp in the meeting house. This was the greatest outrage that had ever been put upon that part of the country, and old man Aimes, with his shirt unbuttoned, puffed up and down the street and swore that if anyone would go with him he would ride after the scoundrels. But everybody was [illegible] The sheriff [illegible] his tax list, the constable wasn't feeling well; and while the citizens were discussing their inability to avenge themselves, Polly came up and said that she would go with Mr. Aimes.

"I gad," said the old fellow, looking upon her with admiration, "you'll drive me to the shop to get another horseshoe nail, but I think too much of you to see you put yourself in such danger. Let's wait awhile."

In the next number of her paper Polly scored the rascals, and this produced a scare. The people said that the Peters brothers would surely come back and riddle the town. And within a week afterward they did come back, shouting, galloping through the streets. In fright the people sought their homes. The marauders dashed about, firing. They galloped up to the printing office and fired at the windows. And then from the inside came a puff of smoke and one of the Peters fell out of his saddle. Then there arose a furious melee, firing right and left, but the steady hand within the office fired again and out of a saddle dropped another man. Suddenly there was a new excitement among the marauders, and from behind a goods box came the double roar of a shotgun. The Peters brothers, those not on the ground, ducked their heads and dashed away, and when Polly stepped out, Nell, with a gun in her hand, came from behind the box. "I was watching," she said, "and I thought you needed me."

CHAPTER III.

Three men had been dangerously wounded, and the law, now brave enough, took charge of them. Polly and Nell were heroines. The president of the mite society called a special meeting in their honor, and old man Aimes made a speech, with his shirt collar buttoned almost tight enough to choke him. Now it was declared that Polly should never leave the village; and it was also avowed that if she wanted to be acquainted with three men from away off somewhere it was her right, and that it was nobody's business if she had chosen to engage herself to them.

One afternoon Aimes called at the office and told Nell to go home. "Go right on now and wait there till I come," he said, thinking to whisper to her, but speaking loudly enough to be heard out in the street. "Yes, right now, and when I do come I may have a mighty interestin' piece of news for you."

Nell went out and Polly knew what was coming. The old man sat down. "Little cooler than it was yesterday," he said.

"Yes," she replied. "Cooler than it was day before yesterday."

"Gad, I reckon you are right. Say, do you ricollect that some time ago I told you about my field of corn down the creek? Well, you ought to see it now. Seventy-five or a hundred bushels to the acre. And you know that I told you that you might even spend fifteen dollars. Of course you ricollect it, for how could a woman and as brave a woman as you ever forget it. Well, I have been thinkin' the matter over since then and I have come to the conclusion that you may spend twenty dollars at a snort. Now what do you think of it?"

"But you don't owe me anything," she replied.

"No, but I want to give it to you, don't you see—give it to you to spend at a snort, hah? I want to marry you, don't you understand?"

"Mr. Aimes, you are too brave a man to throw yourself away."

"Now look here, don't come a twittin' of me," he said. "I was goin' to help you shoot them fellers, but, hang it, Nell took the gun and slipped away with it before I could get to the house I can't run as fast as I could at one time."

"But I saw you running through the street and a deer couldn't have been faster."

"You are right, and I was runnin' for the gun."

"But you were not running toward your house."

"No, of course not, for I knew that Nell had tuck my gun and I was goin' after another one. And it's a good thing for them that I didn't get it. But let us git down to business. I have been thinkin' the matter over and I have come to the conclusion that I can't git along very well without you and I know Nell can't. Why, look here, you ought to be a mother to that girl, hah? Didn't she risk her life to help you? And ain't such courage as that deservin' of a mother? It's easy enough to be a mother to her."

"Yes, but I can't very well be a mother to both of you."

"The horn spoon! I don't want you to be a mother to me; want you to be a wife to me."

"I think a great deal of you, Mr. Aimes."

"Bleeged to you, I gad."

"And I will break my engagement to those three men and engage myself to you for one year."

"Cut it down and I'm with you."

"All right, we'll say three months."

"And will you swear you won't fool me?"

"I'll swear that I will not break the engagement unless you are willing."

"I WANT TO MARRY YOU, DON'T YOU UNDERSTAND?"

"But here, you won't cut up no caper in the meantime that will cause me to draw off, hah? All right now, it's a go, and I'll tell that old woman to weave another rag carpet." He stopped at the door, turned about and remarked: "Ain't quite as chilly as it was yistidy."

And before she could reply he had lunged out into the street and was hastening to tell his daughter of his happiness. When Polly reached home, just as twilight was tangling itself amid the dead vines in the garden, she found Nell standing at the gate, waiting for her. The girl was nervous, and she opened the gate with a jerk.

"What have you told father?" she asked, when Polly passed through the gate. "Don't go into the house just

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable. NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

EXPORT OF FRUIT FROM SICILY.

Over $2,500,000 Lost in One Year by Importers in the United States.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Consul Caughy, reporting to the department of state on the fruit trade of Sicily, says that the season of 1895-96, now drawing to a close will leave behind it a record that will have no rival in the history of the industry. Over two and a half million boxes were exported, with an average loss of one dollar per box. The cause of this deplorable condition is an indiscriminate distribution of letters of credit among people who were absolutely irresponsible. This resulted in the shipment of fruit in enormous quantities. The heavy loss did not fall upon the shippers. While over $2,500,000 have been lost by importers and bankers in the United States since October last, there has not been a single failure in Messina. The remedy for the existing evils rests with the bankers and consignees, and that is the sending of inspectors to the ports of Messina, Palermo and Catania. Such a system will insure the shipment of better qualities of fruit to the United States.

THE TROUBLE IN CRETE.

English and German Disputes Over a Blockade of the Island.

London, Aug. 7.—The Times complains of the German semi-official press for denouncing and abusing Lord Salisbury because he refused to join in a blockade of Crete. It says: "It is not improbable that if a blockade had been started Germany would again have discovered that she had no ships available for the purpose. It is not dignified to stand aside and incite other nations to do what she is not prepared to do herself. To make Crete a cockpit in which opposing forces might fight out their quarrels would be a most efficient method of producing a European war unless the powers were most completely in agreement."

RIFLE MATCH AT FREIBURG.

Zimmerman Defeats the Best Shot in Switzerland in the First Day's Contest.

New York, Aug. 7.—A private cable dispatch received in this city announced that the rifle shooting contest between Gus Zimmerman, the "Schuetzen king" of this city, and Capt. L. Angehrn of the Swiss guards began yesterday at Freiburg, Switzerland. Zimmerman went to Europe specially to meet Angehrn who is regarded as the best shot in Switzerland. They are to shoot three days, 100 shots each day. The distance is at 1,000 feet and the shooting is off hand. The conditions are that the man making the most points in the 300 shots wins the match, which is for a valuable trophy. In yesterday's shoot Zimmerman defeated Capt. Angehrn by eighty points.

To Issue the New Naval Small Arm.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The first issue of the new naval small arm—the Lee magazine rifle—will soon be made. The contract called for the delivery of 500 of the guns by the last of this month. Of this number 300 will be sent to the Brooklyn. The arms as fast as received will be allotted to vessels to replace the old rifle now in use.

IN CUBAN DUNGEONS

Condition of the Prisoners Said To Be Awful.

RESULT OF A WOMAN'S INVESTIGATION

The Condition at Matanzas Also Said To Be Horrible—Cartloads of Decomposed Bodies Exposed in the Streets To Frighten Cubans

New York, Aug. 7.—Miss Cecil Charles, who has been in Cuba for a year collecting material to write a book, has arrived here. Describing her experiences, she said she was not molested all the time she was in Cuba till about a month ago. Then she found her mail had been tampered with, and she was suspected and watched by Spanish spies. During her wanderings she managed to get into Cabanas Castle, where she saw forty men in one cell, twenty-five by twenty feet inside. She also saw the Competitor expedition, including Laborde, Owen Milton, William Kinlea and Elias Bedia. The prisoners were in awful condition physically. Julio Sanguily, she said, was in a separate cell and was more comfortably quartered than the unfortunates of the Competitor crew. The condition at Matanza, she said, was horrible. Every day cartloads of dead bodies were brought into the city and allowed to be exposed to the sun until they decomposed. That was to scare the Cuban patriots. Havana, according to Miss Charles, is in a filthy and unhealthy condition. When she arrived there Saturday last the City of Washington was about to sail, and, knowing that she might be detained if she showed herself in the streets, she disguised herself in boy's clothes and scaled the side of the vessel from a small boat by the aid of a rope ladder. The vessel sailed at 3 p. m. and for several hours after that Miss Charles was a stowaway. Then she appeared on deck and was assigned to a cabin.

Matanzas in a Horrible Condition.

New York, Aug. 7.—Alexander G. Brice, United States consul to Matanzas, Cuba, arrived in this city last night from Hoffman island. He was detained there twenty-four hours for not having acclimation papers. Mr. Brice, when asked his views on the situation in Cuba, said: "I would like to tell you a great many things, but I dare not. You know my position, of course, as consul makes that impossible. Matanzas, as you have heard, is in a horrible condition. Outside of that I can say nothing." Mr. Brice has been in Matanzas for two years. He is now on a sixty days' leave of absence and will stay during that time at his home in Bedford, Ia.

MAJOR LOTHAIRE ACQUITTED.

Result of the Trial on the British Government's Appeal.

Brussels, Aug. 7.—Major Lothaire, who has been on trial here on the appeal of the British government, charged with illegally executing Stokes, the English trader, by hanging him in the Congo Free state for selling arms and ammunition to the natives, has been acquitted. The crown prosecutor made a four hours' speech, which was from beginning to end a complete justification of Major Lothaire, ending with a demand for his acquittal, which was accorded.

United Theatrical Managers' Union.

New York, Aug. 7.—The second meeting of local and traveling theatrical managers which was to have been held in Hoyt's theatre yesterday afternoon for the purpose of forming what is to be known as the United Theatrical Managers association, was declared off on account of the intense heat. There were few managers present, many being out of town, and it was decided to postpone the meeting until the weather becomes more moderate.

Rubber Mills Closed.

New York, Aug. 7.—The plants of the United States Rubber company in New Brunswick, N. J., and the Meyer Rubber company at Milltown, N. J., have been shut down, throwing about 700 persons out of employment. When running under full capacity the factories give employment to about 1,200 persons. The cause for the shut-down is slackness in orders. It is expected that the mills will be idle about a month.

Affairs of Cape Colony.

Cape Town, Aug. 7.—The premier of Cape Colony, Sir J. Gordon Sprigge, addressing his constituents at East London, said that the government proposed to attend to the defenses of the country and construct batteries at Algoa bay and Buffalo harbor as a contribution to the empire of which they formed a part.

Suit for Slander.

Boston, Aug. 7.—Edward Preble of Newton, who has just returned from his bridal trip, has brought suit for $10,000 for slander against Mrs. Celina Ransom, wife of Chauncey Ransom of Newton Centre and a Boston merchant. It is charged that Mrs. Ransom asserted to his wife's mother and sister that he had a wife and children living in Paris.

Ex-Gov. George T. Anthony Dead.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 7.—Ex-Gov. George T. Anthony is dead here, after an illness of three weeks. He was governor of Kansas from 1877 to 1879, after which he was appointed superintendent of insurance and held the office up to the time of his death. He leaves a widow and one child.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Thos. Hanna and Frank Randolph, both of this city, acknowledged as two of the strongest road riders in this vicinity, rode a new Hunter tandem to Springfield, Elizabeth and back, Tuesday, and made remarkably good time.

The wheelmen of Elizabeth are agitating the project of a cycling path to connect the new Staten Island ferry at Elizabethport with country roads that radiate from the upper part of the city. A public hearing was held on the question last night by the City Council. Prominent wheelmen spoke in favor of the plan. The building of the path would prove a boon to New York riders by opening up new routes, combining the Hudson County Boulevard, the Union county and Staten Island roads. The ferry is already well patronized by cyclists in spite of the fact that two miles of riding over rough pavement is necessary in order to reach the ferry from Elizabeth.

Most of the ailments which are commonly called "bilious" are caused by too much food of a rich nature, and too much drink of a sweet or alcoholic character, combined with far too little exercise in the open air. The liver attempts to get rid of the superfluous materials thrown into the circulation, and, being overworked, rebels, and gout, rheumatism, gravel, dyspepsia, headache, and constipation are the outward and visible signs of its inaction in those who live too well, a sedentary life. The prescription of a bicycle and the recommendation to use it wisely and well works like a charm in such cases, and in all the symtomatic ailments which arise from to much "acid" in the system. It is interesting to note that cycling sometimes has the effect of thinning the obese and fattening the thin and this may partly be explained by Murchison's observations that excessive leanness, as well as excessive corpulence, is often caused by inaction of the liver, and the stimulus of regular exercise, setting the functions of that organ right, causes the disappearance of what was only a symptom.—British Medical Journal.

The remarkable popularity of cycle racing this year has induced the New York State Division of the League of American Wheelmen to arrange for a fall State Championship race meet to be held at the Manhattan Beach track on Labor Day, September 7. The meet will be held under the auspices of the South Brooklyn Wheelmen and it promises to eclipse in general interest any meeting held in this district this year. As the meeting will be held on a popular holiday the chances are that a record attendance will be present at the track swept by ocean breezes. An interesting programme of races will be arranged, including the quarter and two-mile state championships. These two races alone will bring together the fastest riders in the state. Additional checking facilities will be made at the track so that all who go to the races a wheel will find ample accommodations for their bicycles. There will probably be a triplet and a tandem championship of the Metropolitan District among the list of contests. Every race held at the Manhattan Beach track this year has been a success from a financial standpoint, which is certainly an encouraging outlook for the Division. The bicycle policemen are anxious for a race, and if it is found advisable, a state police championship race may be added. Runs and entertainments galore will be arranged for the visiting wheelmen.

DOG RINGS FOGBELL.

Clever Canine Employed at the Wood Island (Me.) Lighthouse.

There is a dog up on the Maine coast which is a valuable and valued assistant at a lighthouse. According to the Portland Daily Argus the animal is the only dog regularly employed at any lighthouse in the district, and he performs his duty in a manner that is perfectly satisfactory.

He is attached to the lighthouse at Wood island, off Biddeford Pool, and has been there for a number of years. He is the constant companion of the keeper, and has learned much of the duties of one of Uncle Sam's lonely watchers.

It is customary for vessels passing Wood island to give three blasts of the whistle as a salute. At such times the dog runs to the bell rope, seizes it in his mouth and tugs vigorously. The dog never rings the bell except at the right time, and never misses ringing it when it should be rung.

Capt. Oliver, of the excursion steamer Forest Queen, was the first seaman to learn of the four-footed helper that the keeper of the Wood Island lighthouse had trained to ring the bell. Several hundred excursionists on the boat saw the dog tugging at the bell rope, and they afterwards made inquiries about the matter.

They learned that it was an old story with the dog, and that during a fog the patient animal rings the bell without complaining for hours at a time. He has never been known to desert his post, which is more than can be said for some of the men engaged to ring fog bells and tend lighthouses.

At nearly every lighthouse that guards the coast there is one dog, and sometimes the keepers have several. They help to while away the long, lonesome hours, and are almost as good as human companions. But, so far as is known, the dog pictured herewith is the only one that has proven to be of any real service to his master.

It is perhaps needless to say that the dog is highly valued by his owner, and money would not buy him. He is a mongrel dog, being more nearly a shepherd than anything else. No particular effort was made to teach him his duty. He "picked it up" from observation, and it took few lessons to make him perfect.

The animal is perfectly contented with his lot in life, and, as he is well fed and well housed, he has no reason to complain that he has been forced to leave off the usual habits of doghood and tug at the end of a rope to ring a bell which will warn mariners who have lost their way in a fog.

PICTURE OF A TORNADO.

It Does Not Look Very Terrible, But Is Just as It Looked.

The Engineering News prints the photograph of a tornado of which the accompanying cut is a reproduction, and says that it will be examined with especial interest at this time, both by those who have had and those who have not had the fortune, good or ill, to witness one of these terrible storms. The photograph was taken by Mr. T. Croft, a local photographer, at Oklahoma City,

PHOTOGRAPH OF A TORNADO.

O. T., at about four p. m. on May 14. The tornado was about six miles distant when the photograph was taken, and a rough computation indicates a probable diameter of the funnel of about 1,000 feet. The negative is, unfortunately, exceedingly faint, and the print would show the sky much darker than it does, but a tornado is a difficult subject to photograph at the best; in fact, most people who have witnessed one of these twisters have found other things to occupy their time than taking pictures of the threatening spiral. So far as known, this is the first actual photograph of a tornado ever published, and it is believed that only one other has ever been taken. This is referred to in Russell's "Meteorology" as having been secured at the Howard mines, South Dakota, on August 28, 1884, the cloud then being 22 miles away, and a rather poor pen picture is inserted in the book, drawn from the photograph.

Corporation Notice

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MACMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., August 5th, 1896.

An ordinance to amend an ordinance adopted by the Common Council June 2d, 1889 and entitled an "Ordinance to provide for the licensing, regulating and restraining of persons and vehicles for the sprinkling of the streets of the city of Plainfield with pure water."

The Inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. That the ordinance cited in the title to this ordinance be and is hereby amended by adding thereto the following:

Sec. 7. That every person or company licensed under this ordinance shall employ for the purpose of sprinkling the streets of said city wagons having the following qualifications:—a—Those employing levers and valves in sets independently operated or that can be jointly operated to any desired extent according to the grade or spray of water desired for sprinkling purposes. b—Those having devices capable of changing the grade or weight of spray instantly to suit the desired flow of water. c—Those having devices susceptible of change at either side of the wagon so that the same or different grades of spray can be simultaneously and independently used on only one grade at a time on either side of the wagon without waste of water time or labor. d—Wagons constructed substantially as above specified, and which shall be fully and completely acceptable to the Street Committee of the Council and to the Street Commissioner, or equivalent city officer having in charge the work upon the streets.

Sec. 8. No licensed person or company shall sprinkle any of the streets of the city with the use of any sprinkling wagons not of a character required by this section, under a penalty of a fine not exceeding twenty dollars ($20), for every offense, and in case of a second conviction, the Common Council may by resolution forfeit and cancel the license of the convicted person or company.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., August 4th, 1896.

An Ordinance to regulate house connections with city sewers.

The Inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. That no person or persons shall make or cause to be made any opening into any city sewers or drains for the purpose of making connection therewith, except plumbers or drain layers duly licensed by the Board of Health of said city, and no such licensed persons shall make or cause to be made any opening as aforesaid without first obtaining the written permit of the Street Commissioner of said city of Plainfield or such other person as the Committee of Common Council in charge of the sewers may from time to time designate, specifying the premises for which such permit shall be granted, and said openings shall be made under the supervision and direction of the said Street Commissioner, or such other person as hereinbefore provided. Any person or persons who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by fine not exceeding Twenty Dollars for each offense.

Sec. 2. That before the issuing of any written permission as aforesaid to any person or persons, there shall be paid to the Street Commissioner, or such other person as hereinbefore provided, to be by him paid to the City Treasurer for the use of the city, the sum of One Dollar for each and every permit, in order to provide for the expense of regulating the granting of such permits and inspection of the work to be done thereunder.

A Glorious Fourth.

First we bought a lot of rockets,
With an extra lot of whizz;
Then we emptied out our pockets,
Buying squibs and things that fizz,
Serpents, snakes and roman candles
With a dozen colored balls,
And some blue things on long handles
That they called "Niagara Falls"
Half a gross of cannon crackers
And a dozen monster bombs—
Regular old Barnum whackers,
Fit to use when Gabriel comes—
Half a hundred double pin-wheels,
Showers of sparks in every one,
And a set of wheels within wheels,
Warranted to dim the sun;
Red lights, green lights, blue lights, flashes
In profusion and a box,
Things that slowly burn to ashes,
Things that flame like Martyr Knox—
Just the dandiest miscellany!
One no carping crank could scoff
At—then, by George! the night was rainy,
And we couldn't set 'em off.

Independence Day.

Bang! Boom! Rattle and sizz!
By signs like these we know it is
Dear Independence day!
A smell of powder in the air,
A small boy present everywhere,
Engaged in mimic fray!

A trumpet's blare, a drum's loud beat,
A quaint procession in the street
Of little "minute-men"!
A cheer, a shout, a proud huzza,
And patriot "Young America"
Applauds the past again!

A bright, bewildering array,
Of "goddesses" in ribbons gay,
The colors of the free!
A nation's honored flag full-mast,
And in the heart, thank God, a fast,
Firm love for Liberty!

THE BOROUGH COUNCIL

STREET IMPROVEMENT RECEIVED CONSIDERABLE ATTENTION.

Work on the Opening of Watchung Avenue Going On as Fast as Possible, and Money Can Soon Be Drawn.

For some unknown reason the electric fans failed to work in the borough Council rooms last evening and the session was thereby made as short as possible. All the members were present except Mayor Hegeman, and in his absence, President Lounsbury occupied the chair. After the minutes were read and approved Clerk Arnold's report was presented. It is as follows:

	Balance.	Deficit.
Borough	$ 513.70
Fire Department	133.35
Lights	623.93
Roads	954 60
Poor		$77.74
	$2,225.58
	77.74
Total balance	$2,147.84

The sum of $23.44 was also reported as collected from fines, etc.

Collector Spencer stated in a report that $569 had been received by him from the county clerk for liquor and beer licenses.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company reported that the five extra fire hydrants were erected, as ordered, and were now ready for use.

The name of W. G. Emmons was submitted by Warren Engine Company for exemption, and notification was given of the election of J. M. Higgins and M. Rosenthe il to membership in the company.

Residents of Summit avenue asked for a crosswalk on their avenue at its intersection with Grand street. James Mair and others asked for an extension of electric lights on Mountain avenue from Farragut to Leland avenues, and on Farragut avenue from Mountain avenue to the other side of the bridge.

Residents of Coddington avenue stated that the avenue had been macadamized from Semerset street east, according to the ordinance, and they asked that the street be accepted.

W. E. Mattison reported that he had been elected a borough Justice and he asked that the priviledge of the borough court room be granted him whenever the occasion required its use. All of the above matters were referred to the proper committees. Mr. Woolston stated that Westervelt avenue was being macadamized, and that crosswalks were now being laid as ordered by the council.

The delay in regard to the laying of walks was caused by the inability of the contractor to get the stones. The street committee in a report stated that $402.63 had been expended on the streets during the last month. Mr. Peck reported that the Gamewell Fire Alarm Company had cut the flanges in the boxes, thus shortening the stroke of the fire bell, and that a test was made last evening which seemed every way satisfactory.

Mr. Peck thought the volume of tone was improving and he also stated that the fire apparatus is in good order. Mr. Lounsbury asked for information regarding the proposed new bridge over the brook which would join Watchung avenue when extended. Mr. Woolston stated that Mr. Barkalew of the Board of Freeholders had given him the assurance that the bridge would be erected. Clerk Arnold said that he had sent the letter to the board asking them to consider the matter.

There seemed to be a little doubt as to what the Union County Board would do, as it had been stated that they would not erect a bridge this year, while others had heard that they would. The matter will, however, be investigated.

In regard to a bill previously offered by Frank Hubbard for giving grades in the borough there seemed to be some hitch, but Messrs. Schutt and Woolston stated that the work had been done and Mr. Hubbard should be paid. Mr. Lounsbury protested against the bill, and cited one item in the bill of $17 for securing the grade to lay one walk. He thought the borough should have the grades, but he also thought the borough was paying enough to get them.

Mr. Valiant called up the ordinance regarding the vacating of Warren street, and on his motion the same was placed on its third reading and finally adopted. The ordinance will go into effect August 22d.

Mr. Woolston made inquiries regarding the progress toward opening Watchung avenue, and Counsel C. A. Reed informed him that the work was going on as rapidly as possible, and that the property titles were now being examined. Mr. Reed stated that in two weeks matters would be in such shape that warrants for the money could be drawn. The interest on the money began August 1st, and the

THE MAYOR ON FINANCE

MR. GILBERT TALKS TO THE YOUNG MEN OF MONROE AVENUE CHAPEL.

Explains the Uses of Money and How Its Value is Fixed by the Commercial Demand For It—Deprecates Free Silver.

Mayor Gilbert addressed a meeting at Monroe Avenue Chapel last night on finance, and said in substance:

He explained the early history of money and showed how mankind from time to time had used various substances as money, dropping one after another as the race grew in refinement and knowledge, until the use of gold and silver as money had become almost universal. He set forth very clearly the cause which led up to the demonetization of silver, and showed that instead of this being a great crime against humanity that it was brought about in a perfectly natural way.

He illustrated forcibly the idea that money should have value in itself, a value that is recognized in every place, and the capacity to hold that value through all the mutations of time.

No other kind of money would constitute a safe and uniform standard by which to measure the value of other commodities. Money, he said, is a measure of value, just as a yardstick is a measure of length, or a pound weight is a measure of quantity, or a bushel is the measure of capacity, and it is just as essential that the measure of value should be always and in every place the same, as it is that the yard-stick or pound weight or bushel measure should be.

If you knew of a storekeeper in town who is in the habit of using two or three yardsticks of different length, say 24 inches one day and 30 or 36 another, you would avoid his store for fear of being defrauded.

Now a dollar of our money as expressed by law is of the value of 23 1-5 grains of pure gold so that as a measure of value every dollar is equivalent to 23 1-5 grains of pure gold, and the laboring man who works for wages, or has money in the Savings Bank or has money due him from any source is entitled to demand that it shall be paid him in dollars each one of which shall be equal in value to 23 1-5 grains of pure gold.

Any man who seeks to compel him to accept a dollar of less value than this robs him of what justly belongs to him. The gold dollar is a safe measure of value, because it has in every place in the civilized world and at all times the same uniform value of 100cts. under free coinage system, the silver dollar would be a fraudulent measure of value because its value frequently changes to day it is worth but fifty-three cents, next month it may be worth still less. To compel a man to receive a silver dollar as the equivalent of a gold dollar would be to rob him of 47 cents on every dollar paid him. The laboring man who sends from time to time a portion of his hard earned savings to the old folks in the old country can easily calculate to what extent he will be defrauded if he will keep in mind this one fact that under a gold standard every pound he sends to the old folks at home costs him about $4.90 and under a silver standard it will cost him $9.80.

Summer Meeting.

The summer meeting of the New Jersey Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at Mt. Tabor, Wednesday, Aug. 12th. All members and friends of the Plainfield and neighboring unions are cordially invited to be in attendance. A programme full of interest and worth has been carefully arranged as follows:

It's No Snap, But Hard to Get There.

Letter carrying is no snap, especially at this season of the year. One letter carrier in particular is sorry he left a good job to be employed by Uncle Sam. He says in the summer it is hard to get around on account of the heat, and in the winter the snow, slush and cold weather is a detriment.

—Charles Runyon, manager for the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company in this city, is overseeing the setting of poles at Somerville. The company has 87 subscribers there now and the service is being equipped with new metalic arrangements. Manager Runyon says the service will be one of the best in this part of the country, and Charley ought to know.

BIG REAL ESTATE SALE.

An Out-of-Town Man Purchases a Business Block in the Borough.

Through the real-estate agency of J. T. Vail a large sale of property was consummated this morning. The property and building is located at the corner of Somerset street and Manning avenue, which includes the entire brick building and two stores, one of which is occupied by Julius Stahl and the other one is vacant. The purchaser is E. F. Titus, who is a stranger in town. Mr. Titus is a baker by trade and intends conducting a large baking establishment in the corner store.

The flats above will probably be rented and Mr. Stahl will no doubt remain where he is. It is understood that the money consideration was $20,000. Mr. Titus will take possession at once. John H. French was the owner of the property.

Theories of cure may be discussed at length by physicians, but the sufferers want quick relief; and One Minute Cough Cure will give it to them. A safe cure for children. It is "the only harmless remedy that produces immediate results." For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

DEATH FROM THE HEAT.

THOMAS AIKENS FOUND DEAD IN A BERRY PATCH YESTERDAY.

Had Been in Good Health, But the Sun Beat Down Unmercerifully on His Head and He Dropped in His Tracks.

This excessive warm weather has been the cause of much prostration among children and aged people, and one of the most affecting incidents was recorded yesterday afternoon, when Thomas Aikens, aged 80 years, who lives on Park avenue, just over the line in Middlesex County, was found lying prostrate in a patch of blackberry bushes. Life had almost left the body when he was discovered by one of the family. Dr. Simpson was hastily sent for, but when he arrived the man was dead. Mr. Aiken lived with his son-in-law, Samuel Johnson, and as the bushes were loaded with berries he thought he would try and pick a few of them. He left the house about 10 o'clock in the morning, and as he did not come home to dinner, something seemed to tell the family that all was not well and as the berry patch was not far from the house Mrs. Johnson walked to the place and there she was startled to find her father in a precarious condition.

He had not picked many berries and the intense heat must have done its work quickly. Mrs. Johnson informed the other members of the household, and Mr. Aiken was carried to the house, while there was yet life in the body. He was unconscious and in that condition he died soon after he reached the house, which was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Aiken was a man of good health, and only day before yesterday he was talking to Dr. Simpson on general topics of the day, when he seemed to be hale and hearty. He leaves three daughters married and one son also married.

Dr. Simpson sent word to County Physician Long, of New Brunswick, and the latter came over and granted a burial permit. The funeral was held from the house this afternoon.

FOR THEIR ANNUAL BATH.

Jersey Rustics Will Come Miles to Take the Plunge.

As today is the second Saturday in August, South Amboy is celebrating Salt Water Day. All the shops, factories and coal docks are idle, and the place has put on its best holiday garb.

People for a radius of twenty miles around began to flock there almost at day break, bringing lunch baskets and their happiest smiles. The people congregated in the groves and picnic grounds first, where they ate their lunch, and then spent a short time at shooting and games, after which all hands made a dash for the beach and took a plunge in the surf in honor of the occasion.

Salt Water Day there is held in greater reverence than any other holiday, Fourth of July not accepted. The town is now extravagantly trimmed with bunting, and fakirs swarm the streets with their wares.

NO MINISTER TO MARRY 'EM.

Rahway Lovers Gave a Reception, but Had to Forego Wedding.

William Mangin and Mrs. Mary Stull, of Rahway, have shown great enterprise in their efforts to get married. Still they have not succeeded.

They invited their friends to a reception last Wednesday, but before the affair they started to find a minister to tie the martial knot. The Roman Catholic priest of St. Mary's church, for church reasons, wouldn't unite them; the Episcopalian minister, the Presbyterian pastor, the Dutch Lutheran divine and two others were sought in vain, as all were away. In despair the lovers went after Mayor C. B. Holmes, of Rahway, but he, too, was away.

Then they temporarily gave up the hunt. They will make another attempt, however, and this time there will be no reception till they are really married.

At the First Baptist Church.

Rev. Dr. Yerkes, of the First Baptist church, is taking his usual vacation. During his absence the regular services will be held as usual. Rev. H. M. Lowry, of Rahway, son of Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry, will preach tomorrow; Rev. Edwin MacMinn, of Jersey City, on Aug. 16th; Rev. Mr. Bennett, a theological student, on Aug. 23d, and Rev. Arthur Crane on Aug. 30th. Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.; morning service at 10:45; evening service at 7:45, at which all seats are free. Church prayer meeting on Wednesday evening. Christian Endeavor Society meets Friday evenings at 8 o'clock.

It doesn't matter much whether sick headache, billiousness, indigestion and constipation are caused by neglect or by unavoidable circumstances; DeWitt's Little Early Risers will speedily cure them all. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

WANT A THIRD TICKET.

NEW JERSEY GOLD DEMOCRATS DENOUNCE THE FREE SILVER IDEA.

A Committee Appointed to Consider the Advisability of Forming a New State Organization Pledged to Their Interests.

In response to a circular letter sent out by William J. Curtis, of Summit, a number of prominent Democrats and business men from all parts of New Jersey met yesterday afternoon in Taylor's Hotel Jersey City, to consider the political situation. Some of those present have been Democrats for more than half a century. Among the conferees were ex-Senator Henry D. Winton, of Bergen county; James J. Parker, Perth Amboy; Judge John B. Green, Westfield; John Hone, Monmouth county; Otto Crouse, Robert Stewart, William R. Starrett, George L. Wilson, Jersey City; H. M. Bullington, Rutherford; M. V. Niven, Montclair; George Lichbridge, Orange; Hugo Munzel, Jr., Hilton; James Neilson, New Brunswick; Charles H. Baker, Montclair; E. H. Applegate, Monmouth county, and Dr. Karl Meyer, Newark. Mr. Curtis had a big stock of letters from sound-money Democrats in various parts of the State, who were unable to be present on account of the brief notice given, but expressed their sympathy with the movement. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Curtis, who explained its object. John Hone was elected chairman and Francis B. Pollak, of Summit, secretary.

Mr. Curtis said he was not a politician, but after the adoption of the platform and the nomination of the candidates at Chicago he thought it was the duty of every sound-money Democrat to do what he could to avert the impending disaster. It was for that reason that he sent out invitations to the conference, and the result exceeded his expectations.

"The Chicago candidates and the Chicago platform," he said, "do not represent Democracy, either past, present, or future. This movement is intended to enable every Democrat to vote for a Democratic candidate and Democratic principles. A third ticket will afford an opportunity to Democrats to vote conscientiously. It is necessary to take prompt action, so that the sound-money Democrats of New Jersey can act in concert with their western friends. The Indianapolis convention is waiting to hear from New Jersey."

A declaration of principles, prepared by Mr. Curtis, was adopted. It denounced the free-silver proposition and other features of the Chicago platform, declared for the maintenance of the gold standard, and advocated the retirement of the greenbacks. It did contain a denunciation of the income tax, but this was stricken out on motion of George Sumner, who thought it unwise that it should be included. The declaration further called for the nomination of a real Democratic ticket which could be supported by Democrats who would vote for neither Bryan nor McKinley. Wm. J. Curtis was selected for professional National Committeeman, and the result of the meeting was telegraphed to Indianapolis.

A committee, consisting of Judge Green, James J. Parker, ex Senator Henry D. Winton, Henry H. Hart and Joseph M. Stover, was appointed to select a State Committee and State headquarters. Mr. Applegate thought this action a little premature. He said that if the movement for a third ticket materialized it will be necessary to hold a State Convention to nominate an electoral ticket, and that convention will have the naming of a State Committee.

Charles H. Baiker, of Montclair, said that it must not be taken for granted that it would be necessary to call a State Convention. This was a movement within the present regular organization, and it was possible that the sound-money Democrats might control the regular State Convention and refuse to endorse Bryan and Sewall and the Chicago platform.

The committee appointed will report at a meeting to be held later.

CONVENTION CALLED

Gold Democrats To Meet at Indianapolis Sept. 2.

NEW PLATFORM AND A TICKET

Work of the Provisional Committee Quickly Performed — Thirty-three States Represented—No Hitch in the Proceedings.

Indianapolis, Aug. 8.—The conference of the sound money democrats fully met the expectations of its promoters. There were thirty-three states represented, and about 200 democrats from all over the country were in attendance. Though the most famous politicians of the party were absent, this did not dampen the ardor or determination of those present to go ahead and put in the field a ticket and platform that would represent what they believe to be the real tenets of the democratic party of the country. They did not indulge in great speeches or play at politics, but went at their work without waste of time in contests for honor or preliminary manoeuvring.

Arguments of the Third Ticket Advocates.

An informal conference was held at noon which was not open to the public, the purpose of which was to bring into line the members from Texas, Georgia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Maine, who came here with the impression that a third ticket would probably do more harm than good by dividing the sound money forces of the country. At this conference speeches were made by Gen. Buckner of Kentucky, Mr. Outhwaite of Ohio, Mr. Wilson of Indiana, and Mr. Ewing of Illinois, demonstrating the fact that in their states a third ticket was necessary in order that the sound money democrats might have some rallying point, something to fight for and to make a campaign for. They declared that in this section of the country where every inch of political ground has been fought over year by year there is more in a political name than in a political principle with the average voter and large numbers of democrats who would be inclined to vote for a sound money democratic ticket would swallow Bryan and the Chicago platform eventually rather than vote the republican ticket.

Work Quickly Accomplished.

Before the conference at noon ended, all opposition to the calling of another convention was withdrawn and it was agreed that the meetings of the committee in the afternoon and evening would be public. It was also formally agreed that Gen. John M. Palmer of Illinois should be made permanent chairman of the provisional committee. Talks among the delegates exhibited much confidence in the success of the sound money movement. Gen. Coxey of commonweal fame, created a ripple of excitement by appearing at the headquarters hotel during the morning. He is making speeches in the state for the populist organization and was simply over between appointments. The action of the committee was harmonious and was quickly taken. The afternoon session, which was presided over by W. D. Bynum, lasted but an hour, but in that time it was determined to call a convention and Indianapolis was named as the place. At the evening session the formal call for the convention was adopted and the date fixed for September 2.

The Call.

The following is the call issued today: A political party has always been defined to be an association of voters to promote the success of political principles held in common. The democratic party, during its whole history, has been pledged to promote the liberty of the individual, the security of private rights and property and the supremacy of the law. It has always insisted upon a safe and stable money for the people's use. It has insisted upon the maintenance of the financial honor of the nation, as well as upon the preservation inviolate of the institutions established by the constitution. These, its principles, were abandoned by the supposed representatives of the party at a national convention recently assembled at Chicago. The democratic party will, therefore, cease to exist unless it be preserved by the voluntary action of such of its members as still adhere to its fundamental principles. No majority of members of that convention, however large, has any right or power to surrender those principles. When they undertook to do so that assemblage ceased to be a democratic convention. The action taken, the irregular proceedings and the platform enunciated by that body were, and are, so utterly and indefensibly revolutionary and consitute such radical departures from the principles of true democracy, which should characterize a sound, patriotic administration of our country's affairs, that results are not entitled to the confidence or support of true democrats. For the first time since national parties were formed there is not before the American people a platform declaring the principles of the democratic party as recognized and most courageously and consistently administered by Jefferson, Jackson and Cleveland, nor are the nominees for the offices of president and vice-president of the United States pledged to carry those principles into practical effect. The faithful and true democrats of the United States are determined that their principles shall not be ruthlessly surrendered, nor the poeple be deprived of an opportunity to vote for candidates in accord therewith.

Therefore, the national democratic party of the United States, through its regularly appointed committee, hereby calls a national convention of that party for the announcement of its platform and the nomination of candidates for the offices of president and vice-president of the United States to be held at Indianapolis at noon on Sept. 2, and hereby requests that the members of the party in the several states who believe in sound money and the preservation of law and order and who are unalterably opposed to the platform adopted and the candidates nominated at Chicago will select in such manner as seems to them best a number of delegates to the same equal to twice the number of electoral votes to which such states are respectively entitled. Such delegates shall be duly accredited, according to the usages of the democratic party.

Pleased with the Outlook in the East.

Cleveland, Aug. 8.—Mark Hanna, who returned from the east, said to a United Associated Presses representative: "After a week's sojourn in New York, where I had plenty of opportunity to make a thorough canvass of the situation in the east and hear the statements of the various state leaders, I have come to the conclusion that the outlook for McKinley is very flattering. In fact, the situation in the east is less complicated than it has been and the prospects are brighter than ever before. Differences have been settled, misunderstandings explained and long standing wounds healed." "Has the last member of the executive committee been appointed?" "No, that matter is still hanging fire and I cannot tell exactly when action will be taken." "Will Platt have charge of the New York campaign?" "The republican state central committee will. I do not want you to ask me anything about Mr. Platt, for I am not saying anything."

Jersey Gold Democrats.

Jersey City, Aug. 8.—A conference of the sound money democrats of New Jersey was held at Taylor's hotel yesterday afternoon. The meeting was presided over by Hon. John Horne, and there was an attendance of democrats from all sections of the state. As a result of the meeting declarations were adopted denouncing the Chicago ticket and platform and praising the administration of President Cleveland. The resolutions closed as follows: "We, the sound money democrats of New Jersey, do herewith express our hearty sympathy for the third ticket movement now being inaugurated by our brothers in the west, and pledge to it our enthusiastic support, and we hereby name William J. Curtis as national committeeman, pro tem., from New Jersey, with full power to co-operate with his fellow members of the national committee in issuing a call for a national convention, or such other business as they may undertake."

Taubeneck in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—H. E. Taubeneck, lately chairman of the populist national committee, has come to Chicago for consultation with leaders of his party and the democratic party. He is confident that the populists of the whole country will vote for Bryan and has little doubt that satisfactory arrangements will be made for electoral tickets in all the states. In Illinois it is understood that four of the democratic electors will be retired and four populists substituted. It is also the understanding that at least one of the candidates on the state democratic ticket will be withdrawn and his place filled by the populist convention which meets next week.

For Union of Republican Factions.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 8.—Overtures have been made to reunite the "lily white" and "black and tan" republicans in Texas after six years' estrangement. The "lily whites" state executive committee met here and it was thought a deal would be consumated, but it was left as it stands by Chairman McGreogor, who is in a measure opposed to the uniting act on any propositions made. The action of the St. Louis convention in failing to recognize the "lily white" delegation was roundly scored. The factions of Texas republicans will probably unite on an electoral ticket for McKinley.

Burrows To Open the Illinois Campaign

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Senator Julius C. Burrows of Michigan was a visitor at national republican headquarters yesterday. He called on his way home to Kalamazoo from a short trip to Yellowstone park and announced his willingness to get into the political arena at once. Accordingly he was assigned to assist in opening the Illinois campaign at Jacksonville, August 18. The senator was also given an engagement to speak at La Grange, Ind., August 15.

Cleveland Denies a Published Story.

New York, Aug. 8.—In answer to an inquiry about the truth of a report published in this city Thursday that President Cleveland had made known his disapproval of the proposed third ticket, the president has telegraphed the following from Buzzards Bay to an evening paper: "It is absolutely untrue that I have given any advice touching the course of the Indianapolis conference.

"GROVER CLEVELAND."

To Form a National McKinley League.

Philadelphia, Aug. 8.—As an outcome of the conference with Marcus A. Hanna, the executive committee of the McKinley and Hobart business men's national campaign committee of Philadelphia has decided to form a national business men's organization.

Declined by H. Clay Evans.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 8.—H. Clay Evans positively declines to be a candidate for the republican nomination for governor at the Nashville convention on August 12.

The Heat at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Aug. 8.—There were thirty-one cases of prostration recorded by the police and three deaths in this city yesterday. The thermometer registered ninety-five degrees.

PATENT ITEMS.

A patentee may grant an exclusive right to another person to manufacture or sell his device within the whole or any part of the United States.

According to the patent laws of Switzerland, work on a peatent device must begin in that country within three years from the date of the patent.

A Spanish patent is subjected to an annual tax, the amount being assessed by government officials according to their ideas of the value of the device.

Oliver Wendell Holmes said:

"If all drugs were thrown into the sea it would be better for men and worse for the fishes."

Yet for the only drug which is at once a medicine and a food we are indebted to one of those same fishes. Dr. Holmes was hasty. "No known drug," says a high English authority (Dr. A. E. Bridger), "except cod-liver oil, has power to generate any force within the human body. The stimulants and tonics waste force and create weakness." Thus we see why of Cod-liver Oil with hypophosphites has, for twenty years, been the chief dependence of physicians in all bronchial and lung diseases. Scott's Emulsion acts strictly on the lines of modern medical practice. It does not stimulate, like alcohol and quinine, or stupefy, like opium and the bromides. It nourishes, strengthens and upbuilds the system. Being a true food (digested and absorbed in cases wherein other food only clogs the digestive organs, ferments, and poisons the blood), Scott's Emulsion arrests wasting, forms new flesh and tissue, revives the natural appetite and cures disease, conferring more life. For consumption, bronchitis, depleted blood, scrofula, etc., it excels all other remedies or forms of treatment.

What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

CLEVELAND STRIKE TROUBLE.

Hearing of Application for an Injunction in the Hoisting Works Matter.

Cleveland, Aug. 8.—The hearing of the injunction proceedings instituted by Wm. Stanley, one of the locked-out employes of the Brown Hoisting company, to prevent Mayor McKisson from summoning additional military and police to guard the works and streets in remote parts of the city; to compel the Brown compaay to keep the agreement made with the employes on July 27, and restrain the company from arming the non-union men, was begun yesterday afternoon before Judge Noble. Attorney Wing read an affidavit by Alexander Brown, vice-president of the Brown company. It stated that riots, disturbances and disorders had existed to the danger of the life and safety of employes and citizens. He also claimed that the mayor had summoned only such force as was necessary. He denied that the company had armed its employes or intended to do so. Attorney L. A. Russell, for the union men, asserted that it was the federal courts that abated the trouble in the Chicago strike and not the federal troops. He had no objection to the use of military power at the beginning of the labor trouble, but thought its continuance when the necessity passed was a crime He characterized the mayor as a weak, inexperienced, incompetent accident in politics.

THE GERMAN CHANCELLORSHIP.

A Report That Prince von Hohenlohe Has Resigned.

In the Hands of Receivers.

Media, Pa., Aug. 8.—The extensive mills of Rhodes Bros., at Llewellyn and West Branch, which shut down on last Saturday, are now in the hands of receivers. The bill of complaint asking for the receivership was presented by Howard Bros., wholesale grocers of Chester, who are creditors by reason of having supplied groceries to a store connected with the mills at Llewellyn. The debts amount to over $100,000, including a judgment for $51,000 entered by Mrs. Ann Rhodes, wife of John B. Rhodes, the head of the company. The firm have $60,000 worth of manufactured stock on hand, and it is said the assets will bring sufficient to pay all claims.

Summoned to Rome.

Philadelphia, Aug. 8.—Rev. Charles M. Driscoll, O. S. A., provincial of the Augustinian order in America, has been summoned to Rome and sails from New York to-day. The summons of Father Driscoll to Rome leaves no doubt that Mgr. Satolli has been recalled and that Mgr. Sebastian Martinelli has been appointed papal delegate to American. Mgr. Martinelli is prior general of the Augustinian order and the only reason there can be for summoning Father Driscoll is to assist in the election of a successor to the prior general.

California Fruit in London.

London, Aug. 8.—The sale of California fruit here yesterday was the worst yet. The fruit was generally over-ripe, and 500 cases of Bartlett pears were valueless and sold for 9d. to 1s. 6d. Other cases of pears averaged 4s. to 6s. 5d. The peaches sold from 2s. to 7s. 6d., and the plums from 1s. 9d. to 10s. 6d. for yellow egg. The agents here condemn the boxes in which the fruit was packed, saying that they were so constructed as to prevent ventilation.

Long and Short Suspects Released.

New York, Aug. 8.—Paul Seibert, better known as "Chicago Paul," and Ernest Rash, the two men arrested on Wednesday last among the spectators in the court of general sessions on suspicion of being the "long and short" men who have been robbing Chicago storekeepers lately, have been released and their money and jewelry returned to them. No evidence could be found against them.

Toronto Banks Refuse American Silver Coin

Toronto, Aug 8.—American silver coin is being refused by all the Toronto banks and silver certificates taken at a discount ranging from ¼ to ½ per cent. The bank officials say that they have an enormous quantity of American silver in their vaults and are unable to dispose of it except at a heavy discount.

The Polar Balloon Expedition.

Christiana, Norway, Aug. 8.—The Nordkalandsblatt publishes a dispatch received from Spitzbergen saying that Prof. Andree declares that unless the wind soon changes he will pack up his balloon and postpone his attempt to cross the Arctic regions until 1897, as there is no midnight sun after Aug. 24.

QUEEN OF THE SEA

St. Louis' Officers Are Proud of Her Performance.

THEY SAY SHE CAN DO BETTER YET

Beat Her Sister Ship, the St. Paul, and Knocked Seven Hours Off Her Own Record—Knots Covered Each Day of the Voyage.

New York, Aug. 8.—The officers of the American line steamship St. Louis are still jubilant over her performance on her last passage, ended yesterday, in reducing the time for the westward trip from Soethampton, beating by nearly three hours the time of her sister ship, the St. Paul, and thus establishing a new ocean record. They say that while the run was a marvelous one, they are confident that the vessel can do much better. The St. Louis left Southampton last Saturday and passed the Needles, from which place the time is taken, at 1:50 p. m. and when she arrived here she had not only beaten the record of the St. Paul, but had lowered her own record by about seven hours. Her time for the trip was 6 days 2 hours and 24 minutes. She brings a large list of cabin passengers.

Previous Record.

Up to June last the record over the Southampton course had been held by the New York, the British-built ship which has been naturalized as a reward for building the St. Louis and the St. Paul in this country. Her record was made in September, 1894, and it stood for nearly two years until the St. Paul cut it down by one hour and forty-two minutes. This was allowed to stand until yesterday, when the cut by the St. Louis was more pronounced. The log of the St. Louis was as follows: 477, 519, 530, 510, 499; total, 3,055; average speed, 20.86.

SENATOR HILL RETURNS HOME.

He Will Not Preside at the Bryan Notification Meeting.

Albany, Aug. 8.—Senator Hill arrived at his home in this city last evening, where he expects to remain for the next ten days. It can be authoritatively stated that he will not preside at the Bryan and Sewall notification meeting at Madison Square garden on Wednesday next, and that all statements appearing in the public prints that Senator Hill is about to declare for the Bryan ticket or against it are without foundation. He has made no expression of his views or policy since he left Chicago and is not likely to do so until the approaching New York state convention, to be held on Sept. 16.

To Bring Kate Field's Body Home.

San Francisco, Aug. 8.—A movement is on foot in this city to raise funds with which to remove the body of Miss Kate Field from Honolulu, where she died a few months ago, to the family plot at Mount Auburn. Miss Field's last request was that her body should be interred in her native land, but thus far none of her friends has been interested in the case. As she left no estate the Examiner has offered to receive subscriptions from press clubs as well as from associations and individuals interested in the movement, the funds secured to be used to bring the body to the United States.

Chinese Smuggling Leader.

Montreal, Aug. 8.—It has been learned here that one of the prisoners who escaped from jail at Plattsburgh, N. Y., Wednesday last was Edward Eaton of this city, who is said to be at the head of the gang of Chinese smugglers. Eaton, who is an artist by profession, lived in China for several years and married a Chinese woman. It is said he is fully cognizant of all the workings of the gang that has been smuggling Chinese into the United States.

Injuries to the Maine.

Washington, Aug. 8.—Closer inspection of the United States steamer Maine as she lies in the dry dock at the Norfolk navy yard shows that the injuries she sustained through grounding in Key West harbor are more extensive than was at first supposed. It is deemed prudent by the navy yard people to repair the ship before she goes to sea again. If this is done the work will consume twenty days.

The Loss of the Cruiser Iltis.

Berlin, Aug. 8.—The United States embassy has communicated to the German foreign office a message of condolence, in the name of the president and people of the United States, at the loss of the German cruiser Iltis, wrecked off the Shang-Tung promontory on July 23, with the drowning of all but ten men.

American Money Not Wanted.

Montreal, Aug. 8.—The St. Hyacinth chamber of commerce has passed a resolution expressing its approval of the action of the banks in that district in charging a discount of 10 per cent. on all American money. It has also issued a warning to merchants, farmers and the public generally not to accept American money upon any consideration.

Movements of United States Vessels.

Washington, Aug. 8.—The battleship Massachusetts has arrived at Newport News, where she will coal before going to Newport and making ready for her sea trial. The Yorktown has arrived at Yokohama.

English Bicycle Record Broken.

London, Aug. 8.—At Catford yesterday the bicycle record for fifty kilometres was broken by J. W. Stocks, who covered the distance in 1 hour 20 2-5 seconds.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

(Furnished by Weather Observer Neagle.)

Generally Fair Tonight and Sunday; Continued Warm Weather.

At 2 o'Clock Leggett's Thermometer Registered 92 Degrees.

Throughout the United States today there is a determined public movement for good wagon roads. In the cities and larger towns the streets are being better paved. In country districts the highways are perceptibly improved. In Massachusetts there is a State commission and a liberal annual appropriation from the State funds. In New York and New Jersey there are hundreds of miles of road in as perfect condition as the best highways of Continental Europe. Property values have been inestimably increased by road improvements, and whole counties have been made available for small farms through this agency alone—Exchange.

The Freeholders of Hudson county, have practically abandoned for the time being the effort to secure cheaper ferriage on the various lines running from points in Hudson County to New York. The Freeholders asserted that a law passed by the Legislature in 1797 gave them the right to fix the rates of ferriage upon all ferries within their jurisdiction. Later they found themselves confronted by an act of the Legislature passed in 1823, fixing the rates of ferriage on all ferries running from Jersey City and Hoboken to New York. This left the Freeholders without remedy, so far as those two cities are concerned. In all other respects the law of 1797 is still in force.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. Andrew Wilson, of Mountain avenue, is stopping at Asbury Park.

The Misses VanDeventer, of Washington Park, are registered at Asbury Park.

Miss Etta Blisch, of West Seventh street, is among the guests at Asbury Park.

Miss Saxton, of East Fourth street, is entertaining a friend from out of of town.

Miss C. Mueller, of Buffalo, is the guest of the Misses Ball, of Washington Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph M. Stelle, of Central avenue, are summering at Point Pleasant.

Miss Priscilla B. Emmons, of Prospect place, is visiting relatives at Avon-by-the-Sea.

Miss Green, of East Fifth street, left yesterday for Asbury Park, where she will remain for awhile.

Cashier Fred Trueleben, of the U. S. Express Company's office, left town yesterday on a business trip.

William A. Schooley, of Duer street, left yesterday for Asbury Park, where he will remain for two weeks.

Not Up in Articles of Food.

One of The Press readers thinks that the agricultural editor of the Dunellen Call must have been taking his vacation when Editor Day wrote his pathetic tale of how he was duped by Manager Slape's "horse corn," or he would have informed his chief that fresh, young field corn is very good eating for man as well as beast, some even preferring it to sweet corn. It is said that in the south sweet corn is not known at all. If Manager Slape sends any more samples of farm produce to The Call he would do well to have the articles carefully labeled with instructions as to their intended use. By the way, does the editor of The Call refuse a morning dish of oatmeal on the ground of its being "horse feed?"

Mrs. Rhodie Nash, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains, and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of blackberry cordial but got no relief. She then sent to me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlin's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhœa but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

LUCKY BABIES

Always Plump and Well on Lactated Food.

No Fear of Cholera Infantum in These Homes.

BABIES NEED NO COAXING TO EAT HEARTILY.

A Diet Accurately Fitted to Their Strength.

Lactated Food Never Disturbs Most Sensitive Stomach.

Babies that will not eat when hot weather comes on must be made to eat—But not made to eat by forcing or coaxing them against their wills. For a baby's stomach, made to take food against its will, is of the same opinion still, and not at all in a mood to digest heartily and completely.

By an intelligent study of baby's proper food in hot weather it is today possible to make baby eat—because it wants to.

Lactated food is prepared with the true scientific knowledge that nothing better can be done than to follow nature as closely as possible in the difficult task of feeding babies that are not thriving, either because of hot weather or because of natural low vitality. Lactated food is most like mother's milk. It has saved the lives of thousands of little ones. It is within the reach of all.

Until within recent years infants deprived of mother's milk have been reared in a haphazard and unscientific manner, with the usual result that the enormous mortality during the first five years of life has been a reproach to medical men.

But all this is now changed. Practical, scientific, philanthropic minded men of the highest standing have devoted themselves exclusively to these great problems of infant feeding. Many valuable results have come, but the greatest and most practical is the preparation of lactated food, the most nourishing, strengthening, readily digested and palatable food that can be given the baby.

Just now when the death reports show a fearful prevalence of diarrhea and cholera infantum—the effect of improper diet in hot weather—lactated food is doing its best work. It is saving the lives of little ones in nearly every city and town in the United States.

Mrs. H. C. Bennet of Upton, Mass., the happy mother of the three babies whose pictures are are here given writes to the proprietors of lactated food. 'I enclose herewith photograph of my twin girls born June 2, 1894 and baby Vera, born May 21, 1895. I had no milk for the twins, and the nurse recommended ——'s food. But the babies did not thrive on it. We called in our doctor, Dr. A. J. Gallison of Franklin, and he said the food must be changed at once. He recommended lactated food as the best infant food. We tried one box, and were so well pleased with the result that we kept on using it. I commenced to nurse the younger baby, but had not enough milk, and, as she did not thrive on milk, we gave her lactated food, which agreed with her perfectly.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the Common Council have fixed Monday, the third day of September, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, at 8 o'clock, p. m., at 109 Park avenue, in the city of Plainfield, New Jersey, as the time and place for J. Fred MacDonald, Edward C. Mulford and William M. Sanford, Commissioners appointed by the Common Council, pursuant to the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to widen Madison avenue from the southeasterly side line of West Front street to the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey," approved June 5th, 1893, to meet. The street proposed to be widened and laid out is Madison avenue from the southeasterly side line of West Front street to the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey. The alterations proposed to be made are to widen said Madison avenue, so that the same shall be of the uniform width of twenty-five feet on each side of the center line thereof which center line is described in said ordinance and shown on map on file in the office of the City Clerk, entitled "Assessment Map for the widening of Madison avenue from West Front street to the Central Railroad of New Jersey, city of Plainfield, N. J., dated 1893, made by F. A. Dunham, Civil Engineer."

The lands and real estate intended to be taken for such purpose are all that come within twenty-five feet of either side of said center line between the southeasterly side line of West Front street and the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, as shown by said map and said ordinance, to which reference is hereby made for more detailed description.

By order of the Common Council,

JAMES T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

LINE & CO., 37 SOMERSET ST.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

—Plainfield's valuable steam roller is now gently resting in a vacant lot near Grant avenue.

—Henry Leal will teach the ladies adult Bible class tomorrow at Hope chapel in the absence of Dr. Yerkes.

—The rain and wind combined served to knock over and demolish the chimney on a Summit avenue residence, yesterday afternoon.

—The fifteenth semi-annual picnic of the Scandinavian Benevolent Society, "Thule," will be held in Hyde's grove on the evening of Monday, August 24th.

—It is not a man's will but a woman's wish that rules the world, and her wishes are generally considered the best criterion after all, especially when she wishes to trade at Peck's.

—A canvass of some of the leading merchants in town brings forth the fact that business generally is dull. Of course the butchers and bakers must live and so must other people.

—There was a shooting contest at Hyde's grove Thursday afternoon by a number of local sportsmen. Some of the scores made were above the average, and the others were not so good.

—There have been several petty robberies in Cranford this week. Last night two men were trying to enter the house occupied by Wm. Davidson on North avenue, when two cyclists drove them away.

—"Rex," the spotted dog owned by City Judge George DeMeza, has been trained to jump through hoops, turn somersaults in the air and eat when called. It's a wonderfully knowing canine and the Judge prizes it very highly.

—Residents on Grant avenue are now without street car service. Since the Dunellen and Fourth street branches opened no cars have been run through Grant avenue except to and from the car house and then on special occasions.

—W. W. Coriell, of West Front street, is laying a fourteen inch stone flagging for the driveway along side of his building and on each side of the flagging there is an eight inch filling-in of block pavement. James Donahue is doing the work.

—The street commissioner is doing good work by filling in the low spots on West Front street which have lately become dangerous on account of the many excations made necessary by the sewerage, water works and street railway improvements.

—The residents of Dunellen are still clamoring for the street railway, and Charles Boice is one of the laudest to talk in favor of them. Mr. Boice says its a disgrace to such a civilized community to be without the street railway improvement.

—Under the direction of the street commissioner both sides of the road on West Front street, near Dunellen, is receiving a heavy supply of sand. In between the car tracks and a short distance outside the road is good, but the rest of it is in a bad condition.

—The case of Runyon against Delaney, one of the late Hon. Job Male heirs, on contract, which was set down for trial in Justice Nash's court Thursday was at that time adjourned over for one week. Yesterday the defendant walked into court and paid the amout of the claim, together with costs, and the case was then and there declared settled.

—Edward White closed two very important deals yesterday. One was the purchase of the entire sample line of one of the largest foreign hosiery importers in New York city. He bought over five thousand pair of fine hosiery for ladies, gentlemen and children at a discount of fifty per cent. The other was the purchase of five thousand yards of fine dimities at half their regular price. They will be placed on sale Tuesday morning.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints.—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Fredericktown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. ABSOLUTELY PURE

Entertained Under a Grape Vine.

Miss Lucy Casper the fourteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Casper, of East Front street, had a birthday party today. Miss Lucy was also the recipient of a handsome gift from her parents in the shape of a new bicycle. Her friends and acquaintances were dined under the "shady lawn" in the rear of the hotel and all were made happy.

The guests present were Miss Daisy Houston, Miss Frances Hill, Miss Alice Davis, Miss Lena Smith, Mildred Ulrich, Geo. Smith, Harry Blimm, Charles Beiter, Hiliare Blatz, Carl Ulrich, and Frank Smith. The table was arranged and most artistically decorated by Mrs. E. Caspar,

Included in the birthday gifts were beautiful cups and saucers, and glassware of almost every description, one of the most prominent being a glass with the Mamma and date of the recipient artistically inscribed on it.

Build the Bridge Soon.

At the meeting of the Board of Freeholders, Thursday, communication was received from the clerk of North Plainfield, calling the attention of the board of the fact that Watchung avenue and Jackson avenue, were about to be joined, and it would be necessary to erect a bridge 60 feet in width across Green brook. The expense of building this would have to be borne jointly by Somerset and Union counties, and the North Plainfield Council suggested immediate attention. The matter was ordered filed.

Dr. Glenn Home.

Dr. Glenn, accompanied by his wife, arrived home last evening on the 9:44 train from New York. As stated yesterday Mrs. Glenn went to Poughkeepsie in response to a telegram telling her of the doctor's actions in that city in attempting to take his life. When Mrs. Glenn met her husband he recognized her, but his mind seemed to be affected and it was so when he reached this city. Medical aid was summoned and everything possible will be done toward effecting a cure.

Salvationists Active.

The Salvation Army are still active under the commannd of the new officers. This evening they will have what is termed a "Grand Free and Easy" meeting. Tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock they will conduct an open air meeting in the city park at Eighth street and Arlington avenue. In the evening at 8 o'clock in the hall on West Second street, at which time P. M. St. Mac, the saved hobo, of Boston, will speak on "Two Ways of Having a Good Time."

Debated on Squeezing Lemons.

A novel and intereesting entertainment was held in Mt. Zion M. E. church, Thursday evening. It was gotten up by the Helping-Hand Society of the church, and was fairly well patronized. Those who were instrumental in making it the success that it was were: Mrs. Hensay, chairman, Miss Hestta Huston, Mrs. Binn, Miss Ida Henry, Mrs. Laing, Miss E. Oliver, Miss A. White, Mrs. White, and Mrs. and Messrs. A. Henry, L. Perry, J. Henry, and Mr. Simmons.

Death of Mrs. Joseph Fairbairn.

Mary Armitage, wife of Joseph A. Fairbairn and daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Thomas Armitage, of New York, died at Westfield, Wednesday, August 5th. Mr. Fairbairn was a resident of Plainfield a few years ago, and his wife and family made many friends, who will be saddened at this intelligence. Her funeral took place yesterday afternoon at Westfield at the residence of her son-in-law, Wm. J. Alpers.

Funeral of William Frey.

The funeral of William Joseph Frey, who died in Poughkeepsie this week, took place from the home on Plainfield avenue this morning at 9 and from St. Mary's church at 9:30 o'clock. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

The pallbearers were W. G. Phillips, P. Mack, J. Malone, P. Revelle, W. Goeller and J. Keeffe. Deceased was a member of Phœnix Hose Co., No. 1, of Poughkeepsie, and had been ailing for some five weeks.

Overcome by the Heat.

Samuel Foster, of West Front street, an employe of the Pond Machine Tool Works, was overcome with the excessive heat yesterday while at work in the shop. He was taken to his home and Dr. Simpson was called and gave the proper treatment, and the patient will be all right after a few days rest.

—Don't trifle away time when you have cholera morbus or diarrhœa. Fight them in the beginning with DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure. You don't have to wait for results, they are instantaneous, and it leaves the bowels in healty condition. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

DUNELLEN.

The annual picnic of the Piscataway Township House Builders' Association will be held on August 27th at Randolphville. The annual meeting will be held on the 20th at the same place.

Why is it,

if catarrh is a constitutional affection, as those claim who have a blood tonic to sell, that physicans, in extreme cases, frequently advise change of air and climate to those suffering from it? Catarrh is a climate affection, and nothing but a local remedy or a change of climate will cure it. Ely's Cream Balm, in all cases of catarrh, is so effecient as to do away with the necessity of leaving home and friends, ceusing instant relief and a perfect cure after short continuance.

you told father?" she repeated.

Polly stood there, laughing at her, but she grew more nervous. "It is nothing to laugh at," she said. "You told me, or that is you agreed, that we should never marry and that we should live together."

"Don't be worried; I was only joking with him."

"But, Polly, that was no way to joke with an old man. He is one of the best men in the world, and all that, but you don't want to marry even the best man."

"It will work out all right, Nell; don't worry over it."

"But how can it work out all right?"

"Wait, and you shall see."

"Yes, and that's what you said about those three men, and that hasn't worked out all right yet. I have tried so hard to understand you, Polly, but sometimes I just can't. Why do you wish to mystify me? Haven't I always been frank with you?"

"Yes, too frank, perhaps."

"That's what I sometimes think myself. But here comes father."

The old man came out, wearing a horseshoe nail mounted as a breastpin. "Father," said the girl, "if I were you I would take off that fool thing and throw it away."

"Throw away my betrothal pledge, hah? Not much. You go on into the house and Polly and I will walk down and look at that bottom field of corn by moonlight."

"I don't care to walk this evening," Polly replied. "I'm tired."

"All right, we'll wait till some other time; but say, you might let me kiss you once just for luck."

"No, you've had luck enough. By the way, there is a clause that I must insert in our contract, and that is this: If you speak to me again or to anyone about our compact the engagement shall be instantly broken. There, not a word or I'll break it right now."

To observe the new clause required on the old man's part a strong exertion of will; and sometimes, in babbling about his bottom field of corn, he approached near the danger line. News of the engagement got out, but the old fellow swore that he had told no one; but he had been seen talking to the president of the mite society, and it was known that she had spread the report. And she said many things that were not complimentary to Polly; said that she had come to Broomfield merely to catch a husband. She even stopped Polly in the street and asked her when the marriage was to take place.

"It seems of deep concern to you," Polly replied.

"Oh, not at all, I'm sure. I just merely happened to think of it. I don't care if you marry him to-day, I'm sure. He's nothing to me, goodness knows. And so far as that's concerned, I could have married him long ago. I suppose the match will be very suitable. He's getting old and you're not so very young yourself. Those city women have a knack of hiding their age, too. Oh, yes, I should think that you are very well suited. It's nothing to me, I'm sure."

"Good, and I hope that you will accept an invitation to my wedding."

"Oh, I am the last person in the world to go to weddings. Of course if it's a romantic affair I don't mind going, but a cut and dried marriage never did catch me. Oh, by the way, what will those three strange men think?"

"I don't know, but I have invited them to the wedding."

"Miss, I must say that you are about the curisest critter I ever saw, and it strikes me that the less a body has to do with you the better it will be for 'em."

Several months passed, and the expiration of the lease was approaching. And so was the time set for Polly's marriage. The bottom field had yielded lavishly and the old man wore a new homespun suit. "You know we had a sort of a contract," he said to Polly one evening.

"Yes, but if you speak of the engagement I'll break it."

"I gad, you've got me wound up in a close place. I'd like to ask you if it ain't about time you was gettin' your dress ready, and all that sort of thing."

"Look out now, Mr. Aimes."

The old man ducked his head as though a stone had been thrown at him. "All right, miss, but don't forget to blow the horn when you are ready."

It was morning, and Polly and Nell were sitting in the parlor at home. Polly had said that as the lease was about to expire there was no need of going to the office. "We will wait," she said, "and let the owner of the paper come here if he wants to see us."

"Do you think of taking it again?" Nell asked, with a touch of sadness in her voice.

"No, I think not."

"So then you are in earnest about marrying father."

"No, I think not."

"You think not? Don't you know?"

"Yes, I think I do."

"Polly, you have one of your mysterious fits to-day. What's the use in keeping up this foolishness? Tell him that you can't marry him. You have let it run on so long already that he has gone to the expense of getting a new suit of clothes."

"Yes, but he hasn't any more clothes now than he needs."

Nell sighed and Polly looked dreamily out into the garden. "Your coming and your stay has been a romance to me, Polly, and now it must end." She sat with her elbow on a table and meditatively and deftly was touching her hair. The sunlight, streaming through the high window, fell upon her, illumined her, and the sad glow of a wish-dream was in her eyes. Out in the road, dodging about, stalked a young man, a smitten clown, dying to catch a glimpse of her. "Yes, your coming was so strange a romance, bringing to me a mind that I could admire, and now the music must end in a dry crackle."

Polly went to her, leaned over her, kissed her. "Your romance may not end," she said. "But suppose that I should tell you that your romance had been brought by a circus woman."

"You a circus woman? I didn't know that they were so noble and brave."

"I did not say that I was a circus woman, but suppose I were one; and suppose those three men came to persuade me to go back into the ring."

"Oh, you are clearing up one mystery. Go on and you may clear up another."

"But is there any other mystery to clear up?"

"Oh, not exactly a mystery, but how are you going to satisfy father that you should not marry him?"

"Oh, probably he will laugh at the idea to-morrow."

"But why should he when his mind is now so set upon it? Do you think that he will decline to marry you because you have been a circus woman?"

"No, not particularly."

"Oh, you are becoming mysterious again, Polly. Why don't you be absolutely frank with me?"

"I will be, but not until after twelve o'clock to-day."

"There you go again, leading me out into deeper and darker water, but I suppose I must accept your terms. Who is that out there that keeps gazing in here?"

"Some fellow desperately gone on you. Shall I go out and knock him down?"

"Goodness, no; he is doing no particular harm. But I wish he would go away."

"You don't like admirers, do you?"

"The right sort of admirers, yes; but to be admired by ignorance is a cheap victory."

In Polly's eyes was the light of strong admiration as she looked at the girl. "You surprise me nearly every day," she said. "I did not expect to find so bright a creature in this dingy place."

"Oh," Nell laughed, "you think I am bright just because the place is dingy. It doesn't take much of a butterfly to look pretty when it settles in the mud."

Polly was silent, meditative; and when she spoke again there was in her voice a new tone, a tremulous sadness. "I am one of the shrewd children of the world," she said, "and you are a clover-scented child of the meadow, but, simple as you are, yours is a wisdom that I could never reach. There's that idle fellow leaning on the fence. Shall I drive him away?"

"I wish you would tell him that he is annoying me. No, it might hurt his feelings."

This made Polly laugh so loudly that the fellow, thinking that the women were making fun of him, strode away. "One to contemplate your tenderness," said the woman of the world, "would scarcely think that you had ever turned loose a double-barrel shotgun amid a lot of men."

"Oh, I did that for you, and if I had thought that the fellow out there was annoying you, I should have driven him away long ago."

"My dear, I might take that as a rebuke," Polly replied, "but I won't," she quickly added.

Nell got up, brushing the sunbeams out of her eyes, and walked about the room. "I feel so strange to-day," she said. "Something must surely be going to happen. I wish that editor would come over here and beg you to take his paper for another year."

"Perhaps he couldn't induce me to take it."

"Oh, but you are not thinking of going with the circus again, are you?"

"You shall soon see what I intend to do."

"But don't do anything to separate us." Polly had begun to read a newspaper. "Did you hear what I said? Now what can be in that paper to interest you so?"

"I was just reading about a peculiar organization that I happen to know something about. Some time ago an old man, a crank, died in Chicago, having willed his money to a club, or rather to several trustees who were to form such a club as he should name. It was to be called the Test club and was to have but thirty members. When a candidate should apply for membership, a test was to be imposed upon him, and, if he carried it out faithfully, he was to be admitted as a member and thereafter share in the dividends arising from certain investments; and as the dividends were large there was a rush for membership. And I see by this article that a woman demands the right to apply for membership, vowing that she is willing to undergo any test that may be imposed upon her."

"What nonsense," was the girl's comment. "A woman ought to know that so soon as she gets out of her real sphere she is robbed of her force, the power that she should wield over men."

"I don't know much about the power that women wield," Polly replied, "but I don't think that a woman would make a good ringmaster."

"A ringmaster, Polly? What do you mean?"

"Why, a ringmaster in a circus."

"Oh! But why should you so frequently refer to the circus? I just believe that you intend to run away and leave us."

"I think not. By the way, what time does the stage come in?"

"The first one comes at a little after eleven. Why do you want to know?"

"Oh, I just happened to think about it."

"But why didn't you happen to think about it before?"

"And for that matter," Polly quickly replied, "why don't we happen to think about everything before?"

They laughed at each other, and Nell, seizing her friend, pretended that she was going to put her out of the house, but Polly, taking hold of her arms, gave her an easy upward swing and stood her on a chair. "Gracious alive," Nell cried, springing down; "how strong you are. Did riding a horse in a circus make you so muscular?"

"Perhaps riding a horse was not all I did. I might have handled cannon balls."

"I should think you did. Oh!" she suddenly exclaimed, looking through the window; "yonder come those three strange men."

Polly arose and glancing at the clock said: "I am going to my room, and you must entertain them until I come down. I won't be long."

"But let me tell them that you don't wish to see them. They will persuade you to go away with them."

"No; tell them that I shall be down in a few moments."

She hastened upstairs. The men came to the door. "May we come in?" one of them asked.

She invited them in with a certain stiffness of manner, and when they had sat down one of them asked: "Where's Polly?"

"Miss Lopp has gone to her room. She will be down soon. Do you wish to see her on very important business?"

"Well, rather."

"But if you have any word for her why can't I take it?"

"Oh, I guess we'd better see her."

"I hope you won't persuade her to go away."

"Ah, you have become friends, I take it."

"Yes, devoted friends."

"Nice girl," said the man. "A little coarse, but—"

"She is not coarse, sir."

"No? All right, then. I thought she was. Don't know very much about women myself, but I thought she was a little coarse."

"I should think, sir, that you would strive to be more of a gentleman than to call her coarse. She is the noblest and bravest creature in the world."

"That so? Never saw her tried. Is that her stamping around upstairs?"

Nell made no answer, and they sat in silence. After awhile they heard Polly coming down the stairs. The stair door opened and out stepped—a man. Nell uttered a sharp cry and covered her face with her hands. The man approached her, and bending over her said: "I was a candidate for admission into that club and the test was that I should be a woman for one year."

THE DOOR OPENED AND OUT STEPPED A MAN.

"Oh!" she sobbed, "and I have told you things that I should not have told anyone."

"Yes," he replied, still bending over her; "and you have shown me the purest mind and the noblest heart that man has ever found." He leaned further over and whispered to her, and the face that she turned up to his was radiant with a confused happiness. Just at this moment old Aimes stalked in. "Where's Polly?" he asked. "Why, what's the meaning of all this? Hah? You don't mean—"

"I have been Polly," a man said, bowing to him; "but now I am George Hadley, and this daughter of yours, the sweetest woman that lives, is to be my wife."

"A man, hah? A man from fust to last? Well, say, now young feller, I knowed it all the time, and I was jest waitin' to see how long you could keep it up. I've been mayor of this town too long to be fooled, I tell you, hah?"

THE END.

BOOKS AND WRITERS.

Maarten Maartens is reported to be slowly recovering from the illness which has for some time interrupted his literary work.

Prince Henry of Orleans has written a new book of Central Asiatic travel, of which a translation will appear in London in the autumn.

Mr. Gladstone's interest in the character of Sheridan has taken form in a paper on Fraser Rae's new biography of the dramatist.

Julian Ralph declares that Coney Island "still remains the king of all popular resorts of America." He says that in a single year "8,000,000 souls" have congregated there, but he neglects to state how many people there were.

The most popular boys' book in Italy—one surpassing even "Cuore"—is Edmondo de Henius' "Libro d'Oro," which has passed through 150 editions. It is now being translated into German and a Swiss publisher will issue a first edition of 18,000 copies.

The duke of Argyll champions the Armenian cause in a forthcoming work "England's Responsibility Toward Turkey," in which he narrates the Anglo-Turkish events of 1856, the year when he served in the cabinet that concluded the treaty of Paris.

BEFORE THE WEDDING.

The Ecstatic Visions of the Young Lady on the Eve of the Nuptial ay.

The invitations have been sent out and in a few days the bride-elect is to be led to the altar. The ushers and bridesmaids have been selected, the trousseau is well under way and the presents begin to pour in.

Each gift is just what she wanted. She fairly revels in the sight of the best man's card lying loose in the delicate satin-lined case.

But not less lovely to her seems the little set of fruit knives, the gift of a friend whose family has met reverses of fortune since they were in the young ladies' school together, whilst she goes into transports over the Japanese vase a near neighbor has presented in person.

The mail brings a letter from the fiancee's cousin, a captain in the regular army stationed at a remote post in Arizona. In the letter is a check for fifty dollars with which the captain hopes she will purchase some trifle for her own personal adornment. Quite overcome by this evidence of generosity she sings his praises in extravagant terms for half an hour.

She is bothered a little when a "duplicate" present arrives, but consoles herself by hoping that it can be exchanged for something of equivalent value.

Another ring at the door. This time it is the dressmaker with the bridal gown. Again it is tried on and one or two minor alterations are suggested. The dressmaker heaves a deep sigh of relief as the fiancee struts up and down her boudoir voicing her satisfaction. Then all the members of the household are summoned to survey her in her finery.

Papa is so nervous over it all. Every morning and evening he is obliged to walk the length of the drawing-room and back, with his daughter on his arm, keeping in step to the spirited strains of the "Wedding March," rather jerkily rendered on the piano by an older sister, who has determined to live a life of single blessedness.

Papa is not a very apt pupil, and the more he practices the stately step the less certain he feels of being able to master it in time for the momentous event—only a few days off.

On the day before the event rehearsal takes place in the church. With the sonorous organ to guide him, papa really does splendidly. He is to carry his high hat in his left hand, and dispelled now are all his fears as to what he shall do with his right hand, which he has been instructed to tuck gracefully in the breast of his frock coat.

The afternoon rehearsal affords considerable enjoyment, for the minister is witty and keeps the bridal party in a merry mood.

Night comes and mamma is anxious for the fiancee to retire early, so she will be sure not to miss her beauty sleep. But the latter protests that going to bed so timely—on this the last night of her maidenhood—is quite out of the question.

It is close on to midnight when she at last withdraws to her downy couch. But for hours sleep eludes her. She thinks of the dear home she is leaving and tears fill her eyes.

But Jack is so good and kind. And ere the silver shafts of morn penetrate the chamber the fiancee lies in the arms of Morpheus, dreaming affectionately of Jack, who is coming to-morrow to bear her away to Hymen's land.—Leon Mead, in Truth.

The Natural Reason.

Robbins—I don't see why they water railroad stock.

Higbee—To form a pool, of course.—Rogerville (Tenn.) Review.

WERE THEY MARRIED?

A Young Couple Duly Dissected and Talked Over.

They were coming away from the theater and they fell to discussing the young couple who sat in front of them.

"They are evidently married," said the girl in the Persian waist; "I noticed that they didn't exchange a word while the curtain was down."

"Nonsense; they are merely engaged," said the girl in the black gown; "I heard him tell her that he did not consider the leading lady even pretty."

"Perhaps they are merely brother and sister," suggested the young man of the party.

"No, they weren't," said the girl in the Persian waist; "he'd have gone out between the acts if he was only her brother, while an engaged man wouldn't want to leave her, and—"

"A newly-married man would not dare to," broke in the girl in the black gown.

"She took off her hat as soon as she came in," remarked the young man. "That looks as if she was married and in the habit of consulting the feelings of some one else."

"Or that they were not really engaged yet and she wanted to show him how considerate she could be," said the girl in the black gown.

"Or that she was merely conscious of having pretty hair," said the girl in the Persian waist. "Will you wager a box of chocolates that they are not married?"

"I—I'd rather you ladies would settle it between you," said the young man, hastily. "You have so much more insight in such matters, you know."

"There they come now," said the girl in the Persian waist. "Let us notice what they do and perhaps we can decide. If they are merely friends they will stop for cream, soda and—"

"If they are engaged she will tell him how hungry she is, and they will stop for supper," said the young man, bitterly.

"While if they are married," went on the girl in the Persian waist, "he—there, what did I tell you?"

The couple paused before a cigar shop and he went in, while she waited at the door.

"You were right," said the girl in the black gown, "they are married."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

TO RECEIVE LI HUNG

The President and Secretary Olney Considering the Matter.

FITTING ENTERTAINMENT PLANNED

The Proposed Programme To Include a Grand Naval Display at New York and a Chance for the Army To Exhibit Itself in Some Manner.

Washington, Aug. 8.—Although no definite action has yet been taken by the state department toward welcoming Li Hung Chang on his arrival here early next month, it is known that President Cleveland and Secretary Olney are considering the matter and it is expected that the proposed programme will be in the hands of the state department next week. Under the presumption that the Chinese statesman will be particularly interested in American warhips, it has been suggested that the entire North Atlantic squadron should rendezvous at New York for his inspection. The army will also be given a chance to exhibit itself in some manner. In Washington apartments have been reserved for the suite at one of the principal hotels. Ex-secretary John W. Foster, who will be Li Hung Chang's host during his stay in this city, will be consulted as to the details of all official entertainments. The propriety of designating one or more army and navy officers to attend the viceroy while in America, is also under consideration. This post fell to Commander Davis when the Infanta Eulalia was here three years ago.

Li Hung To Sail Aug. 22.

London, Aug. 8.—Li Hung Chang, who is now in England as the guest of the nation, will sail for New York on the steamer St. Louis on Aug. 22.

HIS SERVICES COMMENDED.

Flattering Letter from Sec. Lamont to Gen. Batchelder on the Latter's Retirement.

Washington, Aug. 8.—Secretary Lamont has addressed the following letter to Gen. Batchelder, quartermaster general of the army, who retired from active service on July 27 last: "My dear Gen. Batchelder: I very much regret that observance of the new regulations prevents me from expressing in your order of retirement the sense of loss which I feel the public sustains in your separation from active duty. I am sure that the efficiency, energy and strict enforcement of economy which have characterized your control of the quartermaster's department, and which it was my pleasure to publicly acknowledge in my last annual report, and the consequent permanent benefits to the army are so generally recognized that no restatement is necessary. Successful administration of the chief office of your corps, added to important connections with the army during the most active and interesting period of its existence, must bring to you a satisfaction which few can now possess. With my best personal wishes for your health and happiness, I beg to remain, faithfully yours,

"DANIEL S. LAMONT,
"Secretary of War."

War on the Rubber Trust.

Providence, Aug. 8.—There is more trouble between the rubber king, Joseph Banigan, ex-president of the rubber trust and the present company headed by Mr. Evans of Boston. The ex-president has refused to renew the note for $100,000 of the Woonsocket Rubber company which he holds, and it is now a payment or troublesome litigation. The attachment papers are all ready and the war against the rubber trust is on in earnest.

Eleven Deaths from the Heat at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Aug. 8.—Again yesterday St. Louis was the hottest city in the country, the thermometer at 3 o'clock in the afternoon registering 103 degrees. All kinds of animal life were prostrated on the streets, and eleven people died as the result of heat prostration.

FARR FOUND GUILTY

Dead Engineer To Blame for the Atlantic City Disaster.

THREE VERDICTS BY CORONER'S JURY

Towerman Hauser Censured for Not Giving the Express Right of Way and Engineer Griener of the Excursion Train for Not Using Greater Care.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 8.—The coroner's jury which has been investigating the meadows railroad disaster, after being out several hours, came in at 6:25 last night and returned three verdicts. The first stated the manner of death of the persons over whom the inquisition was held; the second finds Engineer Farr, who was killed in the collision, guilty of not following the rules governing approaches to crossings and censuees tower-man George Hauser for not giving an express the right of way over an excursion train, and Engineer Greiner for not using greater care. The third verdict censures Engineer Farr. Following is the first verdict: "We, the jury empanelled to investigate the cause of death of P. W. Goldsmith and others, do find that the said persons whose bodies we have viewed, came to their death by a collision of express train No. 23, on the Atlantic City railroad, and excursion train No. 700 on the West Jersey & Seashore railroad, at a point known as the Meadow tower, near Atlantic City, on the 30th of July, 1896, on or about 6:48 p. m." This verdict was signed by the six jurymen The second verdict reads: "We, the undersigned jurors, also find that engineer Edward D. Farr of the Atlantic City railroad failed to have his engine under proper control when approaching said crossing, and that tower-man George F. Hauser, in giving the excursion train of the West Jersey railroad the right of way over the fast express used bad judgment. We also are of the opinion that engineer John Greiner of said excursion train erred in not exercising greater care on crossing ahead of said fast express." The third vordict is as follows: "The undersigned jurors are of the opinion that the cause of the collision was the failure of Edward Farr, engineer of train No. 23, to give heed in time to the semaphore signals set against him, and thus failed to have his train under proper control on approaching the signals and crossing under the rules. The undersigned jurors further declare that the tower-man, George F. Hauser, may have used poor judgment in his estimate of the distance away of the Atlantic City railroad train No. 23 when he gave the white boards to the West Jersey and Seashore excursion train No. 700." The last two verdicts were signed by only three of the jurymen.

CRANK MORTALLY WOUNDED.

Demanded $5,000 Under Threat of Blinding a Bank Clerk with Vitriol.

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 8.—W. L. Chamberlain, a crank, went into the bank of the Southern Savings and Trust company at noon yesterday and presented a paper to teller Archie Hubbard, who was alone in the bank. The paper was a demand for silence and immediate delivery of $5,000, with a threat to throw acid in Hubbard's face if he did not comply, having the acid with him in a glass. Hubbard covered the crank with a revolver and the two men grappled. Seizing his opportunity Hubbard fired, hitting his opponent in the abdomen. Chamberlain will probably die.

Labrador Coast Ice-Blocked.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 8.—The Labrador mail steamer, just arrived here, reports that the whole coast was blockaded with ice on July 28, and that no fish whatever were being taken. She also reports that nothing whatever has been heard from the Peary expedition steamer Hope since she passed Battle harbor on July 18. Navigators who have had experience in the ice believe that the Hope will find it difficult if not impossible to reach far northern waters this year owing to the immense ice fields.

Vanderbilt's Quiet Honeymoon.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., are still enjoying the comforts of the hotel at which they are stopping with little likelihood of leaving here for some time. Their regular drive last evening included the old Crum place on the west shore of Saratogo lake and home by way of the lake.

A Woman Detained as an Anarchist.

Havana, Aug. 8.—Mrs. Dominica Gonzalez, said to be an anarchist, has been detained by the officials. In a collision between mixed passenger trains on the outskirts of the city an exploring engine was smashed, several cars were damaged and thrown from the track, and two passengers were seriously wounded.

Erie's Lease of Nypano.

Albany, Aug. 8.—The lease of the Nypano Railroad to the Erie Railroad has been filed with the secretary of state. The latter company is to pay $800,000 rental and assume the obligations of an $8,000,000 mortgage.

New Bicycle Record.

Buffalo, Aug. 8.—E. C. Bald beat Tom Cooper of Detroit and Tom Butler of Boston in the 1-mile open, professional class, lowering the world's single paced bicycle competition record to 2:01.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

Washington, Aug. 8.—The treasury gold reserve at the opening of business to-day stood at $108,548,984. Yesterday's withdrawals were $430,400.

CYCLING COMMENT.

This is a good time of the year to purchase a wheel, and H. E. Rider, of North avenue, has an assortment of high grade wheels which it would pay all prospective buyers to examine.

Jacob Wichser and Louis Kuntz, of East Front street, will start for Pennsylvania on their wheels next week. During their absence they will go as far as Harrisburg and probably farther west.

The New Jersey Division meet at Tourist Oval, Paterson, promises to surpass anything of the undertaken in the Mosquito State. In addition to four State championships, one-third, one, two and five miles, there will be a mile run for novices, a three-mile team race, a two-mile handicap and a one-mile open. The races will be preceded by a bicycle parade from City Hall to the Tourist Oval,

An inventor has just brought out a new idea for inflating a tire. His plan is to substitute hydrogen for air, believing that the difference in weight between gas and air would relieve the bicycle of a great part of its weight. But the cost of inflating a tire with this gas is considerably more than that of air, and naturally will be added to the cost of the wheel. Nevertheless it would certainly lessen the weight, and in consequence have its attrac tions for the racing men and others. The decreased weight would also probably have its effect upon records and place them at lower figures than they are now.

Physicians are unanimous in ad vising the utmost moderation in riding during such extreme heat as now prevails. Immediate serious consequences may follow in any case, and even where no distinct injury is at once apparent there are almost certain to be effects that will be felt later, loss of energy and lassitude, that will not pass with the return of more temperate conditions. The temptation to ride fast is very great on hot days because of the draught of cool air created by the swift motion. But every rider knows that he pays for the short luxury, as soon as he slows down or dismounts, with a glow of heat that is scarcely endurable. The danger lies in the fact that while experiencing the delights of the artificial breeze the cyclist is apt to forget the reckoning, and unwarned by any symptoms of the harm he is inflicting on himself, precipitate very serious injury.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

John Osborne's black stud, which is entered for a race this afternoon on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association, trotted a heat on the track Wednesday in 2.22. This is considered remarkable for the horse, which is classed in the three-minute rate.

Death of Miss Edith S. Marsh.

Ex-Councilman Francis E. Marsh, of Madison avenue, has the deep sympathy of his many friends in the loss of his last daughter, Miss Edith Stelle Marsh, who died Thursday at Mount Pocono, where she had been spending the summer with the hope that the high attitude might improve her health. She was the last of four children, two sons having passed away before the death of their mother in 1890, and a younger daughter, Corinne Marsh, died two years ago. Miss Marsh was in the sixteenth year of her age, and had attended boarding school at Freehold until the sudden development of lung trouble in the spring. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the residence of her father, 915 Madison avenue.

borough will soon be ready to use the money.

At this time a short recess was taken to examine Assessor Cooleys books, after which Mr. Valiant offered a resolution that the same be approved. Mr. Peck offered a resolution that $5,000 be appropriated for street lighting and $3,500 for the fire department for 1896-7. It was so ordered, as was also another resolution by the same Councilman that the Assessor assess and the Collector collect the fire and street taxes at the same time the assessments and collections are made. Mr. Valiant moved that when Council adjourn it be to meet Friday evening, August 21st, and after Mr. McLaughlin offered a resolution that the stationery and supplies committee be authorized to secure a map for the Assessor, the Council adjourned.

The Second Greatest Country.

The following interesting letter will explain itself:

Hotel of Ragatz, Switzerland.

Dear Mr. Spencer—Just a line to tell you that we are on the eve of crossing the Alps. This is as lovely a spot as I ever visited. My whole party have been well and happy and not a misadventure. I hope you and yours are well. Next to America, Switzerland (we are in East Switzerland near Austria) is the best country in the world. Yours,

A. V. D. Honeyman.

The above was mailed July 30th, and was received by H. N. Spencer, of Somerset street, this morning.

Pulpit Supplies.

The following are the pulpit supplies for Warren Chapel during the absence of Rev. Mr. McKelvey on his vacation: August 16th, and 23th, Rev. George A. Luckenbill; August 30th, Rev. G. M. Conover, Hawthorne, N. J.; September 6th, Rev. C. E. Scudder, Newark.

If you have ever seen a little child in the agony of summer complaint, you can realize the danger of the trouble and appreciate the value of instantaneons relief always afforded by DeWitt's Colic & Cholera Cure. For dysentery and diarrocea it is a reliable remedy. We could not afford to recommend this as a cure unless it were a cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

COLUMN OF POETRY.

The King's Couriers.

When the Sun King in his journeys
Leaves the myrtle and the vine,
And comes riding bravely northward
Through the land of snow and pine
O'er the meadows and the forests
How the sunny heralds fly,
Brightening the very shadows
With their shining livery!
Up the valley and the hillside,
And across the spreading plain
Swinging, swaying, nodding, playing,
Comes the fair and smiling train.

There are buttercups and daisies
In the fields of early spring,
And the cowslip bells of yellow
All along the marshes ring,
While the marguerites in June time
Mid the grasses shyly peep—
Loyal little hearts of sunshine
That the snowy petals keep!
And the saucy black-eyed Susan
Flaunts her fluted yellow frill
Down the river's rippling borders—
Up the crowning of the hill.

Then the goldenrod comes riding,
Doughty guardsman, in the rear,
When the king his steps retraces
In the waning of the year.
How the plumes of yellow, floating,
Mingle on the sunny breeze,
With the gold and crimson mantles
Of the pages' liveries!
One by one they pass before us,
Until all the smiling train,
Sweeping slowly to the southward,
Passes from our view again.
—Mildred McNeal, in Youth's Companion.

Please Let Us Go and Play.

While working at my desk to-day,
Striving to put my thoughts in rhyme,
I heard my little children say
What I oft said in olden time,
Before my hair had turned to gray,
Before time's wrinkles creased my brow;
"Please, mother, do not keep us now,
But let us go and play!"

Their plaintive voices came to me
From the adjoining chamber, where Both wife and children I could see
When seated on my easy chair.
She kissed them tenderly, and they
With joyous shouts went to their game.
They could not hear my heart exclaim:
"Oh, would that we could play!"

Oh! God, I pray that Thou wilt leave
Their mother here until my boys
Can comprehend that they but grieve
Themselves when they leave her for toys.
Oh! they'll remember when they pray,
For their dear mother when she's dead,
How often they to her have said:
"Please let us go and play!"

Aye, in this life from day to day,
Unknowingly, we oft disdain
Our blessings and but wish for pain
When we scorn sacrifice for play.

No "Flim Flam" Game
To Be Worked on Early Purchasers of
The Spalding Bicycle

After the adoption of our 1896 model and a careful estimate of the cost of manufacture, we placed the price on the Spalding Bicycle at $100. The price is now $100 and will continu at $100 throughout the season, no matter what other manufacturers may do.

We don't believe it is fair, honest or good business policy to sell a standard article like the Spalding Bicycle at one price in May and reduce its value in June by a material reduction in price. As a matter of common fairness to early purchasers of Spalding Bicycles and as an evidence of good faith on our part we will, in case of reduction in price during the season, send a rebate check to every purchaser of a Spalding Bicycle of the amount of any such reduction that may be made by us during the season. This is our meaning of a

ALL OVER THE TOWN

NEWS IN SHORT PARAGRAPHS THAT INTEREST ALL PLAINFIELDERS.

Gathered by Enterprising Press Reporters From Both Sides of the Brook and Tersely Served for Your Perusal.

—The thermometer at the depot this morning at 9 o'clock registered a trifle over 90 degrees.

—The next open-air band concert will be held tomorrow evening in the vacant lot next to the Babcock building.

—Another one of the street railway cars has been taken from the main line and laid up in the shop for repairs.

—A male quartette will sing at the Christian Indeavor prayer meeting in Trinity Reformed Church tonight. You are invited to be present.

—A special meeting of Union Lodge, Grand United Order of Odd Fellows, will be held tomorrow evening in their rooms on West Front street.

—There was a wholesale exodus of Plainfield people from town on Saturday. Some sought the mountain while others were going to the seashore.

—It seemed Saturday night as though a large portion of Plainfield's population was riding on the electric street cars. It was the only place one could get a breeze.

—Miss Noan Herndon, city missionary, will address the meeting of the Christian Alliance on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the rooms of the W. C. T. U., Watchung avenue.

—An incandescent lamp burns all day at the entrance to the station house. Some people must be near-sighted if they can't find the city jail. The police know where it is, however, day or night.

—The many Plainfield people who have been wishing or a salt water bath during the last few days, should join the Crescent Avenue church and Sunday-school excursion to Asbury Park tomorrow.

—A shoulder cape, belonging to Mrs. Sarah Warren, of Summit, lost in this city last week, and advertised in The Press, was found by E. A. Laine, the barber, and will be returned to the owner without delay.

—Applicants for the free delivery service are already looming up in this city. Although the next examination for letter carriers does not take place until December, there are already several aspirants for the position.

—There was a genuine old-fashioned set-to in the big ice-house near Grant avenue Friday morning. One man was hit on the head with a cake of ice, but he was not seriously injured. The combatants were white and colored.

—This is just the season of the year to enjoy a day at the seashore, and tomorrow the Crescent Avenue church and Sunday-school will give you the chance. It will be a pleasure to escape the warm weather and get a breath of sea air.

—Considering the warm weather there was a very large audience at the First Baptist church yesterday morning to hear Rev. Harry Lowry preach. A powerful sermon was delivered from the text "Grant Me Thy Holy Spirit."

—The subject of the Christian Endeavor service at Trinity Reformed church this evening will be "Conquest of Temptation," and the meeting will be in charge of the temperance and good citizenship committee. A male quartette will be present and render several selections.

—All the men on the Delaware and Raritan canal between Bound Brook and New Brunswick, with few exceptions, it is said, have been laid off. The men were paid last Friday and since then some of them have been hanging around looking for "brighter prospects."

—There is perhaps no place in the city where politics and religion are more considered and discussed than in John H. Sayers' harness shop on East Front street. Some of the "old school" gather there and discuss current topics, including the gold and silver problem.

—The Daily Press is informed today on good authority that the proposed Watchung avenue bridge will be built this year if the street is opened and the bridge is required. The budget is made up for the year by the Freeholders, but the law gives them the privilege of borrowing money in anticipation of taxes.

—Not in a good many years before have so many people been noticed riding through here on the cars without even hat or coat on. One party of men bound from New York to Easton yesterday afternoon had off their hats, coats, collars and cuffs, and some of them even had off their shoes. Yet they could not keep cool and comfortable.

DIED AT BALTIMORE.

Mrs. Margaret Fillmore Dies From the Result of a Fall.

Mrs. Margaret Fillmore, wife of John Fillmore, formerly of this city, died in Baltimore on Saturday at the age of fifty-six years. She had been ailing but three days and her death resulted from an accident caused by falling down a flight of stairs. Brain fever set in soon after the accident and her life from that time was despaired of.

The body arrived in Plainfield on the 6:04 train this morning, accompanied by the husband, one son, a daughter, and an undertaker from Baltimore, but the funeral arrangements have not yet been completed. They will in all probability take place from the house on Leland avenue tomorrow afternoon and interment will be made in the Methodist cemetery on Plainfield avenue.

Decedent only left Plainfield with her family about a year ago and since then has been living in Baltimore.

TOO HOT FOR HIM.

A Bicycle Rider Wilts Under the Penetrating Rays of Old Sol.

George Kelcey, of Jersey City, was found lying prostrate in the roadway near Metuchen yesterday by Lawyer Harry Runyon, of this city. Kelcey had ridden his wheel to Philadelphia and was on his way home when found. He was in a bad condition, but through the efforts of friends he regained some strength and tried to reach this city, where he could take the train home. He mounted his wheel, but only succeeded in reaching Campbell's Club House, where he again fell off his wheel. People at the house took care of him until he recovered from the heat. Later in the day he was brought to Plainfield and sent home on the train. The great heat had about wrecked Kelcey, and had he not been discovered he probably would have died.

CHARGED WITH NON-SUPPORT.

A Borough Man Arrested on Complaint of His Wife.

On complaint of Mrs. Galligan, Chief Marshal Wilson arrested James Galligan, Saturday evening, and he was placed in the lockup. The complaint charges that Mrs. Galligan was obliged to leave her husband because he did not support her, and she has now placed the matter in the hands of justice. Galligan was taken before Justice Crosley this morning. Lawyer Hetfield appeared for the defendant, and on his motion the hearing was fixed for this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Former Plainfielder Dies at Elizabeth

Fred Naylor, aged twenty-five years and a former well-known Plainfielder, and a son of Jacob and Elizabeth Naylor, of this city, was overcome by the heat near his home in Elizabeth, yesterday, and died before he could be taken home. A sister of the deceased, Miss Lillie, lives with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. VanSickle, of No. 313 East Third street, and she was notified by telegraph of her brother's death last evening. Miss Naylor left at once for the house of mourning. Fred was well and favorably known both here and in Elizabeth, and he leaves a large circle of friends to mourn his early and sudden demise.

Gaiety of Plainfielders.

A delightful picnic was held at the Waumbek, last Friday, when the party was driven to the Glen on Chas. J. Fisk's brake and that of the Waumbek. After their return the evening was spent in dancing. On Wednesday evening, Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, gave a very pleasant German in honor of her daughter, Miss Louise Fisk, at her cottage, Onaway. The arrangement of the rooms was very pretty and the favors were dainty and appropriate.

Plainfield Honored.

"Gazelle" is the name of a bicycle manufactured by N. C. Dunn, of Philadelphia, in honor of the steam fire engine company of that name in this city. Mr. Dunn was foreman of the company for several years during his residence in Plainfield, and being in need of a name for his wheels, thoughtfully named them after the company he spent many years of service with.

Just a Common D. and D.

Harry Odell, of the borough, was found in a drunk and disorderly condition yesterday morning at one o'clock by Acting Chief Marshal Hansen and Marshal Whitely. Odell was taken to the lockup and this morning and fined ten dollars. He paid the fine and was released.

Theories of cure may be discussed at length by physicians, but the sufferers want quick relief; and One Minute Cough Cure will give it to them. A safe cure for children. It is "the only harmless remedy that produces immediate results." For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

ELEVEN INNINGS GAME.

A FINE EXHIBITION OF BASE BALL PLAYING LAST SATURDAY.

The New Jersey Athletic Club Met Worthy Foes in the Y. M. C. A. Boys.—The Game Marked by Many Brilliant Plays.

The game of baseball played Saturday afternoon in this city between the Y. M. C. A. and New Jersey Athletic Club teams was undoubtedly one of the finest exhibitions ever witnessed in this city, and it brought to the minds of many present the palmy days of baseball when enthusiasm reached the top-notch and it seemed as though everyone would go wild. It was a pitched battle for fair and for eleven innings the large crowd present was kept on the anxious seat.

The game did not open auspiciously for the home team, for the visitors succeeded in placing six runs to their credit in the first inning and everyone thought the contest was going to be one-sided. This was not the case, however, for the Jersey boys were given a hard fight. It was unfortunate that they should secure such a lead, but it happened through a series of mishaps together with four hits. For the five innings the visitors failed to make a run, and during the balance of the game they only got five hits off of Burt, who pitched the best game ever witnessed. The visitors, all good batters, were unable to find the ball very often, and as the game continued, the struggle grew fiercer. The nerve of every player was strung to the highest pitch as inning after inning brought no runs.

In the first four innings the home team failed to score, but they broke the ice in the fifth by making three runs, and in the seventh they tied the score. This set the crowd into the wildest excitement, for they thought there was a pussibility of winning. The crowd began to crowd around the diamond, and if it had not been for the veteran ball player, George Cornwell, who chased them back, the game would have been finished amid difficulties. The Jersey boys then added two runs to their score in their half of the seventh, while in the next inning the home team secured one run and in the ninth another one was made. In the eighth and ninth innings the visitors were shut out. This required a tenth inning, but no runs were scored. The eleventh inning brought the same result for the home team, but when the visitors came in for their half they were very fortunate in making the all-desired run. Pule was the first man up and he hit a sharp grounder to Cory at third. The latter failed to stop the ball and the batter reached the base. Bieling made a good sacrifice, which advanced Pule, who came home on a long hit made by W. Langford. Thus ended one of the best games ever played in this city was brought to an end.

Below is the score in full of Saturday's game. When the winning run was made there was only one man out:

Too much praise cannot be given both sides for the exhibition given, and especially did the home team play great ball. The battery work of Burt and Dennis was superb and it was a pleasure to see the clock-work manner in which they played. MacLaughlin at first base held down that bag in a masterly style. Major was able to play short, in spite of the accident a week ago, and his playing won hearty applause as he accepted every chance. The playing of Cory at third base was good. Several were inclined to think that he lost the game, but if he had stopped the ground-hit ball it would have been a marvelous play, and he can be excused for the error. A clever play was made during the game when a fly ball came to Samson at second base. The ball bounded out of his hands and Major happened to

WASH DAY FOR FARMERS

PUMPKIN DUSTERS ENJOY THEIR YEARLY DIP IN THE SURF.

Thousands, in All Sorts of Toggery, March to the Beach, Munch Peanuts and Have a Good Time in General.

For one whole year the farmers of Monmouth and Middlesex Counties had been waiting for Saturday which to them was "salt water day," one more generally observed than any of the national holidays outside of Christmas. On this day the country people leave their places to enjoy themselves by the seashore. Pretty nearly all the farm houses in the two counties were vacant yesterday.

The wagons of the farmers were packed with eatables, and some of them were on their way to the shore at Manasquan and South Amboy, where the two big celebrations took place, long before daybreak.

In Monmouth County, where some of the countrymen come from fifteen to twenty miles to take part in the festivities, a start was made on Friday night, so that they would be in time.

There were thousands of the country people camped on the beach at two places when the sun made its appearance and peeped at them over the horizon. All were dressed in their best clothing, and from the appearance of the wagons and horses it looked as though several days had been spent in making preparations for the outing.

To the older people of the picnickers the day was one of reunions. Acquaintances made at last year's "wash" and at other previous years were renewed, and crops and farm life were discussed.

The younger people of the farmers visited the various summer resorts, taking in the merry-go-rounds, and spending the money they had managed to save for the past year in the various catch-penny devises which 'fakirs" had in stock in preparation for the visit of the country folk.

At the noon hour, at a given signal, the annual "wash" took place. It was not that the bathers needed to be cleansed; they were merely following out their yearly custom. Whole families, from the father and mother down to the youngest children, all went in the water for a dip.

Bath houses or costumes did not appear to bother them much. The younger people who had been roaming about in the morning went to the farm wagons, where they changed their Sunday clothing for their working garments, and these they used for bathing suits.

The colors varied from bright red, which shone gayly in the sun, to the dark black, showing death or mourning among the family or relatives of the wearer, on the women, while the suits of the men mostly consisted of a pair of overalls and an undershirt.

At the start of the first wagon for home, the others began to make preparations to get away, and by dusk all that remained to tell of the visit of the country people was a quantity of empty boxes which had contained eatables.

In South Amboy the celebration was not as extensive as at Manasquan, but farmers from many of the towns and villages who had not been to the seashore since last "Salt Water Day" took advantage of the heat to take a dip in Raritan Bay.

Gave His Men a Day Off.

William Baldwin, the hay carter, of West Fourth street, gave his employes a day's outing at Florida Grove yesterday. Mr. Baldwin and his wife drove over in their own private rig and the employes followed in two two other rigs. The day was spent in boating, fishing and in other out-of-door amusements, and the entire party reached home at a reasonable hour, all well pleased with their day's sport.

Disgraceful Conduct.

The New Brunswick Fredonian last Saturday published a sensational story about the actions of several prominent Plainfielders who indulged in a disgraceful racket at a house of ill-repute on Park avenue, just this side of Metuchen. The names of the parties are published.

In the City Court.

There was but one case in the city court this morning and the prisoner, Thomas Barber, was paroled by City Judge DeMeza for a hearing on Saturday morning next. He was acting in a disorderly manner on Cottage place, when Captain George W. Grant gathered him in Saturday.

It doesn't matter much whether sick headache, billiousness, indigestion and constipation are caused by neglect or by unavoidable circumstances; DeWitt's Little Early Risers will speedily cure them all. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

DEATH OF A RESPECTED WOMAN.

Mrs. John L. Laing Succumbs to a Lingering Illness in Brooklyn.

Announcement is made of the death of Mrs. John Louis Laing, which occurred at her home on DeKalb avenue, Brooklyn, Saturday morning, after a lingering illness. Decedent resided on Park avenue for a long time previous to the family's removal to Brooklyn. She was a daughter of the late John Bryant and a sister of the late Joel Bryant. Mrs. J. P. Homan, of West Fifth street, this city, is a sister-in-law.

Mrs. Laing was a member of the M. E. church while she was a resident here, a faithful Christian and a consistent member of the church. In the family circle she was loving and devoted and her death will cast a gloom over many.

Besides the husband, there survive her one daughter and two sons, one of the latter for several years a compositor on The Central New Jersey Times here and later of the Brooklyn Eagle.

Funeral services will be held from the house in Brooklyn this evening at 8 o'clock and the remains will be brought to this city tomorrow morning for interment in the Methodist cemetery.

A MURDERER'S SANITY.

Physicians Question It, But He Is Rational Enough to Escape.

Frank Freehill, the tramp who a year ago shot and killed Special Officer Jewell in Rahway, while resisting arrest, has escaped from the Morris Plains Insane Asylum, where he was confined. Several weeks ago Freehill began to act strangely in the State Prison at Trenton. For the murder of the officer he was convicted of murder in the second degree. His sentence was ten years' imprisonment and a fine of $1,000. Shortly after his conviction in October last he was removed to the Trenton prison. The physicians about two months ago noticed his strange actions, and after a careful examination pronounced him insane. He was removed to the State Insane Asylum. It is alleged that Freehill was not insane, but by a ruse he made the physicians believe he was, as he knew it would be easy to escape from the insane asylum.

Word From the Tourists.

A letter was received Friday from Rev. C. E. Herring who, in company with Fred Bettman, sailed some time ago for Europe. Mr. Herring states the trip over was truly delightful and neither he and his companion were sick. They were much encouraged by several persons who informed them that they would find excellent roads for wheeling. The letter was mailed upon their arrival at Antwerp, just as they were preparing to start on their wheels. They were both in excellent health and ready to enjoy a pleasant trip.

Serious Fire Narrowly Averted.

A serious fire was narrowly averted Saturday evening at Rogers' restaurant on East Front street. Mr. Rogers was lighting the gas chandeliers in his place when suddenly a spark caught in some of the fancy paper decorations around one of the chandeliers. In an instant the whole affair was in a blaze, but Mr. Rogers showed great presence of mind and with the use of his two hands quickly extinguished the fire before any serious damage resulted.

Funeral Service of Miss Edith Marsh.

In spite of the oppressive heat quite a large number of friends attended the funeral services of Miss Edith S. Marsh, at the residence of her father, Francis E. Marsh, 915 Madison avenue, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Martin I. Cooley and Miss Gussie Runyon sang two selections. The Rev. Robert Lowry, a friend and neighbor, conducted the service. Interment at Evergreen Cemetery followed the service.

To Picnic at the Rock.

The Warren Township Sunday Schools will hold a union picnic at Washington Rock on Wednesday August 12th. The Plainfield Cornet Band will discourse music. Speeches by prominent local speakers are on the program. Should the day prove stormy the exercises will be postponed until the next day.

Danced on the Mountain.

An enjoyable dance was held at the Mountain Park Inn Saturday night, which was attended by a number of Plainfield's young society people. Despite the warm weather the guests found it exceedingly comfortable on the mountain. These Saturday night dances have become very popular and are well attended.

BRYAN'S TRIP EAST

The Presidential Nominee Left Chicago Late Last Night.

DUE IN PITTSBURG THIS EVENING

Will Probably Leave the Latter City Early To-morrow Morning So as to Arrive in New York Before Nightfall—R. P. Bland Accompanies Him.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—William J. Bryan left Chicago for Pittsburg by the Pennsylvania road at 11:30 o'clock last night. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan departed from Clifton a few minutes after 11, after shaking hands with a large number of people gathered there to say good-bye, and were driven to the union station accompanied by the members of the Chicago reception committee. They had secured berths in the regular sleeper, and retired as the train drew out of the station. Hon. Richard P. Bland and wife will accompany Mr. and Mrs. Bryan to New York, and they occupied berths in the same coach. Yesterday was really a day of rest for Mr. Bryan—one of the few he has succeeded in passing since his nomination nearly a month ago. Mr. Bryan is a good sleeper, and despite the intense heat of Saturday night he rested well and did not leave his bed until nearly 10 o'clock. After breakfast he and Mrs. Bryan took a carriage at the Clifton house, where they were stopping, and drove to the Englewood Presbyterian church, a beautiful structure at 64th street and Yale avenue, where they attended divine service. They selected that house of worship because the temporary minister, Rev. John Clark Hill, of Austin, Ill., is to be the pastor of their church at Lincoln, and they wanted to meet him. Mr. Hill recently received a call to the First Presbyterian church at Lincoln, and will go there in a few weeks. After the service they returned to the Clifton and had dinner. At 6 o'clock Mrs. Bryan went to the main parlor of the hotel and received a large number of people who were waiting to see her husband. Mr. Bryan received in his room. Many of his local supporters called. One of his visitors was Gen. Warner of Ohio, president of the national bimetallic league, the father of the silver party. Mr. Bryan's plans at New York and for his New England trip are in a state of uncertainty. It is probable that while in New York he and Mrs. Bryan will be the guests of William P. St. John, treasurer of the democratic national committee, who recently resigned his position as president of a national bank because of his free coinage views. If they do not stay with Mr. St. John, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan will go to the Hotel Bartholdi. Mr. Bryan does not know whether he will adhere or not to his schedule from Pittsburg to New York. He had decided to leave Pittsburg to-morrow morning at 7:30 o'clock, but he was informed yesterday that the national committee wanted him to reach New York on the afternoon and not in the night of that day. To comply with this desire he will be obliged to leave Pittsburg a 3 o'clock to-morrow morning.

TOUR OF CZAR AND CZARINA.

They Will Visit the Leading Capitals and Also Go to Balmoral.

Berlin, Aug. 10.—A semi-official statement from St. Petersburg at length announces the itinerary of the czar and czarina on their trip to various European cities. They will start after the army manoeuvres, which end on Aug. 24, and will successively visit Vienna, Berlin, Copenhagen, Balmoral, Paris, and Darmstadt. At Balmoral they will be the guests of Queen Victoria, and at Darmstadt, the czarina's birthplace, they will visit her majesty's brother, Grand Duke Ernest Louis, and other members of her family. Prince Lobanoff, the Russian foreign minister, will accompany the party to all the cities visited with the exception of Copenhagen and Darmstadt, where the visit of their majesties will be of a purely family nature. Much to the delight of the French government and Parisians generally, the czar and czarina will probably remain in Paris longer than in any other city, but the details of their visit there have not yet been fixed.

Butchered by Mussulmans.

London, Aug. 10.—The Athens correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs that a body of Mussulmans have butchered thirty unarmed Christians within the precincts of the monastery at Anopolis, near Candia. One priest was burned alive. The correspondent adds that Col. Abdullah, a Kurd, who is now in Macedonia, will supersede Hassan Pasha, governor of Candia.

Raising Taxes on the Rockefellers.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Aug. 10.—The assessors of Mount Pleasant have made some radical changes this year. It is reported that William Rockefeller's assessment, which was formerly $150,000, has been raised to $1,200,000, and that the land owned by his brother, John D. Rockefeller, has been raised to $300 and $400 an acre. It was formerly taxed at from $60 to $100 an acre.

Four Men Drowned.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Aug. 10.—Jas. Butrick, F. M. Maneke, Frank Yarrington and Martin Manning were drowned while bathing in the lake yesterday afternoon. The bodies of all but Manning have been recovered. Yarrington's wife was bathing with him when he was drowned.

Wayne MacVeagh in Berlin.

Berlin, Aug. 10.—Hon. Wayne MacVeagh, United States ambassador to Italy, is in Berlin enroute from St. Petersburg for Rome.

SENSATIONAL ARRESTS IN CUBA

Havana Officers Charged with Conspiracy by the Government.

New York, Aug. 10.—A special dispatch to the Herald from Havana, via Jacksonville, Fla., says: At Manzanillo a big sensation has been caused by the government ordering the arrest of Major Roblejo, commander of the local Spanish volunteer force, and Capt. Raventos of the armed firemen's brigade, who has also been in active military service since the beginning of the revolution. It is alleged that these officers are implicated in a conspiracy to procure the surrender of important outposts to the enemy in the event of the town being attacked by the insurgents of Gens. Gomez and Garcia. A court martial to try the officers has been ordered. Many volunteers and firemen, it is reported, have deserted since their chiefs were taken into custody. The people are indignant at the arrests, as both Roblejo and Raventos are well connected and of high character in local business circles. Maximo Gomez is reported to be still encamped in eastern Cuba, near Sabana Miranda, endeavoring to organize new cavalry forces to countermarch to the west. It is said that in the great battle fought near Bayamo Col. Seguros' Spanish column was completely routed by the insurgent chief Rabi. The government loss in killed, wounded and missing was more than 200 men. In a machete charge Rabi's Cuban cavalry captured a mounted howitzer and a small gatling gun. The Spanish authorities are endeavoring to suppress details of the disaster. Private Sancti Spiritus, advices announce the capture of important Spanish convoy, which left there for Cabaiguan, by the rebel forces under Brigadier-General Gomez, a nephew of the insurgent commander-in-chief. Holguin letters announce that the town is besieged by Irene Munoz's Oriental Amazons and various other insurgent sorces. Telegraph communication with Gilara has been cut off for a fortnight.

DAMAGE TO THE MAINE.

Ten Bottom Plates Bent by Fouling with Her Anchor at Key West.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The damage to the battleship Maine's bottom is attributed to the fact that her anchor, which is an old-fashioned one, being fourteen feet high, was on a bottom too hard to penetrate when the vessel was lying at Key West, where the formation is firm coral. The ship was fouled in swinging, and ten plates along the port side of the keel bent. The damage was trifling, and under ordinary circumstances would have been allowed to remain untouched; but as the ship had to go into dock at Norfolk to be painted below the water line, in accordance with the regulation requiring that to be done twice a year, the opportunity was seized to remove the bent plates and replace them with new, as the vessel was to remain in dock over a week, at any rate, for the painting, and the renewal of plates would detain her but a few extra days. New plates were fortunately secured from the Newport News shipyard, and are now being applied. The Maine will be finished in time to join Admiral Bunce's fleet, which is to rendezvous at Hampton Roads this week for coal and stores

DISHES DANCED A TWO-STEP.

Complaint Against Uncle Sam's Gunners at Indian Head Proving Grounds.

Baltimore, Aug. 10.—Capt. Charles Tubman of the schooner Howard Dail has made a complaint at the custom house about the reckless target firing from the United States ordnance proving at Indian Head on the Potomac river. Capt. Tubman says while bound down the Potomac shots played around his vessel in such close quarters that the dishes in the cabin pantry danced a two-step from the wind the shot made in passing by. The attention of the navy department will be called to the complaint.

Naval Movements.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The Marblehead has arrived at Palermo and the Cushing at Newport. The Minneapolis has completed her cruise in Scotch waters and sailed for Gravesend.

An Achievement.

He was an artist, whose wondrous skill
Made many with admiration thrill,
For he painted landscapes whose every hue
Seemed blended as colors in nature do.
His tints seemed captives from sunset skies
And his foliage to shake in the breeze that flies;
And all who knew him declared his life
Would be crowned with fame—all except his wife.

And even his wife confessed at last,
His abilities ne'er could be surpassed—
'Twas the day when he started, with mood intense,
And painted the roof and the back-yard fence.

—Washington Star.

Clarinda.

The winter with its ice is gone,
And fair the spring suns rise;
But there's no morning like the dawn
In sweet Clarinda's eyes.
And, by God's grace, He finds it sweet
To spread His roses at her feet.

Fair flows the sap in spring, and fair
The flower bends to the bee,
And melody is in the air
When that she speaks to me.
And, by God's grace, her red lips rare
Tempt me to steal the honey there!

Lean, lilies, to her loyal lips,
And roses, blush and blow!
The bee's blood's in her fingertips—
That's why they thrill me so!
Sing birds, bees, winds, in one sweet tone:
Clarinda is my love—my own!
—F. L. Stanton, in Atlanta Constitution.

Then and Now.

Once I wrote a charming sonnet
To my lady Mary's bonnet,
And I called it smart and fetching, and I called it highest art;
And I vowed each time I met her
With it on I loved her better,
And I ended by affirming that it simply touched my heart.

We are wed, but Mary's bonnets
Never move me now to sonnets
If they did I'd spend in rhyming of my life the greater part.
True, her millinery's charming,
But the bills are most alarming,
And they touch my pocket deeper than the bonnets touch my heart.
—Mary C. Huntington, in N. Y. Sun.

Sleep

Induced by the use of coca, opiate or narcotic compounds is bad, decidedly bad. It undermines the health and shatters the constitution and the patient is steadily growing into a worse condition—often resulting in the terrible slavery and misery of the cocaine and opium habit. COLLUSION CHARGED.

Award by New York State to the Savage Gun Company To Be Contested.

New York, Aug. 10.—The adoption of the Savage gun for the re-armament of the National guard at a cost of over $300,000 is to be vigorously opposed by the Winchester Arms company of New Haven, Conn., and other gun inventors and manufacturers who entered the test before the state commission named to select a gun. They claim that there was collusion practiced in the selection of the gun. There has been made to Gov. Morton a protest against his approval of the report filed by the commission named to recommend a gun for the use of the National guard of the state. The commission sent its report to the governor about a month ago, and it was in favor of the gun manufactured by the Savage Repeating Arms company of Utica. The protestants claim that there seems to have been collusion between at least two members of the commission named by the governor and the successful competitors in the test; that the commission was selected through political influence; that the governor was made an innocent party to the transaction, and that whether or not the report is approved by the governor the matter will at the next session of the legislature be made the subject of legislative inquiry. The Winchester Arms company has requested a hearing before the governor, and has retained Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy as its counsel in the case, with David Welch of the Syndicate building, Nassau street, New York city, as attorney to oppose the approval of the commission's report by the governor. The governor will allow the protestants to be heard, but will not consider the report until some time after he returns from his vacation. He will grant the hearing after Gen. Tracy returns from Europe, about September 20. It is expected that some sensational developments will be brought out at the hearing. The commission named by the governor consisted of Col. Albert D. Shaw of Watertown, E. W. Bliss of Brooklyn and Robert H. Thurston of Ithaca. In detail what the claims of the protestants will be at the hearing is that direct connection can be traced between two members of the commission and the promoters of the Savage Gun company, and that it was the promoters of the Savage company who were instrumental in getting the bill through the legislature, using certain political influence to gain their ends.

ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.

Much Interest as to the Success of the Various Expeditions Yesterday.

London, Aug. 10.—Much interest exists in astronomical circles as to the success of the several expeditions sent out to various parts of the world to study the total eclipse of the sun which occurred yesterday. A special dispatch to the United Associated Presses from Vadsoe, Norway, says that the members of the expedition sent to Varanger Fjord, near Vadso, by Mr. Downing of the British Nautical Almanac, were unable to take any observations that will be of value. The early phase of the eclipse was clearly seen, but its totality was obscured by thick clouds, which rendered the talking of observations impossible. The temperature at the beginning of the eclipse was forty-four. During the eclipse it fell to forty-two, and then rose again to forty-four, when the shadow passed from the sun. Among the observers at Varanger Fjord was Sir Robert Starwell Ball, Lowndean professor of astromony and geometry in the university of Cambridge and director of the Cambridge observatory. News from the other stations, some of which are far from civilization, is anxiously awaited. It is earnestly hoped that the American expedition at the island of Yezo, Japan, and the expeditions at Nova Zembla and in eastern Siberia will obtain results that will be of great benefit to science.

ITALY AND ABYSSINIA.

German Diplomats Will Endeavor to Prevent a Renewal of the War.

Berlin, Aug. 10.—There is some anxiety in government circles regarding the final decision that will be arrived at by the Italian government concerning the Abyssinian question. The commander of the Italian forces in Eritrea has arrived in Rome and has had several conferences with Gen. Pelloux, minister of war. This is taken to indicate that it is the intention to again resume offensive operations against the Abyssinians, who in the recent campaign against them inflicted crushing defeats upon the Italian troops, and practically forced them to abandon the country and retire to the confines of the Italian colony. It is reported that King Menelek of Abyssinia has received stores of arms and ammunition, and that he meditates a surprise attack upon the Italians in October. The efforts of German diplomacy will be directed to prevent Italy from re-embarking upon a profitless campaign.

DEATHS FROM HEAT

Great Suffering Caused by the Present Hot Wave.

MANY STATES ALMOST SCORCHED

Yesterday a Record-breaker at Numerous Points, the Mercury Climbing Above the 100 Mark—Man and Beast Stricken Down.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Dispatches received from various points throughout the country show that no point is exempt from the torrid weather. At Elgin, Ill., yesterday a son of Mrs. Loretta Mott died of prostration. Gerald McChesney died from sunstroke. Mrs. J. J. Hartman was stricken down and will die. Five others are in a serious condition. For three days the mercury soared above 100 at Evansville, Ind., and two deaths have been reported. At Kansas City yesterday 102 was reached, the highest point since the bureau was opened, eight years ago. Despite the intense heat, few prostrations were reported. At Anderson, Ind., there was intense suffering among the men in the nail factories. There were three prostrations in the city. Dispatches from Alton, Springfield and Belvidere, Ill., indicate the hottest weather on record. Outdoor work has been suspended at all these points. Vegetation is being burned up by the heat, and in many localities a water famine is threatened. The Wabash railroad officials have closed the shops of the entire system pending the heated term. At Alton the mercury ranged from 105 to 112 in the shade. Milan, Mo., reported yesterday 106 in the shade and much mortality among animals. Horses dropped in the streets, and only necessary work was done. All records were broken at Jefferson, Ia., where the thermometer registered 106 in the shade. At Tiffin, O., Henry Downey, an aged and wealthy farmer, was overcome by the heat yesterday and dropped dead while unhitching his horses after a trip to the city. At Peoria, Ill., and Valparaiso, Ind., there were many prostrations. At Des Moines, Ia., a record of 92 degrees in the shade was reached and two fatalities were reported. At Milwaukee, Rudolph Salmon, treasurer of the Ernst Salmon Commission company, was struck by a bolt of lightning and instantly killed. The thunder shower in which Mr. Salmon lost his life came in the middle of one of the hottest days of the year. At Springfield, Ill., the day was the hottest of the year, the maximum temperature of 98 degrees prevailing, the street thermometers registering 102. The Wabash railroad shops, employing 350 men, closed indefinitely on account of the fearful heat.

Sweltering in Michigan.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 10.—The last five days have been the warmest ever known in western Michigan. The thermometer here was above 100 all day yesterday and towards evening only lost ten points. Several fatalities have been reported.

Many Deaths in New York.

New York, Aug. 10.—The heated term that has been almost without precedent in this city continues, and the general impression is that yesterday was beyond all doubt the hottest and most uncomfortable of the season. Many people left the city in the early morning for sea side resorts and suburban retreats, in the hope of escaping the torrid temperature of the city. The highest point reached by the official thermometer at the weather bureau was ninety-two at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. This is the record of the instruments on top of the bureau, high above the streets, and fails to give the sensitive temperature with which the people of this city had to deal during the day. Many prostrations and deaths from the heat were reported in both this city and Brooklyn.

The Hot Wave in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—The weather in this city and throughout the entire state of Pennsylvania to-day is still extremely warm and sultry, but not so hot as yesterday when records at many points was broken. Many people and animals were prostrated, and the death ratio was unusually large.

Fifteen Deaths at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Aug. 10.—The thermometeric record is about the same to-day as it has been for the past four. The maximum heat was not reached until half-past four yesterday afternoon, when 97 was recorded. The mercury was above the 90 point at 8 o'clock in the morning and did not descend below that mark until after 9 o'clock last night. Fifteen deaths and twice as many prostrations were reported up to midnight.

Suffering in the South.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 10.—For the past five days the heat in this city and at many points in the south has been intense, and numerous prostrations of both human and animal life and a number of deaths have occurred.

Health Officer To Visit Cuba.

Quarantine, S. I., Aug. 10.—Dr. Alvah H. Doty, health officer of the port of New York, has sailed for Havana per Ward line steamer City of Washington. Dr. Doty said he was not satisfied with the obtainable information regarding the outbreak of yellow fever and smallpox on the island of Cuba, and he expects to gather sufficient data during his stay to enable him to intelligently discriminate regarding incoming passengers.

Chinese Consul Recognized.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The president has recognized Sao Tseng Sze as consul of the Chinese empire at the port of New York.

Deputy Revenue Collector P. H. O'Neill, who was expelled from the Hudson County Democratic Committee Friday night because he refused to vote for the indorsement of Bryan and Sewell and the Chicago platform, threatens to organize a new committee in opposition to the regular organization.

The Union County Republican Committee have decided to hold the primaries to choose delegates to the State convention that will select Presidential electors, on Monday, August 24th. The convention will be held at Trenton on Thursday, August 27th. The several committeemen were empowered to attest the names of the various election officers, challengers, etc., in their several districts. The lists of names will be handed to the secretary of the committee before the first of September, so that they can be referred to the county board of election at its meeting in September.

The New Jersey Law Journal, of which A. V. D. Honeyman, of this city, is editor, has the following editorial urging the need of a Bar Association:

The indictment of a young lawyer at New Brunswick, for obtaining nearly $2,000 from a lady under the false pretense that he had instituted and was prosecuting for her a claim against an estate, resulted in his being found guilty and sentenced to State Prison. The effect of such a verdict cannot but be wholesome. It is astonishing how the bar of this and other States becomes lumbered up with practitioners who feel it to be their duty to prey upon weak clients, who entrust business to them, supposing them to be not only capable and efficient, but honest. It is of first importance that attorneys be honest with their clients, and were there a State Bar Association there might be a happy influence exercised in this direction upon many attorneys, who are known to the profession to be unscrupulous. It is the same with the other professions, so that it cannot be said that the lawyers have a monopoly of it. There are unscrupulous doctors and immorial ministers. Just such verdicts, hower, clear the atmosphere, and make the interests of the common people safer.

In Union county the expectation is that Senator Voorhees will be renominated. It was said at the time the Legislature adjourned that Mr. Voorhees would retire, and while he has not announced any intention of seeking the nomination, it is thought that he would be glad to have it. The hostility of John Kean, Jr., to Senator Voorhees nas not died out. Mr. Kean is taking no active part in Union county politics, but there is a suspicion that he is pretty well informed on what is going on. The explanation is that he appreciates fully the fact that any activity on his part would excite all the old hostility to his leadership. The belief is that he will keep in the background until after the primaries, and that then, with the aid of Senator Sewell and all the forces he can put into play, an effort will be made to control the convention. Of course, if it is known after the primaries that the case is hopeless, the Kean managers will not show their hands.—Newark Call.

Music and Mirth at the Inn.

At the Mountain View Inn Saturday night there was music and mirth in great variety, and for an hour or two the guests and a select few of their friends were entertained with recitations by Clerk Armstrong and other members of the assemblage. Mr. Beach, of New York, also entertained the guests with some expert phrenological tests, which were entertaining and instructive.

A Camp Meeting in the City Park.

The Salvation Army conducted a very successful camp meeting in the City Park yesterday afternoon, there being about 100 present. It is the intention to have these open air meetings every Sunday and provision will be made in the future for seating those who attend.

For the Little Ones.

Additional babies are being given daily outings on the mountains. Some of the liverymen and hackmen drive whole loads of infants to the Mountain Camp almost every pleasant day, and the little ones seem to enjoy the outing very much.

Mrs. Rhodie Nash, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains, and the next day diarrhœa set in. She took half a bottle of blackberry cordial but got no relief. She then sent to me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlin's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhœa but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

L. SPANGENBERG TURNS REPUBLICAN

The ex-Councilman Will Support and Vote for McKinley and Hobart.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I desire to state that I am a life long Jeffersonian Democrat, one not by profession, but on principle, and that I feel a deep interest in the coming presidential election, as I fear the good name of our country for honest money is in peril, owing to the free silver heresy.

I am in favor of a firm unvarying maintenance of the present gold standard. I am opposed to the free coinage of silver at any ratio, except on a basis of bi metalism adopted by the civilized nations of the world. I believe that the interests of the people demand that the earnings of trade, agriculture, manufactures and commerce and especially the wages of labor should be paid in money of the greatest value and of the highest standard adopted by the civilized nations of the world. As the principles of the so-called Democratic convention recently held at Chicago are so utterly un-American and un-Democratic, I certainly cannot support its platform. I shall therefore support and vote for McKinley and Hobart.

L. Spangenberg.

A Successful Expedition.

City Solicitor Endicott, his brother, Dr. George W. Endicott, of Plainfield, N. J., and Master "Tom" Endicott, on Thursday essayed to deprive the deep of all its denizens. They went out with Captain Somers from the Inlet and returned with fish to burn—although—be it said to the credit of the Algonquin chef—he didn't burn them. Tom caught the first blue fish while the City Solicitor left an awful hole in the water, when he pulled in a 19-pounder. That was the largest fish caught here recently, but to the Doctor belongs the credit of catching more than the rest, so that honors are fairly distributed.—Atlantic Review.

Thomas Balantine Missing from Elmora.

The police authorities of Elizabeth were informed Saturday that Thomas Balantine, of Elmora, had been missing for a week and foul play is feared by his relatives. Balantine is fifty years old, five feet six inches in height, weighs 120 pounds and stoops a little in his walk. He boarded with his brother-in-law, Henry Welton, of Elmora, and was a man of steady habits. The police think he may have become temporarily deranged and wandered away while in that condition.

No After-dark Picnics.

Bishop Wigger, of the Roman Catholic faith, of Newark, has issued an order to the effect that all picnics under church auspices must be brought to a close at 6 o'clock in the evening, and no permission will be granted for after-dark or midnight picnics.

That Catarrh is a Local Affection

of the membrane of the nose, throat, etc., is a fact established by physicians, and this authority should carry more weight than assertions of incompetent parties, who claim that catarrh is a blood affection, in order to make a market for their compound. Ely's Cream Balm is a local remedy, composed of harmless medicants and free of mercury or any injurious drug. It will cure catarrh. Applied directly to the inflamed membrane, it restores it to its healthy condition, affording quick relief and a cure after short continuance.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Arthur Krone, of the City National Bank, spent a pleasant Sunday at Ocean Grove.

Miss Adelle Kirby, of Grandview avenue, is spending her vacation at the seashore.

Miss Neal McKee, of Brooklyn, is visiting her sister, Mrs. A. J. Leader, 63 Duer street.

Chief Marshal Wilson, of the borough, started this morning on a two weeks vacation.

Miss Hannah Guttman, of West Second street, is visiting relatives in Newark for three weeks.

Miss Laura Conover, of Elmwood place, will spend the last of August at Cornwall on-the-Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Conover, of Elmwood place, entertained company from out of town over Sunday.

Miss Krymer, of Brooklyn, sang two solos very acceptably at the Crescent Avenue Church yesterday morning.

Albert Wells, of South Bridge, Mass., returned home yesterday after a pleasant visit with Louis Waring, of Park avenue.

Marshal Hansen is acting Chief Marshal during the absence of Chief Wilson, and Special Marshal Whitely is filling the place of Marshal Hansen.

T. C. Scully, of East Third street, is anticipating a trip to Poughkeepsie, about the middle of next month, as his family physician has advised him to take a change of air and recreation.

Captain Addis, of North avenue, returned Saturday night from New York State, where he has been spending a ten-days vacation. Mrs. Addis and daughter will remain until September.

During President Gilson's absence in the South, Vice-president Arthur Smith, of the colored Y. M. C. A, will have charge of the meetings in Mt. Olive Baptist Church every Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

Burrel Gibson, of No 120 Crescent avenue, and president of the colored Y. M. C. A., in this city, started for Baltimore, Md., and Norfolk, Va., this morning, for a four weeks visit at his old home and among his many friends and acquaintances there.

Sergeant Kelly, of Company K, Second Cavalry, U. S. A., was in town Saturday and Sunday as the guest of Richard Harding, of South Second street. Mr. Kelly has served for thirty years in the standing army, and was only recently retired on a pension.

Mrs. George VanArsdale and daughter, Miss Lillian, of Cambridgeport, Mass., arrived in town, Saturday, and are spending a few weeks with relatives, the family of Joseph N. VanArsdale, of West Fourth street and Mrs. C. C. Terwilliger, of West Third street.

Vincent Marsh, son of Randolph Marsh, of Plainfield avenue, and connected with the firm of Bonner Preston and Company, of Hartford, Conn., has arrived in town, to gladden the hearts of his parents and friends, after an absence of three years in the tobacco raising state.

Mr. Brenner, the new proprietor of the Netherwood Hotel, together with his wife and grandson, moved into the new hotel today and are now domiciled there. Mr. Lerch, the new manager, is busily engaged getting things in readiness for an early fall opening in September. Meanwhile, Dr. Hunter left town this morning for a few weeks' hunting and fishing trip.

John M. O'Brien, the gentlemanly clerk and bartender in Hotel Grenada, is anticipating a six weeks trip abroad. He will be accompanied by Fred Cole, a near friend from New York, and they will sail from New York two weeks from the coming Wednesday. During his absence Mr. O'Brien will visit London and Paris, and in the latter city he will be the the guest of Charles Gillet, private secretary to Coquelin, the French star actor.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints,—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Frederickstown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. THROUGH TWO FIRES.

The Famous Silver Hose Carriage to be Repaired.

The costly silver hose carriage, owned by Alert Hose Company, No. 1, which was so badly damaged in the recent Fisk fire, was today taken from Roberts' livery stable, where it has been stored, and transferred to the Fitzsimmons and Crisp Works at Trenton for repairs. Chief Doane was present and took charge of the transfer, and many persons gathered on the sidewalk and in the street to view the remains of the once famous, beautiful and costly hose carriage, which has in years gone by been the pride of the Plainfield Fire Department. The carriage went through the Crystal Palace fire many years ago and as its latest experience was the second time it has been in a fire, some people believe that the next time will surely be "three times an out."

SCOTCH PLAINS.

Miss Maggie Sculley, of Raritan, returned home Saturday after a two weeks' stay with friends.

Station Agent Fisher and family, of Fanwood, spent yesterday at Coney Island, taking in the cool breezes and many sights.

P. Fitzgerald, and employe in the Midvale steel works in Philadelphia, is visiting his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lee.

Miss Cora Gardner, cashier at the Prudential Insurance office for Manager Dawson, returned to her position this morning after a two weeks' vacation.

George Johnson is expected home from Seabright early next month, where he has been for some time superintending the mason work on a new building.

Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Jr., and two sons, returned to Brooklyn for a stay of a week yesterday with Mrs. Paff's mother, who has been visiting her son-in-law and daughter since Friday.

A brutal dog fight took place on the main thoroughfare yesterday afternoon, and was witnessed by crowd of people, mostly young men. Such lawlessness should not be tolerated in a civilized community.

Robert Walpole's valuable hunting dog was bitten on the leg by a copperhead snake three weeks ago, and the dog's life was despaired of. But the animal, under careful treatment, is rapidly getting better.

A party of Scotch Plains people, chaperoned by Bob Walpole, are arranging a fishing trip to the Passaic river Wednesday. It is ridiculous to assert that they will come home empty-handed, for Bob knows just where the big fish live.

In All Saints church yesterday the thermometer registered 92 degrees, and in consequence no regular afternoon service was held. At the morning service, however, the attendance was very good, and the rector, Rev. Dr. True, preached a forcible sermon from Acts 26—"St. Paul's Defiance Before Agrippa."

The Scotch Plains baseball team will cross bats with the Somersets of North Plainfield at the Plains, Saturday afternoon next at 3 o'clock. Billy Lee, of Crescent League fame, will play short on the home team, and the nine will be strengthened, it is said, by the addition of an imported battery from Canada. The Somersets will have a pitcher all the way from Easton.

Evidently acting under suggestions in The Press a week or two ago, the authorities have caused the weeds and underbrush to be removed from the gutters and walks leading to the Fanwood station, and in some places the roadbed has been spread with crushed stone. The new stone will prove detrimental to bicycling interests for a time, but in the end will be a lasting improvement.

Married at the Tenth Trial.

William Mangin and Mrs. Mary Stull, of Rahway, who on Thursday last made nine unsuccessful attempts to get married, Friday night succeeded in being made man and wife. A minister in Westfield wedded them. The reason that they could not get married was because they were acquainted such a little while and were too hasty.

—Don't trifle away time when you have cholera morbus or diarrhœa. Fight them in the beginning with DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure. You don't have to wait for results, they are instantaneous, and it leaves the bowels in healty condition. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Thos. Brantingham is riding a new Norwood wheel.

Morris Higgins is improving his property by the erection of a frame barn.

NEW MARKET.

Samuel Luckey has been nominated as borough justice by Mayor Brakeley.

Miss Edna Garmin has returned to her home in Brooklyn after a several weeks' stay at the Nelson House.

The Dunellen-Stelton road has been macadamized as far as H. S. Garretson's farm.

Holy communion will be observed in the Holy Innocents Episcopal church on Sunday, August 16th, at the afternoon service.

Rev. E. Everett Jones, of Clinton, a former pastor, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church at both morning and evening services.

Miss Birdie Gaskill has accepted a position as teacher in the primary department of the public school for the ensuing year.

DUNELLEN.

Mrs. George Messler is lying critically ill at her home on North avenue.

The next home game of the Dunellen ball club will be played on August 15th with the Somersets of Somerville.

Isaac Stites has been appointed a committee on pulpit supply during the three-weeks vacation of Rev. Mr. Custard, of the M. E. Church.

The latest investment of the fire department is a fire gong. It will be placed on the round-house and run by steam from the Central railroad.

The following were elected to membership in the fire department at their last meeting: Ruloff Badum, John Logan, Cornelius Ryno, Charles A. Coriell, Fred K. Wilcox, Frank Humpston, William Willhelm, William Dunham, Benjamin Harrison and Leonard Leach.

AVON PARK.

Edward Campbell will take possession of his new home early next week.

Drummond D. Williams has resigned his position as coachman for John I. Holly.

John Smith, of Myrtle avenue, North Plainfield, has purchased a new horse from the gypsies.

Mr. and Mrs. John I. Holly have returned home after spending a few days in New York State.

Miss May Smith, of West Fifth street, has returned home after a pleasant visit with Miss Quinn, at the Park.

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur are spending a few days with Mrs. Wilbur's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Campbell.

Harry Holly has returned to his home in New York after a few day's visit with his uncle, John I. Holly, of Park avenue.

Struck His Wife.

Wesley Sheperson, colored, of Westfield, went home Friday night after quitting work and in a quarrel with his wife picked up a flatiron and hit her on the back of the head. The iron cut a gash three inches long and laid the skull bare. Dr. Sherman Cooper dressed the woman's injury. Sheperson was arrested on his wife's complaint, and in default of bail was committed to the county jail.

Incendiary at Work.

An unknown incendiary who has fired several places in Lambertville recently, set fire to Schaffer's grocery early yesterday morning. The building was fired from the outside, a pile of shavings having been piled against the wooden side of the building and saturated with oil. A can of oil was found near by. The building was partly gutted. The police arrested a negro on suspicion, but he denied his guilt and was locked up for further examination.

Broke the Two Hundred Mile Record.

A. W. W. Evans, who attempted to ride four hundred miles today, had to give up on account of the heat and a bad fall. However, he rode two hundred miles in five hours and forty-five minutes, breaking the record.

Stimson stood in a corner and glowered. He was a fierce man and had indomitable whiskers, albeit he was very small.

"That young tarrier," he whispered to himself. "He wants to quit makin' eyes at Lizzie. This is too much of a good thing. First thing you know, he'll get fired."

His brow creased in a frown, he strode over to the huge open doors and looked at a sign. "Stimson's Mammoth Merry-Go-Round," it read, and the glory of it was great. Stimson stood and contemplated the sign. It was an enormous affair; the letters were as large as men. The glow of it, the grandeur of it was very apparent to Stimson. At the end of his contemplation, he shook his head thoughtfully, determinedly. "No, no," he muttered. "This is too much of a good thing. First thing you know, he'll get fired."

A soft booming sound of surf, mingled with the cries of bathers, came from the beach. There was a vista of sand and sky and sea that drew to a mystic point far away in the northward. In the mighty angle, a girl in a red dress was crawling slowly like some kind of a spider on the fabric of nature. A few flags hung lazily above where the bathhouses were marshalled in compact squares. Upon the edge of the sea, stood a ship with its shadowy sails painted dimly upon the sky, and high overhead in the still, sun-shot air a great hawk swung and drifted slowly.

Within the merry-go-round there was a whirling circle of ornamental lions, giraffes, camels, ponies, goats, glittering with varnish and metal that caught swift reflections from windows high above them. With stiff wooden legs, they swept on in a never-ending race while a great orchestrion clamored in wild speed. The summer sunlight sprinkled its gold upon the garnet canopies carried by the tireless racers and upon all the devices of decoration that made Stimson's machine magnificent and famous. A host of laughing children bestrode the animals, bending forward like charging cavalrymen and shaking reins and whooping in glee. At intervals they leaned out perilously to clutch at iron rings that were tendered to them by a long wooden arm. At the intense moment before the swift grab for the rings one could see their little nervous bodies quiver with eagerness; the laughter rang shrill and excited. Down in the long rows of benches, crowds of people sat watching the game while occasionally a father might arise and go near to shout encouragement, cautionary commands, or applause at his flying off-spring. Frequently mothers called out: "Be careful, Georgie!" The orchestrion bellowed and thundered on its platform, filling the ears with its long monotonous song, while over in a corner, a man in a white apron and behind a counter roared above the tumult: "Pop corn! Pop corn!"

"YOU'D BETTER ATTEND STRICTLY TO YOUR BUSINESS."

A young man stood upon a small, raised platform, erected in the manner of a pulpit and just without the line of the circling figures. It was his duty to manipulate the wooden arm and affix the rings. When all were gone into the hands of the triumphant children, he held forth a basket, into which they returned all save the coveted brass one, which meant another ride free and made the holder very illustrious. The young man stood all day upon his narrow platform, affixing rings or holding forth the basket. He was a sort of general squire in this list of childhood. He was very busy.

And yet Stimson, the astute, had noticed that the young man frequently found time to twist about on his platform and smile at a girl who shyly sold tickets behind a silvered netting. This, indeed, was the great reason of Stimson's glowering. The young man upon the raised platform had no manner of license to smile at the girl behind the silvered netting. It was a most gigantic insolence. Stimson was amazed at it. "By jiminy," he said to himself again, "that fellow is smiling at my daughter." Even in this tone of great wrath it could be discerned that Stimson was filled with wonder that any youth should dare smile at the daughter in the presence of the august father.

Often the dark-eyed girl peered between the shining wires, and, upon being detected by the young man, she usually turned her head away quickly to prove to him that she was not interested. At other times, however, her eyes seemed filled with a tender fear lest he should fall from that exceedingly dangerous platform. As for the young man, it was plain that these glances filled him with valor, and he stood carelessly upon his perch, as if he deemed it of no consequence that he might fall from it. In all the complexities of his daily life and duties he found opportunity to gaze ardently at the vision behind the netting.

This silent courtship was conducted over the heads of the crowd who thronged about the bright machine. The swift, eloquent glances of the young man went noiselessly and unseen with their message. There had finally become established between the two in this manner a subtle understanding and companionship. They communicated accurately all that they wished. The boy told his love, his reverence, his hope in the changes of the future. The girl told him that she loved him, that she did not love him, that she did not know if she loved him, that she loved him. Sometimes a little sign saying "cashier" in gold letters, and hanging upon the silvered netting, got directly in range and interfered with a tender message.

The love affair had not continued without anger, unhappiness, despair. The girl had once smiled brightly upon a youth who came to buy some tickets for his little sister, and the young man upon the platform observing this smile had been filled with gloomy rage. He stood like a dark statue of vengeance upon his pedestal and thrust out the basket to the children with a gesture that was full of scorn for their hollow happiness, for their insecure and temporary joy. For five hours he did not once look at the girl when she was looking at him. He was going to crush her with his indifference; he was going to demonstrate that he had never been serious. However, when he narrowly observed her in secret he discovered that she seemed more blythe than was usual with her. When he found that his apparent indifference had not crushed her he suffered greatly. She did not love him, he concluded. If she had loved him she would have been crushed. For two days he lived a miserable existence upon his high perch. He consoled himself by thinking of how unhappy he was, and by swift, furtive glances at the loved face. At any rate he was in her presence, and he could get a good view from his perch when there was no interference by the little sign: "Cashier."

But suddenly, swiftly, these clouds vanished and under the imperial blue sky of the restored confidence, they dwelt in peace, a peace that was satisfaction, a peace that, like a babe, put its trust in the treachery of the future. This confidence endured until the next day, when she, for an unknown cause, suddenly refused to look at him. Mechanically, he continued his task, his brain dazed, a tortured victim of doubt, fear, suspicion. With his eyes he supplicated her to telegraph an explanation. She replied with a stony glance that froze his blood. There was a great difference in their respective reasons for becoming angry. His were always foolish, but apparent, plain as the moon. Hers were subtle, feminine, as incomprehensible as the stars, as mystic as the shadows at night.

They fell and soared, and soared and fell in this manner until they knew that to live without each other would be a wandering in deserts. They had grown so intent upon the uncertainties, the variations, the guessings of their affair that the world had become but a huge immaterial background. In time of peace their smiles were soft and prayerful, caresses confided to the air. In time of war, their youthful hearts, capable of profound agony, were wrung by the intricate emotions of doubt. They were the victims of the dread angel of affectionate speculation that forces the tired brain endlessly on roads that lead nowhere.

At night, the problem of whether or not she loved him confronted the young man like a specter, looming as high as a hill and telling him not to delude himself. Upon the following day, this battle of the night displayed itself in the renewed fervor of his glances and in their increased number. Whenever he thought he could detect that she too was suffering, he felt a thrill of joy.

But there came a time when the young man looked back upon these contortions with contempt. He believed then that he had imagined his pain. This came about when the redoubtable Stimson marched forward to participate.

"This has got to stop," Stimson had said to himself, as he stood and watched them. They had grown careless of the light world that clattered about them; they were become so engrossed in their personal drama that the language of their eyes was almost as obvious as gestures. And Stimson, through his keenness, his wonderful, infallible penetration, suddenly came into possession of these obvious facts. "Well, of all the nerves," he said, regarding with a new interest the young man upon the perch.

He was a resolute man. He never hesitated to grapple with a crisis. He decided to overturn everything at once, for, although small, he was very fierce and impetuous. He resolved to crush this dreaming.

He strode over to the silvered netting. "Say, you want to quit your everlasting grinning at that idiot," he said, grimly.

She cast down her eyes and made a little heap of quarters into a stack. She was unable to withstand the terrible scrutiny of her small and fierce father.

Stimson turned from his daughter and went to a spot beneath the platform. He fixed his eyes upon the young man and said: "I've been speakin' to Lizzie. You better attend strictly to your own business or there'll be a new man here next week." It was as if he had blazed away with a shotgun. The young man reeled upon his perch. At last he in a measure regained his composure and managed to stammer: "A—all right, sir." He knew that denials would be futile with the terrible Stimson. He agitatedly began to rattle the rings in the basket and pretend that he was obliged to count them or inspect them in some way. He, too, was unable to face the great Stimson.

For a moment, Stimson stood in great satisfaction and gloated over the effect of his threat. "I've fixed them," he said complacently, and went out to smoke a cigar and revel in himself. Through his mind went the proud reflection that people who came in contact with his granite will usually ended in quick and abject submission.

PART II.

One evening, a week after Stimson had indulged in the proud reflection that people who came in contact with his granite will usually ended in quick and abject submission, a young feminine friend of the girl behind the silvered netting came to her there and asked her to walk on the beach after "Stimson's Mammoth Merry-Go-Round" was closed for the night. The girl assented with a nod.

The young man upon the perch holding the basket for the rings saw this nod and judged its meaning. Into his mind was born a little plan for defeating the watchfulness of the redoubtable Stimson.

When the merry-go-round was closed and the two girls started for the beach, he wandered off aimlessly in another direction, but he kept them in view and as soon as he was assured that he had escaped the vigilance of Stimson, he followed them.

The electric lights on the beach made a broad band of tremoring light, extending parallel to the sea, and upon the wide walk there slowly paraded a great crowd intermingling, intertwining, sometimes colliding. In the darkness stretched the vast purple expanse of the ocean, and the deep indigo sky above was peopled with yellow stars. Occasionally out upon the water a whirling mass of froth suddenly flashed into view, like a great ghostly robe appearing, and then vanished, leaving the sea in its solemn, mystic darkness, from whence came those bass tones of the water's unknown emotion. A wind, cool, reminiscent of the wave wastes, made the women hold their wraps about their throats and caused the men to grip the rims of their straw hats. It carried the noise of the band in the pavilion in gusts. Sometimes people unable to hear the music glanced up at the pavilion and were reassured upon beholding the distant leader still gesticulating and bobbing and the other members of the band with their lips glued to their instruments. High in the sky soared an unassuming moon, faintly silver.

For a time the young man was afraid to approach the two girls. He followed them at a distance and called himself a coward. At last, however, he saw them stop on the outer edge of the crowd and stand silently listening to the voices of the sea. When he came to where they stood, he was trembling in his agitation. They had not seen him.

"Lizzie," he began. "I—"

The girl wheeled instantly and put her hand to her throat. "Oh, Frank, how you frightened me," she said brilliantly.

"Well, you know I—I—" he stuttered.

But the other girl was one of those beings who are born to attend at tragedies. She had for love a reverence, an admiration that was greater the more she contemplated the fact that she knew nothing of it. This couple with their fine emotions, awed her and made her humbly wish that she might be destined to be of some service to them. She was very homely.

When the young man faltered before them, she, in her sympathy, actually overestimated the crisis and felt that he might fall dying at their feet. Shyly, but with courage, she marched to the rescue. "Won't you come walk on th' beach with us," she said. The young man gave her a glance of deep gratitude which was not without the patronage which a man in his condition naturally feels for one who pities it. The three walked on.

Finally the being who was born to attend at this tragedy said that she wished to sit down and gaze at the sea, alone.

They politely urged her to walk on with them, but she was obstinate. She wished to gaze at the sea, alone. The young man swore to himself that he would be her friend until he died.

And so the two young lovers went on without her. They turned once to look at her.

"Jennie's awful nice," said the girl.

"You bet she is," replied the young man, with great feeling.

They were silent for a little time.

At last the girl said: "You were angry at me yesterday."

"No, I wasn't."

"Yes, you were, too. You wouldn't look at me once all day."

"No, I wasn't angry. I was only putting on."

Though she had, of course, known it, this confession seemed to make her very angry. She flashed a resentful glance at him. "Oh, were you, indeed!" she said, with a great air.

For a few minutes she was so haughty with him that he loved her to madness. And directly this great poem which stuck at his lips came forth lamely in fragments.

When they walked back toward the other girl and saw the patience of her attitude, their hearts swelled in a patronizing and secondary tenderness for her.

They were very happy. If they had been miserable they would have charged this fairy scene of the night with a criminal heartlessnes, but as they were joyous, they vaguely wondered how the purple sea, the yellow stars, the changing crowd under the electric lights could be so phlegmatic and stolid.

"YOU WERE ANGRY WITH ME YESTERDAY."

They walked home by the lakeside way and out upon the water, those gay paper lanterns, flashing, fleeting and careering, sang to them, sang a chorus of red and violet and green and gold, a song of mystic lands of the future.

One day when business paused during the dull, sultry afternoon, Stimson went up town. Upon his return he found that the popcorn man from his stand over in a corner was keeping an eye upon the cashier's cage, and that nobody at all was attending to the wooden arm and the iron rings.

He strode forward like a sergeant of grenadiers. "Where in thunder is Lizzie?" he demanded, a storm of rage in his eyes.

The popcorn man, although long associated with Stimson, had never got over being dazed. "They've—they've—gone round to th'—th' house," he said, with difficulty, as if he had just been stunned.

"Whose house?" snapped Stimson.

"Your—your house, I 'spose," said the popcorn man.

Stimson marched round to his home. Imperial denunciations surged, already formulated, to the tip of his tongue, and he bided the moment when his anger could fall upon the heads of that pair of children.

He found his wife convulsive and in tears.

"Where's Lizzie?"

And then she burst forth: "Oh—John—John—they've run away—I know they have. They drove by here not three minutes ago. They must have done it on purpose to bid me good-by, for Lizzie waved her hand sad-like, and then, before I could get out to ask where they were going or what, Frank whipped up the horse and they were gone."

Stimson gave vent to a dreadful roar. "Get my revolver—get a hack—get my revolver, d——, do you hear—what the devil"—his voice became incoherent in a chaotic rage.

He had always ordered his wife about as if she were a battalion of infantry, and despite her misery, the training of years caused her to spring mechanically to obey, but suddenly she turned to him a shrill appeal.

"Oh, John—not—the revolver."

"Confound it, let go of me," he roared again and shook her from him.

He ran hatless upon the street. There was a multitude of hacks at the summer resort, but it was ages to him before he could find one. Then he charged it like a bull. "Up town," he yelled, as he tumbled into the rear seat. The hackman thought of severed arteries and broken bones. His galloping horse distanced a large number of citizens who had been running to find what caused such contortions by the little hatless man.

"OH! JOHN—NOT—THE REVOLVER."

It chanced as the bouncing hack went along near the lake, Stimson gazed across the calm, gray expanse and recognized a color in a bonnet and a poise of a head. A buggy was traveling along a highway that led to Sorrington. Stimson bellowed: "There—there—there they are—in that buggy."

The hackman became inspired with the full knowledge of the situation. He struck his horse a delirious blow with the whip. His mouth expanded in a grin of excitement and joy. It came to pass that this old vehicle, with its drowsy horse and its dusty-eyed and tranquil driver, seemed all suddenly to awaken, to become animated and fleet. The horse ceased to ruminate on his state, his air of reflection vanished. He became intent upon his gait and spread his aged legs in quaint and ridiculous devices for speed. The driver, his eyes shining, sat critically in his seat. He watched each motion of this rattling machine down before him. He resembled an engineer. He used the whip with judgment and deliberation as the engineer would have used coal or oil. The horse clacked swiftly upon the macadam, the wheels hummed, the body of the vehicle wheezed and groaned.

Stimson, in the rear seat, was erect in that impassive attitude that comes sometimes to the furious man when he is obliged to leave the battle to others. Frequently, however, the tempest in his breast came to his face and he howled: "Go it—go it—you're gaining; pound 'im; thump the life out of 'im; hit 'im hard, you fool." His hand grasped the rod that supported the carriage top, and it was clenched so that the nails were faintly blue.

Ahead, that other carriage had been flying with speed, as from realization of the menace in the rear. It bowled away rapidly, drawn by the eager spirit of a young and modern horse. Stimson could see the buggy-top bobbing, bobbing. That little pane, like an eye, was a derision to him. Once he leaned forward and bawled angry sentences. He began to feel impotent; his whole expedition was the tottering of an old man upon the trail of birds. A sense of age made him choke again with wrath. That other vehicle, that was youth, with youth's pace, it was swift-flying with the hope of dreams. He began to comprehend those two children ahead of him, and he knew a sudden and strange awe, because he pursued the power of their young blood, the power to fly strongly into the future and feel and hope again, even at that time when his bones must be laid in the earth.

The dust rose easily from the hot road and stifled the nostrils of Stimson. The highway vanished far away in a point with a suggestion of intolerable length. The other vehicle was becoming so small that Stimson could no longer see the derisive eye.

At last the hackman drew rein to his horse and turned to look at Stimson. "No use, I guess," he said. Stimson made a gesture of acquiescence, rage, despair. As the hackman turned his dripping horse about, Stimson sank back with the astonishment and grief of a man who has been defied by the universe. He had been in a great perspiration and now his bald head felt cool and uncomfortable. He put up his hand with the sudden recollection that he had forgotton his hat.

At last he made a gesture. It meant that at any rate he was not responsible.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redying. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result. It's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? GOSSIP FROM BERLIN

Decline of Prices of Agricultural Products of the World.

REMEDIES DISCUSSED BY AGRARIANS

The Establishment of a Free Trade System and the Remonetization of Silver Suggested—Russia Becoming the Grain Producer of Europe.

Berlin, Aug. 10.—A select conference was held on Thursday evening at the residence of Prof. Sering of the Berlin academy of agriculture, to which were invited Baron von Hammerstein-Loxten, Prussian minister of agriculture, domains and forests; Dr. Shiel, first councilor of the ministry of agriculture; Hon. Edwin F. Uhl, United States ambassador to Germany; Dr. Schumacher, who made two official visits to the United States for the purpose of studying the agricultural conditions prevailing in America; Mr. Turke, of the Eckert agricultural machinery manufacturing firm; David Lubin, of Sacramento, Cal., as the representatives of the Patrons of Husbandry, and two or three other prominent agrarians. Baron von Hammerstein-Loxten and Ambassador Uhl having made prior engagements were compelled to absent themselves from the corference, but all the others invited were present. Mr. Lubin submitted a series of questions for discussion bearing upon the respective causes, effects and remedies connected with the decline of prices in the agricultural product of the world. Among the number of remedies suggested by the questions submitted were the remonetization of silver at a ratio of sixteen to one and the establishment of the free trade system. The submission of the questions was followed by a discussion which lasted five hours.

Economic Conflict with Europe Predicted.

Prof. Sering delivered an address in which he expressed his belief that the prices of agricultural products had reached their lowest figures, but he admitted that while they would not fall any lower it was possible that they might remain stationary for a long time to come. Alluding to Mr. Lubin's contention—which was that if their efforts to establish a free trade union should fail the farmers of the United States should be granted bounties upon their exported products by the government—Prof. Sering said that he was not surprised at Mr. Lubin's demand, but he warned him and the others of his hearers that if such a system of bounties were established it would immediately elicit strong retaliatory measures in Europe and perhaps cause the creation of a protectionist union of the European countries against the United States. It was a mere delusion, he continued, for the agriculturists of the United States to suppose that France and Germany could be starved into surrendering. The Argentine Republic and Russia, he said, could provide an ample supply of wheat, meats, etc., for an indefinite time. Dr. Schumacher, who followed Prof. Sering, concurred in that gentleman's opinions, and contended that the coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 in the United States would necessarily induce a very serious economic conflict with Europe.

Russia the Future Grain Provider.

Mr. Turke, whose commerical connections are chiefly with the Argentine republic and Russia, expressed himself as convinced that both of those countries were only beginning their careers as the grain providers of the world. Russia, he said, was developing in the production of grain amazingly, and he predicted that within a few years the whole of southern Siberia would become a serious competitor for supplying Europe and the rest of the world with cereals. Prof. Sering suggested the creation of an international alliance of the agrarians of the world with a central bureau in London, Washington, Berlin or Paris, and that the alliance hold an annual meeting of delegates from the various agrarian institutions. The proposal was deferred for the action of a future conference. Baron von Hammerstein-Loxten had previously received Mr. Lubin, who was introduced to the minister of agriculture by Ambassador Uhl. Upon this occasion Baron von Hammerstein declared that he was in full sympathy Mr. Lubin in the latter's anxiety in regard to the decline of agricultural products. Prussia, he said, was suffering equally with the rest of the world from general depression of business and prices. He added that he was glad that Mr. Lubin was about to discuss the problem with which they were confronted with the leading economists of Germany. Baron von Hammerstein later introduced Mr. Lubin to Prof. Sering and Dr. Schumacher. A report of the proceedings of the agricultural conference has been furnished to Baron von Hammerstein.

Young Girl and Her Nurse Drowned.

Whitehall, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Miss Marion Burnham, aged 14 years, daughter of William A. Burnham of Boston, was accidentally drowned in Lake Champlain near Westport yesterday afternoon. She was in bathing and went out beyond her depth. Miss Maggie Moulder, a nurse who accompanied the young lady, and who went to her assistance, was also drowned.

Their Skiff Capsized.

Clayton, N. Y., Aug. 10.—While Burton Wayland and a companion were sailing in a skiff on the St. Lawrence river the boat capsized and Wayland, who could swim, was drowned. His companion, who could not swim, clung to the boat and was saved. Wayland belonged in Watertown. His body has not yet been recovered.

QUIET AT CANTON

Major McKinley Expects Only a Few Callers This Week.

WORK ON HIS LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE

It May Be Ready Before Sept. 1, But Will Not Be Issued Before That Date—A Lengthy and Carefully Prepared Document.

Canton, O., Aug. 10.—This week will be one of the quiet ones of the campaign in Canton. One or two delegations are expected, and Major McKinley may make two or three short speeches, but he hopes to give a great deal of time in the next ten days to his letter of acceptance. It is likely that it will be finished by the end of the third week in August, but he does not expect to publish it before the first of September. Mr. Hobart will commence work on his letter very soon, and if the usual custom is followed he will send a copy of it to Major McKinley a week or so before it is given to the public. Major McKinley's letter will be his longest and most formal utterance during the campaign, and he will enter upon a careful discussion of the two issues, "protection and sound money." These issues are almost equal in importance in the opinion of Major McKinley, as indicated in his speeches. Scores of his friends, however, who come here from various parts of the country seek to impress upon him that popular interest in the money question is declining, and that by the middle of September the tariff will be the issue of paramount importance. However this may be, Major McKinley is amply prepared to discuss both issues, and in his letter of acceptance he will not overlook either of them.

The Campaign in Ohio.

The Ohio campaign will be opened on Saturday next at Columbus. The event will be of more than ordinary importance. The meeting will be addressed by senator John Sherman and senator-elect J. F. Foraker. Senator Sherman's speech on Saturday will be looked upon very generally as the first step in his campaign for re-election to the United States senate. Senator Sherman says he is preparing his speech with great care, and it is his wish to have the most effective exposition of the financial question he has ever made. The prominence of finance in the politics of the day leads Senator Sherman's friends to believe that what politicians rather vaguely term the "logic of the situation" points to the election of Senator Sherman as his own successor. In a state which has so many ambitious and able men as Ohio there are sure to be several candidates for the senate, and Mr. Sherman will no doubt find some opposition when the next legislature meets to choose his successor. The name of Mark Hanna is frequently mentioned in connection with the senatorship, but wholly without the warrant of Mr. Hanna himself. The Columbus meeting will call forth Mr. Foraker's first political utterance since the week of the republican convention at St. Louis, and there is always a vast deal of interest to see and hear him. He has prepared his speech thoroughly, and it, with Senator Sherman's and Major McKinley's letter of acceptance, will show very clearly upon what lines the republican campaign is to be conducted, and what arguments are to be urged upon the people.

TO RETIRE FROM POLITICS.

Congressman Apsley Decides To Return to Private Life.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Representative L. D. Apsley, who has represented the Fourth congressional district of Massachusetts in the house during the fifty-third and the first session of the fifty-fourth congress, has notified the managers of his district that he will not, under any circumstances, accept a renomination. Mr. Apsley was vice-chairman of the republican congressional committee during the last campaign and was unanimously re-elected by his associates to act in the same capacity during this campaign, and while he will not stand for re-election to congress, he will remain with Chairman Babcock at the head of the congressional committee in Washington till the close of the election in November. Although he has been assured of practically a unanimous renomination, Mr. Apsley feels that he owes it to his business interests to withdraw from active politics after the close of his present term in congress.

The Coming Trades Union Congress.

London, Aug. 10.—The programme of the coming trades union congress will venture on little beyond demands for legislation in favor of the working classes, employers' liabilities, picketing, hours of labor, and such like practical matters. Recent decisions of the English courts affirming the principle that picketing is unlawful when the least show of intimidation exists, have deprived strike managers of a powerful weapon. For that reason there is a strong trades union movement to get the law better defined and amended in their favor.

Choynski and McAuliffe Matched.

San Francisco, Aug. 10.—Joe McAuliffe and Joe Choynski, the heavyweight pugilists, have signed articles for an eight-round contest to take place on Aug. 28. Jeffreys, the Los Angeles giant, and Van Buskirk, the Olympic club heavyweight, have also been matched for a limited-round contest to occur on a date yet to be named.

Drowned in Lake Neahtawanta.

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Thomas Kay of Oswego Falls, was drowned yesterday afternoon while swimming in Lake Neahtawanta.

SPORTS

MONDAY, August 10. Sun rises, 5 a. m., sets 7:11 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:11 p. m. and 4 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Cycling has certain advantages over horseback riding. Cheapness, accessibility, safety and the very small amount of preparation required are all on the side of the wheel.

Many out-of-town bicyclists do not follow fully the instructions and directions in the road book, which is gotten out by the L. A. W., and in consequence when passing through this city becomes somewhat mixed in the matter of roads. One bicyclist from Newark who left Allentown, Pa., early Saturday reached Plainfield, at 11 o'clock yesterday. He said he had been misdirected and rode about thirty miles out of the way.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

"Jed" Smalley, of North Plainfield, has purchased a new trotter.

Mr. Brower will take his fast stepper to Middletown, N. Y., this week, and he will also trot the horse at Port Jervis and Goshen.

On account of the extreme heat on Saturday afternoon there was but one trial of speed on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association on Park avenue, Saturday afternoon. Aaron Brower's bay stud trotted a mile in 2.23. Next Saturday it is expected that Thomas Brantingham, Charles Boone, John Osborne and Mr. Brock will enter horses in one or more of the several friendly trials of speed which are being arranged for that day.

NO CAUSE FOR ACTION.

A Suit Brought to Determine Ownership of Machinery.

An interesting case was tried before Justice Crosley and a six-men jury this morning in the borough court room. John Wolf, dealer in farming implements, brought action against a man named James Stewart, a farmer, living near Mt. Bethel. Lawyer John Kirch represented Mr. Stewart and Mr. Wolf had no lawyer. It appears that some time ago a man named Falkner living in the borough purchased some implements from Mr. Wolf and never paid for them. Mr. Falkner left town some time later and the goods were stored in a barn on the farm occupied by Mr. Stewart. In consequence Mr. Wolf made a levy on the goods to satisfy his claim. Mr. Stewart said the goods belonged to him and that Wolf had no right to them.

The case tried this morning was for the purpose of ascertaining who was the owner of the goods and the jury gave a verdict of no cause for action. Those serving as jurors were: J. W. Van Horn, J. M. Smalley, George Wise, F. Hall, Frank Kesselring and C. J. Smith.

TWO CONTUSED WOUNDS.

The Hospital Has New Patients in a Brakeman and a Machinist.

P. W. Deitrick, a brakeman, whose home is in Philadelphia, sustained a contused wound of the elbow this morning while coupling cars about two miles from Bound Brook on the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was brought to the hospital in this city where his wound was dressed. He will be able to leave for home in a short time.

Another accident case was brought to the hospital this morning. H. Kinhsear, an employe at the Pond Tool Works, suffered a contused wound of the ankle, which was caused by the fall of a heavy casting. Proper treatment was given, but it will be sometime before Mr. Kinhsear will be able to use his foot.

Edward Barry, general superintendent of the Plainfield golf ground, is suffering from fever and ague. He is, however, able to walk although quite weak.

ELEVEN INNINGS GAME.

be close by and caught the ball. Samson, who has been in Boston for some time, resumed play on the team, but his work was a little shaky, on account of his not being used to the second base position. Shenck, Wren Townley and Warren Townley in the field did good work.

The visiting team put up an even game and won the contest on its merits. Special mention should be made of Pule's playing at short stop, which was very fine.

Praise should be given Thomas Keller, as umpire. His decisions were exceedingly accurate and gave the best of satisfaction.

During the game Samson was nearly overcome with the heat, but he pluckily finished the game. It is to be hoped that another game may be witnessed in this city between the same teams. Next Saturday the famous and well-known Staten Island A. C. team will play in this city and another close contest may be looked for.

The Plainfield Athletic Club went to Stirling Saturday and defeated the Stirling Athletic Club by the score of 18 to 11. The grounds proved to be the worse that the Plainfield boys have ever played on, which accounts for the many runs made by the Stirling team, as they only got five hits off of Winn, while the Plainfield team pounded the pitching of Leonard all over the field for twenty hits and a total of twenty-two bases, which shows the heavy hitting of the Plainfield boys which they have the credit of. The game was never in doubt after the seventh inning when the Plainfield boys forged ahead and kept the lead to the end. One of the most outrageous things ever done by any baseball team was that by the Stirling team Saturday after the game, when they refused to pay the expenses of the Plainfield team for stage hire after they promised to. The expense, however, fell on the manager of the Plainfield team. If the manager of the Stirling team keeps this up they will be unable to get any teams to play with them for the rest of the season. The features of the game were the pitching of Winn and the heavy hitting of the Plainfield team. Follows is the score:

Plainfield Wins at Golf.

The New Brunswick golf team came to Plainfield Saturday and were taken into camp by a closely-contested and well-played game. It will be remembered that the Plainfield team was defeated at New Brunswick, and the victory on Saturday was a notable one. Below is the score in full:

Fast Driving at Bound Brook.

Two well known North Plainfield young men went for a carriage ride to Bound Brook yesterday, and it was their intention to drive on to New Brunswick. The two speeded their horse through the streets at a rapid gait, and instead of going direct to New Brunswick as was their first intention, they returned to a hotel for supper, and here they were arrested and marched before the borough judge. They pleaded ignorance of the law, but the judge fined them $10 each and trusted them for a week to make good their respective fines. It is hardly thought possible that the young men will be seen in Bound Brook again this season.

Everybody Takes to the Car.

Yesterday was another very busy day for the street railway. The Netherwood and Dunellen cars were crowded during the day and evening, and standing room was almost at a premium. The Somerset street line also conveyed many passengers to and from the mountain. Many entire families took a ride over the various routes in order to get what little breeze the was.

Carried a Trunk on His Wheel.

There are tricks in all trades, but the latest device adopted by bicyclists is carry trunks. One man rode up to the North Avenue station Saturday morning carrying a 75-pound trunk along with him. The trunk was strapped partly to the rider and partly to the bike.

If you have ever seen a little child in the agony of summer complaint, you can realize the danger of the trouble and appreciate the value of instantaneous relief always afforded by DeWitt's Colic & Cholera Cure. For dysentery and diarrœa it is a reliable remedy. We could not afford to recommend this as a cure unless it were a cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

To Be Worked on Early Purchasers of
The Spalding Bicycle
After the adoption of our 1896 model and a careful estimate of the cost of manufacture, we placed the price on the Spalding Bicycle at $100. The price is now $100 and will continue at $100 throughout the season, no matter what other manufacturers may do.
We don't believe it is fair, honest or good business policy to sell a standard article like the Spalding Bicycle at one price in May and reduce its value in June by a material reduction in price. As a matter of common fairness to early purchasers of Spalding Bicycles and as an evidence of good faith on our part we will, in case of reduction in price during the season, send a rebate check to every purchaser of a Spalding Bicycle of the amount of any such reduction that may be made by us during the season This is our meaning of a GUARANTEE OF PRICE.
Ride the Spalding and you will be happy, contented and assured that you will not be "flim-flammed" in price or quality.

A MAN OF ENERGY GONE

Plainfield Suddenly Loses ts Most Prominent Citizen.

E. R. POPE PASSES OVER THE DIVIDE.

Had Been Ailing But a Few Days and Was Not Considered in a Precarious Condition—Died Sitting in a Chair—Born in Dunellen, But Had Lived in Plainfield Since He Was Fourteen Years of Age—Interested in All Local Enterprises for the Past Twenty Years—Great Influence.

If there was one man in Plainfield prominent on account of his solidity, shrewd business ability and wonderful judgment, that man was Elias R. Pope. And now Death has ended his career. In his handsome residence at the corner of Park avenue and West Fifth street, with all the conveniences wealth could furnish, he quietly passed away seated in the easy chair at the side of his bed. The end came very unexpectedly, for, although he had been ill for about a week, his family and and relatives had no premonition that death was so soon to call its victim.

Mr. Pope has always been known as an indefatigable worker unhindered by illness or worry. His life has been singularly free from illness until this summer when he began to be troubled with acute indigestion, which caused a short hacking cough. About a week ago Mr. Pope was forced to cease his constant exertions and remain at home. Owing to his cough, he found it easier to rest at night in a large easy chair than in bed. Last night, although feeling weaker than usual, Mr. Pope went to his room to retire. He undressed and sat down.

At 11:05 o'clock the spirit of one of Plainfield's greatest citizens passed into the world beyond.

Mr. Pope's loss was deeply felt by many for he had hosts of friends besides relatives.

He was a quiet man whose greatest pleasure seemed to be in work. He had an evenly-balanced judicial character that enabled him to look clearly at a subject and settle it fairly and without prejudice. He was cool at the most exciting moments and that coolness and clear judgment gave him the great political power that made him one of the leading spirits in the Republican party of this section. Although he did not hold many offices, yet his advice and direction was always looked upon as the best.

From a poor boy, he worked his way up, not by doing great things, but by carefully managing the details. And so his history is one of numerable small achievements that gradually raised him to the position of one of Plainfield's leading citizens.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, beyond the fact that it will be held Thursday.

Elias R. Pope was born in Dunellen March 8th, 1836, the son of John and Sarah R. Pope, and was the oldest of a family of seven children, only one of whom was a daughter.

Mr. Pope's antecedents were of the good old revolutionary stock. Samuel Pope, his paternal grandfather, was a man who spent his active life as a farmer in Washington Valley. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and after his death his widow, who was before marriage a Miss Moore, drew a pension in recognition of his honorable services to the country in its infancy. Their six sons were Samuel, Joseph, Squire, James, Henry and John, and their daughters were Rhoda and Sarah. Samuel and Squire emigrated to the west where they became wealthy and influential citizens. The rest of the family settled in the vicinity of where they were born.

John, the father of Elias, was born in 1807, and married Sarah Dunham, of New Durham. Their children were Elias R., David S., Sarah, Charles S., Howard A., Simion R., Asa D. and James D.

John Pope was a shoe manufacturer at Dunellen during his active business life and carried on a small farm there. He was a man who loved his family and took but little part in affairs of a public nature. His life was uneventful. He was a member of the Seventh-day Baptist church of New Market, and for many years served the church as a trustee. He died in 1874.

Elias was born in Dunellen and spent his boyhood days at home. His father had quite a large family, and while he reared them with great care as to their moral and religious training, there was but little facilities at the time for education in the neighborhood, and Elias, with the rest of the children, received only the elementary rudiments of English in the village school. But he grasped quickly whatever was taught him, and at the age of fourteen years decided to start out in the world for himself.

Plainfield was then a bustling hamlet, the center of the farming country for miles around, and the young lad naturally turned towards here, knowing that opportunities might be greater than to plod along in the little neighborhood in which he had been reared. At that time Isaac S. Dunham conducted a general merchandise store in Plainfield and also manufactured clothing. The young man secured a position with him in the store as a clerk, commencing at the bottom of the ladder. He was attentive to his duties and honest in all of his transactions, thus winning the esteem of his employer, who gradually advanced him until he became his right hand man in looking after his business. For fourteen years he continued in the capacity of a clerk for Mr. Dunham. Then his worth and long service was recognized by the latter taking him as a partner and establishing a branch store at Basking Ridge. The following three years he remained in that place, and in 1867 returned to Plainfield. Since the time he had left home he had amassed a sufficient amount of money to enter into partnership with Messrs. Parse and Mundy, and established a general mercantile store at the corner of Somerset and Front streets. They soon built up the leading business in Plainfield and for many years it continued as such. After six years Mr. Mundy withdrew, and for the following three years the firm was known as Pope and Parse. The business continued to prosper under the new firm, and then Mr. Parse withdrew and was succeeded in his interest by Howard A. and David S. Pope. The firm name was Pope Brothers, and the partnership was continued until 1881, when David S. Pope withdrew from the business.

Up to 1872 Mr. Pope had generally remained attentive to the one business in which he was directly interested in. Naturally, he was inclined to be more progressive than the ordinary citizen, but at the same time he was filled with enough conservatism and discretion not to branch out until he was pretty well assured of success, knowing that his capital at the time was limited and that an unfortunate investment was liable to leave him stranded on the rocks which beset every business man's career. And be it said right here that Mr. Pope was imbued with an exceptional insight into the business world so that he was particularly fortunate in all his enterprises.

In 1872, Mr. Pope foresaw the growth which Plainfield was to enjoy and he commenced to turn his attention to real estate and other business outside of the mercantile line.

In 1872, Mr. Pope was first elected to public office, being made county collector in Union County for that year. He ran for Assemblyman from this district in the fall of the next year and was elected. He was re-elected to the Assembly of 1875. He was nominated by the Republicans in 1879 for city collector but met with defeat.

His next political office was that of postmaster to which he was appointed in 1882, by President Arthur after a close fight serving six years. In 1890, President Harrison reappointed him to the postmastership and he held it for four years.

For twenty-four years he has been treasurer and a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist Memorial Fund and had just completed his report before his death to be presented at the Conference next week. Last Sunday he was unable to attend the quarterly meeting of the Board on account of ill health and it was the first meeting he has missed since he has been a member.

Mr. Pope has been intimately connected with the banking history of this city. He was the moving spirit in the party of men that organized the Dime Savings Institution in 1869, the idea of forming such a bank having originated with him. He was made treasurer and one of the managers of the institution, J. B. Coward being the only one of the latter that now remains. He was instrumental in the forming of the City National Bank in 1875, and was immediately elected a director and president. He held the last named office for three years, and then was made First Vice-President,

IMPRISONED UNJUSTLY

NO JUST CHARGES TO HOLD JAMES CORRIGAN IN CUSTODY.

Kept in the Stuffy Little Lockup When No Charges Could be Substantiated—Discharged and Arrested on New Complaint

The borough court room was crowded to overflowing with people yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, who expected to witness the trial of Mrs. James Corrigan against her husband, but they were disappointed as the trial did not take place. It seems that James Corrigan went to his home Saturday night and took one of his children away. This caused trouble right away, as his wife thought he was trying to steal the child. It is also said that Corrigan swore at his wife and her parents. However, a warrant was issued and Corrigan was arrested Saturday night and kept in the lockup till yesterday afternoon. Lawyer Hetfield appeared for Corrigan. In opening the case Justice Crosley stated that the case seemed to be who should rightfully keep the child. The child, he thought, should be left with the mother providing she is able to take care of the child. If the case should be taken to a higher court, Justice Crosley said, it is not likely that the court would consider the case as there had been no proceedings for a divorce. The case was then dismissed. In the meantime a second complaint was made. It was charged that Corrigan had used indecent and foul language and was abusive. The defendant pleaded not guilty and Lawyer Hetfield asked for an adjournment of one week. It seemed to be the opinion of the crowd present that there was a considerable amount of injustice shown in keeping Corrigan locked up over Sunday, during this hot weather.

A Former Plainfielder Greeting Friends.

Mrs. John H. Honeyman, of Knoxville, Tenn., and her brother, William Y. Westervelt, of Isabelle, Tenn., are visiting at the home of Dr. D. C. Adams on Grove street. Many will remember Mr. Westervelt. He was a graduate of Leal's School, after which he entered Columbia College, where he was graduated with high honors as a mining engineer and chemist. He at once accepted a position as such at Isabelle, Tenn., seventy miles from Knoxville, a large copper and mining district owned by an English syndicate. His many friends in Plainfield will be glad to welcome him here and congratulate him on his success.

No Body to go His Bail.

An effort was made to procure bail for Wesley Sheperson, who was sent to jail from Westfield for striking his wife with a flatiron, but up to yesterday morning no one had been found who would go security for him. An effort is being made to day by several members of the Second Baptist church, of which he is a deacon, to form a pool and indemnify someone to secure his release.

Died in New York.

James McFadden, of West Fourth street, received a telegram telling him of the death of his son, Thomas McFadden, which occurred at the latter's home in New York city. Mr. McFadden went to New York this morning to learn the particulars. The funeral will be held from St. Mary's church tomorrow morning on the arrival of the 9:34 train.

Threatened the Officer.

J. Stevens, a young man, imbibed too freely last evening, and about 11 o'clock he was discovered by Acting Chief Marshal Hansen on Somerset street. Stevens had passed the limit and his condition prompted him to threaten the life of the officer. This caused his arrest and this morning he was fined $10, which amount was paid.

Still Claims to be a Democrat.

Though he will vote for McKinley and Hobart, Leonard Spangenberg still claims that he is a Democrat, and says that the head put over his communication, "L. Spangenbery Turns Republican," in yesterday's Press, was misleading.

Off to the Shore.

Twenty-two cars, in two sections, conveyed the excursionists of the Crescent Avenue church and Sunday-schools to Asbury Park today. The day must be an exceedingly hot one at the shore, yet there is plenty of water there to dip in.

Don't Want the Trolley.

A petition is being circulated against the trolley going through East Second street, and it is being liberally signed by property owners.

The whole system is drained and undermined by indolent ulcers and open sores. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve speedily heals them. It is the best pile cure known. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

FOUND DEAD IN HER BED.

M. A. MONAGHAN DIED FROM HEART FAILURE CAUSED BY THE HEAT.

She Retired Early Last Evening Complaining of Weakness and Dizziness and Died During the Night—Was a Waitress.

The heat found another victim last night in Mary A. Monaghan, the waitress employed in the household of Josiah Browne, of Watchung avenue and Webster place. Last evening she retired rather early complaining of not feeling well. This morning she was found dead in her bed. Dr. Rushmore, the family physician, who was summoned, declared that the cause of her death was heart trouble, brought on by the awful heat.

Mary Monahan was about twenty-seven years of age. Two months ago Mrs. Browne secured her through a New York agency and from that time she has been living at the residence of Mr. Browne. She was bright and capable and a great favorite among the children. Despite her short stay, Mrs. Browne thought her invaluable and trusted her implicitly. She has been complaining of malaria since she came to Plainfield and last evening told Mrs. Brown that she felt weak and dizzy. Mrs. Browne said that she should retire at once. The young woman wished to lock up the house first but Mrs. Browne told her to leave that and Mr. Browne would do it. Mary obeyed and she was never seen alive again.

She did not come down in the morning at 7 o'clock, and Mrs. Browne went to call her, only to find her lying quietly on the bed in the sleep that knows no awaking.

Dr. Rushmore was summoned and gave the required burial permit.

Decedent had no relatives in town but Mr. Browne discovered from some of her letters that she had a sister in Troy and a sister-in-law in New York, whom he telegraphed to at once.

A. M. Runyon & Son took charge of the remains.

A Large Funeral.

The funeral of the late Warren Conover, the young colored man who died at his house, No. 430 East Third street, on Friday last, took place from Mt. Olive Baptist Church yesterday afternoon was the largest, perhaps, which has been held in the church in many years. Rev. Mr. Johnston, of the Fillmore Avenue Baptist church, officiated, Rev. Mr. Groves and a visiting clergying assisting in the service. The floral tokens were neat and appropriate, and the pallbearers were Frank Nelson, David Martin, Edward Martin, Alonzo Dunham, Harrison Randolph and DeWitt Henry. Interment was made in the Plainfield avenue cemetery.

To Entertain the Vets.

The Board of Trustees of the Exempt Firemen's Association are making arrangements for the reception and blowout to be given to the members of the Veteran Fire Association, of New York, in this city on Saturday, October 3d. It will be a gala day for the firemen in this section of the country, and besides speaking and historical data in connection with the Association, Prof. Dodsworth's full band of sixty pieces will be present and discourse popular airs. The Crescent Cycle Academy has been engaged for the occasion. The Association numbers about 150 members, the oldest of which is over 90 years of age.

The Musical Baker Retires.

Emanuel Eckel, the Westfield baker, feels the need of a rest, and has sold his business to George Sheeland, of Plainfield, who took possession this week. Mr. Eckel is known among his friends as the musical baker. He plays the flute in a way that rivals Paderewski. When delivering bread in the morning it was his habit as the wagon stopped before each house to call up the customers by playing a few airs upon his flute.—Westfield Standard.

A Sprained Ankle.

John L. Anderson, of Third place, is suffering intensely from a sprained ankle, which resulted yesterday from a fall off of a porch six feet high. Mr. Auderson did not notice how close he was standing to the edge of the porch, and in taking a step backward he fell very suddenly to the ground. His whole weight came on one foot causing the severe strain. Mr. Anderson is able to get about with a cane, but the pain is severe.

Special Song of Service.

Dr. Robert Lowry has kindly offered to compose words and music of a song of welcome to be sung at the opening of the C. E. convention, October 7th, by the local choir of 500 voices.

Poison Ivy, insect bites, bruises, scalds, burns, are quickly cured by DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, the great pile cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

RAIDED LIVING PICTURES.

Borough Officer Swooped Down on Nude Boys in Swimming.

During this excessive warm spell it has been the custom of some boys to seek the brook in the rear of Assemblyman Reed's house on Willow avenue, for a swim.

This morning word was sent to Marshal Hansen that a number of boys in a nude condition were causing a disturbance at the above place. The Marshal went to the place and found the boys, but he was only able to catch one who was a colored lad about twenty years old.

He gave his name as Chas. Miller, and said that he had come from New York last evening. He was given a hearing by Justice Crosley and the usual penalty in such cases was imposed. Owing to the fact that the other boys were in a moist condition the Marshal was unable to hold fast to them, and a lively time followed their detection.

BICYCLE RECORDS SMASHED.

Evans Lowers the Time in the New Jersey Fifty and Seventy-five Mile Runs

A. W. W. Evans rode 100 miles between New Brunswick and Elizabeth yesterday morning in 5 hours, 48 minutes and 45 seconds. He made his first 50 miles in 2 hours, 30 minutes and 35 seconds. This breaks the State record. He also broke the State record for 75 miles, his time being 4 hours and 3 minutes.

Mr. Evans intended to establish a record for twenty-four hours, but he had a collision with the tandem which was pacing through Rahway when he was on the last lap of the 100 miles, and had to give up. He expected to make 400 miles in 24 hours.

He intended to also try to break the record for 500 miles on the same ride, which is 64 hours and 24 minutes. Mr. Evans will probably try the two latter feats sometime this month over the course between this city and Elizabeth.

CHURCH INSURANCE PAID.

Dispute Over Payment of a Claim Settled by Recourse to Arbitration.

After a delay of six months the insurance on the Presbyterian church of Bound Brook, has been settled. The edifice was destroyed by fire on the 6th of February, at the time that an overflow of the river caused a flood in the village. The insurance was for $10,000, divided among four companies. As the flood prevented the fire department from reaching the building, the companies demurred as to payment.

The case attracted general attention in insurance circles. Finally the companies offered to settle for $4,800, but the church refused the offer. The State law was appealed to and a board of arbitration was appointed. Yesterday it was announced that the award had been made and that the board recommended that the adjustment be at $8,200. The church accepted the offer. A fine new church is now in process of erection.

Memorial Society's Project.

The Revolutionary Memorial Society of New Jersey met in Somerville Friday to view the Wallace house, where General Washington had headquarters during the Revolution. The house is beautifully situated at the west end of the town. The society wishes to buy the property and convert it into a memorial like the Washington headquarters in Morristown. The owner of the property is George W. Cooper, and, although no positive agreement was made as to its purchase, Mr. Cooper accepted an option of $200 until January. A committe composed of Messrs. La Monte, Cornell, Hardwick and Ballantine was appointed to organize a society in Somerset county.

Dr. Talmage's Church Membership.

A few weeks ago, when the clerk of the First Reformed Church, of South Bound Brook, was engaged in revising the church rolls, he came across the name of T. DeWitt Talmage among those of others who united with the church by profession about forty years ago. Surmising that it was the Washington divine the clerk addressed him, and it transpired that it was Dr. Talmage and that he is still a member of the little church.

Mayor Seymour Not For Third Ticket

Mayor James M. Seymour, of Newark, was indignant yesterday in consequence of his name being used at the meeting of sound-money Democrats at Jersey City Friday. Through his private secretary he said yesterday that the use of his name was not authorized, and that he was not in favor of the third ticket movement.

Many a day's work is lost by sick headache, caused by indigestion and stomach troubles. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are the most effectual pill for overcoming such difficulties. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

—The thermometer in some places yesterday was so high up that some people said they were afraid to climb the stepladder and look at it.

—Daniel Morris, of Atlantic City, has given $45.769 for the purpose of building an orphan asylum and industrial home on a farm at Hopewell.

—Dont carry trouble. It's easy enough to find that without getting any of your neighbors. Just buy your goods of Peck and be happy.

Bert Strong, who lives near Fanwood, has accepted a position as traveling salesman for a Boston firm. He will locate there within a short time.

—A meeting of the '96 committee will be held tonight in the Y. M. C. A. rooms. Chairmen of all convention committees are requested to be present.

—One of "Uncle Dan" Roberts' horses came home from Florida Grove early yesterday morning overcome by the heat. The animal had to be bled before relief was found for it.

—On account of the extreme heat yesterday the moulders employed in the Potter Printing Press Works foundry shut down at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning for the day.

—The County Clerk's office at Elizabeth will be open tonight and Friday evening for the purpose of naturalization. No papers will be granted if application is made after Sept. 15th.

—The members of Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, I. O. of O. L., met in regular session in Red Men's Hall last evening, but only business of importance to the order was transacted.

—One of Rev. Edward Love's employes says the thermometer in the shop averages 97 degrees most of the time, and last week on several occasions it reached the century mark.

—Judgment was rendered in Justice Nash's court yesterday afternoon in the contract case of Wood against the Jersey Wheel Company, for $63.79. J. B. Coward was counsel for the plaintiff.

—A young son of Abram Kunzman, of West Third street, has some unaccountable distemper, resembling ivy poison. The boy's entire face and neck are so broken out in blotches that he is scarcely recognizable.

—Two ice handlers employed in the big ice house near Grant avenue, got into a scrap about some trivial matter Saturday and came to blows. They were parted by some of the other employes before much blood was spilled.

—Clarence Lambert, of Lambert's Mills, just southeast of the city, is an expert hunter of woodcock and other game. On Saturday he went out shooting with a New York friend and came home with some ten or a dozen fine specimens of the feathery tribe.

—Neuman Bros., of Watchung avenue and Fifth street, have sent a peach buyer to Delaware to look out for their interests. They tried to get a supply in Hunterdon county, but were unable to make satisfactory arrangements, so they were obliged to look elsewhere.

—Notary Public Ritchie, of Scotch Plains, is a thorough advocate of the street railway extension to and through that place. He says that it is an actual necessity and should be pushed forward before cold weather sets in. The loss to the merchants there he considers will be small.

—Sharks are said to be numerous in the waters of Raritan Bay, near Perth Amboy. They average from six to eight and ten feet in length and are driving bluefish, weakfish and porgies into shallow water. Samuel Randolph and a party of friends were over there a day or two ago and landed 130 porgies of good size, besides several fish of greater size and weight.

—The general good health prevailing in this city at this time is considered something remarkable. There are, however, many cases of summer complaint, especially among children. Of this class one Park avenue physician has been so busy during the past few days that Saturday and yesterday he had to postpone his regular trips to Scotch Plains and other outlying districts.

POLITICAL WORKERS

What Is Going On at the Headquarters in Washington.

REPUBLICANS TALK ENCOURAGINGLY

Democrats Decide To Accept the Issue for a Business Men's Campaign and Prepare a Poster Setting Forth Their Arguments.

Washington, Aug. 11. — Senator Shoup of Idaho was at republican headquarters this morning and talked encouragingly of the republican outlook in the west, especially in his own state. Senator Shoup is a silver republican, but believes in fighting the question out in his own party. He said he believed silver would be the greatest gainer through the republican party than through any other, and the hope for an international bimetallic system was not vain. He is quite confident that Idaho can be carried for McKinley and could not understand how the silverites had secured their information as to the result of the recent contest there which indicated that silver democrats had swept the state. The returns, he said, were not all in Saturday, and it was a little premature to forecast what the result was. Senator Shoup returns to Idaho this evening and will enter actively into the campaign, making as good a fight as he knows how for the republican ticket. A number of letters were received by the republican congressional committee this morning announcing that in some sections of Kansas, it is reported, that that the silver "fever" is beginning to wane as the result of the reading of republican literature with which the state has been flooded.

Business Men's Campaign.

The democratic congressional committee has accepted the issue of the republicans for a business men's campaign, and have just announced this decision through the medium of posters that are to be circulated. The posters say that the democrats accept the issue with definition and statistics of occupation, and then proceed to give statistics. "We say to you," says the poster, addressing itself to the republicans, and quoting from Mr. Bryan's speech, "That you have made the definition of a business man too limited in its application. The man who is employed for wages is as much a business man as his employer; the attorney in a country town is as much a business man as the corporation counsel of a great metropolis." The quotation continues to draw comparison between the cross roads merchants and the mercantile men of New York; between the farmer who toils all day and the stock broker who "bets on the price of grain; "between the miner and the men who seek to "corner the money of the world." Viewed from the democratic standpoint, the members of the national, state and local granges are as much business men as the members of the national and local boards of trade and their votes count just as much. The members of the national and local labor organizations are as much business men as the members of the national and local bankers' associations, etc. In brief," concludes the poster, "the millions of farmers, producers and laborers of all classes are as much business men as the few who live, thrive and grow rich by trading in the products of labor." This poster will be put up by the million all over the country.

SHOT THROUGH A CAR WINDOW

A Philadelphia Man Badly Injured by Unknown Miscreants.

Chester, Pa., Aug. 11.—Joseph O'Brien, 30 years of age, a resident of Philadelphia, was a passenger on the southbound express train on the Pennsylvania railroad last evening. When the train passed Sharon Hill some one threw a bottle and fired a pistol shot at the car in which O'Brien sat talking to a friend. The missiles crashed through the glass and struck the Philadelphian on the arm and wrist. He nearly bled to death before this city was reached, where a railroad surgeon stopped the flow of blood. Detectives are looking for the offenders.

Newfoundland Bank Cases.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 11.—The supreme court has handed down a decision, concurred in by the full bench, quashing the true bills found against the directors of the Commercial and Union banks in June last for conspiring to present fraudulent statements of the affairs of the banks. This compels the prosecution to begin the cases de novo next fall, but it is doubtful if the cases are ever revived.

Last Week of Catholic Summer School.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The fifth and last week of the Catholic summer school of America opened with a series of lectures on the ground work of political economy, and Rev. C. W. Cuviur of Baltimore began his series of five lectures on American history, the opening lecture dealing with "The Formation of Our Country."

Express Office Robbed.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 11.—The United States Express company's office in the Union depot here was robbed of $143 sometime during the night. The keys to the office and messenger's safe were taken from Express Messenger Parkinson's pocket while he was asleep. There is no clue to the robbery.

Drowned While Bathing.

Danielsonville, Conn., Aug. 11.—Paul Nadeau, aged 16, was drowned in Quinebaug river last evening. He was either seized with cramps or hit by a stone in diving.

SEWALL IN NEW YORK

With Bryan He Will Confer with Jones This Evening.

DECLINES TO DISCUSS WATSON

In Doubt as to the Propriety of Bryan Making a Trip Through New England Immediately After the Notification Meeting.

New York, Aug. 11.—Arthur Sewall, the democratic vice-presidential candidate, who arrived in this city late yesterday afternoon, had many callers this morning at the Fifth Avenue hotel, where he is occupying rooms. Mr. Sewall showed no hesitancy in receiving anybody who called upon him. When a representative of the United-Associated Presses interviewed him he said: "I have no news of moment just now. Up our way we are making converts to the cause we represent. You see, the trouble down east is that the silver question is not thoroughly understood there. The people have not had the question presented to them as fully as those of the west have. They must be educated. I think we will carry Maine because I think the people do not yet understand our movement. When Mr. Bryan makes two or three speeches up in New England the people will think better of the silver movement. Mr. Jones will meet Mr. Bryan and myself in conference this evening. Until that conference is had I have no idea what will be done. The national executive committee meets this afternoon when no doubt the selection of national headquarters will be decided upon. Mr. Bryan favors Chicago, I understand, and if some very good reason is not given against it I think the committee will defer to his wishes in that respect.

Declines To Discuss Watson.

"Regarding Mr. Bryan's trip through the east I cannot tell you for our plans are not yet laid and Mr. Bryan's wishes must be consulted. As a matter of policy I am undecided as to whether Mr. Bryan's trip east should be taken immediately after the notification or later in the campaign. I will remain in New York only a day or so after the notification. I will then probably return to Bath." Mr. Sewall did not know whether he would be expected to speak on Wednesday night. He has not yet been notified. Mr. Sewall refused to be interviewed as to "Tom" Watson's candidacy on the populist ticket. Last night Mr. Sewall received Congressman William Sulzer and a delegation of fifty from the Bryan and Sewall Club No. 1.

ARMY ORDERS.

Officers Detailed To Attend the Annual Meeting of the A. P. H. A.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The following army orders have been issued: Capt. James S. Pettit, First infantry, is detailed to attend the encampment of the National guard of Connecticut at Niantic, Aug. 17 to 22. First Lieut. Henry A. Shaw, assistant surgeon, will proceed without delay to Fort Brady, Mich., for temporary duty. The following officers have been detailed to represent the medical department of the army at the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the American Public Health association to be held at Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 15: Lieut.-Col. Alfred A. Woodhull, deputy surgeon-general, and Maj. Chas. Stewart, surgeon. First Lieut. Chas. B. Wheeler, ordnance department, will proceed from the Watertown, Conn., arsenal to Fort Wadsworth, New York harbor, with the necessary skilled mechanics, for the adjustment and completion of disappearing carriages at that post. Leave of absence for two months is granted to Col. Geo. G. Huntt, Second cavalry. Leave of absence for four months, with permission to go beyond sea and to apply for an extension of two months, is granted to First Lieut. John H. Beacom, Third infantry.

SINGLE TAXERS REMANDED.

Decision Rendered in Their Cases by Chancellor Nicholson at Dover, Del.

Dover, Del., Aug. 11.—Chancellor Nicholson delivered his decision yesterday in the habeas corpus proceedings brought by the single tax advocates who are in jail. All the prisoners were present during the reading of the decision, except Samuel Melville, who is sick in jail. Edward Ripgely and Beniah Watson, counsel for the town, were also present. Counsel for the single taxers was absent. The chancellor decided that in the case of W. H. Keevan, the town alderman, Peter L. Cooper, erred in placing the amount of fine and costs on the margin of the docket instead of in the body there, and that his commitment was therefore defective, and he was discharged. In the case of the remainder of the petitioners the motion for a writ was denied and the prisoners were remanded.

Mile a Minute Effort on a Bike.

St. Louis, Aug. 11.—E. E. Anderson, who on Sunday last attempted to ride a mile in one minute on a bicycle paced by a locomotive and who failed by three seconds, is confident that his second attempt, to be made on Aug. 23, will be successful, but many of his friends do not share this belief, because at the finish on his first effort he was badly winded and could not have gone fifty yards further without falling off his wheel.

Movements of Our Warships.

Fort Monroe, Va., Aug. 11.—The United States lighthouse tender Maple sailed and the Fern arrived in port. The U. S. S. Indiana has gone to Newport News and the Cincinnati to Norfolk for coal.

BELIEVES IN SEA SERPENTS.

Monster Deep-Sea Dwellers That Possess Extraordinary Powers.

"Do I believe in sea serpents?" repeated Eugene G. Blackford, formerly state fish commissioner, to a reporter for the New York Times. "I certainly do. Of course, I don't believe in all the details of sea serpents as seen at the summer hotels. I do believe there are huge marine monsters which appear like serpents, and cause these tales about sea serpents to be told."

"How is it that none of these has ever been captured?"

"Their enormous size and swiftness, their extraordinary powers, and the fact that they are shy and seldom appear."

"Why are their bodies not cast ashore?"

"They are probably deep-sea dwellers. The bodies of the deep-sea fish are not cast ashore, except on rare and abnormal occasions. For instance, 15 years ago about 1,000,000 deep-sea fish were found floating dead on the surface of the ocean. It was supposed that a submarine explosion had killed them. Deep-sea fish cannot get to the surface under ordinary conditions, or, if they do, they cannot get down again."

"Wouldn't that keep the sea serpent up if he once came up?"

"Not necessarily. He may be constructed on a different plan. I think the sea serpent is a survival of the great reptiles of the Plesiosaurus species. It is quite possible that, though a dweller of the deep, he may be able to come to the surface of the sea and go down again at his pleasure."

LUSCIOUS WATERMELONS.

A Brunette Statesman Tells How the Melon Should Be Eaten.

"You want to know something about the watermelon crop, and not politics. Well, bless your soul for that; it is a relief from the awful monotony of campaign talk.

"Alabama watermelons will be as good this year as they ever were," says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, "and perhaps better, but to eat a luscious melon is most interesting. Never cut a watermelon; it spoils it. Let it drop and then pick up the pieces and eat them with your fingers. Just imagine biting a chunk out of the ripe red heart; the heart that sparkles all over with little globules of honey water, and when you get it in your mouth it evaporates and disappears, but leaves there the sweetest taste that drives care away and makes the whole world sunshine. But, of course, I'll admit that to establish that feeling for any length of time it is necessary to eat more than one melon.

"Yes, I have eaten the hearts of nine melons without stopping, but I reckon I could finish several more. When I made that record the supply gave out and I had to stop.

"People in the north, I understand, do not eat the seeds. If they had a stomach like mine, made in the boiler works, they could eat most anything, and I am particularly fond of the seeds, as they are the most nutritious."

HIBERNICISMS.

Two "Irish" Bulls Not at All Chargeable to Irishmen.

The Spectator records two "Hibernicisms" which are not chargeable to Irishmen. One of them was recently uttered by the captain of a "boys' brigade"—a popular military organization in a certain English parish. He addressed the corps on the subject of the death of Prince Henry of Battenburg, and in ending his sympathetic remarks chose an appropriate hymn to close the service.

"And now," he said, "let us sing these lines in solemn silence!"

The other remark was made by a clergyman in a discourse on the transitory nature of earthly things.

"Look," he said, "at the great cities of antiquity; where are they now? Why, some of them have perished so completely that it is probable they never existed!"

Wheat from Grass.

Mr. Fabre claimed that after 16 years of cultivation he secured a variety of wheat from a common grass, the "Aegilops Ovata," which grows abundantly all over the south of Europe. Others, however, claim he was mistaken, and that the flowers of the plants in his experiments were hybridized with wheat.

"The Foot of a Fly"

says an eminent English doctor, "will carry enough poison to infect a household." In summer-time, more especially, disease germs fill the air, multitudes are infected, fall ill, die: multitudes escape. These messengers of mischief do not exist for millions. Why not? Because they are healthy and strong—protected as a crocodile is against gun-shot. It is the weak, the wasted, the thin blooded who fall; those who have no resistive power so that a sudden cough or cold develops into graver disease. We hear of catching disease! Why not catch health? We can do it by always maintaining our healthy weight.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, is condensed nourishment; food for the building up of the system to resist the attacks of disease. It should be taken in reasonable doses all summer long by all those whose weight is below the standard of health. If you are losing ground, try a bottle now.

THE EARTH'S LONE COURSE.

Our Troubled Social Conditions Due to Celestial Causes.

Lieut. A. C. Totten, whose fondness for astrological calculations and inferences is well known, declares that the trouble with current affairs is not due to the United States senate, the bicycle, the new woman, or the silver question, but may be accurately traced to the contortions of the heavenly bodies. He says, according to Harper's Weekly, that when too many of the planets get on the same side of the sun at the same time it makes troubles for the earth, and that now, for the first time in the history of man, all the planets, except earth, are approaching coincident perihelia, and within four or five years will be in line tugging away at the sun; while earth, alone on the other side of it, will have an exceedingly hard time, and will be the scene of all sorts of disasters and devilment. Earth will pull through, he thinks, after sore trials; after which he looks for "the literal rule of the returned Messiah," and the winding up of the confusions now formulating, at Jerusalem, which city, he believes, will cease to be trodden by Gentiles, and will become the center from which right rule and justice are to spread over the earth.

Lieut. Totten is familiar with both the Bible and the higher mathematics, and has a remarkable gift for stirring them up together into concoctions that give people bad dreams. He is a very disconcerting person and a chronic "bear," and his deliverances are well adapted to make timid believers realize on their investments and take to the woods.

THE TICHEBORNE CLAIMANT.

One of the Most Remarkable Trials in the History of British Courts.

The Tichborne trial began, says the New York Sun, in London, in the court of common pleas, on May 11, 1871; the case of Tichborne against Lushington, the defendant being trustee for Sir Henry Tichborne. The case was tried steadily until July 7; it then went over until November 7. On December 21 the plaintiff's case was closed and the case went over until January 15, 1872. The attorney general, for the defense, spoke 26 days; on March 4 the jury declined to hear any more, and on March 6 the plaintiff was formally nonsuited. The next day he was arrested for perjury, and on April 9 was indicted therefor by the name of Thomas Orton, alias Arthur Castro. His trial began on April 23, 1873; the prosecution closed its case on July 10; the defense began on July 21 and closed on October 27. An adjournment was taken from October 31 to November 27; Dr. Kenealy summed up for the defense from December 2, 1873, to January 14, 1874; Mr. Hawkins (now Rt. Hon. Sir Henry Hawkins, judge of the queen's bench) summed up for the prosecution from January 15 to 28, 1874; the chief justice charged the jury from January 29 to February 28; and on the last date the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. Orton (Castro) was thereupon sentenced to 14 years' penal servitude at hard labor. He was released in 1878.

FASTIDIOUS PIKE.

Want Young Ducks for Dinner—Wail of an Englishman.

An Englishman is in straits because the young ducks are all being caught and eaten in a loch at Pitgeveny, Elgin. He writes to the London Field:

"I am just broken-hearted because the pike are eating all my young ducks. We shoot them, catch them, and kill them all the year around by fair means and foul, three or four every day, and some have young ducks in them. In one was a young black headed gull, a young duck, and the toes and skull of another; in another were two small ducks and two small coots. There are thousands of young coots on the loch, but the brutes of pike prefer the ducks."

Fish are notorious eaters of ducks, and what is the Englishman's misfortune has been the luck of many a fisherman for bass pickerel and trout. A live young bird tied to a hook, not impaled, cast gently on a still water of an Adirondack stream, has raised many a trout "as big as hand saws," and resulted in the death of a few, but the boys who use birds as bait are not usually skillful enough to land the big ones. A small bird is as good as a young field mouse for trout bait, and that is saying a good deal, as any woodsman will admit.

GAS PRESSURE DECREASES.

Notable Feature of the Year in a Great Industry.

The natural gas production in the United States in 1895 is reviewed in a report of the geological survey compiled by Expert Joseph D. Weeks. The total value was $13,006,650, against $13,954,400 in 1894. The value of the product consumed was $7,920,187, and $9,768,230 was the value of coal or wood displaced by gas. The total pipe laid was 43,830,241 feet, and producing wells opened 3,826. The value of the consumption during 1886-95 was greatest in 1888, when it was $22,629,875. From then to 1891 the decrease was rapid, and in the last four years there has been a gradual decline. The most notable feature of the year was the decreasing pressure in all of the natural gas fields of the country. The life of the wells also has been greatly reduced.

Silk from Fish Eggs.

A French chemist has recently discovered that eggs of certain species of fish are enveloped in veritable silken cocoons. Since the learned Frenchman began his experiments in this line (in 1894) he has found seven different species of fish that produce eggs from which a fine quality of silk may be woven.

Visitors to Greece.

A few years ago Greece was visited only by archaeologists and students. General travel in this direction has but recently set in. Last year about 1,500 Americans visited Athens, and 42 citizens of the United States resided there for the winter.

HUNTING A BEAR.

Audubon Describes a Queer Exploit Near the Arkansas-Missouri State Line.

In his study of birds, Audubon spent much of his life with the Indians, and he often joined them in their sport. His journal contains accounts of many an adventure with his savage friends. The bear-hunt which he describes was made near the Mississippi, in Arkansas or Missouri.

I was invited by three hunters to a bear-hunt. A tall, robust, well-shaped fellow assured me that we should have some sport that day, for he had discovered the haunt of a bear of large size and he wanted to meet him face to face. We four started to see how the man would fulfill his boast.

About half a mile from the camp he said he perceived the tracks of the bear, though I could see nothing; and we scrambled on through the canebrake until we came to an immense decayed log, in which he said the bear was.

I saw the man's eyes sparkle with joy. His rusty blanket was thrown off his shoulders, and his brawny arms swelled with blood as he drew his scalping-knife from his belt with a flourish which showed that fighting was his delight.

The hunter told me to climb a small sapling, because a bear cannot climb this, while it can go up a large tree with the nimbleness of a squirrel. The two other Indians seated themselves at the entrance, and the hero went in boldly.

All was silence for a few moments, when he came out and said the bear was dead, and I might come down. The Indians cut a long vine, went into the hollow tree, fastened it to the animal, and, with their united force, dragged the bear out. I really thought this was an exploit.

HALLUCINATIONS.

Interesting Experiments Performed at the Yale Psychological Laboratory.

The results of some of the experiments of hallucinations of the senses at the Yale psychological laboratory are interesting. A person, says the New York World, placed in a quiet room was asked to note the intensity of a tone which would be sounded every time a telegraph receiver clicked. At first the tone was actually produced, but afterward, unknown to the person experimented on, the tone was omitted while the clicking was regularly continued. Still the subject of the experiment believed that he heard the tone, as before, with every click of the instrument. Another experiment consisted in dropping a light pith ball on the hand of a person so placed that he could not see what was done. Each fall of the ball was timed to correspond with the sound regularly emitted by a metronome. After awhile the ball was no longer dropped, but the subjects of the experiment continued to feel, or imagined he felt, the touch of the ball at every sound from the metronome. In a third experiment a blue bead was placed in the center of a white ring, and a person was requested to approach the ring and note, by means of a tape measure at his side, the distance at which the bead first became visible to him. Later the bead was secretly removed, but still, on arriving at the previously determined distance the person believed that he saw the bead.

THE RAIN CROW.

Facts of Interest Regarding the American Cuckoo.

The American cuckoo belongs to the woodpecker tribe, and is only a summer visitor, coming about the 1st of June and leaving early in the fall for Florida. Unlike the English cuckoo, ours builds its own nest and raises its own young, to whom it is a most devoted parent. We have two species in this country, the yellow bill and the black bill, the latter being best known in Pennsylvania.

Both, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch, are smaller than the old world species, and differ from it in color, being greenish olive above and bluish white beneath, while the European bird is black winged. The American cuckoo has a tail longer than its body, which gives it a hawk-like appearance, and the plumage is soft and silky, like that of the owl, which enables it to fly without making any noise, so that we often hear it call without being able to see the bird.

Burroughs says: "This call of the cuckoo has a solitary, hermit-like sound, as if the bird was alone in the world, and called on the fates to witness his desolation." He has never heard the call answered, nor has he ever seen two birds together. The call is heard most in cloudy weather and before a rain, from which the bird gets the name of rain crow.

LI HUNG'S COMING VISIT.

Is Looks Forward to His Stay in America with Great Pleasure.

Philadelphia, Aug. 11.—John Russell Young, formerly minister to China, has received a letter from the viceroy and special ambassador Li Hung Chang accepting Mr. Young's invitation to visit him in Philadelphia. The viceroy says: "I cannot refrain from expressing the pleasure with which I look forward to visit your most interesting country, which represents the modern civilization without being tinged with the relics of the old. I will meet you and other most distinguished citizens with great pleasure." The viceroy says further that he will leave Southampton on August 22, arriving in New York on the 28th.

ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.

The Late Prof. Proctor's Daughter Obtains a Magnificent View.

London, Aug. 11.—Miss Mary Proctor of New York, daughter of the late Prof. Richard A. Proctor, the well-known astronomer, telegraphs from Trondjem, Norway, to the United-Associated Presses that a fine view was had of the total eclipse of the sun from the deck of the American line steamer Ohio, which was then off the island of Stot, Norway. The sky was absolutely cloudless and the atmosphere clear, affording a perfect view of the eclipse in all its phases. The duration of the eclipse was one minute and thirty-five seconds. Miss Proctor, who is well known in astronomical circles, is a passenger on the steamer Ohio, which sailed from New York June 27 on a "yachting cruise" to Russia, Norway and the "Land of the Midnight Sun." The trip will occupy about two months.

IRISH LAND BILL.

The Measure Passes Third Reading in the House of Lords.

London, Aug. 11.—There was an atmosphere of compromise in the house of lords when the Irish land bill came up on its third reading. The Marquis of Lansdowne, secretary of state for war, submitted three amendments, which were somewhat in favor of the landlords, and these were accepted by the house. About a dozen amendments were offered by landlords, but after brief debates they were withdrawn. Speaking on the motion that the bill be passed on its third reading, Earl Spencer, liberal, formerly lord lieutenant of Ireland, contended that if the measure was passed as it had been altered it would be a serious damage to Ireland and would also damage the strength and independence of the house of lords. The bill then passed its third reading. Lord Salisbury's silence regarding the measure continues to be much commented upon.

HELD IN $7,000 BAIL EACH.

Craig and McClure, Charged with Using the Mails for Fraudulent Purposes.

Jersey City, Aug. 11.—Dr. John Craig and William H. McClure, who were arrested Sunday, charged with having used the United States mails for fraudulent purposes, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Rowe yesterday afternoon. The prisoners were represented by James Furey. Inspector J. J. Larmour of Chicago said he had six complaints against the prisoners. David King, a member of the Chicago board of trade, identified Craig and McClurg, whereupon the prisoners admitted their identity. United States district attorney J. Kearney Rice of New Brunswick asked that bail be fixed at $10,000 in each case, but the commissioner set $7,000 each and committed the accused for trial. They were returned to the county jail and will be taken to Chicago to-morrow.

ATTACKED A TRAIN

Three Sharp Engagements Near Guaymaro in Cuba.

SPANISH TROOPS CLAIM VICTORY

The Butchers Who Murdered the Defenseless People at Guatao To Be Rewarded by Capt.-Gen. Weyler for Their "Brilliant Action."

Havana, Aug. 11.—A government force under command of Gen. Codoy, while conveying a supply train from Minas to Guaymaro, was attacked three times by 2,000 rebels under Anelino Rosas. Each time, according to Gen. Codoy, the insurgents were repulsed, with a total loss in the three fights of nineteen killed. The Spaniards lost four killed, and two captains, a lieutenant and twenty-three privates wounded. Capt.-Gen. Weyler has announced his intention of decorating all the members of the column who took part in the "brilliant action" at Guatao in February last. Over 10,000 sick soldiers are in the various military hospitals. Of this number 2,200 are suffering with yellow fever.

The "brilliant action" at Guatao, for participating in which decorations are to be conferred on officers and men, occurred on Feb. 22. The town is only seven miles from Havana. A detachment of Spanish troops, pursuing a small band of rebels from Punta Brava, entered Guatao after the rebels had passed through it on their retreat, and murdered twenty-one non-combatants, among who were some Spaniards, sick persons and a number of boys. The "brilliant action" was, according to accounts from several different sources, simply a massacre of defenseless persons who had nothing to do with the rebellion.

VASCO DE GAMA'S VOYAGE.

This Country Invited To Take Part in the Celebration at Lisbon.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The secretary of state has forwarded the following letter to the Portuguese envoy, Viscount de Santo Thyrsee, to the secretary of the navy for action: "I have the honor to enclose copies of the general programme for the national celebration of 1897 of the "Fourth Centenary of the Departure of Vasco da Gama for the Discovery of India." On behalf of his majesty's government I have the honor to ask the government of the United States to take part in this celebration by sending some men-of-war to Lisbon on that occasion. I hope that the United States government will contribute to the splendor of the commemoration of one of the greatest achievements in the whole history of the world which is at the same time one of the purest and brightest glories of a country which has been sound to the United States by a long and uninterrupted friendship." The programme provides for a new series of coin and postage stamps, various exhibitions in all parts of the country, a naval review at the mouth of the Tagus in July, international regattas, bicycle races and rifle competitions.

WORK OF THE HEAT.

Many Prostrations and Deaths from the Hot Wave Throughout the East.

New York, Aug. 11.—The unusual heat, lasting for an unusual length of time, has been the cause of hundreds of deaths in New York during the past five days, and the hospitals have been filled with victims, prostrated in the streets, places of business and in their homes. The weather bureau gives little promise of abatement in the heat for several days. The heat to-day continues and the number of deaths from its terrific force reported by the police during the past twenty-four hours number nearly fifty, while the prostrations run into the hundreds. The same situation exists in Brooklyn and Jersey City, while dispatches from all points in New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and the New England states tell of great suffering and deaths due to the extreme hot weather. It is slightly cooler to-day over the greater portion of the lake region and central Mississippi valley, and from Maryland southward to Georgia.

Loss of the Ship Stafford.

Philadelphia, Aug. 11.—Cable advices received here from the Phillipine islands state that Capt. Oscar Smith the mate of the abandoned British ship Flora P. Stafford was among those saved. No further particulars were sent. The Stafford was burned at sea on June 8 while on a voyage from Newcastle, N. S. W., for Manilla with a cargo of coal and four of the crew were reported lost.

DEATH OF ELIAS R. POPE.

"Elias Pope is dead!"

These are the four words that travelled with lightning like rapidity from mouth to ear all over Plainfield this morning. With lightning like rapidy because everything in which the people are generally interested seems to spread so much quicker than things in which they take but a passing interest. Elias Pope, a man whom every Plainfielder knows to respect because that was the spirit in which he lived, was somebody in which everybody was interested. For years he was to Plainfield what General Grant was to the civil war—he accomplished while others only planned and made fizzles. And this is what made the town, made Elias Pope and endeared him to all with whom he came in contact.

The news of his death was repeated in a voice of tremor and received with a thrill of surprise by everyone. Sad as was the intelligence it was all the more startling. But few knew that he was ill, none thought his condition the least precarious. Even though his hair was tinged with gray, as he perambulated the streets a few days ago, he seemed to be the personification of good health—robust and erect in figure. Unheralded by a long seige of sickness and racking pain, the hand of Death came silently and startled the community as a thunderbolt out of a clear sky. It seemed hard to believe, but, sorrowful as was the news, it had to be accepted, and with it came expressions of extreme regret.

Mr. Pope was a man who lived in the even tenor of his way and thereby he succeeded. A writer in the New York Herald sometime ago said of him: "He never claimed to know anything, never claimed to do anything but he got there just the same." This was a simply definition of Mr. Pope's character. He was unostentatious, reserved, and yet he accomplished where the great mass of people failed.

The finance committee of the Newark Common Council has decided to refuse to insert a gold clause in any of the temporary or other loan bonds issued by the city.

FOUNDER BRADLEY'S SEAL.

Fond of Fish, and Takes Them From His Keeper's Hand.

The seal in captivity at Asbury Park is a large, intelligent animal He is fed at 4 o'clock every afternoon. The keeper enters the cage with a basket of fish and stands on a board while the seal stays in the tank. He knows his keeper, and can scarcely wait for the fish. One is thrown at him and caught as soon as it touches the water. One is held up and the seal jumps for it, rising nearly his length. The keeper drops it in his mouth. Then he makes the seal crawl half way on the plank to take food from his hand.

Hundreds crowd the pier every day to see this sight. The seal does not seem to mind them, but barks when boys climb on his cage and attempt to annoy him. He knows his keeper is his friend.

Although Founder Bradley's seal is seeing more of life than he ever saw before, there is no doubt he would prefer to be free to search the seas for his living.

But One Solitary Wanderer.

A thorough round up at all the tramp headquarters in Westfield Sunday night resulted in the capture of but one tramp, and he was allowed to go upon his promise to get out of the township at once. The stories recently published in New York papers concerning two hundred tramps in the township are wholly without foundation.

—Residents living on West Seventh street, near Clinton avenue, are clamoring for a better culvert over the street. The one in use is of wood, rotten and almost useless, and furthermore it is dangerous to both pedestrians and horses.

Mrs. Rhodie Nash, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains, and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of blackberry cordial but got no relief. She then sent to me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlin's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhœa but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

That Catarrh is a Local Affection

of the membrane of the nose, throat, etc., is a fact established by physicians, and this authority should carry more weight than assertions of incompetent parties, who claim that catarrh is a blood affection, in order to make a market for their compound. Ely's Cream Balm is a local remedy, composed of harmless medicants and free of mercury or any injurious drug. It will cure catarrh. Applied directly to the inflamed membrane, it restores it to its healthy condition, affording quick relief and a cure after short continuance.

THE EARTH QUIVERED 12 YEARS AGO

G. Thorn Recalls the Seismic Disturbance That Started Plainfield.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Twelve years ago yesterday, August 10th, 1884, New Jersey received such a shaking up as never before or since in its history. Many of your readers will readily remember the earthquake of that date, and the vast area of the disturbance. From Maine to North Carolina, fourteen States were wholly or partially in the paroxysmal throes of a vast seismic convulsion. Central as to the State of New Jersey, at a depth of many miles beneath the earth surface the vibrations started. Northward until dispersed in the hills of Maine, southward to the coast marshes of North Carolina, westward to the great chain of lakes and eastward lost beneath the waves of the Atlantic Ocean.

At about six minutes past 2 o'clock the inhabitants of Plainfield heard a dull rumbling sound, attended by distinct wave motions from the northwest to the southeast, lasting from ten to twelve seconds. Window panes and dishes rattled, chandeliers oscillated while their pendants jingled, vaces and bric-a brac on mantles violently trembled, and in instances were overturned, doors and window shutters quivered and swung on their hinges, buildings creaked and swayed, chimneys were toppled over and other manifestations of the disturbance were evident. The writer was in his bedroom standing before a mirror and will never forget the peculiar sensation felt, not alone from the seemingly billow like motion beneath his feet, but from the exaggerated movements of everything in the room as reflected by the quivering glass. Seeking a cause he quickly turned his eyes out of the window and saw the foliage of the trees all trembling like aspen leaves, and at once realized that it was the shock of an earthquake; turning again to the room the bed upon its high springs was swaying from foot to headboard, showing quite conclusively the direction of the earth waves.

Earthquakes are a phenomena of longitudinal wave motion. Of their cause much is conjectured, but very tittle is known. Doubtless they are due to a subteranean concussion at a greater or less depth beneath the earth's surface. At great depths they are felt over a large area, like the one in question. At a less depth, the area is not so large, but may be more violent like the one in Charlestown, August 31st, 1886.

The summer of 1884 was cool and wet. The sky had a peculiar red tinge, decidedly pronounced near the twilight hour. Scientists claimed that the earth passed through a fine belt of meteoric dust. Some lesser minds are of the opinion, even to this date, that we passed through the tail of a giant comet and that the earthquake was but the result of some occult force thereby released,

The latter idea is about as chimerical as the 16 to 1 puzzle is to the uninitiated backwoodsman.

THE KARAIM JEWS.

One Way by Which Russians Snub Orthodox Hebrews.

The Karaim Jews number 3,000 or 4,000, and live principally in the Crimea. They speak a Tartar dialect among themselves, and ethnologically are much more like Tartars than Semites, says the Saturday Review. Their own legends, in fact, permit the assumption that they were Khazars, and were converted to Judaism in the eighth century. Their form of Judaism differs from that of the 5,000,000 or more orthodox Russian Jews in rejecting the Talmud and traditional theology altogether, and confining itself strictly to the Mosaic revelation. It has been a favorite amusement with the Russians for generations to pretend the greatest admiration and affection for this obscure little tribe.

Mme. Novikoff had her joke on the subject in London when she gravely assured an interviewer some years ago that there never had been a law of any kind issued in Russia against the Jews. When this amazing assertion was questioned, she coolly explained that she referred to the Karaim Jews, as in Russia they did not consider the disciples of the Talmud were Jews at all. Inasmuch as the Karaimites constitute only a two-thousandth part of the Jewish race, if, indeed, it be conceded that they belong to it all, the insolence of the Russian attitude toward them is peculiarly exasperating to Hebrews in general, and the spectacle of their being brought forward at Moscow as the sole representatives of Israel will smart and rankle just as the genial Slavonic character desires that it should.

LINE & CO., 37 SOMERSET ST.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—There were no cases in the city court this morning "on account of the heat."

—Hand & Son will run stages from the end of the Somerset street car line to the picnic at Washington Rock, tomorrow.

A. G. Carpenter, of the borough, is filling the position of organist very acceptably at the Park Avenue Baptist church during the absence of D. E. Davis, the regular organist.

—A new and enlarged extension has just been added to Warren Ackerman's greenhouses at Glenside Park, so that now they compare favorably in size with any in this part of the State.

—Andrew Love, of this city, will give his carrier pigeons a trial trip some fine day this week. The birds are all young ones, and their first fly will therefore necessarily be a short one, probably from Dunellen or Scotch Plains.

—Tony Long, who was sent to jail on Tuesday last from Westfield for striking his neighbor, Mary Eramo, on the head with a board, was released on bail Saturday night. Dr. Cooper pronounced the woman recovered from the blow.

—The railroad officials report that none of the excursions from this city thus far this season are carrying away as many excursionists as in former years. One reason is because the weather has been so hot, and another reason is that many people are going in other directions.

—The two excursion trains and a gang of trackmen at work at the North Avenue station this morning, with several hundred persons crossing and recrossing the network of tracks gave General Agent J. A. Haynes and the trainmen plenty of work to do. There were, however, no accidents reported.

—One of the big, strong horses belonging to the Rising Sun Brewery Company, of Elizabeth, while on the way to this city with a load of "wet goods" at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, dropped down from the effects of heat when passing through Westfield. The horse was stabled and the driver being unable to get a substitute horse anywhere in the town, had to telephone to the brewery and wait until another horse was sent up. Meanwhile certain Plainfield palates were parched. The load reached here early in the afternoon, and the certain temperatures dropped a peg or two.

Death of Mrs. Mary Lowry.

Mrs. Mary Lowry, thirty-eight years old, wife of Rev. H. M. Lowry, formerly of this city, and now pastor of the First Baptist church, Rahway, died at her home on Bryant street in that city yesterday from nervous prostration. Mrs. Lowry had been ill for some months. Mr. Lowry is the son of Rev. Robert Lowry, of this city, the composer of hymns and once pastor of the Hanson Place church of Brooklyn.

Business Block Improvements.

Work on the 10 x 47 foot extention on the rear of William H. Voorhees' brick building on West Front street was begun this morning. Charles H. Hand is the contractor, and the addition will include four and six room flats, with bath and all other modern improvements. There will be iron balconies in the rear, and the entire contract will be completed on or before the 15th of September.

Still in the Borough.

The old borough fire bell has not been taken out of the borough as was reported. It has been laid away in a secluded spot and if it is ever needed, there are people who know just where to find it. The bell was presented to the engine company many years ago by John Taylor Johnston, and as long as there is a company in existence it will lawfully remain in their possesion and will not go to any individual.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints.—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Fredericktown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. A MAN OF ENERGY GONE which position he held until last January, when he refused re-election and turned his attention to the First National Bank. He was elected president of the latter and had been working hard up to the time of his death in advocating the interests of that institution.

After 1872, he gradually became interested in real estate, sometimes alone and sometimes in company with his brothers or his friend, J. Frank Hubbard. He made no large deals, however, but went about his transactions slowly and carefully. He owned at the time of his death a number of houses in this city, besides considerable unimproved real estate.

When the Board of Trade was organized here, Mr. Pope was one of the principal men interested and he was elected president of that organization. He was also a member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M. and the Union County Country Club but Mr, Pope was never known as a club man and all his time was devoted to his ever increasing business.

Besides his real estate business during late years, Mr. Pope was occupied tending the duties of two important positions in two corporations that would have occupied all the time of any ordinary man. Mr. Pope, however, was a wonderful worker and accomplished an immense amount of business.

One of these positions was the presidency of the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company, in which he was a large stockholder. The other office was that of director and treasurer of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, in which he owned considerable stock. Mr. Pope acted as receiver and administrator for several large estates, the most notable being the Job Male estate and Schepflin, Baldwin Tweedy & Co. He was, when he died, executor for the estate of Sarah Stout.

For over twenty years Mr. Pope has been a trustee of the Seventh-Day Baptist church of this city, although still retaining his membership with the church in New Market.

Died on the Road.

While Frank Rickert, the expressman, was returning from Newark last night with a load of beer, one of his horses died on the road near Westfield. The other horse was taken ill and had to be left at Westfield. Another team was secured and the wagon brought to Plainfield. The sick horse will be brought home when he recovers.

AN ORDINANCE.

An ordinance for the vacation of that part of Warren street, which lies between Manning avenue and Chatham street.

Whereas, application in writing describing the nature, kind and extent of the work and improvement desired, signed by the owners of at least one-quarter of the lineal feet of land fronting on the street proposed to be vacated, has been presented to the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield, asking for the vacation of all that portion of Warren street, in said borough which lies between Manning avenue and Chatham street and hereinafter particularly described:

And whereas, the Mayor and Council upon receiving said application, did cause the Borough Clerk to give notice of the intention of the Mayor and Council to vacate said portion of said street, and requiring such persons as might object thereto to present their objections in writing to said Clerk on or before a certain day therein named, not less than ten days after the date of such notice, which said notice was duly published and posted according to law, and no objections have been filed by any person or persons:

And whereas, the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield have judged and do hereby judge that the public good requires that Warren street between the points named in the title to this ordinance be vacated:

Therefore the Mayor and Council of the borough of North Plainfield do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. That all that portion of the certain public street of the borough of North Plainfield known, named and designated as Warren street, beginning in the southeasterly side line of Manning avenue as now laid out and opened where the same is intersected by the center line of Warren street as now laid out and opened, and thence extending southeasterly along said center line of Warren street and for the full width of said Warren street as now laid out and opened on either side of said center line, and along the side lines of said Warren street, through and along the lands of George F. White, Thomas Rutledge and Lewis Bird, fronting on the northeasterly side of said Warren street, and the lands of George F. White, John H. McVey, Andrew Lutkins, Estate of Israel Coon, deceased, viz., David Coon, Anna Boice, Mary E. Shreve, Margaret A. C. Randolph, Anna Nicholas and Sardinia Miles, and of Henry H. Lowrie, fronting on the southwesterly side of said Warren street, to the northwesterly side line of Chatham street as now laid out and opened where the same is intersected by the center line and side lines of Warren street, a total distance along said center line of Warren street of five hundred and thirty feet, be the same more or less, be and the same is hereby vacated and all rights and easements of the public in or to the lands occupied by said portion of Warren street surrendered.

Sec. 2. That this ordinance shall take effect on the 22nd day of August, 1896.

Approved August 7th, 1896.

The Ocean Graveyard.

By DAVID WECHSLER.

[COPYRIGHTED.]

We never knew his real name. Everyone called him Capt. George; and Capt. George he remained, from the first day he entered Landport harbor until the night I parted from him in Plymouth sound, about four years later. His arrival at Landport was announced in the Northern Post and Shipping Gazette in this manner:

"Landport, Sunday. Steam Yacht Wanderer arrived from Stockton, with machinery damaged. Owner, Captain George."

What was he like? Well, if you had put the question to the gentry of the place some would have answered it with a shrug of the shoulders, as much as to say they couldn't well make him out; others would have told you he seemed a haughty, reserved, stand-off sort of man. If you had asked any of the young ladies, you would very likely hear that he was "charming," but that they believed him to be a pirate chief in disguise, or some nonsense of that kind. Among us divers he was looked upon as a bold, gallant sailor, who loved the sea and everything connected with it, a man we all admired and looked up to.

He frequently put into Landport after that—at odd times, summer and winter—but came round regularly every June. He never made friends in the place, and few acquaintances. People still held pretty much the same opinion concerning him. On different occasions, as he passed along by the sea wall, I have seen more than one lovely head turned to take a sly look at his tall figure, and heard the whisper:

"There's that strange man, Capt. George; isn't he handsome?"

Towards the end of August I was engaged with two other divers to remove cargo from the steamer Magellan, which had run on an outlying reef about twenty miles down the coast. The surveyor of the Landport Salvage association, Capt. Lorton, was in charge of the wreck, and had orders to make a push to get her cleared out while the weather held fine. We put up at a neighboring village, a place called St. Nevin, a pretty little spot hidden away at the top of a small landlocked bay.

On the third morning it was blowing rather fresh. While I was waiting in the little parlor of the Mariner's Rest—the only thing in the shape of a hotel of which St. Nevin could boast—Capt. Lorton came in. He went up to the barometer on the wall, tapped it, and said:

"Glass falling; this breeze will freshen during the day, and most likely run up to a gale before night. If it does, there won't be much of the Magellan left by morning, Lawrenceson. At any rate it would be too risky to venture out with the wind rising in this way."

About twelve o'clock I noticed a considerable stir amongst the fishermen on the beach. Looking seaward, I saw a large steam yacht entering the bay. I recognized her at once. It was the Wanderer.

Capt. George came on shore during the afternoon, and looked in to the Mariner's Rest. It seemed he had heard of the wreck, and was anxious to visit the scene of the disaster.

"It's blowing hard outside," he said, "and very thick, too. I saw the fishing boats running in for Widmouth this morning, a sure sign of dirty weather at sea. We're in for a stiff sou'wester, I fancy, and I shouldn't be surprised if it brought down the rain before evening."

He was right. As the wind increased a thick mist crept up from the sea, and presently a sudden squall drove a torrent of rain against the window. There were just six of us present; myself, the two other divers, Moxly and Williams, Capt. Lorton, Capt. George and Capt. Linklater, a retired master mariner who lived in St. Nevin.

"THERE'S THAT STRANGE MAN."

We had a cozy fire in the room, for the weather was unusually cold, and sat round it spinning yarns. The heat inside, and the cold without, had dulled the glass of the window, so that it almost looked as if it had been muffled. We could hear the crash of the billows on the beach below, followed by a deep rumble, like distant thunder, as the backward rush of the water tore the loose shingle from the beach.

"It's well you won't be at sea tonight, Capt. George," I remarked, in a pause of the conversation.

"I'm half sorry to miss it," he returned, getting up and approaching the window. He cleared a space on the glass, and stood looking out over the bay. "There's nothing I like better than driving full speed through a gale," he went on, "provided I have a good sea boat under me, and no fear of a dangerous coast lying under my lee."

"Ay, there's worse danger at sea than storms," put in Capt. Linklater.

"I'm inclined to agree with you there," said Capt. Lorton. "When I had command of a north Atlantic boat, I'd rather have faced a three-day gale than be walled up for ten hours in a fog. A gale of wind is a straightforward, honest kind of thing; you can see at a glance how matters stand, and know where the danger lies. But Heaven defend me from a fog! I always felt like a child out in a strange place on a dark night, groping my way along and never knowing at what moment I might bump up against some obstruction!"

"There're worse dangers than fogs," returned the old captain, blinking his eyes at the fire, and smoking very hard

"Icebergs?"

"Worse still."

"Derelicts?"

"Worse."

"What then?"

"Rocks."

"Rocks!" exclaimed the surveyor. "Why, you have them plainly marked on your chart, and know exactly where to expect them."

"Ay, but when they are not marked on your chart, and you come across them where you don't expect them," the other replied in a rather mysterious manner.

I noticed that Capt. George had turned from the window, and was listening attentively to the conversation.

"I should like to know where such a rock exists?" said Capt. Lorton, in a way that showed plainly he had very little faith in anything of the kind.

WE SAW HE HAD A STRANGE STORY TO TELL.

"Well, I'll tell you," returned the old skipper, knocking the ashes out of his pipe, and laying it on the mantel-shelf. "It exists in the broad Atlantic—out in mid-ocean—somewhere between the Azores and the coast of Nova Scotia."

"A pretty wide range, that," remarked Capt. Lorton.

"Yes, but a dangerous one."

Linklater stood up, turned his back to the fire, and seemed striving to recall some half-forgotten facts. Every eye was fixed upon his weather-beaten face; we saw he had a strange story to tell.

"It is a well-known fact," he began, "that every year three or four vessels—sometimes more—disappear in the Atlantic, and their fate has always remained a mystery. As far back as 1834, the President sailed from Liverpool, in charge of the most skillful navigators of the day, Capt. Roberts, the man who commanded the Sirius, the first steamer that crossed the Atlantic. She foundered in mid-ocean with all hands. In 1846 the Savannah, an American sailing ship, left New Orleans for Bristol. She was sighted off the Bahamas, but from that day to this nothing more was heard of her. In 1850 the Southern Cross disappeared in the same manner. A few years later an emigrant steamer—the Nomad, I think—went down with eight hundred souls, and the cause of the disaster was never known. Between 1860 and 1870, no less than eighteen vessels disappeared in the same mysterious way. Coming down to a later date we have the Crusader—the old Crusader, I mean—the Cleptic, the White Slave, the Ontario, an American liner, and a host of others. In 1890 we have the Erin, of the National line, the Italian bark Silvio, which sailed from Holyhead in January of that year and was subsequently spoken in the North Atlantic, the Thanemore, a British steamer, and the Roman Empire, a splendid iron ship which was passed on the 11th of June by a homeward-bound vessel, and reported 'all well.' But, perhaps the strangest case of all was that of the German ship, the Maria Rickmers, about which there has been so much talk lately in the shipping world."

"I remember hearing of her," said Capt. Lorton. "She was a five-masted bark, I think, and said to be the largest sailing ship afloat."

"Well, this magnificent vessel, fully manned, and in charge of experienced officers, sailed from Saigon for Bremen on the 15th of July, 1892. It was only her second voyage, mind you. She was sighted in the Atlantic, about three hundred miles west of the Azores, and the total disappearance of such a ship, in comparatively fine weather, is one of the most remarkable of these ocean mysteries. From all those vessels, not one soul escaped to tell of the disaster, and save in one or two instances, not even a boat or life buoy belonging to them was picked up. How did they disappear? You will say they foundered in a gale; possibly some of them might have done so, but not all. How do you account for the fact that dozens of other vessels crossed the Atlantic in safety at the very same time, often without encountering [illegible] weather?"

"It seems strange, certainly," remarked Moxly.

"It just comes to this," continued the skipper, in a rather excited way, for he was now thoroughly warmed into the subject. "It just comes to this. An unknown danger lay in the path of those vessels—or some of them, at any rate—they came upon it suddenly, perhaps in the dead of night when they were least prepared, and the result was an appalling disaster."

"But I don't see how all this proves the existence of a mid-Atlantic rock," said Capt. Lorton.

"Wait a minute; I'm coming to that presently," replied Linklater. "In '76 I was bound from Pensacola, in Florida, to Falmouth, with a cargo of grain. My vessel—the bark St. Kilda, of Sutherland—afterwards wrecked, you may remember, off Cape Hatteras—was what you might call a clipper, though a good, safe boat in a heavy sea. Her qualities were well tested on that voyage, at any rate; we came in for one of the stiffest gales I ever encountered in the Atlantic. After trying to hold her on her course for some hours, I had to give it up as a bad job, and let her drive. We ran away before the wind for the best part of two days in a nor'westerly direction.

"When the gale slackened a bit, I got the vessel round, and commenced to beat back to our former course. It was still blowing fresh enough, the sea running high, and the clouds showing signs of more wind, so we had to be sparing with our canvas. One night, just as I was about to go below and turn in, the man in the bows suddenly sung out:

"'Breakers ahead!'

"My first impression was that the fellow had got hold of a rum cask, and had been imbibing pretty freely. I took no notice of the warning, but as I stood there, the man turned and shouted in more startling tones:

"'Breakers ahead, sir!'

"Now if he had said: 'The sea-serpent ahead' or 'a mermaid ahead,' I mightn't have been so surprised, but 'breakers ahead'—in mid-ocean, mind you—fairly took my breath away. I rushed forward. As I stood in the bows, peering out over the tossing waters, I could distinctly hear the roar of breakers somewhere in front.

"The moon was showing out through the broken clouds, and just then I caught sight of a dark spot straight ahead, round which the water swirled and tossed. I had barely time to holloa out: 'Hard a-port!' to the helmsmen, in order to clear it. Without any mistake it was a rock. I could see its black top appear for a second or two, and then it was covered in a cloud of foam. Sometimes a big wave swept right over it, but generally they smashed with a roar that I can tell you would have struck terror to your heart."

A dead silence followed this extraordinary story. It had been told in such a way as to convince us that there was something in it. Even Capt. Lorton appeared to ponder over the facts. After a long pause Moxly said:

"I remember once hearing an old skipper from Dundee tell pretty much the same story."

It was plain to be seen that Linklater's strange yarn had made a deep impression upon every man present. After that last remark no one spoke. Perhaps if it had been told under different circumstances it might not have taken such a hold upon us; but somehow the pounding of the billows on the beach, the rumble of shingle and the furious gusts of wind that sent the rain dashing against the window seemed to deepen the effect.

"What do you think of all this, Capt. George?" I said, at length, turning towards him.

"I think Capt. Linklater is right," he answered.

"You believe in this mysterious rock, then?"

"I have seen it."

"Well, if that Scotch skipper could be found, three of us could bear witness to the fact, at any rate," remarked Linklater.

"It may be as you say, of course," said Capt. Lorton, doubtfully, "but how is it, if such a rock really exists, it has remained so long unknown?"

"I have my own theory as to that," replied Capt. George.

"Would you mind giving us the benefit of it?"

"My belief is this: that rock appears and disappears at intervals."

"Impossible!"

"Why so? How can you or I tell what goes on in the bed of the ocean? It is a sealed book to us. We are told there are hills and valleys there, just the same as on land. How do we know what forces are at work in these submarine tracts? In South America, and other parts, an earthquake will change the whole face of a district in half an hour. If such an alteration can take place on land, who dare venture to say it cannot occur at the bottom of the sea?"

"I should be slow to believe it," said the surveyor.

"Look at the Pacific," continued Capt. George, who appeared strangely interested in this question. "There you will find that not only a rock, but a whole island, will come to the surface in a single week. If you go to look for it a month later, most likely it will have vanished. What is to prevent a thing of this kind happening nearer home? Why, only the other day the hull of a brig which had been burnt at sea fifty years ago, was thrown up off the Faroe islands and towed into Galveston harbor. How do you account for that?"

The question led to a pretty lively discussion, and it was eight o'clock before the party broke up. By that time the rain had ceased, and the wind was dying down. Capt. George asked for a lantern to signal the Wanderer to send a boat on shore.

"Come on board with me, Lawrenceson," he said, as he was leaving. "I want to have a chat with you about this matter we have just been discussing."

When we reached the wet, slippery deck of the yacht he led the way into the saloon, turned up the lamps, and pointed to a chair near the table. I sat down. He folded his arms, and walked backwards and forwards with a gloomy look.

"A snug cabin this, Capt. George," I said, glancing around.

"Rather too large for my taste," he replied, "but one requires a roomy boat when their home is on the sea. It is strange, Lawrenceson, what disappointment will do for a man; it drives some to drink, some to a monastery, and some to an asylum. It has driven me to the sea."

I didn't exactly know what to say, for I had never seen him in one of these dark moods before, and thought it best to remain silent.

"Well," he said presently, brightening up a bit, "I didn't bring you off here to listen to my growling. About this rock, you heard what Linklater had to say, though, perhaps, you may think he was mistaken. He was not. I can give you pretty fair evidence of its existence."

He went to a sort of writing table at the head of the saloon, unlocked one of the drawers and took out a piece of torn, discolored paper.

"Read this," he said, laying it on the table before me. "You can take it on shore if you like and show it to your surveyor. I think it will convince him."

The writing was blotched and blurred, as if the paper had been under water

"I THINK IT WILL CONVINCE HIM."

considerable time. Nevertheless, I had little difficulty in making it out. I have that scrap of paper still; I keep it with a few other curious relics of the sea. Here it is:

"Nevada struck unknown rock in mid-ocean. God have mercy upon us. We are all lost.

H. B. WEST, Elmira, U. S."

"A strange message," said Capt. George, "and it came into my hands in a very singular way. Some years ago I was cruising off the west coast of Ireland. One morning we put out a trawl, and in making a haul we captured an enormous codfish. When the cook opened it he found in the maw a silver match box, a plain gold ring and a small case of cedar wood. That case, which bore the initials 'H. B. W.' contained this scrap of paper. Though the water had soaked into it, I fancy it must have been floating when the greedy fish got hold of it. I infer this from the fact that there was an inch or so of string hanging from the case, as if it had been originally attached to a bottle, a piece of cork, or something of that kind."

"The Nevada," I said, repeating the name. "I fancy I remember hearing of that vessel."

"Very likely," he replied. "She was an Atlantic boat, running between Boston and London. If I'm not mistaken, she was lost in '78—another of those ocean mysteries, you see, for her fate is still a matter of mere conjecture in the shipping world."

"I suppose you endeavored to trace the friends and relatives of this Mr West? for it looks like a man's handwriting."

"No! I. What good would it have done? His friends or relatives, if he had any, had long ago given him up for lost. Why should I open an old wound?"

"But at any rate you communicated with the owners of the vessel?"

"I did nothing of the kind. I should only have brought their representative down upon me; probably he would have followed me from port to port, and I had no fancy to be pestered in that way. Very possibly a newspaper man would have been set on my track, and I couldn't have given him the slip so easily. If he failed to find me in port he would have started off in chase of the Wanderer, and tried to interview me on the high seas as one of them did, you remember, in the case of Capt. Morrell of the Missouri."

"So you kept this information entirely to yourself?"

"I made good use of it. I went and searched for that rock; and I found it."

"Where does it lie?"

"You shall see for yourself; that is, if you agree to a proposition I have to make. When I discovered the position of the rock I determined, some day or other, to make a careful survey of the spot on my own account by sending down a diver to examine its formation. The conversation this afternoon has revived my—well, whim, fad, or whatever you like to call it. I am ready to set out on the expedition whenever I can find a diver bold enough—"

"I'm your man, Capt. George!" I exclaimed.

"Good; I couldn't ask for better. I think you will find it as profitable employment as staying at home and taking your chance of wrecks. This is not exactly the best time of year for the enterprise, but no matter! It will take a week or so to get the Wanderer properly fitted out and ship sufficient stores. Can you be ready within ten days?"

I told him I had no other work in view once we had finished with the Magellan, and, after that day's storm, I fully expected she would give us little further trouble.

"I will drop into Landport at the end of next week," he said. "Meanwhile, keep this project to yourself; I don't want it talked about, or to have any fuss made in the newspapers."

He accompanied me on deck, the boat was hauled up alongside and I returned to the shore. When I awoke

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

SURPRISED M'KINLEY

Bryan Reception Committee Greet the Republican Nominee.

CALLED AT HIS HOME IN CANTON

Compliments Exchanged, Cheers Given and Handshaking Indulged In—Richard Bland and Wife Spend Half an Hour with the McKinleys.

Canton, O., Aug. 11.—The Pittsburg Bryan and Sewall reception committee, bringing with it Hon. Richard F. Bland and wife, arrived in Canton some time before the hour scheduled for Bryan's train to arrive. It was suggested that a call be made on Major McKinley and the idea was readily taken up by the sixty members of the committee. Forming in line they marched from the depot up to the major's North Market street residence. Major McKinley was of course very much surprised to find himself thus greeted by a delegation of democrats, but he hastened out on the veranda and extended to all a warm welcome. County Chairman Hawley of Allegheny county introduced Morris Foster of the committee, who made a short speech. He said: "Major McKinley, we believe that every candidate for the presidency is worthy of the highest respect, regardless of his political affiliations. The members of the committee have, therefore, called to pay their respects to you as an American citizen."

Major McKinley's Response.

Major McKinley, as he stepped forward to respond, was greeted with a hearty round of cheers. He said: "Mr. Chairman and gentlemen: I am very glad of this opportunity to greet you, and I am very grateful for the generous words spoken by your chairman, representing another political organization. We are all proud of our country and of our country's history, and we should all be determined to make this government in the future as in the past the best government in the world. Of you who disagree with me politically it is very grateful to have assurances of your personal good will. I thank you." As the major concluded there was another burst of applause, and then everybody pushed forward to shake hands with him. Mr. Bland and his wife, after the committee had returned to the depot, remained and spent half an hour with Major and Mrs. McKinley. While the Bryan demonstration was in progress at the depot Major McKinley was busily engaged with his mail.

Arrival of the Bryan Train.

The morning trains carried many passengers to the city, all bent on seeing Bryan. The local committee were early astir and nothing was left undone to make the reception, however short it might be, a most enthusiastic one. When Bryan's train drove in sight there was great cheering and confused yells of hurrah for McKinley and hurrah for Bryan. Several McKinley banners were displayed. When the train came to a stop Mr. and Mrs. Bryan were assisted on to a flat car in front of the depot. Mayor Rice of Canton, chairman of the reception committee, introduced Mr. Bryan. The Nebraskan was greeted with great cheering and enthusiasm. Mr. Bryan's references to McKinley were greeted with enthusiasm, and each time he referred to the major there were yells of hurrah for McKinley.

Mr. Bryan's Speech.

Mr. Bryan said in part: "I am glad in this city, the home of my distinguished opponent, to testify to his high character and personal worth. I shall be satisfied if as a private individual I may be able to stand beside him in public esteem, but, my friends, this is not a contest between persons. It matters little to the American people whether your distinguished townsman or myself, as individuals, occupies the chief executive position in the greatest nation on earth. But it does matter for what politics a president shall stand. And in this campaign persons are lost sight of in the interest of the cause which those persons represent. In my own state and in my own city are many people who believe that the interests of the country demand my defeat, and I am gratified to know that in his home city there are many who believe that the country will be best served by my oppenent's defeat. To my neighbors at home I say that if according to their convictions of public duty they believe that my opponent should be elected I shall bear them no ill will, and I have so high a regard for my opponent that I know he will tell his neighbors that every one should feel free to make his ballot represent a free man's will, although it may result in keeping him a fellow-townsman still."

Mrs. Bryan Introduced.

When Mr. Bryan had concluded he jumped down from the car and turned to assist Mrs. Byran down. Mayor Rice, however, detained her a moment to introduce her to the crowd and as she smiled and modestly bowed she received a round of applause. As the train pulled out Mr. and Mrs. Byran and Mr. and Mrs. Bland stood on the rear platform bowing to the cheering thousands.

The Journey Through Ohio.

Mr. Bryan made several addresses from the car platform during the journey through Major McKinley's state. "We're all for silver here," was the first greeting to the Nebraskan at Forest, where 300 people had gathered. Many of the people at Forest were farmers and they told Mr. Bryan that they were for him. After leaving Forest a stop was made at Kirby and Mr. Bryan was cheered by the small crowd there. Then came Upper Sandusky. Here the crowd numbered probably 2,000 and the people composing it pushed and struggled to get near the nominee until they became a howling, rushing mob. A brass band played popular airs as the people cheered. Congressman Hare, standing beside Mr. Bryan, managed to secure silence long enough to present the nominee and when the cheering that followed had subsided Mr. Bryan made a few remarks in a husky voice, which told of the strain of the past few days. After a few remarks a number of persons succeeded in climbing on the platform and shaking hands with the nominee. As the train pulled out the crowd cheered and the band struck up a popular air.

At Coxey's Town.

With Carl Browne on board, Massillon naturally recalled memories of Coxey's army, for it was from that town that the commonwealth cause was launched. When Massillon was reached great crowds were gathered at the end of the railroad trestle, and these crowded and pushed close to the car. A thousand people were in the throng and in the front ranks was Mamie Coxey Browne. The old flag of the commonweal that was carried from Massillon to Washington was displayed with a new inscription, "Bryan Can Stay on Coxey's Grass." There was also an artistic effort of Carl Brown representing Mark Hanna standing on Rothschild's back, Rothschild holding up a cross of gold with Labor crucified upon it. In response to loud demands for a speech Bryan made a short address.

At Sherman's Home.

A reception of great enthusiasm was given the Nebraska orator at Mansfield, the home of Senator John Sherman. The crowd was large and it was with difficulty that the cheering throng could be pressed back to enable Mr. Bryan to reach the temporary speaker's stand. Mr. Bryan was presented to the perspiring multitude by James P. Steward, a prominent lawyer and chairman of the citizens' reception committee. A wild hurrah went up and then Mr. Bryan said:

World's Financial Policy at Stake.

"Ladies and gentlemen: I would not be surprised to find such an audience as this in Nebraska, but I can hardly realize that such a gathering as this is assembled in the state which has the honor to contain the residence of my opponent. (Laughter and applause.) I want you to realize that in this contest we have an issue upon the decision of which may turn the financial policy of the world. Not only in America but all over the world the toiling masses are looking for relief to that nation which ought to stand foremost in every great reform."

DEPARTURE FROM PITTSBURG.

Mr. Bryan Resumes His Journey After Last Night's Demonstrations.

Pittsburg, Aug. 11.—The arrival here last night of W. J. Bryan was made the occasion of several big political demonstrations in his honor. A vast crowd was at the station when the train rolled in, and it was with great difficulty that the local reception committee succeeded in escorting Mr. and Mrs. Bryan to the carriage which conveyed them to the Central hotel. The streets were packed with people and after dinner Mr. Bryan appeared on the hotel balcony in response to repeated calls, but he declined to make a speech. At 9:30 o'lock the nominee and his wife went to the Grand Opera house where he and Richard Bland addressed a large audience. Mr. Bryan then went next door to the Avenue theatre, where he made a short address to another large assemblage. At both meetings he was heartily cheered. A short reception to the Bryan party followed at the home of the Randall club, and then the fatigued nominee and his companions retired. They left Pittsburg at 7:30 o'clock this morning.

NO DEMONSTRATION.

Bryan's Arrival in New York This Evening To Be Devoid of Display.

New York, Aug. 11.—If the train on which William J. Bryan is traveling makes schedule time the democratic presidential nominee will reach this city at 6:30 o'clock this evening. He may decide on arrival here to stop at a hotel, although Banker St. John has invited him to stay at his home. It is probable that the candidate will select a hotel, as he will be called upon to receive a lot of people. Mrs. Bryan, however, may prefer to stop with the St. Johns, as she is in need of rest and quiet, the long journey having greatly fatigued her. There will be no formal reception on Mr. Bryan's arrival, but a large crowd will no doubt be at the railway station to greet him. He will make no speeches in New York until to-morrow night, when he will reply at the Madison Square garden to the formal address notifying him of his nomination. There are to be 11,500 seats in the garden, and there will be standing room for several thousand more, as there will be no seats in the pit. Former State Treasurer Danforth is to be the chairman of the meeting, and Gov. Stone of Missouri will deliver the speech notifying Candidate Bryan.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Howard B. Mosher, the racer, has returned from a short stay in Boston.

Louis Kuntz, of East Front street, started on his wheel this afternoon for New York.

There is considerable speculation among the amateur and professional racing men in relation to the possible winners of the national L. A. W. championships this week at Louisville.

Thos. Emory, of East Front street, is about to organize a boys' bicycle club. The organization, it is said, will include Plainfield and Scotch Plains members, and already some fifty youths have signified their willingness to join.

Charles Hadfield, who won the Irvington-Milburn road race on Decoration Day, but was subsequently disqualified, is thinking seriously of competing in the six-day bicycle race to be held in Madison Square Garden in December.

John Newman, of West Third street, is becoming quite an expert as a rider. On the Coney Island track last Sunday he raced a mile with three of the Century Wheelmen from Brooklyn. He was given a short handicap, but he came in some 35 yards ahead, winning a silver ice pitcher.

For the subject of road making itself there has come an intelligent understanding to the people at large, and the demand for good roads is gathering force in public opinion each year. This present condition is mainly attributed to the influence of Colonel Albert A. Pope. He has made the good road movement the avocation of his life, has worked for this object with the most persistent enthusiasm, and has fairly earned his title of "Father of Good Roads." Colonel Pope is one of the few men to whom many men are grateful, because there are few men, who, like him, have worked so untiringly, so forcibly, and so effectively in a public cause, the advocacy of which can never return to him even a small fraction of the cost in which it has involved him for many years. Few had the foresight or public spirit to champion this cause until he led the way. Having thoroughly spread its doctorine, having forced it upon the attention of the Legislatures, having labored incessantly with the committees, and having distributed pamphlets, circulars and letters without number, he now has the satisfaction of actually seeing the fruit of his efforts. The full achievement of the completed work is an undertaking for the people themselves, whose appreciation he has awakened and whose interest he has aroused. From the magnitude of his personal benefaction it is reasonable to suppose that Colonel Pope's honors will not die with him. As a pioneer for public good, he is likely to attain post-mortem fame.—Tribune.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

The monthly report of the State Fish and Game Protector, for July, shows the distribution of 5,924,188 shad, all of which (excepting 840,000 placed in Rancocas Creek) were put in the Hackensack and its tributaries. Forty-six mature small-mouth black bass were put in Culvers Lake. The arrests for violations of game laws were numerous, Warden Tooker, of Middlesex, being credited with eight during the month. Six of these were for having a robin in possession, for which the fine in each case was $20 and costs. Joseph Cavalier was fined for taking a bass under size; Theo. Rabig fined for killing a song bird; John Ruff for having a quail unlawfully in his possession; Chas. Redinger for using set lines; Frank DuBois ten days in jail for having marsh hen; and many other similar arrests. We fail to notice any arrests made by the officials appointed for this section, although complaints for violations are numerous.

AROUND THE BASES.

The Murray Hills, the strongest semi-professional team from New York city, will cross bats with the Y. M. C. A. team Saturday afternoon next at 3:30 p. m. on the Front street grounds.

On a Wild Goose Chase.

At 2 o'clock this morning Chief Doane was rung up from the Central telephone office and asked to respond to a call for help for a supposed fire on West Seventh street, near Clinton avenue. The Chief had his private horse harnessed and rode for a considerable distance, but the fire was found to be in the neighborhood of New Market and out of the jurisdiction of the fire department, so the chief ordered the horses unhitched.

—A meeting of Minerva Temple, R. S., will be held this evening.

WHAT IS THIS DISEASAE CALLED DYSPEPSIA?

Like a thief at night, it steals in upon us unawares. The patients have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the month has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint, all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. Eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After awhile a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish colored expectoration. The patient feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the urine is scanty and high colored, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart; the vision becomes impaired with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All of these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-third of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms. It has been found that medical men have mistaken the nature of this disease. Some have treated it for a Liver Complaint, some for Dyspepsia, others for Kidney Disease, etc., etc., but none of the various kinds of treatment have been attended with success.

Now, the Shaker Digestive Cordial causes the food eaten to be digested. This will cause an appetite for more food, and this being digested will result in an increase of strength, an increase of flesh and an increase of nerve power.

The tired, weary feeling will give way to vigor and courage. The pale, thin and emaciated will recover their color and plumpness, because red blood and fat are the result of properly digested food.

A ten cent trial bottle will produce a result. Its good effect will be realized at once. You will not have to take a dozen bottles to find out if it is doing you any good. Try it, and then give praise to the Shakers of Mount Lebanon, New York, for the relief that you obtain.

THE CLERGY.

Rubenstein's "Christus," which was performed in Bremen last year, has been forbidden in Berlin on the ground that the Prussian law prohibits the representation of the Saviour in public entertainments.

M. Francis de Pressense, son of the best known Protestant pastor and politician in France, is about to be received into the Catholic church, and probably will be followed by a number of French pastors.

Leo XIII. is the doyen of the Catholic episcopate. He received his episcopal consecration in 1843, and there is no bishop living whose consecration is so old. It has rarely happened that the pope was the oldest bishop in the Catholic world.

A Congregational church as a memorial of John Robinson, the pastor of the Pilgrim Fathers, is to be erected at Gainsborough, England, where Robinson gathered his first congregation of dissenters. The church will cost $30,000, and Ambassador Bayard will lay the corner stone.

Prof. George Adam Smith, of the Free Church college, Glasgow, Scotland, who is described as "one of the leading scholars of Christendom, and one of the greatest preachers of Great Britain," preached on a recent Sunday in the Old South church, Boston, and not a paper in Boston had a line about him or his sermon.

France raises about 231,000,000 bushels of wheat.

The wheat product of Hungary is 119,000,000 bushels.

The wheat fields of South Australia yield 7.6 bushels per acre.

Great Britain produces 71,000,000 bushels, all consumed at home.

The average wheat crop in England is 36 bushels per acre.

In the wheat belt of India the average production per acre is 9.3 bushels.

The average yield of wheat in New South Wales is 15 bushels to the acre.

Manitoba, the great wheat farm of British America, raises 19.7 bushels to the acre.

New Zealand is more productive than New South Wales, yielding 26.5 bushels per acre.

THE KAFIR CIRCUS.

Jobbers Earned Big Money for Little Work and No Experience.

The "Kafir Circus," which ten years ago was almost boycotted, says the National Review, is now the main center of interest and attraction. Its Circean revels have proved irresistible. The most conservative of members had to yield to them in the long run, and streams of secessions from other markets continue even yet to swell the kafir crowd. Fortunes were made in it last year, some of which have been taken away and safely invested. The others will probably be scattered as suddenly as they were gathered. To get into a moderate connection as a kafir jobber was to earn £200 or £300 a day, with no risk and very little trouble, save having to bear the horrible din of a bowling pandemonium.

To be able to shout higher than anybody else was the chief and almost the only, qualification for success. Intelligence and experience were superfluities. Where nearly all were ignorant alike about what they were dealing in, fools could "make prices" just as freely as wise men, and more so. Simply to "make prices" was to make money hand over fist, and kafir jobbers blossomed into plutocrats, set up their private hansoms, were welcomed into West End clubs, and flung about thousand-pound checks as lightly as half-crown cigars. When they rose to the dignity of underwriting or syndicating new issues, a single company might bring them £10,000 or £20,000. In one memorable case, 30,000 shares were said to have been booked within an hour by an active firm, whose "turns" or profits must have averaged two pounds per share.

DANGER OF POLITENESS.

Offices of the Old-Time Gentlemen No Longer Desired.

"It makes my blood boil, sir," said the fine old southern gentleman, sitting in the dry comfort of the hotel, "to see a thing like that!"

He pointed, says the New York Journal, out to the street, where a young woman was struggling through the rain, one hand attempting to hold an umbrella and keep her dress from the puddles at the same time, the other hand clutching a huge bundle.

"It couldn't have happened in my day, by gad, sir!"

"I don't see, major," said the man in the next chair, "what you expect."

"Expect? By gad, sir, in my state, and in my youthful days, such a thing wouldn't be permitted. Why, believe me, the girl woudn't have gone two steps before some courteous gentleman, sir, would have stepped up to her and carried her impedimenta for her. I myself, sir, would have been the first. Has the fashion of gallantry passed, sir, in these times?"

"Look here, major, do you happen to know what that girl you're watching would do if a man tried her with any gallantry play such as you mentioned?"

"She would reward him, I make no doubt, sir, with a smile, and a 'thank you.'"

"No, that's where you make a mistake. She'd call a policeman and have him arrest the man for trying to mash her."

It was just after the honeymoon, and he had undertaken to get a breakfast for him with her own hands, in spite of the fact that she was inexperienced.

"I think this egg is bad, Harry," she said. "How can I find out for sure?"

"Taste it," he replied, promptly.

That's why he went to his office hungry that morning.—Chicago Post.

MANY PEOPLE YOU KNOW

SOME ARE COMING AND SOME ARE GOING FOR THE SUMMER.

The Warm Summer Weather Drive People to Country, Seashore and Mountain With the Hope of Recuperating.

Miss Stella Shotwell, of College place, is visiting friends in Brooklyn.

George A. Horne, of Willow avenue, is spending a week at Morriches, L. I.

Dudley Miller, of Randolph's pharmacy, leaves Monday on his vacation.

Louis Mohring, of Linden avenue, has returned from his cruise up the Hudson river.

A. W. Day and family, of Madison avenue, left town yesterday for North Edgecomb, Me.

Miss Mamie Kriney, of West Front street, has gone for a two-months' stay at Lowell, Mass.

Fred Endress, the butcher, is moving his family from Liberty street to West Front street.

E. L. Hooley and family, of Rockview avenue, have gone to Avon for the month of August.

Chris Christoffersen, of A. P. Miller's law offices, has gone to Boynton Beach for a brief stay.

Councilman Fisk will return to Jefferson, N. Y., this week, where his family are summering.

Miss May Stelle, of Madison avenue, after a long and serious illness, is able to take an occasional drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. D. Murray, of West Ninth street, have returned from their summer vacation.

James Patterson, of Grove street, has been ill at his home for several days suffering from pleurisy.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kimball have gone to Lake Placid in the Adirondacks for a summer vacation.

Mrs. Lottie B. Griggs and son Clarence, of Union, are spending a few days with relatives in town.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Atterbury, of West Seventh street, have returned from an outing at Marion, Mass.

O. W. Dunham and family, of West Front street, have returned after spending some time at Liberty, N. Y.

Mrs. Gage, of Somerset street, returned to Mt. Pocono, Pa., today, where she will remain for the summer.

The Misses Florence, Edith and Amy Burt, of West Seventh street, are stopping at the El Dorado, Ocean Grove.

D. S. Miller and family, of Orchard place, will leave town Monday to spend a two weeks' vacation at the seashore.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Amthor, of West Seventh street, go to Ocean Grove today where they will spend the rest of the summer.

Peter B. Hodge and family, of Plainfield avenue, have returned from their outing at Asbury Park, and are spending a few days at Finderne.

The Misses Windham, Lulu, Florence and Emma, arrived in town from New York yesterday, and are spending a month at the Arlington Hotel in North Plainfield.

The Misses Josie and Linda Morrison of Plainfield avenue, left town on Monday, per Hartford boat, to spend a few weeks with friends at Deep River, Conn.

E. P. Williams, of West Seventh street, will leave for St. Andrews, N. B., tomorrow for the benefit of his health. Mr. Williams is a sufferer from hay fever, and it is thought the change of air may prove beneficial.

Rev. J. W. Mitchell, formerly pastor of Mt. Olive Baptist church in this city, returned last evening from a two-weeks trip through Western Pennsylvania, and points further South. Dr. Mitchell will now remain quiet for a few weeks before accepting any active charge.

William H. Calloway, of Westervelt avenue, was notified by postal yesterday to appear today at a meeting of the Central Board of Pension Examiners to be held at 64 Madison avenue, New York. Mr. Calloway has twice before been examined for the same purpose, but he has never yet been granted his pension.

FINANCES COME FIRST.

SUCCESS OF THE BICYCLE PARADE DEPENDS ON THE MONEY RAISED.

The Press Will Receive Popular Contributions to Aid the Great Event—Public Interest Grows Apace About the Town.

There is no doubt but that Plainfield's giant parade which is to be held on September 5th will far excell any thing of the kind ever held in this district. The entire city is fast waking up to a realization of its size and importance and the interest is growing apace. From the start it made a very favorable impression and when the necessary funds are subscribed, there will be no hinderance to its success.

The parade committee held an informal talk last evening at Chairman F. L. C. Martin's store. It was impossible to take any definite action until after the meeting of the general committee tomorrow night, but many plans were suggested and discussed. The prize list will be an extensive one and will be arranged so as to attract clubs from all over the State, New York and Long Island. The individual prizes will be well worth striving for, and the ingenuity of Plainfield cyclists will be taxed to its uttermost to get up decorations that will keep the prizes at home.

Of course, the most necessary part of the affair is the financial part. The finance committee is hard at work securing subscriptions among the business men but there should be many other citizens who would be willing to help out. The Daily Press will receive popular subscriptions for this object and it is hoped that the Plainfield people will liberally assist in making this greatest summer event of the year for Plainfield a great success.

The general committee will hold a very important meeting tomorrow evening at the Board of Trade rooms.

CAMP LEVEE ESTABLISHED.

A. H. Serrill Commemorates it by Cutting an Artery in his Wrist.

"I've been working on the levee.
All the livelong day.

So sing four young men who yesterday established "Camp Levee" on the Watchung mountain near Washington Rock. All but one of them can sing it truthfully but the other attends to his duties in this city during the day and takes supper and spends the night at the camp. The four young men, who have chosen this delightful way of spending the summer days, are Arthur H. Serrell, of Plainfield avenue, Thomas U. Smith, of Westervelt avenue, and Charles C. Gallup and Charles H. Angleman, of West Front street. Smith returns everyday to his duties in this city, only to appreciate all the more the cool breezes on the mountain in the evening. Yesterday, the tent and equipments were carried up and "Camp Levee" was fully established.

The first night did not pass, however, without incident. Smith and Serrell came down to Plainfield in the evening and returned, or started to, in the darkness. The moonlight was a minus quantity and the young men lost the path and wandered about the mountain. In the darkness, Serrell missed his footing and slipped, falling on a barbed wire fence. The wire cut his wrist and severed an artery there.

The camp was at last found but, as they were unable to stop the flow of blood, Serrell and Gallup came back to Plainfield and had the wound dressed.

The two young men, who remained, found the night on the mountain very chilly and were only too glad to use the extra supply of blankets.

Hot at the Shore.

The excursionists of the Crescent Avenue church, Church of the Redeemer, St. Stephen's church and Bethel chapel Sunday-schools, had a pleasant day at the seashore yesterday. Two sections of cars were needed to convey the large party of pleasure seekers to the shore. On their arrival there was a land breeze which made the atmosphere very hot. Many sought a secluded and shady spot until about 11 o'clock when the wind shifted and a breeze from the ocean commenced to blow up. By keeping quiet one could keep cool, but many of the young people were out to see the sights and have a good time in general, and they had it notwithstanding the oppressiveness. There were no mishaps to the excursionists.

Former Plainfielder Dead.

Word was received in this city, yesterday, announcing the death in Elizabeth of J. H. Raphelrea, a former resident of Arlington avenue, this city. His death is said to have resulted from excessive heat. Mr. Raphelrea left here about ten years ago, and since then he has lived a retired life.

PROSTRATED BY HEAT.

JOSEPH HURTLIEH SUCCUMBED IN JUSTICE NASH'S OFFICF.

He Talked Widly on His Delirium and Gave the Police a Mystery to Solve, Which was Cleared up This Morning Early.

The extreme heat of the last few days has had many victims and, yesterday afternoon, another man was prostrated in this city and the police were given another mystery to solve.

"Give me a drink of water," begged a man as he entered the office of Justice Nash late yesterday afternoon. He reeled as he entered and grasped a chair for support. There was a wild look in his eyes that intensified as he heard the Justice's answer that he had no water. The man was of medium built, had a mostache and appeared about thirty years old.

Before a glass of water could be secured, the man fell to the floor with a groan. Chief Grant was hurriedly summoned by telephone and soon he and Sergeant Kiely appeared. Dr. Long was also sent for and arrived in a few moments. The stranger appeared in a halfswoon and was but partially conscious. Everything appeared black, the prostrated man said, and then his utterings became incoherent.

Before that, however, he had told Chief Grant that his name was Joseph Hurtheh, and that he was employed by W. H. Boggs, a florist, of Weston, which is situated along the canal about five miles from Bound Brook. In the morning, he said, he had ridden one horse and led the other down from Weston to Plainfield, and was thirty-two years of age.

Dr. Long ordered out the ambulance and the prostrated man was taken to the hospital, and on the way he became wild and it took the united efforts of Sergeant Kiely and Theodore Kurzhals, Jr., to keep him on the cot. The physician declared that the man had been effected by the terrible heat.

Chief Grant telegraphed to Hurtheh's supposed employer at Weston, and this morning received an answer from Boggs, saying that Hurtheh was not in his employ, and suggested that the Chief had better investigate the ownership of the horses.

C. S. Conklin, of Doremons, New York, drove from the above place to this city yesterday and upon his arrival here he was overcome with the heat. He was taken to the City Hotel and Dr. Adams was called. The doctor found that the man's temperature was 103 and that the heat had effected him very much. Proper treatment was given and in a little while Conklin began to recover. He is still very weak and will not be able to leave the hotel for home before tomorrow. Medical aid was summoned just in time to save the man.

Chief Grant investigated the case this morning and found that the mystery was easy to solve after all. He saw the man in the hospital who had recovered somewhat from the sunstroke and found that his story of the night before had only been his wild unmeaning ravings. The man had started home to Connecticut in the train and had stopped here. The horses in question are now quiety pastured at Weston and have never left there except in the disordered mind of the sick man. He expects to return to Weston this afternoon.

RECEIVER APPOINTED.

Affairs of the Jersey Wheel Company to Be Wound Up.

Charles A. Reed, of the law firm of Reed & Coddington, went to Trenton yesterday, and in behalf of some of the stockholders of the Jersey Wheel Company, made application to the Vice-Chancellor to settle up the affairs of the company. The liabilities of the corporation are $12,000 and the assets $7,500. Lawyer Wm. R. Codington was appointed to act as receiver.

The company was organized last spring to manufacture and put on the market a bicycle embodying the ideas of George H. Cobb, a well known bicycle enthusiast in the Metropolitan district. The factory of the Climax Stopper Company was purchased and machinery put in, but plans failed to materialize and only a few wheels were put on the market. A large sporting goods store was also started on North avenue, but this did not prosper as was expected.

Dunham Family Reunion.

The reunion of the Dunham family is being held this afternoon at the old homestead in Stelton, and is largely attended. A good old fashioned family dinner will mark the occasion. Speeches will be delivered by Rev. L. E. Livermore and J. A. Leveride, both of this city.

The whole system is drained and undermined by indolent ulcers and open sores. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve speedily heals them. It is the best pile cure known. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

AN INTER-STATE LINE.

PRINCIPAL NEW JERSEY TOWNS TO BE CONNECTED BY TROLLEY.

The Syndicate Is a Fact and the Contracts Have Been Made For the Building of the Line—Some of the Details.

An electric road between New York and Philadelphia is said to be now an assured fact. Ex-Mayor Frank A. Magowan and J. Henry Darrah, of Trenton, after nearly a year's hard work, have succeeded in forming a syndicate among New York and Philadelphia capitalists, who are well and prominently known in both cities. The result is the organization of a company, the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company, which also has associated with it the Central Jersey Traction Company.

At the head of the enterprise is Joseph Canby, of Philadelphia, who has had much experience in traction railways. He is now connected with the most prominent traction company in Philadelphia and is also identified with several others in Pennsylvania. Mr. Canby is also the head of a new company which has just secured a franchise for an electric road in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia.

The syndicate for the traction road through this State is, it is asserted, not only formed, but the transfers of stock have been made and a partial payment made to the promoters, Messrs. Magowan and Darrah, of Trenton, and John Blair McAfee, of Philadelphia. Several of the old officers and directors of the former company remain in the new organization.

Work upon the new road is to be commenced in a few days. A contract has just been given out for work upon the road between New Brunswick and Bound Brook, Raritan and Dunellen, which will amount to $475,000. A power-house, to cost $100,000, is to be erected near Bound Brook. The specifications for laying other branches of the road are now out.

Mr. Magowan is the president of the concern and was the largest stockholder in both companies. He has practically sold all of his stock to the syndicate. It is understood upon good authority that settlement for the stock has been made to the promoters upon a basis of part cash and part bonds and other securities.

From the Asbestos Club.

The news of the demise of Elias R. Pope startles this community, and the solemn fact accentuates the wide populaity of the deceased in life. He was an unassuming, companionable and genial gentleman, easily of approach for advice, not so much in abstract intelligence as practical common sense. From boyhood he advanced gradually in commercial confidence and was sought for places of highest trust. His life asserts itself in death and speaks plainer than written epitaphs; prominent in every phase of this community; charitable with the quietness of true charity; the friend of the widow and orphan; unpretentious in his habits; yet the general expression of the public sense make him a business and social ideal, whose influence was wide and lasting.

"Old Hugh" Was There.

That old and familiar character, "Old Humid," who has been playing havoc in this part of the country for the past week, should be arrested on the spot and sent to Farmer Dunn. The weather has been so warm that even politicians can't cool their ardor, and Farmer Dunn has been petitioned by the rich and poor alike for a change in the condition of things. Just think of the thermometer registering 119 degrees at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, not exactly in the shade and with no coal fires blazing in the cellar. But such was the case at Hope Chapel, and the instrument was in a position to catch what little breeze there was floating at the time.

To Hear Bryan.

Among those who will attend the Bryan and Sewall notification meeting, and occupy reserved seats in Madison Square Garden this evening, will be James E. Martine, John Ross, Wm. M. Myers, D. W. Martine, Andrew Kenney, David Kenney, John Kenney, John McIntyre and Charles Lyman.

—It was Edward Stevens and not J. Stevens that was arraigned before Justice Crosley yesterday morning and fined $10 for being drunk and disorderly.

Special Song of Service.

Dr. Robert Lowry has kindly offered to compose words and music of a song of welcome to be sung at the opening of the C. E. convention, October 7th, by the local choir of 500 voices.

Poison Ivy, insect bites, bruises, scalds, burns, are quickly cured by DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, the great pile cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

HEAT KEPT MANY AWAY.

THE BAND CONCERT WAS NOT AS LARGELY ATTENDED AS USUAL.

But Still There Was a Big Crowd Present and the Music Was Rendered so as to Please Those Who Listened to It.

Even the prospects of a delightful band concert in the open air could not overcome the general prejudice against moving in last evening's heat and sultriness and so the first of Councilman Frost's open air concerts to be held in the open lot across Madison avenue from the Babcock building was not as largely attended as the previous ones. Of course, it was the warm weather that was to blame, for those that did brave the elements and venture out found the evening an extremely oppressive one. High collars and stiff shirt bosoms went down before the ravages of the heat without exception, and everybody was uncomfortably warm.

It was a prespiring crowd that gathered to listen to the music. Front street was crowded and almost entirely blocked along the open lot with the exception of a little path which the police kept clear by unusual exertions. The steps to the First M. E. church made an excellent grand stand and it was about as hard to get a seat there as on the grand stand when the old Crescents played ball. Those who couldn't get a seat there either took possession of the curb or lounged against the adjacent buildings. Madison avenue, north of Front street, made a quiet resort for many of the listners.

There was one man who had a bright idea, but it needed considerable faith in human nature to carry it out. He had a stock of camp chairs on hand and rented them out for a small sum. Of course, he took his chances of ever getting his chairs again but, according to last accounts, he got them all back.

The crowd was made up of the same people as usually attend the concerts. Every class was represented, but last evening the young people seemed to greatly outnumber the older ones.

The band played in its usual excellent manner, and the selections were all well received, especially the medley of popular airs.

Who Took Jerry's Grass?

There was a heavy growth of grass sometime ago on the cleared spot at the City Park. Street Commissioner Meeker told Special Officer Jeremiah Cash that he might have it for his horse if he cared to cut it. Jerry was much pleased at the offer and accepted with thanks. Carefully he cut it one afternoon and returned next morning to carry it away, when to his disgust he found that some one had been there before him and that "the early bird had got the worm." Now Jerry is looking out for the thief.

Picked Her Pocket.

A middleaged woman from South Plainfield came to Plainfield last evening to see Prof. Nate Guttman and his band put out—not on—airs. While circulating around among the 1,303 persons in the crowd, some mean scamp gently lifted a wallet from her dress pocket. The wallet contained just enough money to take her home, so she walked.

A Matter of Local History.

Many persons, passengers and others, often ask how long the North Avenue station has been standing. For their information it is stated that the brick work on the exterior was completed December 1st, 1874, but it was several months afterwards when the station was thrown open to the public.

Another Heat Prostration.

Mrs. James Emory, of Park avenue, was about the house as usual on Saturday last, attending to her household duties, when she suddenly reeled and fell over on the floor from heat prostration. Mrs. Emory is sixty-seven years of age, but Dr. Hedges is doing his utmost to bring her around all right again.

The Meanest Kind of a Thief.

One of the street laborers, who was at work fixing up the roadbed on East Front street near Richmond street yesterday, left his dinner pail hanging on the fence. When dinner time came the pail was missing and the poor man had to go hungry for the balance of the day.

Crop Report.

Weather Observer Neagle has the following crop report this week:

Excessive sunshine and high temperatures have not yet had a damaging effect on crops; everything doing well, especially corn; which is growing rapidly and will yield well; plowing rapidly progressing; rain is needed. Average temperature, 80 degrees; rainfall, 0.38 inches, on three days.

Many a day's work is lost by sick headache, caused by indigestion and stomach troubles. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are the most effectual pill for overcoming such difficulties. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

ALL OVER THE TOWN

NEWS IN SHORT PARAGRAPHS THAT INTEREST ALL PLAINFIELDERS.

Gathered by Enterprising Press Reporters From Both Sides of the Brook and Tersely Served for Your Perusal.

—Crescent Division, No. 13, Uniform Rank, K. of P., meet in regular session this evening.

—A meeting of Major Anderson Post, No. 109, G. A. R., will be held tomorrow evening.

—Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., will meet this evening in their rooms in the Babcock building.

—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dreier, of West Front street, have gone to New York today to make an important real estate deal.

—Michael Uhdal has been employed to grade the grounds about Hotel Netherwood, and to lay out sidewalks about the place.

—The office of the Plainfield Water Supply Company is draped in mourning out of respect to the late E. R. Pope, who was an officer of the company.

—The Warren Township Sunday-school Union picnic is being held at Washington Rock today. The Plainfield Cornet Band of this city furnished the music for the day.

—It is earnestly requested that all members of Franklin Council, No. 41, J.O.U.A.M., be present at the meeting tomorrow evening, as it will be the last meeting before the excursion to Asbury Park Aug. 20th.

—A prominent citizen passing through East Seventh street, near Park avenue, recently, was surprised to find that there was a superabundance of weeds, which were nearly two feet high. How is that for beautiful Plainfield?

—The man who removed the red lantern from in front of Mrs. Myer's residence on East Front street, where the sewer excavation is being made, had better return it. He is known and if he does not bring the lantern back he will be arrested.

—The Asbestos Club have a daily roster which is a novel complication of politics, religion, and ethical opinions on various topics, prose and poetry, by whoever wishes to underscore their opinion or topic of conversation that arises in daily intercourse.

—Balcony windows in the Babcock building were at a premium during the band concert last evening. Some enthusiastic young people wanted the janitor to give them camp-stools on the roof so they could more fully catch the airs as they were wafted heavenward.

—Some mean thief had the impudence to steal a dinner pail yesterday on East Front street, which contained the dinner of one of the street laborers. The man had left his pail hanging on the fence and when he came back it was gone.

—Some mean thief stole a red danger signal from in front of the Lawrence Myers residence on East Front street during last night. The light was left to protect a sewer excavation. The theft is thought to have been committed by some out of-town wheelman.

—A new drink is called a mince-pie cocktail. The barkeeper puts cracked ice in a glass, pours in some old applejack, dashes in some chartreuse and bitters, and serves after squeezing in a bit of oil from a lemon rind. The taste is said to resemble that of the mince pies our mothers baked.

—The remains of Mary Monaghan, the young woman who died suddenly, as told in The Press yesterday, was removed to Runyon's undertaking rooms and today the body was transferred to her former home on Eleventh avenue, New York, from which place the interment will be made in Calvary Cemetery tomorrow.

—Nearly every street car running between this city and Dunellen last evening was crowded. So what difference does it make to Dunellen people whether the street cars run through there or not. They'll get here to a band concert just the same, whether school keeps or not, and if there's no direct trolley communication, they'll walk.

—On Saturday evening last the guests enjoyed a steamboat ride and attended the hop at the Kittatinny. On their return a delicious lobster and clam supper, prepared under the direction of the gay and chivalrous Col. C. K. Moore, of Fanwood, N. J., was served, the great success of which was due to the charming and affable hostess, Mrs. Henry Allen, of New York. Supper over, all participated in dancing, singing, etc., until the handsome "Spanish Cavalier," C. T. Nightengale, announced that Sunday morning was approaching.—Mt. Minsi Mountain Record.

BRYAN IN SECLUSION

Meets Only His Chief Advisors in New York To-day.

RESTING FOR TO-NIGHT'S MEETING

The Hoarseness Contracted During His Journey Somewhat Relieved—Mrs. Bryan To Receive This Afternoon at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

New York, Aug. 12.—Candidate Wm. J. Bryan and Mrs. Bryan spent last night at the home of W. P. St. John on East Thirty-fourth street, where they were conducted on their arrival in this city at 8 o'clock last night. Mr. Bryan denied himself to all callers this morning except his immediate advisers, and he will not leave Mr. St. John's house until he starts for the Madison Square garden this evening. Mrs. Bryan also remained in seclusion this morning, but it is said she will receive in parlor "D R" of the Fifth Avenue hotel this afternoon. Mr. Bryan held a conference this morning with Arthur Sewall, Chairman Jones and Richard Bland. It is understood that his speech to be delivered to-night was again carefully gone over, and other details of the meeting discussed. Although there was no formal reception of the Bryan party last night, there was a big crowd at the Jersey City station when the Bryan train rolled in. As soon as the train had come to a full stop Mr. Bryan, Mrs. Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Bland, Mr. and Mrs. James Kerr of Clearfield, Pa.; John A. Creighton, member of the notification committee from Nebraska, J. S. Malone, J. T. Snyder of Clearfield, Pa.; John D. Warman, John Garman, H. V. Dively and Clarence J. Gallagher, a personal friend of Mr. Bryan, alighted. Mr. Sewall and the other members of the reception committee rushed forward and in turn shook hands with Mr. and Mrs. Bryan. The entire party were then conducted through the baggage room to the boat, and the crowd was thus avoided. In this city another crowd had assembled, but Mr. and Mrs. Bryan were hurried to a carriage and driven to the residence of Mr. St. John. Quite a crowd had assembled there, but Mr. Bryan, in response to the cheers, merely bowed acknowledgement and passed inside.

The Notification Meeting.

All arrangements for the notification meeting in Madison Square garden to-night are completed. Mr. Bryan's voice is stronger than it was last night on his arrival and the huskiness caused by the numerous speeches he made during his journey from Nebraska has almost entirely disappeared. Mr. Sewall spent part of this morning completing his speech. He says it is not lengthy, and as he is not much of an orator he does not expect or desire to make a great hit. Gov. Stone of Missouri, who will make the speech of notification, says his address will be short. He does not know who the other speakers will be. Richard Bland and others may deliver addresses if the principal speeches are not too long and the night is not too warm. Elliot F. Danforth, who is to preside at the meeting, had a private conference with Senator Jones this morning regarding details for the meeting. The following notice has been issued for the information of persons desiring to attend the meeting: Positively no admittance without ticket. Holders of white tickets, except the few for boxes, must approach the garden from Twenty-sixth street. The Madison avenue entrance will be open to them at 7:45 o'clock. Holders of numbered tickets for reserved seats and boxes must approach the garden through Twenty-seventh street, and be in their seats not later than 7:45. Madison avenue entrance will be open to them at 7 o'clock. The special Twenty-seventh street entrance will be open at 6:45 o'clock, and will be closed at 7:45 o'clock, except for the press reserve. Special overflow meetings will be held on lower Madison avenue, under the direction of the single-tax Bryan and Sewall club and the Bimetallic league.

Sound Money Democratic Headquarters.

Indianapolis, Aug. 12.—The executive headquarters of the national sound money democratic party have been established in the Lemke building, at Penn and Market streets, in this city. Ex-Representative W. D. Bynum, chairman of the executive committee, and John R. Wilson, both of this city, will be at the headquarters until the convention is held on Sept. 2. William S. Weller has been appointed assistant secretary to Mr. Wilson. State and county headquarters will also be located in this building.

Press Arrangements at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Aug. 12.—Press arrangements for the convention of the national sound money democrats have been placed in charge of Evans Woolen, assistant secretary of the national committee. All papers desiring workspace in the convention hall are requested to apply to him at Indianapolis before Aug. 17.

Gen. Miles To Visit Niantic.

Hartford, Aug. 12.—Gen. Miles, commanding the army, has accepted an invitation to attend Camp Graham, of the national guard, at Niantic, and will spend one day there next week, Thursday or Friday.

J. K. Seaver Found Dead in Bed.

Malone, N. Y., Aug. 12.—J. K. Seaver was found dead in bed at Lake Placid yesterday. He was for many years one of the proprietors of the Malone Palladium, and is said to leave an interest in that paper. He was 70 years of age.

ENLISTING THEM IN M'KINLEY'S CAUSE

Callers at the Western Republican Headquarters—Senator Burrows Assigned to the Stump in Indiana—The Outlook in Utah.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Chairman Hanna spent this morning at the Auditorium hotel and in his office at headquarters around the corner in varied conferences, in discussions with politicians, and some time in the private offices of Chicago's big manufacturers and merchants, notably among the latter being P. D. Armour. Mr. Hanna is working out his plan to enlist actively and extensively the services of these commercial leaders in the republican campaign. Col. W. C. Haskell of Cleveland arrived last night and assumed his position of sergeat-at-arms of the national committee. He was accompanied by Major W. C. F. Dick of Arkon, O., who is Mr. Hanna's private secretary at headquarters. United States Senator Brown of Utah was one of the callers from outside Chicago. He said: "Some republicans in Utah are off on the silver question, but they will vote for McKinley for his protection policy. The wool growers are for protection to a man, and most of the Mormons have been won over on the tariff issue." The speakers' bureau assigned Senator Burrows to South Bend, Valparaiso and Crawfordsville, Ind., for August 20, 21 and 22, respectively. Capt. Tanner, republican nominee for governor of Illinois, left last night under medical orders for South Haven, Mich., for an indefinite period. A closer examination of his injuries has revealed three broken ribs. His health generally is poor.

Harrison To Speak in New York.

New York, Aug. 12.—Gen. Powell Clayton, in charge of the speakers' bureau at republican headquarters, has received a letter from ex-President Harrison, promising to deliver one speech in this city, and the date has been fixed for August 27. The place has not yet been selected.

Kansas Republicans.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 12.—Gov. E. N. Morrill was last night renominated for governor by the republicans of Kansas. The resolutions endorsed McKinley and Hobart and the national platform favoring sound money.

THE CUBAN WAR.

Rebels Wreck a Passenger Train and Destroy a Big Plantation.

Havana, Aug. 12.—Rebels have wrecked a passenger train near Navajas, province of Matanzas, by exploding four dynamite bombs under it as it was passing. A number of passengers and several soldiers who were acting as guards were wounded. The insurgents have destroyed the Cuban sugar estate of Hueca, in the Manzanillo district, owned by Joseph Rigney, an American, and the San Miguel estate at Azopardo, province of Matanzas. The losses occasioned by the destruction of the properties are estimated at $1,000,000 in each case.

New York Tailors' Strike.

New York, Aug. 12.—A well authenticated report was circulated among the strikers on the east side late last evening that a scheme was on foot whereby the coatmakers' strike will be settled within forty-eight hours. Leader Schoenfeld would neither confirm or deny the report. Henry Davis and Jacob Hayman, two large manufacturers, signed the agreement with the Brotherhood of Tailors. Hayman is at present working with non-union hands, but he will turn these out and engage union hands, starting in to-day.

To Protect Armenians and Cretans.

London, Aug. 12.—The Chronicle to-day says there is reason to believe that Great Britain and Russia have arrived or are arriving at an understanding to save the Armenians and Cretans from further outrages by the Turks. France, it is said, concurs in the arrangement, which provides that a British fleet shall protect Crete, and that Russia shall send military residents to the principal towns of Armenia, keeping an army within their call.

Wrecked Crew Reach Port.

New York, Aug. 12.—On board the Clyde line steamer New York, just arrived from San Dominican ports, were Capt. Nelson and seven of the crew of the schooner Lena Nelson, which was wrecked on July 18 near Punta Canas on the eastern end of the island of San Domingo while on a voyage from Macoris for New York. The vessel will prove a total loss.

Drowned Before Their Father's Eyes.

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 12.—George and Isaac Ferguson, aged 10 and 12 years respectively, were drowned while bathing in the Wallkill river last night before their father's eyes. Owing to Mr. Ferguson's inability to swim, he was unable to render assistance to his sons. Both bodies were recovered.

Cholera in Egypt.

Cairo, Aug. 12.—The latest official returns show that 322 more deaths have occurred from cholera throughout Egypt. Since the outbreak began there have been 13,986 deaths.

Two Boys Drowned.

Bondsville, Mass., Aug. 12.—William and Roland Butterfield, aged 14 and 11 years, sons of William N. Butterfield, were drowned in the river here yesterday afternoon.

A NOVEL ADVERTISEMENT.

Built a Monument in the Cemetery for the Purpose.

A splendid monument of Pierre Cabochard, grocer, stands in a conspicuous position in the cemetery of Pere la Chaise. It bears a pathetic inscription, ending:

"His inconsolable widow dedicates this monument to his memory, and continues the same business at the old place, 167 Rue Mouffetard."

A gentleman had the curiosity to call at the address given, says Tit-Bits.

"I came to see the widow Cabochard," said the caller.

"Well, sir, here she is," said the man.

"I beg pardon," said the gentleman, "but I wish to see the lady herself."

"Sir," was the answer, "I am the widow Cabochard."

"I don't exactly understand," quoth the visitor. "I allude to the relict of the late Pierre Cabochard, whose monument I saw yesterday at Pere la Chaise."

"I see, I see," was the smiling rejoinder. "Allow me to inform you that Pierre Cabochard is a myth, and therefore never had a wife. The tomb you admired cost me a good deal of money; and, though no one was buried there, it proves a first-rate advertisement, and I have had no cause to regret the expense. What can I sell you in the way of groceries?"

Earthquake Observations.

Earthquake experts propose to establish a number of stations for seismological observations around the earth. Starting from Japan, where is the most complete system of studying earthquakes in the world, the stations will be Shanghai, Hong Kong, Calcutta, Sydney, Rome, Tacubaya in Mexico, Port Natal, Cape of Good Hope, Santiago in Chili, and Rio de Janeiro, all communicating with a central station at Strasburg.

Is Her Salvation.

Cycling is a woman's salvation, says the Irish Cyclist. She can't stop at the shop windows, and her talking is cut down by 100 per cent. when awheel; flower patches cannot be carried on the head, or new-shaped dresses put on every day, or the piano jarred out of truth twice daily. If she would remember that only half the road is hers, and that other people don't like croppers, she would be perfect.

Human Ears for Sale.

A correspondent of the London Daily News writer from Canea in Crete: "Well-cured human ears are on sale in the camp here. A friend of mine saw a large box of them last night." So said one of the consuls last night to me in Canea. The ears were not, however, Cretan, but Armenian, having been imported by the newly arrived Turkish regiments.

Day and Night on the Moon.

The day on the moon is a fortnight in length. During that period the temperature on the illuminated side probably rises to 220 degrees Fahrenheit. The night is, of course, of equal length, and during the period of darkness the heat probably radiates so freely that the temperature falls to 300 degrees below the zero of the Fahrenheit scale.

Can't Eat

This is the complaint of thousands at this season. They have no appetite; food does not relish and often fails to digest, causing severe suffering. Such people need the toning up of the stomach and digestive organs, which a course of Hood's Sarsaparilla will give them. It also purifies and enriches the blood, cures that distress after eating and

Internal Misery

Only a dyspeptic can know, creates an appetite, overcomes that tired feeling and builds up and sustains the whole physical system. It so promptly and effectively relieves dyspeptic symptoms and cures nervous headaches, that it seems to have almost "a magic touch."

Distress After Eating.

"I have been troubled with indigestion for some time. After eating anything that was sweet I was sure to experience great difficulty and distress. Last fall I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and am glad to say that my stomach trouble has entirely disappeared. I can now eat a hearty meal of almost any kind of food and have no trouble afterwards. Hood's Sarsaparilla has also cured me of nervous spells." JOHN H. HOMRIGHAUSEN, Wheatland, Iowa. TRAMPS IN THE WEST.

Their Number Is Increasing from Year to Year.

How the Modern Ishmaelites Spend Their Summer Vacation—Used for Political Purposes in Spring and Autumn—What Makes Vagabonds.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

"Why is Meandering Mike like flannel?" "Because he shrinks from washing." This threadbare little joke has been heard time and again, but no one can appreciate its deep significance until he has had the fortune—or misfortune, if you please—of visiting one of the numerous camps established by the tramp fraternity along the lines of our western railroads.

In winter the tramp establishes himself in the large cities of the land. He lives by begging, and sleeps wherever he can find a place. If mendicancy does not pay for his fusel oil and food, he steals or taps empty beer kegs in the rear of saloons. The stale remnants which find no escape through the barkeeper's faucet, even with the aid of a powerful pump, are poured by the dirty scavengers into the proverbial tomato can and consumed with the same relish displayed by the blase millionaire when he sips his French champagne from a cut-glass goblet. A few weeks before election time the experienced tramp enjoys life. He is picked up by the agent of one or the other political party and enrolled as a guest at some cheap lodging house from which he can be registered. From the day of registration until he has cast his ballot for the "purification of municipal politics" he lives in clover. After that come neglect and the warm days of spring.

THE KING OF TRAMPS.

But instead of bemoaning his lot and abusing the erstwhile kind policeman who, after the election, degenerates once more into a petty tyrant, the man without a home takes up his stick and wanders out into the country, unless he can steal a ride on a freight train. Before he has traveled ten miles he will meet a number of his colleagues, and forthwith they will form a band, elect a leader and establish a camp.

Of course, not a tented camp, because tramps have never been known to carry baggage. The leader of the band simply selects some deserted barn or tenantless section house, and there he establishes his kingdom until driven away by the outraged farmers living within the purliens of his realm.

When men have learned to be philosophical, they do not require much to live. After a winter's campaign among the five and ten cent eating houses of a metropolitan city, a baked chicken, even though it be burned and full of pin feathers, is indeed a luxury, and a breakfast of fresh-laid eggs is enchanted into a Lucullian feast. Usually the depredatory habits of the vagabond are confined to the collection of such eatables, although once in awhile he will make an attack upon a freight car loaded with beer or other liquid refreshment. Given these luxuries—and a few pieces of clothing which he secures by begging—the king of the road is a happy man—an up-to-date philosopher who believes that the world owes him a living, and who lives up to his conviction with a steadfastness worthy of a better principle.

Inasmuch as no body of tramps will invade the territory preempted by another detachment, the breaking up of camp is not a very serious matter. When given notice by the farmers to vacate they usually comply with the request promptly, only occasionally burning a barn or two to show their displeasure. If orders to quit are issued in the spring or early summer, the band moves ten or fifteen miles westward; if in late summer or fall, the progress is toward the east, provided Chicago has been the point of departure. In this way some companies travel through Illinois and Iowa, others through Wisconsin and Minnesota, always following the line of railroad selected as their own at the beginning of the season, and return by the same route, reaching the city before the first snowfall.

The question has often been asked, "How are tramps made?" It is doubtless true that a certain percentage of men is born with a hatred for honest employment which no system of education can eradicate. Such creatures are the natural vagabonds, the ulcer on the body politic which has defied treatment ever since society was established, and there is no doubt in the mind of the sociologist that they will continue to exist as long as mankind has to struggle for existence. But the majority of our latter-day tramps are creatures of circumstances.

There was a time in the history of the United States when a genuine tramp was a rarity. That was when employment was plentiful and the demand for labor did not exceed the supply.

After the close of the civil war the modern tramp, the Ishmaelite of our fin-de-siecle civilization, made his appearance in small numbers, but not until 1873, when the great panic paralyzed every American industry, did he throng our highways and byways. No human being, not born into vagabondage, drops from respectability into a state of savage freedom without passing through intermediate stages. A few facts gathered from time to time by the writer lend substance to the statement that nine-tenths of the miserable wretches who now live in idleness, and often by crime, started upon their career as tramps while honest workingmen.

Through no fault of theirs they had lost employment in the towns where they had worked for years. Several of those interviewed—and their statements were afterward corroborated—had made part payments on homes and others owned lots and household goods. When the factories which had given them work closed their doors, these men took what money they could spare and traveled to other points to earn a livelihood. They found the same unfortunate conditions prevailing wherever they went. Their funds gave out; they could no longer pay railroad fare; they had to rely upon the charitable for food and lodging; their once neat clothing had become shabby and threadbare. Onward and onward they went, like the Wandering Jew; from the lodging in a hay loft to a cot in the calaboose, and the stone pile. Honest and honorable, every hand was raised against them until they, in turn, raised their hands against everybody.

The transition from respectability to trampdom was a rapid process. It required years to accomplish it. But, once accomplished, it took hold of body and soul, and neither reformatory nor prison could eradicate it. The once respected mechanic, owing principally to their intelligence, became the leaders of bands of predatory wanderers and the founders of a class of society which is destined to thrive for many years to come.

The depression of 1873 was succeeded by a few fat years, but the industrial condition never recovered to that point which denotes universal prosperity. Each era of overproduction gave birth to new evils; and the ranks of trampdom, augmented by foreign recruits, have been gaining rather than losing in strength.

Hence, to a certain extent, every tramp encampment on the prarie of the middle west is a constant reminder of the mistakes of our system of political economy, as interpreted by professional politicians. While the tramp, as an individual or a class, is a nuisance, his existence should teach a great lesson. The foremost thinkers of America are unanimous in pronouncing him a creature of the nuisance of power and wealth; and this estimate is no doubt correct when applied to all but natural vagabonds.

The evil resulting from the increase in the number of homeless and degraded waifs is felt mostly in cities like Chicago and New York, where they are used for political purposes. Many municipal elections in the western metropolis have been carried by the cheap lodging house vote which is cast exclusively by individuals degraded by years of lawless living. They are bought up for a song by ward politicians, and thus frequently help to perpetrate rottenness in the administration of the city's affairs, without, of course, contributing anything towards its revenues.

Nevertheless, before pronouncing judgment on the human wreck that applies at your door for assistance—and at times takes by force what is not given quickly—it is well to ponder the conditions which have reduced him to his sad condition. The blear-eyed, dirty-faced mendicant may at one time have been the husband of a good woman; may have been the father of a family as promising as your own. Before casting a stone it would be wise to consider what we might be had we been in his place.

FIVE PROBABLY KILLED.

The Number of Bodies Believed To Be Under the New York Fire Ruins.

New York, Aug. 12.—It is now believed that the number of lives lost by the fire yesterday afternoon at Greenwich and Watts streets will number five. Work of searching the ruins for the dead is being pushed forward as fast as possible, but this is necessarily slow as the bricks, iron work and mortar are still too hot to permit of much progress being made and the firemen continue to pour streams of water into the ruins. While the firemen were fighting the flames the bodies of two victims could be plainly seen on the fire escapes. Five men and boys were injured while escaping from the burning building. They were taken to Hudson Street hospital, mangled and burned. What caused the fire is not known, but it is believed to have been started by an explosion. It is known that an explosion occured a few minutes after the fire broke out. The fire spread like a flash through the building at No. 465, where it originated, and cut off the escape of many. The firemen who first reached the scene of the conflagration saw a number of men at the windows appealing for help but before any attempt at rescue could be made they fell back exhausted by the heat and smoke, and all are supposed to have perished in the flames. Altogether there were about thirty-two men employed by the Warren company. There were fifteen on the top or sixth floor, eleven on the fifth, four on the fourth and a couple on the office on ground floor. From the stories told by those who claimed to be near-by when the first alarm was given, faces were seen at nearly every window. When the flames were gotten under control the charred bodies of four victims were exposed to view on the fire escapes of the third and fifth stories. Two others, one a girl, were seen to fall back in the flames, overcome probably by the smoke before the fire touched them. The buildings burned were Nos. 465, 467 and 469 Greenwich street, occupied by the A. K. Warren Electric Repair works and a number of smaller firms.

RIOT AT ELMIRA REFORMATORY.

An Attempt on the Part of Prisoners To Escape Frustrated.

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Seventy of the lower second-grade inmates of the state reformatory were taken to the large parade ground yesterday to drill under the charge of Principal Keeper Sample and Capt. Adams. After the exercises were over, and as the inmates were returning to the building, some of the men pitched upon Sample and Adams, assaulting them with iron buckets. Both were borne to the ground, but Sample shot one of the convicts in the leg, and, in response to a general alarm, twenty-five guards, armed with Winchester rifles, appeared on the scene and succeeded in quelling the riot. Sample and the wounded convict are in the hospital. Adams was also badly injured. The rioters have been placed in solitary confinement. It appears that a plot had been laid to escape, and had the convicts succeeded in getting Sample and Adams out of the way they would have made a dash for the walls, and some of them might have got away.

Flying Machine Inventor Killed.

Berlin, Aug. 12.—Herr Lilienthal, an engineer, who for many years was experimenting in the building of flying machines, met with an accident yesterday that resulted in his death. He started with one of his machines to fly from a hilltop at Rhinow, near Berlin. The apparatus worked all right for a few minutes and Lilienthal flew quite a distance, when suddenly the machinery of the apparatus got out of order, and machine and man fell to the ground. Lilienthal was so badly injured that he died in the hospital to which he was removed.

Suspension of Deputy Warden McKenna.

Albany, Aug. 12.—Deputy Warden McKenna of Clinton prison, who was last week suspended by Warden Thayer for his part in the exclusion of Peter Keenan from the prison buildings, yesterday afternoon called upon Gen. Lathrop, the superintendent of state prisons. McKenna explained his position in the matter. Gen. Lathrop has the evidence in the case before him and will announce through Warden Thayer at Dannemora whether or not the two prison officials who used force to eject Keenan are to be removed.

Australian Wheat Crops

THE DEADLY HEAT

Hundreds of Victims Claimed by the Sun's Fierce Rays.

GREATEST SUFFERING IN NEW YORK

Man and Beast Drop Dead in the Streets and the Hospitals Crowded—People Sleep on the Docks—Relief Promised To-night.

New York, Aug. 12.—Cooler weather is promised to-night by the government forecaster, but this promise has been made day after day for the last seven days and as many times proved erroneous. Even if this latest prediction proves true enough suffering has already been caused in this city and Brooklyn to make the reoccurrence of a hot wave something to be dreaded almost as much as the appearance of an eastern pest. Monday's death roll in the metropolitan district numbered 112, and the prostrations 266. And yesterday's record even exceeded Monday's alarming figures. To-day the prostrations and deaths promises to be not quite as large, but there is still great suffering. The ambulances are taxed to their ability and the hospitals are full of victims of the intense heat. In the east side tenements and sweater districts, where whole families are cooped in one room in many instances with only one small window and that one leading into an air shaft, the death rate and suffering is the greatest, although most of the deaths reported by the police were victims picked up in the streets or taken from factories. At night the roofs and fire-escapes of houses in the tenement districts are crowded with people driven from their sweltering quarters in an endeavor to get a breath of fresh air. At the open docks along the North and East rivers many persons, sometimes whole families, spent all last night, driven from their homes by the heat. The down-town parks were also utilized for camping quarters, as it were. The horse-car and express people have suffered considerable loss by the deaths of horses, and it is no uncommon sight to see a horse topple over dead in the streets.

Deaths in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Aug. 12.—The highest temperature yet recorded during the present heated spell by the local weather bureau was reached yesterday, when the thermometer went a fraction over 97. On the streets shaded thermometers touched from 100 to 104 degrees. Possibly people are becoming acclimated to the terrible heat or else, realizing its deadly power, are taking more precautions against it, for the mortality fell off somewhat. There were twelve deaths reported by the police yesterday and fifty cases of prostrations were admitted to the hospitals. To-day it is slightly cooler, but the suffering is terrible.

Boston Sweltering.

Boston, Aug. 12.—The heat is still causing much suffering in Boston and other cities throughout Massachusetts, although it is not so oppressive to-day as it was yesterday. There have been numerous prostrations and several deaths and the mortality among infants is alarming.

Work of the Hot Wave in Connecticut.

Hartford, Aug. 12.—The heat in this city and in all parts of Connecticut today is almost unbearable, but not quite as warm as yesterday. Deaths from sunstroke and prostrations are reported from a number of cities and towns, and in this city three succumbed yesterday. The highest point reached by the mercury was 97 degrees, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Victims at Providence.

Providence, Aug. 12.—The thermometer reached a maximum of 95 degrees at 4:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Nine deaths in this city from heat were reported, making the total of fourteen since Saturday. There were also many prostrations. Two deaths were roported in Pawtucket.

Three Deaths at Washington.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The heated term still continues in this vicinity, although to-day is a shade less oppressive than yesterday, a slight breeze keeping the air in motion. Three deaths were reported up to noon as a result of the heat. A number of prostrations more or less serious were also reported. The thermometer registered 90. No material change in the weather is predicted before this evening.

Big Shops Closed.

Susquehanna, Pa., Aug. 12.—Owing to the extreme heat, the extensive locomotive works of the Erie Railroad company have been closed indefinitely.

Twelve Victims at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Aug. 12.—Twelve fatalities from excessive heat were reported up to this morning. Thirty persons were prostrated. The maximum temperature was 95 degrees.

Chicago's Heat Record Broken.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—The heat record here for the past twenty-four hours eclipses that of any other year since 1877. A total of 102 deaths was reported, of which two-thirds can be directly traced to the heat.

Suffering at Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—The intense heat is causing great suffering here. Many prostrations have been reported during the past two days, and the death rate has been alarming. Three deaths occurre last night as a result of the heat. Many horses dropped dead in the streets.

Killed by Lightning.

Bangor, Me., Aug. 12.—Dr. W. L. Pressey, a prominent physician, was instantly killed by lightning at Ilesboro, a summer resort, while conversing with his sweetheart.

Congressman Howells, of the Third District, has no opposition to a renomination.

There is a rumor current that ex-Speaker James J. Bergen, of Somerset county, may be nominated for Congress by the Democrats of the Third District. Mr. Bergen is a gold Democrat.

There is a movement on foot among the grocers looking to the general suspension of business between the hours of 5 and 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon out of respect to that well-known and progressive citizen, Elias R. Pope, whose sudden death so startled the community Monday night. Between 2 and 3:30 o'clock the casket will be opened for a last view of all that is mortal of a man whose life was spent in and exerted for Plainfield, and The Press trusts that every merchant will close his place of business in conformation with the majority.

The State Convention of the Populists will meet at Essex Lyceum, Newark, at 10 a. m., next Saturday. About 200 delegates are expected. The convention will probably elect a State committee and delegate to it all the work of the campaign. If so, the committee will be instructed to confer with the Democrats, and demand recognition in making the electoral ticket, and also ask for the acceptance of Joseph R. Buchanan as a candidate for Congress. Elmer J. Whitehead, of Westfield, president of the company that owns the Union County Standard, is the probable chairman of the State committee.

COLD AIR CAVE NO FAKE.

One Who Has Been There Tells of Its Wonderful Cold Atmosphere.

The Mt. Minsi Mountain Echo has the following from a correspondent concerning the cold air cave recently discovered on the farm of C.T. Nightingale, of this city, located on Mt. Minsi:

Believing that a word on the Cold Air Cave at the Gap will be interesting to your readers, I would state that this is one of the wonders of the vicinity, and probably the most interesting as well as the most mysterious.

"Where does the cold air come from and is it a fake," are the remarks of all visitors, "and why is it not as cold in the cave on a cold day as it is on a warm day?"

To more enlighten the visitors, last Saturday an exploring party, of which a well known Philadelphia lady was one, crawled through the small opening at the rear, and traversed the winding labyrinth for some eighty feet. A number of expert mining men were then set to work opening up the passages so as to give the visitors a more thorough idea of what the cave really was, and if you are in search of adventure and desire to explore the interior of this grand old Mt. Minsi, call at the cave and put on the suits furnished by the attendants, and see for yourself where and what the Cold Air Cave consists of, and if you wish to see it when it is the coldest, take a very warm day for your search, and you will be convinced that it is no fake, but a wonder of the Gap that is worth your while to visit. Where the thermometer registers from 38° to 55° farenheit, the lowest temperature is found on the hottest day, when there is hardly a breath of air stirring through the Gap; but when the wind is blowing hard to the north, and the day is cool, the temperature of the cave is liable to run to 65°, therefore take a hot day for the Cold Air Cave.

Death of a Colored Man.

The death of Henry Hatchet, aged forty-five years, colored, occurred yesterday afternoon at his home, 25 Race street, after a two-months illness with consumption. Mr. Hatchet was well known in this locality and for many years was a famous hostler. In later years he was unable to do much work on account of his health. He leaves a widow and four children. The funeral will be held from the Mt. Olive Baptist church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Rhodie Nash, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains, and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of blackberry cordial but got no relief. She then sent to me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlin's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhoea but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.— Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

A DUNELLEN BELLE WEDDED.

Miss Cecelia Staats Becomes Mrs. John W. Griggs of New Brunswick.

The wedding of Cecelia Staats, the youngest daughter of Postmaster Staats, of Dunellen, to John W. Griggs, of New Brunswick, took place August 1st at the residence of Rev. H. J. Johnstone, on Craig place, in this city. The ceremony was witnessed by a few intimate friends of the bride and groom. The bride was very becomingly attired in pearl brocaded satin with pearl trimmings and bonton lace.

The witnesses to the marriage were George Hallock and Mrs. Henry Needham, of Plainfield. The bride received many useful as well as ornamental presents. Mr. and Mrs. Griggs are enjoying their honeymoon at Ocean Grove. On their return they will reside in Dunellen for a time, but their intentions to reside in New Brunswick.

NEW MARKET.

Rev. Frank Fletcher preached in the Parmley Memorial church, Jersey City, last Sunday.

Miss Clara Pierce and Miss Irene Day will leave for Ocean Grove tomorrow to remain for a week,

New Market pond seems to be drawing fishermen from all around. Every day finds large numbers trying their luck. Abe Nelson caught four bass and five eels a few days ago, one of the bass tipping the scales at three pounds and one ounce.

The tax rate this year in the township of Piscataway has been supplied through the kindness of Assessor Kelly, and will be: County, .65; State school, .27; poor, .08; special school, .14; bond, 02; road, 29; township, 03; total, $1.48; total last year, $1 61.

Important Board Meeting.

An important meeting of the Board of Directors of the City National Bank was held this morning lasting from 8:10 to 10:50 o'clock. Though the late Elias R Pope was not connected with the bank at the time of his death, it was thought fitting that that some action should be taken in reference to his demise. J. B. Coward was appointed to draw up a set of resolutions expressing the Board of Directors regret over the sad event. A number of hard wood contractors were also in conference with the Board with reference to the interior furnishings of the new bank building.

The Misses Conklin, of West Front street, left town today to enjoy a needed rest.

That Catarrh is a Local Affection

of the membrane of the nose, throat, etc., is a fact established by physicians, and this authority should carry more weight than assertions of incompetent parties, who claim that catarrh is a blood affection, in order to make a market for their compound. Ely's Cream Balm is a local remedy, composed of harmless medicants and free of mercury or any injurious drug. It will cure catarrh. Applied directly to the inflamed membrane, it restores it to its healthy condition, affording quick relief and a cure after short continuance.

THE PRECIOUS METALS.

In the fiscal year ending in 1894 the United States had $661,000,000 in gold and $624,000,000 in silver in circulation.

According to Messedaglia, the world's silver mines have produced since 1492 180,500 tons of silver, valued at £4,604,000,000.

The years between 1851 and 1860 were the most productive in the gold mines of this country. The amount mined was $1,332,981,000.

The gold and silver money of France is estimated by the Bank of France to amount to $800,000,000 of the former and $500,000,000 of the latter.

India is on a strictly silver basis, gold not circulating to any appreciable extent. The currency comprises $950,000,000 in silver and $77,000,000 in paper.

The director of the mint estimates that in all South America there are now in circulation $15,000,000 of gold, $30,000,000 of silver and $600,000,000 of paper money.

In the decade ending with 1890, the world produced 927,900,000 ounces of silver, of which the United States contributed 389,700,000, or considerably more than one-third.

Arizona and Utah have each produced about $21,000,000 worth of precious metal, Arizona having contributed $6,951,793 of gold and $14,085,175 of silver, and Utah $1,477,262 of gold and $19,920,438 of silver.

Every country on the globe is said to produce more or less gold, even China, which does not use gold as a circulating medium, produces annually about $8,000,000 worth, either exported or employed in the arts.

The United States leads the world in the production of silver, its product being about $64,000,000 per annum. Mexico comes next, with $60,817,309; Bolivia is third, with $28,444,400, and Australia, fourth, with $23,367,700.

SOME SCIENTIFIC FACTS.

Glashier, the aeronaut, has noticed that the voice of a woman is audible in a balloon at the height of about two miles, while that of a man has never reached higher than a mile.

Prof. Falb, of Vienna, announces that the earth will collide with a comet on November 13, 1899. The earth itself will survive the shock, but every living thing will be choked with poisonous gases and be finally cremated.

It is claimed that the perfume of flowers disappears as soon as the starch in the petals is exhausted; and it may, it is said, be restored by placing the flower in a solution of sugar, when the formation of starch and the emission of fragrance will be at once resumed.

The moisture of the eye is a genuine solvent. Many persons have gone to bed troubled with a foreign substance in the eye, and have waked up in the morning to find it gone. In many cases of this kind the foreign matter has been dissolved by the moisture of the eye.

That such plants as "Venus' fly trap" actually catch and squeeze to death flies and other insects alighting on their leaves has long been known, but the discovery is comparatively recent that the plants digest the softer parts of their prey by means of a peptic ferment secreted by the leaves. These, then, are real instances of plants feeding upon animals.

ISN'T IT STRANGE?

The "strained relations" often find their greatest strain among nearest relations.

That in dwelling upon the wickedness of others, we often forget to dwell upon our own.

That the "mantle of charity" grows smaller and smaller as the world grows larger and larger.

That "love at first sight" is so dependent on "second sight" for a good sight at the real thing.

That the milk in the cocoanut, although having often been accounted for, doesn't always furnish the richest cream.

That "ideal husbands" and "ideal wives" are often found without ideas enough between the two for one good one of either kind.

That sass for the goose doesn't seem to have the same flavor as the sass for the gander, and at the same time that for the gander doesn't sometimes taste as good as does that for the goose.—Good Housekeeping.

RIDERS OF THE WHEEL.

Mr. Balfour now has an aluminum bicycle of American make weighing only 18 pounds.

Roumanian bicyclers must have their names and addresses not only on a plate fastened to their machines, but also on the glass of their lamps, so that they may be read at night. Cyclists in the streets of Bucharest must ride in single file.

A sedate wheelman, who is anxious to strictly follow the rules of etiquette, wrote to an Indianapolis paper, and asked this important question: "Would it be all right to ride a bicycle to the funeral of a distant connection by marriage, providing you keep behind the hurse?"

A bicycle drowning accident has taken place in Wales. A fisherman named Conway rode down to lay his lines at low water, but could not keep ahead of the incoming tide. His body was carried out to sea, and his bicycle, found at low tide between two sand banks, was the only mark of what had become of him.

ETIQUETTE AND PROSPERITY.

It is courteous, if a lady's wrap is heavy, for the gentleman to assist her in putting it on.

A gentleman always removes his glove when he is about to shake hands with a lady.

In making an ordinary evening call a gentleman might remain about three-quarters of an hour.

At a formal dinner the gentlemen wearing gloves would remove them just before the dinner began.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—You will find all the choicest of fruit and confections at A. Lusardi's fruit store, 120 North avenue.

—The sewer catch basin at the corner of Front street and Park avenue, was repaired yesterday by masons.

—Most of the lathe hands at the Potter Press Works went out at noon yesterday for the day, on account of the heat.

—Iona Council, D. of P., will spend tomorrow at Boynton Beach. They will leave Red Men's Hall at 8 o'clock by stages.

—An iron settee was stolen from the back yard of Lawrence Myers' residence on East Front street during last evening.

—At the Pond Machine Tool Company's Works the employes were let off yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock on account of the heat.

—Alfred VanAlstyne was arraigned before City Judge DeMeza yesterday for riding his bicycle without a light. Sentence was suspended.

—See Charles Howard Johnson's "Dream of the Wheel" and the back-page "Silver Prize" in Truth Saturday. All trains and news-stands.

—The National Republican League convention will be held in Milwaukee, Tuesday, August 25th. H. N. Spencer, of the borough, will probably attend the convention.

—F. C. Phoebus, of the Greenbrook Kennels, lost 180 valuable Black Spanish chickens by the storm sometime ago. A tree was blown over, crushing the chicken coop.

—A dog with a muzzle on was seen on Front street early this morning. Over a dozen were seen without any. The muzzled dog was soon taken home for fear of hydrophobia.

—The doctors report many cases of prickley heat, both among children and grown people. The complaint is said to be caused by a disordered liver creating impure blood in the veins.

—The people at Dunellen are clamoring for the trolley service through there. They are willing to sacrifice most anything but their homes and family in order to have the trolley pass their doors.

—Is your eyesight defective? The correct glasses properly fitted is probably all that is needed to give you your perfect vision. Give us a trial. Satisfaction guaranteed. Leech, Stiles & Co., eye specialists, at 107 East Front street, Thursday from 10 a. m., to 4:30 p. m.

—A regular meeting of the Independent Order of National Machinists, No. 167, was held in the Stillman building last evening, and aside from the routine of business one new member was taken in. An early adjournment was made on account of the heat.

—The stump of the old chestnut tree near the entrance to Hope Chapel, over which so many people have stumbled and barked their shins in the past, was measured by Janitor Philip Stewart yesterday, and it was found to measure a trifle over six feet in diameter.

—An amateur painter, or rather one who was not accustomed to such high altitudes, tried to climb the flag staff on the Grenada yesterday, and slid down the pole, when half way up, three times. It is now proposed to turn the building upside down, so he can paint the pole from the cellar.

—One man was seen on the street, yesterday, who claimed he had never yet seen a Jersey mosquito. He'd heard 'em, however. If that man will only take an ordinary piece of mosquito netting and tack it over a rain-water barrel half filled with water, and leave the combination intact for forty-eight hours, then lift the cover, he will have a drove of mosquitoes so big that a cannon could hardly penetrate.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all druggists.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints.—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Fredericktown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The front of the Dime Saving's Institution on East Front street was today draped in mourning out of respect to the memory of the late Elias R. Pope.

—The interment of the late Mrs. Harry Lowry, of Rahway, took place at Hillside cemetery this afternoon. The funeral services were held at Rahway this morning.

—Wm. V. Mundy, agent of the Travelers' Insurance Company, paid two checks yesterday, one to J. P. Laire for $25 and the other to Edgar Serrell for $30, for injuries received.

—The late Elias R. Pope was not an assignee for Schepflin, Baldwin, Tweedy & Co., but of C. Schepflin & Co. The former firm retired from business without any business complications.

—The Electric Arc Light Company, of New York, who is represented by Wm. C. Hubbard, of this city, as secretary, sustained a loss of $10,000 in the large fire which broke out in New York yesterday.

—A Daily Press representative was informed last evening that the Plainfield Street Railway Company have secured more than enough signatures and consents to lay their tracks on East Second street.

—The Plainfield club car looks as though a cyclone of warm weather had struck it. There are just enough patrons using it to keep the car running. A majority of the patrons are at the mountain or seashore.

—The attention of the Health Inspector is called to the carcass of a dead cat which has been allowed to lay in the sun in a West Front street dooryard for several days past. The stench arising therefrom is stifling.

—At John Logan's Bay Cliff Park, Tottenville, S. I., yesterday a first-class old-fashioned Rhode Island clambake was given under the direction of Captain Jack Hawkins. Politicians from New York and New Jersey were present —At the last regular meeting of the Game and Fish Protective Society, which was called for the secretary's office a few evenings since, there was not a quorum present, so another meeting is to be called by the secretary early next week.

E. R. POPE'S FUNERAL.

Obsequies of Plainfield's Late Prominent Citizen Tomorrow Afternoon.

The funeral of the late E. R. Pope will be held tomorrow afternoon from his late residence at the corner of Park avenue and Fifth street, at five o'clock. The casket will be opened from 2 to 3:30 o'clock for friends to view the remains. The interment will be private. Dr. A. H. Lewis will preach the funeral sermon, and the attendance will probably be the largest ever witnessed at any funeral held in this city.

Death of an Estimable Woman.

At her home on Plainfield avenue, at 4:30 o'clock this morning, occurred the death of Mrs. Bridget Elizabeth Quaas, widow of the late Herman Quaas. Last evening she was able to go out on the porch and enjoy the invigorating breezes, but during the night she was taken suddenly ill and expired. She was in the seventy-fifth year of her age and leaves four sons, John, Joseph, Edward and Moses. Mrs. Quaas was born in County Cavan, Ireland, and came directly to Plainfield some fifty years ago. Excepting one year, when she was in Harlem, the balance of her life had been spent here. Funeral services will be held from the house on Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock and from St. Mary's church, with high mass, at 9. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Well-Known Man Dead.

E. D. Moffett went to North Branch today to attend the funeral of his uncle, ex-Judge A. V. D. B. Vosseller, father of ex-County Clerk James S. Vosseller, deceased. Judge Vosseller was also County Clerk of Somerset county.

Mrs. E. D. Moffett, of Orchard Place, will return home tomorrow after spending a couple of weeks with relatives and friends in Jersey City and Paterson.

AN ORDINANCE.

An ordinance for the vacation of that part of Warren street, which lies between Manning avenue and Chatham street.

Whereas, application in writing describing the nature, kind and extent of the work and improvement desired, signed by the owners of at least one-quarter of the lineal feet of land fronting on the street proposed to be vacated, has been presented to the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield, asking for the vacation of all that portion of Warren street, in said borough which lies between Manning avenue and Chatham street and hereinafter particularly described;

And whereas, the Mayor and Council upon receiving said application, did cause the Borough Clerk to give notice of the intention of the Mayor and Council to vacate said portion of said street, and requiring such persons as might object thereto to present their objections in writing to said Clerk on or before a certain day therein named, not less than ten days after the date of such notice, which said notice was duly published and posted according to law, and no objections have been filed by any person or persons;

And whereas, the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield have judged and do hereby judge that the public good requires that Warren street between the points named in the title to this ordinance be vacated:

Therefore the Mayor and Council of the borough of North Plainfield do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. That all that portion of the certain public street of the borough of North Plainfield known, named and designated as Warren street, beginning in the southeasterly side line of Manning avenue as now laid out and opened where the same is intersected by the center line of Warren street as now laid out and opened, and thence extending southeasterly along said center line of Warren street and for the full width of said Warren street as now laid out and opened on either side of said center line, and along the side lines of said Warren street, through and along the lands of George F. White, Thomas Rutledge and Lewis Bird, fronting on the northeasterly side of said Warren street, and the lands of George F. White, John H. McVey, Andrew Lutkins, Estate of Israel Coon, deceased, viz., David Coon, Anna Boice, Mary E. Shreve, Margaret A. C. Randolph, Anna Nicholas and Sardinia Miles, and of Henry H. Lowrie, fronting on the southwesterly side of said Warren street, to the northwesterly side line of Chatham street as now laid out and opened where the same is intersected by the center line and side lines of Warren street, a total distance along said center line of Warren street of five hundred and thirty feet, be the same more or less, be and the same is hereby vacated and all rights and easements of the public in or to the lands occupied by said portion of Warren street surrendered.

Sec. 2. That this ordinance shall take effect on the 22nd day of August, 1896.

Approved August 7th, 1896.

H. B. LOUNSBURY, President, Acting Mayor.
JAS. K. ARNOLD, Borough Clerk.

The Ocean Graveyard.

BY DAVID WECHSLER.

[COPYRIGHTED.]

next morning and looked out over the the bay Wanderer was gone.

On the 27th of September we commenced our remarkable voyage. I felt somewhat depressed, I don't know why, at leaving home on that occasion. There was something attractive in the idea of solving this great Atlantic mystery, which, if it really existed, must have caused untold disasters. Still, I was not altogether carried away by Capt. George's views, and entertained considerable doubt as to our success.

We steered west-sou'-west for several days. We sighted some of the big Atlantic liners in the distance. One evening a huge Cunarder passed within a mile or so of us, lights all aglow, her funnels belching out columns of smoke that trailed away far behind.

"Making a rush with the mails," Capt. George remarked as we watched her.

Next day it was blowing rather fresh, and we had a choppy sea. It struck me as strange that, up to the present, Capt. George had made no direct reference to the object of our voyage. That morning, however, after breakfast, he said to me:

"We must take our bearings at noon, Lawrenceson, or we may overshoot the mark."

We did so, and when we had picked out our position on the chart, the course was altered to sou'-sou'-west. This brought us more out of the track of Atlantic steamers, though we still sighted a number of sailing ships. I noticed that Capt. George kept a close eye on the chart during the next few days.

One morning, when he had made the usual daily reckoning, he came down into the saloon with a paper in his hand, upon which was marked the latitude and longitude.

"Get your diving gear ready, Lawrenceson," he said. "You'll want it before long."

"Is the rock in sight?"

"No, nor likely to be. Probably it is submerged, as I believe is generally the case, though at what depth is another question. All the same, we are not far off it."

That evening the engines were slowed down. Capt. George stood on the bridge, and for upwards of an hour he took entire charge of the vessel, altering the course from time to time. Then he gave the signal to stop.

The men in the bows were ready with the anchor, and presently I heard it splash into the water. We were provided with a special deep-sea cable, but I was rather surprised to find the depth was not so great as I had fancied. Capt. George descended from the bridge, and joined me.

"To-morrow morning we will get the long-boat out, if the weather holds fine," he said. "You will have to proceed more to the south, before you make your first descent."

I confess I did not sleep much that night. My mind was too full of the mystery of this ocean rock. Was the story true? Did the terrible spot really lie within reach of us? If so, what an appalling sight would meet my view when I stood beneath it, and gazed around at the havoc it had wrought! I felt I might be on the verge of some startling discovery.

I lay awake until long after midnight. Then I determined to get up and go on deck. As I passed Capt. George's cabin I could tell by his heavy breathing that he was sleeping soundly. I moved on, and stepped out into the cool night air.

How well I can recall the scene from the Wanderer's deck at that silent hour! The moon was on the wane; she was wading slowly through a mass of dark clouds emerging occasionally to flood the ocean with her silver light. Not a sound was to be heard, save the melancholy moan of the sea or the splash of the water against the yacht's side.

In the morning I felt more like myself; perhaps I was too busy with my preparations to think much of anything else. Following Capt. George's directions, we rowed away to the south, and when we got about half a mile from the yacht I went down.

On reaching the bottom I stood for a minute or two looking around me. Which direction should I take? I struck out to the right and made a wide circle, but there was nothing unusual to be seen. The bed was hard, rising and dipping here and there, with loose rock lying about, and hardly any weeds. I paused again. I tried to remember in what direction the yacht lay, and moved, as I thought, away from her. I walked on and on, until it was time to ascend, and on getting to the surface I found I had wandered east of the vessel.

"Try further south this afternoon," said Capt. George, when I made my report. "By the way, what did those loose rocks look like?"

"Most of them were rough and ragged," I replied. "In some places they were thrown together in heaps, and in others only two or three were to be seen."

"Ah, I thought so! Don't despair, Lawrenceson, you're not far from the mark."

At three o'clock I made a second descent, a good deal further to the south. Soon after I touched the bottom, I found something that aroused my interest. It was an iron stanchion, evidently torn from a vessel which must have foundered close at hand. I went on, and then stood still.

What was it made me pause? I scarcely knew at first, but I had a sort of instinctive feeling that I was near some unseen danger. I moved on very cautiously, and halted a second time. With a strange sense of awe stealing over me, I became aware of a singular circumstance for which I could not account. There was a slight but peculiar tremor in the water around me, much like the vibration in the air after a distant peal of thunder. Once or twice, too, I fancied I felt a faint heaving in the ground under my feet.

It was some little time before I could bring myself to proceed. I walked first ahead, then to the left, then to the right, and back again towards the point from which I had started. I made no further discovery. Sometimes the tremulous motion in the water seemed to grow more distinct; frequently it died away until it was hardly perceptible. I was puzzled. I thought it better to go up, and see whether Capt. George could give any explanation of this singular occurrence.

"You were within reach of the rock," he said, when he had heard what I had to tell. "The next time you go down try and ascertain from what point that tremor proceeds. Follow in this direction; it will lead to your goal."

The next morning I set out again. I was now thoroughly bent upon pushing on with the search, no matter what risks might lie in the way. I had placed a buoy over the spot where I had descended the previous day, and told the men to keep rowing slowly to the south while I was under water, for that was the direction I was determined to take.

I still noticed that strange tremor I have described, but I soon grew accustomed to it, and walked boldly ahead. As I proceeded the disturbance increased; the ground seemed to sway under me; it was as if waves of motion were passing beneath my feet. Once or twice I felt half inclined to turn back; I was just a little bit—well, I remembered I had a wife and family depending upon me, and it looked like tempting Providence to proceed further. But I set my teeth hard and pressed on.

Presently, the ground began to shelve downwards. The commotion around me was now so great that at times I had some difficulty in keeping my feet. I was nearing the awful spot, then! I grew reckless. I cast aside every fear. If I succeeded in locating this rock, what an inestimable service I would render to mankind.

As I descended into a kind of hollow, I became aware of something like a dark wall rising before me. At first I thought it was the rock; but no; it was long, low, and regular in outline. I approached it; then I gave a sort of gasp inside my helmet. Good heavens! It was a ship!

A big steamer, too! What a sight she presented as she lay there on her side, rising and falling with the undulating motion of the ground! Her masts and funnels were gone, her decks torn up, and her bows battered in, almost down to the foremast. Around her, the place was littered with wreckage, cargo of every description, and the bones of her gallant crew. What was her name? I groped my way to the stern, held up my lamp, and read: "Ontario, Liverpool."

Scarcely had I left her, and moved further along the hollow, than another hull appeared in sight. A sailing ship this time! After that, almost every step I took brought me in view of a sunken vessel. They lay scattered around in all directions, and in all positions; some mere shells, others just beginning to break up, and a few which showed they had been afloat within the last year or two. The battered bows of each told the same terrible story. Ships of every size—and of almost every nation, I suppose—were huddled together in this awful valley of death. Here stood the remains of an old three-decker, and by her side lay the skeleton of a small vessel, not much bigger than a the attempt, and found it afforded me great assistance in the climb.

Steadying myself with the bar, and taking advantage of every piece of projecting rock which might aid my ascent, I crept up the steep slope. On I went, panting, and half stifled, not daring to pause lest I should be swept away by the strong current which seemed to beat down upon me from above. At last I reached a sort of narrow platform, and stood there, with my bar thrust into a crevice. I looked up. Above me rose a great, towering, irregular mass of solid rock!

I scarcely remember how I got back to the boat, for I was feeling terribly exhausted, and my head was dizzy. When I reached the deck of the yacht, it was only to drop into the nearest seat. I must have looked scared and white, for Capt. George hurried to my side.

"Whatever is the matter, Lawrenceson?" he said. "You look as if you had just escaped from the jaws of some sea monster."

"I have escaped from the jaws of death itself!" I replied.

"You found the rock?"

"I did."

He turned hastily, and gave an order to one of his men, who darted away towards the saloon. Presently the man came running up with a glass and a bottle of brandy.

"Here, swallow off this," said Capt. George, handing me a pretty stiff dram. "I can well imagine the sight was enough to give any man a bit of a shock."

After dinner he made me go through the whole story of my adventure that morning. He listened attentively, never interrupting me once.

"Just as I thought," he said, when I had finished.

He rose from his seat, and walked up and down in silence, as if pondering deeply over what he had just heard.

"Do you know, Lawrenceson," he said, suddenly halting before me, "I would like to go down and have a look at the place myself."

"Don't do it, Capt. George," I replied, hastily.

"Why not? It is not often a man gets a chance of witnessing a sight like that. The risk, if there is any, does not deter me; I shall ask for the loan of your diving dress this afternoon, and make the attempt."

I knew he was not the sort of man to be lightly turned from his purpose, so I had to give in. I told him he would have little difficulty in finding the spot, as the boatmen had stationed a buoy over it. I did not accompany him, for I was feeling a bit out of sorts, and laid down on a couch in the saloon. I was soon fast asleep.

An hour or two later I was aroused by a step on the cabin stairs. I looked up, and saw Capt. George entering the saloon. He went straight into his own cabin, without even glancing in my direction.

When he had changed the diving dress for his ordinary yachting suit, he came out into the saloon, and sat down.

"Well, Capt. George, what did you think of it?" I asked.

"It might well be called 'The Graveyard of the Ocean,'" he replied, solemnly.

There was silence for a minute or two; then he said:

"That three-decker must be the old Redoubtable, I fancy. She left Bermuda in the autumn of '63, and has long been returned as 'missing' at the admiralty."

After another pause I ventured to say:

"Now that we have found the rock, what's to be done next?"

"Blow it up," he answered, gravely.

I looked at him in amazement.

"I have brought out a quantity of tonite for this very purpose," he went on. "It is a rather powerful explosive, four times the strength of ordinary blasting powder, and equal to No. 1 dynamite. As the rock appears to be fissured, it will save us the trouble of boring. The cartridges must be encased in waterproof packing or india-rubber bags. When you have laid the charges, we can retire to a distance, and explode them by means of an electric cable and battery. If we even succeed in splitting the rock, it would answer our purpose."

I entered heartily into the scheme, for my whole thoughts were bent upon getting rid of the danger. Though I might have to encounter some risk in placing the charges, it was a small matter compared to the advantages that would follow if we were successful. For several days I was busily engaged in inserting the powerful cartridges, and, as I had some experience of this kind of work, I laid the charges so as to give the explosion the greatest effect possible.

At last the work was completed, the cable laid, and all in readiness for the final moment. It was a bright, sunny afternoon, I remember, not much like the general run of October days. I looked around the wide expanse of ocean. Not a sail was in sight.

The Wanderer had weighed anchor that morning, and had full steam up, ready to depart for home. Capt. George stood on deck, with the battery before him. He was about to attach the ends of the cable.

"Now," he said, when it was done, "prepare to see the last of this mysterious rock!"

I kept my eyes on the spot where the buoy still marked the position of the rock. Suddenly a column of water rose into the air, and we heard a dull report as of distant thunder. But we were little prepared for the full result. Almost instantly with the first report—so quickly, in fact, as to appear part of it—came the roar of a mighty detonation that shook the yacht from stem to stern. A vast body of water was flung to a height of several hundred feet, and carried with it huge masses of rock, some of which fell thirty or forty yards away. It was a grand, but an appalling sight! Never before had I witnessed such a mighty upheaval. The foundations of the sea seemed to have been torn up.

The commotion on the surrounding surface was so great that the Wanderer was lifted on an immense ridge of water, and carried away at such tremendous speed we had to hold on to the woodwork to keep ourselves from being dashed across the deck. When all was still again Capt. George turned to me, and said:

"We didn't count on the pent-up forces which lay beneath that rock. The explosion of the tonite must have given them vent, and they finished the work more completely than we ever could have done. I expect there is little left either of the rock itself or the vessels that lay around it. Well," he continued, gazing back towards the spot from which the Wanderer was fast gliding away under full steam, "I owe little to mankind, and, as yet, mankind has owed little to me. From henceforth, however, those who traverse this sea in future, will, without knowing it, be debtors to me for their safety."

[THE END.]

A QUESTION OF HEREDITY.

Papa and Mamma Both Claimed the Sweet Disposition.

There was plainly trouble in the Dovey menage.

Mr. Dovey's morning chops lay undisturbed upon his plate as he nervously skimmed over the headlines of his newspaper, while Mrs. Dovey took gulping sips of coffee and stared fixedly, with red, swollen eyes at the sugar-bowl. The silence that momentarily reigned was like that electric oppressiveness in the air just before a thunderstorm.

"Pshaw!" at length exclaimed Mr. Dovey, throwing his journal on the floor, "the papers never print anything in the way of news now." And he looked across the table at Mrs. Dovey in anticipation of some sort of contradiction.

But the woman vouchsafed no reply beyond talking another gulp of coffee and shifting her gaze from the sugar to the cruet-stand. Mr. Dovey got up, upsetting his chair as he did so.

"I suppose," he said, sarcastically, as he savagely bit off the end of a cigar and ruined it, "I suppose, now that you have succeeded in spoiling my whole day, you are supremely happy?"

"Happy!" echoed the young wife, with a bitter laugh. "No. I am supremely disgusted. That is all."

"Oh, indeed," sneered Mr. Dovey, as he put on his overcoat, "if I disgusted you, I wonder you ever made up your mind to marry me."

"I didn't," was the quick rejoinder. "I could not have had any mind. I must have done it in a moment of emotional insanity."

The hand came off Mr. Dovey's umbrella in his hand and he threw the umbrella under the sofa, much to the terror of the pug dog, who had sought refuge there at the beginning of the storm.

"I don't think," he said, through his teeth, as he buttoned each button of his coat into a wrong button hole, "that I can plead insanity in having married you. It was something else."

"Idiocy, I suppose," suggested Mrs. Dovey in a faint voice, evidently preparing for another outburst of tears.

"No," returned the husband, as he turned to go, "not idiocy. Charity!"

"Brute!" came the reply in a scream. And Mrs. Dovey sank onto a lounge, bursting into a torrent of tears. Mr. Dovey picked up the chair he had upset and then threw it across the room. Then he kicked the pug, who had emerged from his place of concealment in favor of the umbrella, into the coal scuttle; shut the door with a bang that knocked down several pictures and left the house.

"Now, what on earth is the matter?" asked Mrs. Dovey's bosom friend, Marie, just then entering the room. "I met Mr. Dovey in the hall, and when I smiled at him he scowled like a disappointed officeseeker."

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" sobbed Mrs. Dovey on her friend's shoulder. "I have been through a dreadful scene. We have had an awful quarrel, and—and—and I think I am the unhappiest woman in the world."

"There now, don't cry," said Marie, sympathetically, "but tell me what it is all about."

"Oh, he was so cold—and so cruel—and so abusive—and so violent. And he said such perfectly terrible things—and he called me such fearful names."—Mrs. Dovey managed to get out, between her sobs—"that I don't think I ever care to see him again."

"And did you let him say all those things to you without making any reply?" queried her friend, indignantly.

"No," replied the young matron, a faint gleam of satisfaction struggling through her tears; "I think I managed to hold my own."

"But what was it all about?" asked Marie.

"Oh, we got into a dispute, and at last (with a fresh sob) he told me that he only married me out of charity! As though there were no other man on

"But," persisted Mrs. Dovey's friend, "you have not told me what it was all about?"

"Why, yes I have. We got into a dispute, and then we raved and stormed at each other in a terrible way."

"But, my dear," repeated Marie, despairingly, "what was the argument about? What did you dispute about? You haven't told me that."

"Haven't I?" asked the little matron, wrinkling her brow. "Why, no; I don't believe I have. Well, I'll tell you. We got into a dispute as to which one of us it was that the baby inherited its sweet and lovable disposition from."—N. Y. Herald.

A Young Philosopher.

He is only six, and he has been quoted in print before. His humor is natural and unconscious, and in addition he has a faculty of reasoning by analogy that would be valuable to many an adult head. His little sister was visiting a neighbor girl, and his mamma requested him to go and escort her home. "Mamma," he replied, "when we were in the country last summer Mrs. Myers asked Mr. Myers to go and get the cows. Mr. Myers said: 'You go and get them yourself,'" and the little philosopher considered the subject beyond further debate.—N. Y. Advertiser.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

CAPT. GEO. W. EVANS DEAD.

The Distinguished Officer Passes Away at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Aug. 12.—Capt. George W. Evans, a retired officer of the United States army, died at the City hospital yesterday of a paralytic stroke which he received at Annapolis a month ago. He has been an invalid several years, owing to an affection which caused the bones of his body to soften so that they frequently broke and incapacitated him for active service. Capt. Evans was born in Baltimore fifty-five years ago. He began his career in the armed service of Uncle Sam before he was twenty years old. He enrolled as a volunteer September 23, 1861, and six days after he was twenty years old, on December 23, 1861, he was mustered in as captain of the First Maryland infantry, Eastern shore volunteers. During the civil war he served for a time in the Eighth Army corps, was in the battle of Gettysburg and served under Gen. Lew Wallace against Gen. Early at Monocacy Bridge, Md., besides filling other assignments and detached duty. Capt. Evans was mustered out of the volunteer service Dec. 23, 1864, but was appointed to the regular army as second lieutenant of the Thirty-second infantry, Jan. 22, 1867. He was brevetted first lieutenant and captain, to date from March 1, 1867, for gallant and meritorious service during the war. He had extensive service in the Indian campaigns in Arizona. On account of his thorough knowledge of military law, which he gained by study and experience, he served a long time as judge-advocate of the general court martial. His tactical knowledge made him a desirable instructor at military institutions and led to his detail to the North Carolina military institute at Charlotte.

LI HUNG'S FINANCIAL HINT.

Bank of England Might Settle the Bimetallic Problem.

London, Aug. 12.—Li Hung Chang yesterday visited the Bank of England and remained there about an hour. The length of his stay was the probable cause of the circulation of a rumor that he was negotiating with the bank for a loan. It is known, however, that in discussing the silver question with the officials of the Bank of England he suggested that the institution might take the initiative in settling the bimetallic problem.

Entertained by Chamber of Commerce.

A reception and banquet were given by the London chamber of commerce last night in honor of Li Hung Chang, who appeared in the picturesque garb of his native rank, including the famed yellow jacket and peacock feather. He wore in addition the decoration of the newly instituted Victorian order that has been conferred upon him by the queen. Li Hung Chang made a speech, which was interpreted to his hearers. In the course of his remarks he declared that as long as he lived he would advocate progress, industry and commerce in his native land, and that he would specially urge that the remotest corner of China be made accessible by railroads.

Cheaper Beer in Mexico.

Washington, Aug. 12.—United States Consul Burke, at Chihuahua, Mexico, reports to the state department the establishment of a great brewery there which reduces the price of beer from 25 cents a glass to 10 cents throughout a large section of the border heretofore supplied from St. Louis.

Oregon Gold Convention.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 11.—The gold standard democrats have issued a call for a convention to be held in this city August 22 for the purpose of electing eight delegates to the national convention to be held in Indianapolis.

Appointed Supreme Court Justice.

Albany, Aug. 11.—Hon. William W. Goodrich of Brooklyn has been appointed by Gov. Morton as a justice of the supreme court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Calvin E. Pratt.

Another Grandson for Gen. Harrison.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 12.—A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Russell B. Harrison yesterday. He will be named William Henry Harrison.

TREASURY OUTLOOK

Improvement Not What Was Reasonably Hoped For.

OVER $10,000,000 DEFICIT THIS MONTH

A Decrease of $3,670,000 in the Gold Reserve Since the 4th Inst.—The Situation, It Is Expected, Will Improve Before Sept. 1.

Washington, Aug. 12.—With one-third of August passed, the treasury situation does not show that improvement that was reasonably hoped for. The receipts foot up $9,360,000, and the expenditure $16,655,000, leaving a deficit so far of $10,295,000. It is probable that this deficit will be lessened somewhat before the end of August. Gold reserve at the opening of business to-day stood at $107,104,261—a decrease since Aug. 4, when the reserve reached its recent maximum of $3,670,000. Then the reserve stood at $110,782,000, built up from $89,669,000 on July 23, its lowest recent period, by national banks contributing $26,300,000. Since July 23 the legal tender notes held by the treasury, which were paid out for the gold paid in, and which are redeemable in gold on demand, have decreased from $87,890,000 to $63,250,000. Since July 1 the treasury has redeemed in gold $21,000,000 of legal tender notes presented for redemption.

NEW YORK BANK FAILURE.

Murray Hill Institution's Assets Represented by Too Much Real Estate.

New York, Aug. 12.—The failure of the Murray Hill bank, a state institution, yesterday, will, it is feared, seriously harm a number of business firms in the neighborhood who were depositors, although the superintendent of banking, Mr. Kilburn, believes the bank will be able in time to settle in full with all depositors. In a statement he said: "I have closed the Murray Hill bank because I thought it in an unsafe condition. I have taken this action after consulting with the members of the clearing house committee and the board of directors. The trouble with the bank, so far as I have been able to ascertain, is that it has not sufficient money with which to do business and no way of raising it. A great many of the assets are represented by real estate and other securities which cannot be realized upon without great sacrifice at present. The bank, under the presidency of Mr. Hopkins, has been, in my opinion, conservatively managed, but the fact that it has accumulated such a large amount of unavailable assets has placed it in a position, as above stated, where it has not and cannot get sufficient ready money to continue business." President Hopkins said that he had no doubt that the "silver scare" was responsible for the state of affairs that had brought about the closing of the bank. Several of the heavy depositors, he said, had drawn their money for the purpose of investing it in gold. One man took $40,000 from the bank and had it changed into gold.

THE LOUISIANA LYNCHINGS.

The Italian Government Urged to Take Action.

Rome, Aug. 12.—The Popolo Romano, recalling the lynching of Italians at New Orlean in 1891 and referring to the lynching in that city of three Italians on Sunday last, urges the Italian government to call the attention of the European powers to the strange position of foreigners in America and to promote the collective action of the powers. The Don Chisciotte says that a repetition of the horrible events obliges the Italian government to demand satisfaction, in order to prevent the authorities of other countries from tolerating attacks upon Italians."

The Cretan Trouble.

London, Aug. 12.—The Daily News to-day publishes a dispatch from Athens saying that there are now about 9,000 Cretans at the port of Athens, whither they have fled to escape the fury of the Turks. These people are fed by the government, which also finds quarters for them. Arrangements are being made to distribute them among the provincial towns. The dispatch adds that six more villages in the vicinity of Candia, the principal town of Crete, are reported to have been sacked and burned by the Turks.

Death of an Old Telegraph Operator.

New York, Aug. 12.—Waldo H. Collins, an old-time telegrapher, of late years in the employ of the Gold and Stock Telegraph company, died last evening at his residence in Brooklyn, after an illness of three weeks. He was well known throughout the United States as an expert telegraph operator. He was 60 years of age, and for many years resided at Calais, Me.

The Rebellious Matabeles.

London, Aug. 12.—A dispatch to the Times from Cape Town says that a proclamation has been issued which extends the time of grace for the surrender of the Matabele rebels to September 22.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Jay Eaton rode a great mile out west the other evening, creating a new unpaced indoor record. He covered the distance in 2:07.

Walter B. Rittenhouse, of East Sixth street, and Charles B. Morse, of The Daily Press staff, returned yesterday morning from their bicycle tour through New York State.

H. E. Rider, the well known sporting goods dealer of North avenue, has a complete stock of all kinds of articles for sportsmen, and a superior line of wheels. The prices are just right to suit.

The Evening Telegram, of New York, is arranging for a big century run to Patchogue and return on Saturday, August 29th. F. L. C. Martin, of this city, has been invited to be one of the pacemakers.

Herbert Randolph, Scott Terry and William Schaeffer rode down to Asbury Park last Saturday, spent Sunday, and returned Monday by train. In riding down, Randolph had his coat stolen and Terry had his tire badly cut.

Two cyclists from this city, both young men, had an exciting experience while touring up the Mohawk Valley this summer. They had expected to find the tow path of the Erie canal a paradise for wheelmen but were sadly disappointed. They were bumping along up the tow path, for it was very much like riding over cobble stones, when they encountered two canal boats. That was not anything unusual to find on a canal but the expression of the two drivers of the mules on the tow path looked vicious. They drove the mules clear to the left forcing the riders between the canal and the tow line. Then they eased up on the lines and the young man started to ride across. Whack! whack! went the clubs of the drivers on the backs of their mules. The tow lines suddenly tightened and over went both riders. One was shot out into the canal and the other slid along on the side of his face. They had just time to rise when the second tow line came along and repeated the operation, only neither took a plunge this time. Then the canal boats floated by, the boatmen hooted at the dripping cyclist as he mounted his wheel, which had luckely escaped a ducking, and bumped along for seven weary miles to the next town.

Eugene O'Reilly, of East Second street, can be found today at Perth Amboy with a rod in his hand. He expects to bring back a majority of the fish in the water.

Verdict for the Plaintiff.

The contract case of Burke against McIntyre, which was tried before Justice Newcorn and a jury of twelve men yesterday, was decided in favor of the plaintiff. The case was one in which Burke claimed $75 for grading work for Mrs. McIntyre around her property on New street. Lawyer Hetfield represented Burke, and Lawyer Meehan, of Somerville, represented Mrs. McIntyre. The following were the jurors: W. O. Baldwin, C. M. Fine, Abram Angleman, J. B. Martin, G. H. Bellis, W. G. Gray, Charles Bock, I. S. Lance, Charles Wyckoff, Frank Frazee, George Firstbrook and George H. Rockafellow. The jury was not out very long when they returned with a verdict of $15 for the plaintiff.

HUGE TROLLEY PARTY.

The Street Railway Company Filled With Enterprise.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company have decided to introduce a new pleasure scheme for the benefit of the people, and it will certainly add life to the town. The plan is to give a huge trolley party to the public. They have hired the Plainfield Cornet Band who will occupy one car, and while making a trip over the lines will discourse sweet music. Other cars will follow, and anyone can take the trip for the regular fare. The route will be from the North Avenue station to Netherwood, then to Dunellen, then back through Fourth street to Seventh street and Monroe avenue, and from there to the end of the Somerset street line and back to the North Avenue station. The party will be given on Friday evening, and the start will be made at 8 o'clock. If the affair proves a success they will be given every Friday evening during the summer.

Can Carry No More Packages.

A new order has just been issued by the Central Railroad company, and goes into effect today. There has been a common practice among baggagemen on passenger trains of carrying letters and small packages for friends, who would re-imburse the employe by giving him a cigar or twenty-five cents for his trouble. As usual, with all such customs, there has been an abuse of the privilege, notwithstanding the fact that it is in direct violation of the rules. This new order issued provides that if an employe of the road is detected carrying anything in the above mentioned manner he will be fined $50, and make himself liable to suspension.

Overcome By the Heat.

Morris Fitzgerald, a brother-in-law of Frank Linke, of West Front street, was overcome by the heat while on the way to his home, at the corner of Third and Liberty streets, a little before noon yesterday. He staggered on the stairway and fell from sheer exhaustion. The unconscious man was carried to his room and Drs. Davis and Hedges were hastily summoned. The unfortunate man remained in an unconscious state for several hours, but after proper restoratives had been adminstered, the patient showed marked signs of improvement. Today he is reported out of danger, but he is yet very weak.

Accused Of Beating A Lad.

A resident of West Fourth street promises to furnish some excitement at the city court room Saturday morning when he will be tried on the charge of beating a lad named Clickner and disturbing the peace of West Fourth street. The above mentioned individual is Thomas Marley and he was arrested this morning by Patrolman McCue on complaint of Mrs. Elizabeth Clickner, mother of the abused boy. He was brought before City Judge DeMeza and his trial set down for Saturday morning.

—Up to hour of going to press the body of the late Thomas McFadden had not arrived in Plainfield, where he is to be buried. The delay, it is said, is due to the fact that the coroners in New York city are so busy that a permit to remove the body has not yet been secured.

—The foremen and representatives of the various companies of the fire department met with Chief Doane in his office in the City Hall building last evening, and talked over the proposed Exempt Firemen's parade to be held in this city next month. They were all heartily in accord with the Chief, but it was thought advisable to submit the matter to the companies before any final action was taken.

Mrs. Emily Leibe, aged 55 years, wife of Bertrand Leibe, died at her home near Dunellen yesterday from the effects of heat and over-exertion. The funeral will take place from the house Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

It doesn't matter much whether sick headache, billiousness, indigestion and constipation are caused by neglect or by unavoidable circumstances; DeWitt's Little Early Risers will speedily cure them all. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

No "Flim Flam" Game

To Be Worked on Early Purchasers of

The Spalding Bicycle

After the adoption of our 1896 model and a careful estimate of the cost of manufacture, we placed the price on the Spalding Bicycle at $100. The price is now $100 and will continu at $100 throughout the season, no matter what other manufacturers may do.

We don't believe it is fair, honest or good business policy to sell a standard article like the Spalding Bicycle at one price in May and reduce its value in June by a material reduction in price. As a matter of common fairness to early purchasers of Spalding Bicycles and as an evidence of good faith on our part we will, in case of reduction in price during the season, send a rebate check to every purchaser of a Spalding Bicycle of the amount of any such reduction that may be made by us during the season. This is our meaning of a

DYSPEPSIA PROOF.

One American Race That Knows Nothing of the Modern Curse.

Much is said about American dyspepsia, but there is one native race of America that is certainly not greatly troubled by the modern curse. The sturdy little Eskimos defy all the laws of hygiene and thrive. The Eskimo, like the ordinary dweller in America, eats until he is satisfied, but there is this difference, that he is never satisfied while a shred of his feast remains unconsumed. His capacity is limited by the supply, and by that only.

He cannot make any mistake, says the Youth's Companion, about the manner of cooking his food—for as a rule he does not cook it—nor, so far as the blubber or fat of the arctic animal is concerned, about his method of eating it, for he simply does not eat it, he cuts it into long strips an inch wide and an inch thick, and then lowers the strips down his throat as one might lower a rope into a well.

And after all that he does not suffer from indigestion. He can make a good meal off the flesh and skin of the walrus, provision so hard and gritty that in cutting up the animal the knife must be continually sharpened.

The teeth of the little Eskimo child will meet in a bit of walrus skin as the teeth of an American child would meet in the flesh of an apple. And that when the hide of the walrus is from half an inch to an inch and a half in thickness, and bears considerable resemblance to the skin of an elephant. The Eskimo child will bite it and digest it, too, and never know what dyspepsia means.

CAR JUMPED THE TRACK

FINALLY STOPPED AFTER DEMOLISHING AN ELECTRIC LIGHT POLE.

The Cause of the Accident Was Several Small Stones That Some Small Boys Had Placed on the Track.

The first serious accident on the street railway happened this morning near the corner of LaGrande avenue and Richmond street. Car No. 9, in charge of Motorman Walter Smalley and Conductor Swackhamer, was speeding along toward Netherwood at the average speed, and had just left the curve between LaGrande and Putnam avenues, when the car jumped the track. Before the motorman could reverse the current the car had ascended an embankment, striking an electric light wire pole with full force. The pole was broken off and left hanging in the air by the wires, while the fender and fore part of the car roof was completely wrecked. The force with which the car jumped the track caused it to sink deep into the ground. Motorman Smalley bravely stood at his post and as a result received a slight injury to the left arm.

There were seven passengers in the car, but none were injured, which was exceedingly fortunate. Employes of the road were at once sent to the scene of the accident and worked steadily for several hours before the car was replaced on the track, and it will be repaired and placed in service as quickly as possible.

The cause of the car jumping the track is attributed to the placing of stones on the rails by some boys, and a woman living near by states that she saw the boys obstructing the track with stones.

Car No. 7 of the street railway jumped the track at the Clinton avenue switch this morning, but no damage resulted. Car No. 6 was used to replace the derailed car.

Other Effects of the Heat.

The present hot wave has not only seriously affected sweltering humanity, but it has had a telling effect upon animals as well. A horse owned by Frank Mobus, who lives in the valley near Warrenville, and valued at $75, was taken with the colic on Tuesday, and a cow also owned by the same party was stricken with parturient apoplexy, but Veterinary Surgeon Herbert has brought them around all right again. A valuable work horse owned by Truckman L. B. Coddington, of this city, was also overcome by the heat while on the way home from Basking Ridge Monday, but the animal is now fairly on the way to recovery.

A valuable draught horse owned by Frank Rickert, the truckman, was overcome by the heat near Roselle, Tuesday morning, and dropped by the roadside. Dr. Herbert was sent for and after working on the horse for a few hours brought the animal around all right. When the owner reached home, however, he found that another one of his horses had died from the same cause.

AN AWFUL STENCH.

West Front Street Residents Compelled to Endure it for Two Days.

A horse belonging to Mr. VanFleet, of West Front street, died last Tuesday afternoon in the side yard of its owner. The cause of death was colic, brought on by the heat. The body of the animal was not removed until this morning and the stench has been very great. It was not the fault of the owner, however, that the body was not removed, as the man in New Brunswick who removes the bodies of dead animals did not appear until this morning, although notified at once.

One of the neighbors, who was almost driven out of his home by the stench, complained to the Board of Health this morning, but before any action could be taken the New Brunswick man appeared.

Death of a Well-Known Orange Resident.

Elias T. Day died at Orange Wednesday, Aug. 12th. He was well known to many friends in Plainfield, who honored him in his life and sympathize deeply with his family in their bereavement. He was a brother of Benjamin Day, of Rockview avenue, and the Misses Day, of Mercer avenue. He leaves a wife and five daughters, Mrs. Wm. Mitchell, of Orange; Miss Daisy Day, a graduate of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, and the Misses Amelia, Madeline and Bessie Day.

New Patients.

Rose Morron, a child nurse at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Penton, of Rockview avenue, was taken to the hospital yesterday for medical treatment.

LIFE AT CAMP LEVEE.

Visitors, "Weary Waggles" and Politics Made Life Exciting There.

"Camp Levee" is securing quite a reputation for itself and Washington Rock. Yesterday was "ladies' day" and the young men were kept busy doing the honors of the camp. The union Sunday-school picnic of Warren Township at the Rock yesterday brought many visitors to the camp, and the camp blotter last evening showed that they numbered over three hundred.

Miss Clara Long, of Park avenue, and Miss Lizzie Long, of Somerville, were the guests of the campers at dinner yesterday and were entertained in a most royal manner. The venders of soda water and the like at the picnic presented the camp with the ice they had left over, about three hundred pounds in all, and glaces have been at a discount there ever since.

There promished to be a little excitement at the camp early this morning when a "Kinght of the Road" appeared on the scene and started to make himself at home. He was just going to enjoy the boys' breakfast when a show of arms caused him to leave faster than he came. The chorus for today is from the "Bully Song."

"When I walk that levee round
I'm looking for "Weary Waggles" an'
he must be found."

A large sign now hangs at the entrance to the camp bearing the inscription "Billie Bryan will deliver a free silver oration from the Rock at 7 o'clock tonight to counteract the golden effects of the sunset."

A MID-SUMMER WEDDING.

Miss Katie Smith Becomes Mrs. Frank Sowden—Both of This City.

A pretty mid-summer night's wedding was witnessed last evening at 7 o'clock when Miss Katie Smith, daughter of Mrs. Emma A. Smith, of 408 West Third street, and Frank Sowden, of 216 West Second street, were united in marriage by Rev. C. R. Barnes, of the First M. E. church, at the home of the bride. Miss Martha Sowden and Edward Sowden, sister and brother of the groom were bridemaid and best man.

After the ceremony which was witnessed only by the relatives of the happy couple, a bountiful wedding supper was served. At the same time congratulations were offered to Mr. and Mrs. Sowden for a long and happy married life. There was an unusually large number of handsome and useful presents received, giving evidence of the high esteem in which the bride and groom are held.

Mr. and Mrs. Sowden will reside at the home of Mrs. Sowden's mother, 408 West Third street.

The Audience Did Not Materialize.

C. L. Woodruff, the editor and proprietor of several trades journals, with offices in the Scott & Bowne building, New York city, was in town last evening prepared to give an address before a colored audience in Central Hall on the subject: "Rapid Transit, or Things That Go." When the speaker arrived an hour late there were but two or three in the hall, so he took the first train for home, evidently disgusted with the reception thus accorded him. Mr. Woodruff said he put aside several important business engagements, simply to come out here and entertain an audience, and had he known that things were going to pan out the way they did he could not have been induced to come out here.

The Heat Was Too Great.

The festival for the benefit of a colored industrial school in the South, which opened in Central Hall last night, was not the success that was anticipated and desired. The intense heat, no doubt, was the cause of the slim attendance. The tables were heavily ladened with fruit, cake and candies, and some twenty big Maryland watermelons lay about promiscuously on the floor. But the audience came not, so the festivities, if such they could be called, terminated abruptly, the lights put out, and the hall locked up for the night.

A Victim of the Heat.

Fred Snyder, of Muhlenberg place, while mowing a lawn for John H. French, on West Third street, yesterday afternoon, was stricken down by the heat and rendered unconscious for a time. He was taken to his home in a carriage and medical aid was summoned.

It doesn't matter much whether sick headache, billiousness, indigestion and constipation are caused by neglect or by unavoidable circumstances; DeWitt's Little Early Risers will speedily cure them all. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

Poison Ivy, insect bites, bruises, scalds, burns, are quickly cured by DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, the great pile cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

EDUCATIONAL CHANCES

PLANS OF THE Y. M. C. A. FOR NEXT YEAR.

All the Old Classes Will Be Continued and Some New Ones Started—When They Will Meet and the Instructors.

Ever since the formation of the Young Men's Christian Association in this city a number of years ago, the young men of Plainfield have been offered large and more complete educational facilities every year through that department of the association. When the association took possession of their new building last year, a number of new branches were introduced and the old ones improved. There were many who recognized their values and took advantage of them. This coming year, a number of improvements have been made and the members of the association are given a wide scope from which to choose. The educational department is open to all $5 and $8 members, who deposit $1 for each class they enter. This deposit will be returned at the close if their attendance averages eighty per cent.

The opening exercises of this department will be held on the evening of Tuesday, October 13, at the close of which there will be a short conference between instructors and pupils.

On Monday and Thursday nights, the stenographic department will meet. It will be under the constant supervision of Joseph A. Robinson, who is well known in that work, and will consist of phonography, typewriting, and dictation.

The students in the mechanical department will probably meet on Tuesday and Saturday nights, the day is subject to change however. Here those that have taken the first year's course will contiue to advance in their work while the beginners will start a new class.

The business department will meet on a day to be decided upon later. This course includes book keeping, commercial arithmetic, and penmanship. This is under the charge of George E. Fuller and Max Moraller. The latter has been connected with this department as student or instructor since 1890, and is a graduate of Coleman's Business College. These two instructors will be in constant consultation with E. H. Bonnell, who has worked with this department for so long.

The German department will meet on Friday night and will consist of two or, if necessary, three classes. Rev. E. Kionki, the instructor, will largely adopt the conversational method.

The Spanish department, which was such a success last year, will be continued and beginners as well as those who have already taken up the subject will be given a change. J. Antonio Costales will continue to act as instructor. If a sufficient number wish it, a class in business correspondence will be formed or such classes as the demand may be for. In addition to the class work, there is personal instruction that will be of great value.

The class year extends to April 18.

WARM AT THE ROCK.

The Union Sunday-School Picnic Not as Large as Usual.

Washington Rock was an extremely warm place yesterday, especially where the union Sunday-school picnic of Warren township was held. The high temperature kept many away and the attendance was not as large as in previous years. Nevertheless over 1,000 people assembled and passed a pleasant day, despite the heat. Several interesting speakers were present but it was too warm to listen long, so the speeches were brief. The Plainfield Cornet Band turned out and rendered selections at intervals all day. There was an unusual proportion of Plainfield people present.

An Accident to the Veteran Expressman.

Augustus M. Frazee, of South avenue, well known as the original package expressman in this city, met with an accident this morning that came near being very serious. He was just getting out of Voehl's bakery wagon when the horse, which was greatly annoyed by flies, started forward and Mr. Frazee was thrown heavily to the ground. He was very badly bruised, but luckily escaped without any broken bones.

Another Star Course.

The Y. M. C. A. will give another star course of entertainments this year for the benefit of its members. There will be seven entertainments in all, and arrangements have about been completed for them.

—Edward Love, the North avenue wall paper dealer, has a very select line of goods for the fall trade. We recommend his papers for their fine quality and low prices.

THE DUNHAM REUNION.

THE SURVIVORS OF THAT FAMILY MEET AT THE OLD HOMESTEAD.

They Dined Together Under the Big Trees on the Lawn And Then Listened to Remarks by Different Speakers.

The reunion of the Dunham family was held at the old Dunham Homestead at Stelton yesterday. About one hundred of the decendants and friends were present. The day was fine and being the last day, according to weather prophets of the late unprecedented period of heat, it seemed to be on its good behavior. There was a refreshing breeze and under the shade of the large trees surrounding the old mansion tables were spread and all present partook of the tempting and bountiful supplies of good things provided.

After the dinner was served and a social chat enjoyed while the tables were being cleared, interesting remarks were made by Rev. F. E. Peterson, pastor of the Seventh-Day church, of New Market, Rev. Frank Fletcher, pastor of the First-Day Baptist church, of New Market, Editor L. E. Livermore, of Plainfield, and Joseph T. Dunham, of Plainfield.

Editor Livermore read a condensed history of the Dunham family written by one of this family who was present, also a beautiful parody on "The Old Oaken Bucket" that abounded in touching references to the "scenes of their childhood." This was also written for the occasion by one of the members of this famous family. There were present the four surviving sons of George W. and Phebe Vail Dunham, viz: William Dunham, of New Market, Henry V. Dunham, of New Market, George H. Duhham, of New York city and Charles E. Dunham, of Bound Brook.

Miss Dunham, daughter of George H. Dunham, of New York, sung two sweet songs, which added much to the pleasure of the occasion. Before the company dispersed it was resolved to hold another reunion at the same place next year, the date to be announced hereafter. Altogether the occasion was one of great pleasure and one long to be remembered. In the remarks and frequent references in social converse were made to those who have met on similar occasions at other times but have passed on to await the final and glorious reunion of all, both living and dead were not forgotten.

The following sketch of the Dunham family was printed in pamphlet form and distributed among those present at the reunion:

We meet today as one family at the old homestead. Years ago we left this old farm, one by one, to enter upon life's battles. Perphaps there are few families that take more pleasure in visiting their childhood home than we do, the children of George and Phebe Vail Dunham. Just how long this farm was owned by the Dunhams, the writer does not know. Four generations have lived here. George W. Dunham was born on this farm, also all of his children and six of his grandchildren. Benijah Dunham was the first of this family to take up a residence in the township of Piscataway. He was the son of John and Abigal Dunham, and was born in 1640, at Plymouth, New England. He married Elizabeth Tilson, and to them were born seven children. About 1672 or 1673, he with his family immigrated to this country, bought a farm of some one hundred acres or more in the township of Piscataway, and settled there with his family. He died on the 24th day of December, 1680, aged forty years. His eldest son, Edmond, was born July 25th, 1661. He is considered the father of the Seventh Day Baptist church of Piscataway. He was chosen their pastor the 8th day of September, 1705, and continued their leader until his death, March 7th, 1734, in the seventy-third year of his age.

Jonathan Dunham succeeded his father to the ministry He was ordained as pastor of this church in 1745, and continued to be their pastor until March 11th, 1777, when he died of smallpox, in the eighty-sixth year of his age. Squire David Dunham, son of Jonathan Dunham, was the father of thirteen children. He died March 23d, 1807. George W. Dunham, son of Squire David Dunham, was born December 19th, 1788. He married Phebe Vail, and brought her, a bride to this place in 1812. To them were born eleven children. He died June 22d, 1876, aged eighty-seven years, six months and three days. Phebe Vail Dunham died October 5th, 1881, aged eighty-nine years, six months and twenty-one days. The names of their children are as follows: David, Evaline, Elizabeth, James V., William V., Jane H., Daniel V., Henry

A MIDNIGHT ALARM.

The Use of a False Key Brings Out the Borough Fire Department.

This morning at 12:30, while the residents of the city and borough were struggling with General Humidity in an attempt to get some sleep, the sweet-toned borough fire bell sent forth its notes to the tune of Box 132, which is located at the corner of Manning and Westervelt avenues. The ever-ready firemen in the borough responded quickly and they presented an attractive appearance in their rubber boots, sweaters and fire hats. They came out to fight fierce flames, but they were disappointed for there was no fire.

It was learned at once that the fire box door was open and a false key had opened it.

As soon as the department officers arrived they learned the facts and at once began to wonder who used the key. One fireman remarked that it was not surprising that the alarm had been given when it is considered how careless owners of keys are. It will probably never be known who sent the alarm in but something should be done to put a stop to the practice.

CARPET FACTORY CLOSES.

Work Will Probably Not be Resumed Until Next January.

The Crescent Carpet works on South avenue, has "shut down" and the employes are now idle. The works closed last evening, and the present indications are that the machinery will not be run again this year.

The cause of the "shut down" is said to be due largely to the uncertainty in the political complications which are now tying up the country's finances, and until election shall have passed by, and manufacturers are settled in their minds as to which course to pursue, the carpet factory like many other concerns will be shelved for repairs.

HEFFERAN FORGOT HIMSELF.

And He Knocked Kane's Teeth Down His Throat.

Thomas Kane had the very unpleasant feeling of having his teeth knocked down his throat, at least so Patrolman Lunger claims. The man whom he charges with doing the deed is Michael Hefferan. The officer also charged him with being drunk and disorderly on Liberty street.

Hefferan was arranged before City Judge DeMeza this morning and admitted that he did play dentist in rather a violent manner. He also remembered that an over indulgence of liquor had made him forget himself. The Judge fined him $5 for his forgetfulness. Roundsman Mattox arrested him.

Does Not Like the Noise.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Observing people are surprised at the noise emanating from the electric cars because of their imperfect gearing. Now I think it would be well for the city authorities to tax the company enough so as to have extra policemen police the road and compel the company to fulfill their contract. The writer of this is in favor of the electric road providing the promoters of it live up to their contract. E. C. M.

Want a Drinking Fountain.

The hackmen and others at the depot are clemoring for a drinking fountain for horses near the North avenue station. They say that not only do their own horses become tired and thirsty when arriving there but many people driving in from the suburbs and mountain would be glad to find a suitable place to water their horses.

Getting Ready for the Opening.

Doctor Robert Hunter, the new proprietor of Hotel Netherwood, is getting things in admirable shape for the opening and reception of guests on September 15th next. Contractor M. Uhdal is now engaged in connecting the hotel with the city sewerage system. The contract price is $150.

Interred in North Plainfield.

The remains of the late Fred Naylor, who died in Elizabeth, were brought to this city today, and deposited in the family plot in the Presbyterian cemetery in North Plainfield. Short and impressive services were held at the grave.

Petit Jurors Drawn.

The petit jury for the September term of the Middlesex county court was drawn yesterday. Ellis Campbell was the only representative of Piscataway township to be drawn.

If you have ever seen a little child in the agony of summer complaint, you can realize the danger of the trouble and appreciate the value of instantaneons relief always afforded by DeWitt's Colic & Cholera Cure. For dysentery and diarrœa it is a reliable remedy. We could not afford to recommend this as a cure unless it were a cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

EUCHRE PARTY IN CAMP

THUS MR. AND MRS. W. L. SAUNDERS CELEBRATE THEIR WEDDING.

The Charming Affair Was Held at Point Breeze Camp, and Many Plainfielders Enjoyed It—Wonderful Wedding Cake

"Point Breeze Camp," which is located near Wolfeborough, N. H., was recently the scene of a delightful affair, when ex-Mayor William L. Saunders and his wife, of the borough, celebrated the tenth anniversary of their wedding by giving a progressive euchre party.

The Granite State News, of Wolfeborough, says of it:

"The event had been looked forward to with much pleasure by the rest of the campers, and great preparation had been made to make it noteworthy. The large room on the first floor of the new camp had been tastefully decorated with green. In the evening it was brilliantly illuminated with lamps and lanterns. During the day there were many whispered consultations as to the progress that was being made in the manufacture of the wedding cake that was to be presented, and as to the securing of the mementoes which were to be offered to the bride and groom, to commemorate their tin wedding. Toward evening it was found that the wedding cake had turned out beautifully, and the messengers returning from Wolfeboro brought with them the tin trophies, so that all was in readiness at the appointed hour.

"About 8:30 o'clock the campers began to arrive and were soon seated at six tables, ready to battle for the prizes. Those who took part were Mayor Benjamin A. Hegeman, Jr., and wife, of North Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. James T. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Murray, Mr. and Mrs William J. Roome, of Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Vail, Mrs. William H. Kennedy, Mrs. F. H. Whitney, the Misses Lula, Anna and Gertrude Kennedy, LeRoy Brewster, Thomas Kennedy, C. E. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Brewster, of New York. The playing lasted until 10 o'clock, when it was found that the first prize had been won by LeRoy Brewster, the second by Henry D. Brewster, and the consolation prize by William J. Roome. The first ladies' prize was won by Mrs. William J. Roome, the second by Mrs. F. H. Whitney, and the consolation prize by Mrs. Charles H. Stevens.

"During the game music was furnished by Mr. Stevens' large Orchestrion, and at the conclusion an elaborate supper was served by Mr. and Mrs. Stevens, the health of the bride and groom being toasted in copious draughts of Pomeroy, which had been imported from Boston by Mayor Saunders especially for the occasion. Supper finished, Mayor Hegeman appeared with the large wedding cake in a salver, and in a graceful and appropriate speech, presented it to the bride, and invited her to cut it that each guest might take home a piece to put under his or her pillow.

"To the horror and disappointment of all present, when an attempt was made to cut the cake, it was found to be made of a tin pan which had been carefully iced and lettered with the names of the bride and groom, and date of the event. After recovering from the astonishment the guests each in their turn presented some memento to Mr. and Mrs. Saunedrs. Then followed dancing until midnight, when, after a few parting songs, the campers lothfully wended their way to their respective camps, each wishing the groom and his beautiful wife many happy returns of the day which they had been able to celebrate so enjoyably at Point Breeze Camp."

A Nuisance on the Outskirts.

Residents living on the outskirts of this city and Dunellen are complaining about the rabbit hounds that are hunting near their homes. The hounds are killing all the young rabbits and disturbing the people by barking and rushing through their gardens.

Will Get a License.

A young man from New York was arrested by Marshal Hansen this morning for selling pictures in the borough without a license. The man was taken to Clerk Arnold's office and he promised to take out a license this afternoon.

A Wonderful Tomato.

Wesley Blaker, of 705 South avenue, has raised quite a curiosity in his garden. It is an immense tomato, weighing 3½ pounds and it is a source of great astonishment to all who have seen it.

The marriage of Miss Mary F. Giese, daughter of ex-Policeman Charles Giese, of Elm place, and Caspar F. Waglow, of New Market, will take place Tuesday afternoon, September 1st, at the home of the bride.

BRYAN AND SEWALL

Formally Notified at New York City of Their Nomination.

THE GARDEN DENSELY CROWDED

Several United States Senators and Congressmen Present—Mr. Bryan's Voice Hoarse and He Showed Signs of Fatigue—Sewall's Address.

New York, Aug. 13.—William Jennings Bryan and Arthur Sewall were formally notified last night that they were the choice of the democratic party for the highest offices in the gift of the people of the United States. The occasion was one to which the entire country had been looking forward for many weeks and interest had risen to the boiling point through repeated promises and hints that the speech the young Nebraskan would deliver would exceed his effort before the Chicago convention. Mr. Bryan, himself, had been partly responsible for the feverish feeling generated among the people. Only the other day, when a crowd of enthusiasts gathered at a station along the route of his journey from Lincoln to New York, had importuned him for a few words, he had answered: "Read the newspapers Thursday morning and you will have something worth hearing." Men and women poured into the vast auditorium through many inlets. They came in droves, in sections, and in orderly marching step. The opening of the doors was followed by a hurrying, scurrying rush of feet, and in they came, shouting, jumping, moving, pushing, every one intent on reaching the places best available to hear and see the speakers. In the great rush for admittance the police were at times forced to use their clubs to prevent women and children from being trampled under foot, and the crush was so great that several women fainted and were carried away in ambulances. Seated on the platform in the rear of the rostrum were the members of the notification committee and and other distinguished democrats. These included Senators Stewart, Blanchard, Camden, Blackburn, Tillman, Pasco, and a number of congressmen. In the boxes were seated Mrs. Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. Bland, Mrs. Gov. Stone and many others. Mrs. Bryan was recognized as she entered the box and the audience went wild, cheering her for fully five minutes. The principal actor of the evening entered the hall by a private entrance unknown to the crowd outside But when he stepped on the stand and was recognized by many in the audience a great cheer went up. "Bryan, Bryan, Bryan!" was the shout of those who knew him, and as others in the crowd realized that the hero of the evening had come the cheering became louder and louder. At 8:15 o'clock Senator Jones of Arkansas called the meeting to order. Elliott Danforth was made the chairman of the meeting. Mr. Danforth told the people that he knew they did not want a speech, and he was not going to disappoint them. He closed by presenting Gov. Wm. H. Stone of Missouri, chairman of the committee on notifications. There were more cheers. He then gave notification to Messrs. Bryan and Sewall of their nomination. Although the cheering thousands in the hall were hot of body and hoarse of throat, they rose as one man when Chairman Danforth stepped forward and introduced Mr. Bryan. Then came a wild demonstration. The band struck up a lively air and added to the din. Mr. Bryan held up his hand for silence. It was like an incentive to yell louder. The audience finally became quiet enough for Mr. Bryan to be heard and he began his speech. His voice was firm, but it showed signs of hoarseness. He was often interrupted with applause, and this seemed to annoy him, as he showed sighs of fatigue. (The main points of Mr. Bryan's speech are printed in another column of this paper.)

Arthur Sewall's Speech.

When Mr. Bryan concluded, after speaking an hour and forty minutes, there was another demonstration, but it was brief, the audience showing fatigue from the heat of the hall, and they began to retire. Gov Stone then in a few words notified Arthur Sewall of his nomination. Mr. Sewall, after thanking the committee for the honor conferred upon him, said: "Our party and, we believe, a great majority of the American people are convinced that the legislation of '73, demonetizing silver, was a wrong inflicted upon our country which should and must be righted. We believe that the single gold standard has rendered our monetary system unsafe. We believe that we need and must have the broad and expanding foundation of both gold and silver to support a monetary system strong and stable, capable of meeting the demands of a growing country and an industrious, energetic and enterprising people, and that will protect us from the fluctuations of to-day, so disastrous to every business and industry of the land. We demand the free coinage of silver, the opening of our mints to both money metals without discrimination, the return to the money of our fathers, the money of the constitution—gold and silver. We believe this is the only remedy for the evils from which we are now suffering. I accept the nomination, and with the people's confirmation, every effort of which God shall render me capable will be exerted in support of the principles involved."

When Mr. Sewall finished speaking, Chairman Danforth announce that the meeting had adjourned. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan ran the gauntlet of handshaking admirers and with Mr. St. John regained their carriage and were driven to the Bartholdi hotel.

JAPANESE IN FORMOSA.

Troops Charged with Great Cruelties Toward the People.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 13.—Papers received here by the steamship Empress of Japan charge the Japanese forces in Formosa with inexcusable cruelties toward the people of that island who resist the new government. They also chronicle considerable property loss by the second tidal wave along the northern Japanese coast. A commercial treaty has been completed between Japan and China on the basis outlined in the treaty of peace signed in May, 1895.

Daly To Be Released.

Limerick, Aug. 13.—John Daly, undergoing a sentence of penal servitude for life after having been tried and convicted with J. F. Egan and others at the Warwick assizes in 1884 of treason and felony, having been arrested while in possession of dynamite bombs, has received an intimation from the governor of Portland prison that he will be released within a few days by order of the home secretary, Sir Matthew White Ridely.

Crete in Anarchy.

Constantinople, Aug. 13.—The government of Turkey has rejected the demands of the Cretans and has definitely refused to make any concessions to the people of the island of Crete beyond those extended to them by the Halepa convention, because the porte claims that a state of anarchy prevails throughout the island and the insurrection of the Christian inhabitants is being renewed.

Shah's Assassin Hanged.

Teheran, Aug. 13.—Mollah Reza, who on the afternoon of May 1 assassinated Nasr-ed-Deen, shah of Persia, by shooting the monarch with a pistol as he was entering the inner court of the shrine of Shah Abdul Azim, near Teheran, has been hanged for his crime. An immense crowd witnessed the assissin's death.

More Heat Victims in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—Ten deaths directly attributable to the heat and thirty less serious prostrations was yesterday's record in Philadelphia. The mercury climbed up steadily throughout the day until 4:30, at which hour the maximum—97 degrees—was reached. It is cooler to-day.

Wyoming Republicans.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 13.—The republican state convention last night entered upon a discussion whether to adopt the financial plank of the St. Louis platform, to reaffirm the free silver plank of the last two state conventions, or adopt a compromise financial platform.

Lincoln Bicycle Found.

Providence, Aug. 13.—The bicycle stolen from Irwin Lincoln by the self-confessed murderer Burt Willis of Taunton at the time he shot and killed Frederick V. Strange in June was found in Bristol harbor last evening. The Taunton police fished for the wheel since last Sunday.

Great Britain's Crops.

London, Aug. 13.—In its second report of the season of the crops in Great Britain, the Times, taking 100 per cent. as representing the average, shows the condition of the wheat crop to be 106 per cent., that of barley a fraction lower, and that of oats 84 per cent.

Looking for the Laurada.

Jacksonville, Aug. 13.—A large man-of-war, having three masts and supposed to be a Spaniard, was sighted off Anastacia island, opposite St. Augustine, at sundown heading north. The warship was evidently trying to intercept the Cuban filibustering steamship Laurada.

Belongs to the Hartford Baseball Club.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 13.—Referee Barrows of Paterson has decided that Pitcher Frye, late of the New Haven baseball team, belongs to Hartford, as that club had an agreement with him two days before he signed the contract with the Newark Baseball club.

Baltimore Heat Victims.

Baltimore, Aug. 13.—Twenty-one names were added yesterday to the long list of victims of the intense heat. The maximum temperature, 97 degrees, was recorded at the observer's office at 4 p. m. It is much cooler to-day.

Singer Shops Close.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 13.—The entire Singer machine works, employing 4,500 persons, shut down yesterday because of the continued oppressive heat, which has so demoralized the operatives that less than one-half have been at work for the past two days.

10,000,000 Francs in Counterfeits.

Paris, Aug. 13.—The police have seized upon 10,000,000 francs' worth of counterfeit bank notes of three houses in Tunis. The banks' clerks were unable to detect the fraud. Several arrests have been made.

The Louisiana Lynching.

Rome, Aug. 13.—The provincial newspapers are now demanding that the government take action regarding the Hahneville (Louisiana) lynching.

Li Hung Chang for Arbitration.

London, Aug. 13.—Li Hung Chang has received an arbritration deputation and expressed cordial sympathy with the objects of the association.

Plate Glass Mills Close.

Pittsburg, Aug. 13.—The factories of the plate glass pool, known as the Pittsburg Plate Glass company, have been closed.

Prof. Newton Dead.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 13.—Prof. Hubert A. Newton of Yale university died at 9:30 last night.

INDUSTRIAL ITEMS.

The great wheat countries of the world are the United States, Russia, Turkey, Hungary, Chili, Australia and India.

Of the total of 38,000,000 sheep reported in the United States last year it is computed that one-fourth graze on the mountain slopes and valleys of the west and southwest.

A Wisconsin land improvement company, with a main irrigation canal 20 feet wide and six feet deep, has reclaimed 25 square miles of good farming land in the Muskegon lake region.

A Chicago factory has the largest belt ever made. It is 150 feet long, seven feet wide, weighs 3,300 pounds, and seven-eighths of an inch in thickness. It is composed of 450 oak-tanned hides, held together by glue, and there is not a stitch or rivet in the entire belt.

FOREIGN PICKINGS.

Vienna's dentists have formed a society whose object is practice in pleasant conversation while operating on patients.

Orange-colored flannel shirts are recommended for the English troops in Egypt, as yellow is a protection against the sun.

The Marquis de Mores has started for the Egyptian Soudan in order to draw together the Arab chiefs and resist the British advance.

Five composite first-class torpedo boast are building at Cherbourg, of which the hull is steel and all other metalic parts are of pure aluminium or aluminium alloys.

Santorini, the ancient Thera, chief island of the Sporades in the Aegean sea, has prehistoric remains which will be systematically explored by the German school at Athens.

NATURAL ODDITIES.

The wheat fly is one-tenth of an inch long, having a red body, white wings and black eyes.

A newly-discovered west African butterfly spins a cocoon which resembles a mask made for a human face.

In India there is a species of butterfly in which the male has the left wing yellow and the right wing red. The colors on the female are vice versa.

The Atlas-moth, a gigantic fur-coated, night-flying insect of central Brazil, is said to be the very largest winged "bug" in the world. He measures 14 inches from tip to tip.

NEW STATE SEALS.

Wyoming and Utah Have Recently Had Theirs Made.

The states of Wyoming and Utah have recently had their seals made, and are now affixing them to all public documents emanating from the governor or secretary of state, says the Washington National Tribune. That of Wyoming represents a pedestal showing on the front an eagle resting upon a shield. Upon the shield are engraved a star, and the figure "44," being the number of Wyoming in the order of admission to statehood. Standing upon the pedestal is the draped figure of a woman modeled after the statue of "The Victory" at the Louvre, from whose wrists hang the links of a broken chain. In the right hand she holds a staff, from which floats a banner bearing the words "Equal Rights." This suggests the political position of a woman in this state. On either side of the pedestal, standing at its base, are figures typifying the live stock and mining industries of Wyoming. Behind the pedestal, and in the background, are two pillars, each supporting a lighted lamp, signifying the light of knowledge. Around the pillars supporting these lamps are scrolls bearing the words "Live Stock," "Grain," "Mines" and "Oil." At the base of the pedestal in front are the figures "1869," "1890," the former signifying the organization of the territory of Wyoming and the latter the date of its admission to statehood.

The seal of the state of Utah is well composed. An eagle holds in its claws six arrows and a Norman shield. This shield bears a hive on a pedestal, about which the bees are humming. The word "Industry" is emblazoned across the top of the shield and the figures "1847" are shown at the lower point. Behind the shield are crossed two flags of the United States. Around the outer edge of the shield are the words: "The Great Seal of the State of Utah 1896."

Don't Let Yourself Get Thin

If you get hungry three times a day, enjoy your food, and enjoy the next two hours, you are happy enough.

If not, what you want is to get there.

A great deal of sickness begins with loss of fat. You know this. When your friend is in good flesh, you say, "How well you look!" and when he is thin you don't say what you think, but you worry about him.

Apply this to yourself. Don't let yourself get thin.

The diseases of thinness that we fear most are scrofula in the child and consumption in the adult. If you keep your child and yourself plump, you do not fear these diseases.

It will be useful to you to know the exact reason for this.

The germ of scrofula and consumption thrives on leanness. Fat keeps it down. Fat, then, is the food-means of getting the odds in our favor when contending against this germ.

Everybody knows that cod-liver oil is a fat producer.

Scott's Emulsion

is cod-liver oil made easy. The taste is concealed; the oil half-digested; it is half-ready to make fat.

In health you get this fat from your ordinary food, and have no need of cod-liver oil. When you begin to lose flesh, you are not getting the fat that you must have out of your ordinary food, and you do need cod-liver oil. Take Scott's Emulsion.

LONDON FOG PRECAUTIONS.

Cost Entailed on the Railroad Companies by a Heavy Mist.

It has been computed that a fog costs the metropolis from £50,000 to £100,000 a day. A large portion of this is borne by the railroad companies. As soon as the fog descends, the plate-layers, without waiting orders, leave their work and undertake the duties of fog signalmen. For this they receive an extra shilling a day. This appears a small item, yet a single fog has been known to cost over £50 for extra wages to plate-layers at Clapham Junction alone.

Each fog signalman is supplied with a lantern, flags and a supply of detonators, says the San Francisco Chronicle. By means of these he conveys to the engine drivers the signals which they cannot distinguish through the mist. "Caution" is given by a single detonator. "Danger" by two detonators, placed upon the rails at a distance of ten yards apart. Detonators are small tin boxes two inches in diameter, each containing three percussion caps and a small quantity of gunpowder. At the base of each are two strips of lead for fastening it to the rail. They are made with great care, chiefly in Birmingham and London, and it is rarely that one fails to explode. The wholesale price of detonators is one penny each, and the average annual consumption of each big railway company is about 150,000, costing £623

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

A Remarkable Case Brought Out in a London Police Court.

A remarkable case of mistaken identity is reported from London by Julian Ralph. A man was wanted for deserting his wife. A policeman found a person answering the description, showed him a photograph and said: "Is that you?" The man said "Yes," and was arrested. He protested that he had not deserted his wife, but the woman came forward and positively identified him. A little later she took another good look at his side face and said as positively that he was not her husband. Now it turns out that he and the true culprit are both 37 years old, are both potmen, are both married and both have three children.

Death of English Kings.

Horse accidents caused the death of William I. and William III.; William II. and Richard I. were killed by arrows; Richard III. was slain in battle; Charles I. was beheaded; Edward II., Richard II. and Edward V. were murdered; a surfeit of lampreys cost Henry I. his life; poison or a surfeit of peaches killed John; poison is suspected to have been administered to Edward VI.; and the death of Henry VI. is by some historians laid to the charge of Richard, duke of Gloucester.

WILL PUSH EXPLORATION.

The Year 1896 to Be a Lively One with the Arctic Circle.

Spitzbergen will have a brilliant season this year. The Andree expedition will be followed by a German steamer from Hamburg which will reach the islands in time to see the balloon start. A Norwegian steamship company will run steamers regularly while the season permits, and will put a temporary hotel on the Eis Fiord. Mr. J. Russell Jeaffreson, of the Geographical society, will explore the interior of the western island, and if the ice will permit will try to visit the islands between Spitzbergen and Franz Josef Land. Another English expedition, with which went Mr. Trevor Battye, who explored Kolgner, started recently for Spitzbergen. The relieving vessel for the Jackson-Harmsworth expedition, the steam yacht Windward, has just started for Franz Josef Land, with provisions and sledges. It will embark live sheep and reindeer in Norway and convey them north. The North Atlantic will be more lively beyond the arctic circle this year than ever before.

THE VALUE OF BORAX.

A Useful Article to Always Have About the House.

The women of Holland and Belgium, who make their linen so beautifully white, use refined borax instead of washing soda in the proportion of one large handful of borax powder to about ten gallons of boiling water. Thus they save in soap nearly half. Its effect is to soften the hardest water, and, therefore, it should be kept on every toilet table. It is good for cleansing the hair, is an excellent dentifrice; combined with tartaric acid and bicarbonate of soda it is a cooling beverage. Good tea cannot be made with hard water, but all water may be made soft by adding a teaspoonful of borax powder to an ordinary-sized kettle of water, in which it should boil. The saving in the quantity of tea used will be one-fifth.

THE FISH WERE FRESH.

But the Purchaser Was a Great Deal Fresher.

Up in the Eleventh ward a thrifty German makes a good living peddling live carp. The fish are hauled about the streets in a small tank set upon wheels, the whole outfit being propelled by the energy generated from the German's muscles. If there is one thing more than another the peddler prides himself on, it is that his wares, being alive, are necessarily fresh.

The other morning the carp merchant was stopped by a woman who, it the well-filled baskets which hung from her fat arms were any indication, was on her way home from market. The woman leaned over the cart and sized-up the swimming fish carefully.

"Are they fresh?" she finally asked.

The look of disgust that spread over the German's countenance would have fitted well upon the features of a sound-money democrat who is being told that a free-coinage candidate is sure to be nominated at the Chicago convention. But he choked down his indignation.

"Yah: dey ish fresh," he replied.

Then he reached down into the tank and pulled out a sample, which he held up for the woman to see.

She gazed upon it for a moment, her nose high in the air. She wasn't satisfied, however, and the next moment shoved one of her own fair hands into the tank and grabbed a carp by the gills. She yanked it up in the air after the manner of one who doesn't propose to be fooled in so important a matter as buying a fish, and held it at arm's length for inspection.

At least, she started to hold it out. Unfortunately she had picked up the biggest fish in the cart. It was a carp that didn't care much about women, anyway, and particularly a woman who considered herself well enough acquainted to run her fingers through his breathing apparatus. He at once began to go through a contortion act of the most intricate and vigorous description, his mouth wide open and his tail marking out three-foot circles at the rate of 40 a minute.

The suddenness with which the fish started in on this programme was too much for the woman. In her hurry to let go of the carp she forgot about her baskets and their contents. As her arms flew up the baskets flew down. In the Eleventh ward the sidewalks are as hard as if not harder than in any of the other wards, and eggs have very little show in a contest with them. There were eggs in one basket—two dozen of them.

Unless the rain has washed them away, those eggs are down on the Eleventh ward sidewalk yet. They wouldn't have been of very much use to the woman after they struck the walk, except as scrambled eggs. In the other basket there were strawberries and a steak and a roll of butter.

All of these were saved from the general wreck, however, with the exception of the steak. An enterprising Eleventh ward dog feasted upon that.

The woman didn't stay to buy any fish. Perhaps she had lost her appetite for carp. Anyway, she gathered up the remnants of her marketing and sailed majestically down the street.

The fish peddler gazed after her a moment. Then he chuckled to himself:

"Yah: dose carp ish fresh—but not so fresh as dot womans, py chimminy!"—Philadelphia Enquirer.

Eye Poultices.

Do not poultice an eye under any circumstances whatever. Binding a wet application over an eye for several hours must damage that eye, the assertions of those professing to have personal experience in this to the contrary notwithstanding. The failure to aggravate an existing trouble by binding a moist application over an inflamed eye, which application is supposed to remain for an entire night, can only be explained by the supposition that a guardian angel has watched over that misguided case, and has displaced the poultice before it has got in its fine work. All oculists condemn the poultice absolutely, in every shape and in every form. Tea leaves, bread and milk, raw oysters, scraped beef, scraped raw turnip or raw potato, and the medley of disgusting domestic remedies popularly recommended are, one and all, capable of producing irremediable damage to the integrity of the tissues of the visual organ.—N. Y. Ledger.

The New Tomato.

The new tomato is a half or entirely frozen salad. When it is entirely frozen it is cooked and sweetened, first, much as if for its old-time sphere as a vegetable, but there is no butter put into it, and no pepper, only the merest dash of salt and the usual quantity of sugar. Then it is frozen in the freezer, like any ice, packed in a mold and hardened in ice and salt, and served with mayonnaise. This is the usual way, but I have a little thing of my own that I fancy to be even nicer—I may be deceived by vanity—and it is respectfully submitted. Take half a dozen ripe, firm tomatoes, peel, pour over them a sirup of one pint of sugar and one cup of water, brought to boiling, no more. Drain and cool. Pack in freezer in layers, with rounds of white paper between the layers. Let them stay about an hour. Remove carefully and serve on a bed of lettuce and nasturtiums, with mayonnaise.—Boston Globe.

In Position to Be Independent.

Willie and his big sister didn't get along very well. Willie was only seven and his sister 17, but he resented her "bossing." One day Willie's mamma had something to tell him—a piece of news from the household of his still older sister, who had married a year before. "Willie," said mamma, "God left a little baby at sister Mary's house last night. You're an uncle now, my boy. How do you like that?" "Well," said Willie, after weighing the matter over a minute, "I'll just tell you this: If I am Uncle Will, Lizzie ain't goin' to boss me no more."—N. Y. World.

Mrs. Rhodie Nash, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains, and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of blackberry cordial but got no relief. She then sent to me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlin's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhœa but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

BOER AND UITLANDER.

The Cause of the Recent Trouble in South Africa.

James Bryce, M. P., Writes Instructively of the Struggle for Suffrage Which Must Come Before Long—The Jameson Raid.

The struggle between the Boers and the strangers, which has practically become a struggle between the English and the Dutch elements, now centers in the demand of the strangers to be admitted to the electoral franchise. Formerly electoral rights were readily acquirable by an immigrant in the Transvaal, as they are to-day in the Orange Free State. In 1881 a residence of two years gave the vote. But when President Kruger perceived that the influx of strangers would alter the character of the electorate and ultimately transfer the balance of power to English-speaking citizens he persuaded the assembly to extend the period of residence required for citizenship, first to five and then to 15 years, and thus practically to exclude the whole of the new population which has come in since 1885. Thus electoral rights are now confined to less than 25,000 citizens, while probably double that number of persons of voting age and sex are living within the republic, debarred from those rights.

It is easy to understand Mr. Kruger's position. "These newcomers," he argues, "are in all essentials strangers to our polity. They do not belong to our Dutch Reformed churches; they do not like our customs; they do not speak our tongue. They would use their votes, if votes were given them, to turn out the present officials and legislators, and would end by making the country English, like Cape Colony or Natal. It was not for such a fate that we quitted the homes of our fathers to go out into the wilderness and overcome the Zulus 40 years ago; and against such a fate we will struggle to the end."

On the other hand, the strangers complain that, though they form a large majority of the population, own half the land in the republic and pay more than 90 per cent. of the taxes, they are denied a share in the government of the country and in the application of its revenues, and are obliged to submit to excessive and unfair imposts, voted by a legislature some of whose members are gravely suspected of corruption, and administered by officials many of whom are far from trustworthy. These were the motives which prompted the creation three years ago of an organization to obtain political reforms, and which led to the rising of the stranger population, or rather the bulk of the English-speaking portion of it, at Johannesburg in December last—a rising the declared aim of which was not the overthrow of the Transvaal republic, but to compel the Boer assembly to extend the suffrage to the newcomers.

The effect of that abortive rising and of the expedition of the British South Africa company's men, who came to help it but were surrounded and forced to surrender by the Boer forces, has so far been unfavorable to the demands of the strangers. President Kruger's hold on the citizens had been previously shaken by their dislike to the officials he had brought from Holland. The rising, however, evoked all the patriotism of the Boers and made the president, who successfully withstood it, more popular than ever. At the same time it stirred the feelings of the Dutch in the Orange Free State, and even in Cape Colony. Seeing their own kinsfolk threatened by an expedition which had started from British soil, they forgot for the moment their own commercial grievances against the Transvaal government (which had built up a wall of tariffs against them) and gave all their sympathy to the threatened republic. As the British home government had not only disavowed, but had even tried to stop, the expedition on its way, no resentment has been felt by the Dutch against Britain.

But the movement towards a political fusion of Dutch and English in the colony has received a check, and the tendency of the Orange Free State towards a closer union with its sister republic has been strengthened. Meanwhile the grievances of the new population in the Transvaal have not been removed, and as the influx of strangers to the Witwatersrand mines will doubtless continue it is clear that something must be done to give a more or less complete satisfaction to their claims and to prevent a recurrence of the troubles of last December and January. It is impossible, in our times, for a minority to continue to rule over a large and increasing unenfranchised majority of people, superior in intelligence and wealth, however strong the original position of the minority may have been, and whatever sympathy their attachment to their own simple and primitive life may evoke.—"Impressions of South Africa," by James Bryce, M. P., in Century.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints,—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Fredericktown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. WENT TO HEAR BRYAN.

While There, John Ross Was Overcome By the Heat.

Charles Lyman, John F. McIntyre, ex-Councilman John Ross, all of this city, were included in a party of friends who went to Madison Square Garden, last night, to hear the Hon. W. J. Bryan's address.

There was a dense crowd about the building, and the party waited for an hour or more outside in the sweltering heat, waiting for an opportunity to get inside the building. After climbing three flights of stairs, and being seated in an upper gallery, Mr. Ross was suddenly and unexpectedly overcome with the heat.

He was removed to the street, where restoratives were administered, and as soon as he was able the entire party took a train for home, arriving here at 11:14 o'clock. Today Mr. Ross is much improved, and he and the other members of the party regret very much that they were unable to stay and listen to the proceedings.

LYING IN STATE.

The Remains of the Late Elias R. Pope Viewed by Many.

This afternoon between the hours of 2 and 3:30 o'clock a throng of the most intimate friends of the late Hon. Elias R. Pope passed in and out of his former home on Park avenue and viewed the remains.

The floral tributes were numerous and elaborate, and consisted principally of set pieces, wreaths and bouquets. Each of the institutions with which Mr. Pope was so prominently identified, sent elegant tributes.

At 5 o'clock private funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, for so many years the decedent's pastor in the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

The remains will be placed in the receiving vault at Hillside Cemetery temporarily, awaiting the erection of a family mausoleum.

Miss Bertha N. Randolph, niece of Mrs. William M. Sandford, of East Front street, leaves for Fairbury, Ill., this evening.

J. J. Clowry and family, of New York city, have through Mulford's agency leased one of Charles Potter's dwelling houses on West Sixth street, and will take possession on or about September 1st.

Irving VanHorn, of Hope, Warren county, returned home today after a few weeks' visit with his father, J. F. VanHorn, of Grove street. The lad is fourteen years of age, and since his mother died three years ago he has made his home with his aunt at Hope.

Theories of cure may be discussed at length by physicians, but the sufferers want quick relief; and One Minute Cough Cure will give it to them. A safe cure for children. It is "the only harmless remedy that produces immediate results." For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

A SHEEP STORY.

An Englishman Tells of the Remarkable Sagacity of a Pet Lamb.

Having read from time to time notable instances of the sagacity of dogs and cats, it has occurred to me, says a writer in the London Spectator, that the following well-authenticated record of the intelligence of a sheep may possess at least the interest of novelty. Two years ago a lamb owned by a gentleman whose farm lies close to Lough Foyle was left motherless. A yardman in charge of the flock nursed and fed the little orphan. She became very tame, and was petted by her master's children. Last year she had grown into a young sheep, with a lamb of her own. One day some dogs ran through the pasture grounds, and the frightened flock scattered and fled through the field, which was a large one, sloping toward the shore. The yardman, Aleck, banished the intruders and collected the sheep, as he supposed, into safety.

An hour or two afterward the pet sheep rushed past the dwelling house apparently in great distress. With piteous bleatings she went to the lodge gate, where Aleck was sitting at his noonday meal, and, coming close to him, seemed to seek his help. As he rose from the table she ran out of the house and straight through the pasture to the shore. He followed her, and soon saw the cause of her alarm. Her lamb, terrified by the dogs, had fled to a little peninsula among the rocks, which the incoming tide had transferred into an island. Of course, it could not cross the strait and the mother could not save it, therefore she appealed to the power and sympathy of her human friend. Her trust in his help was not disappointed, and she and her rescued offspring were soon safely reunited.

English Lawyers.

The difference between a counsel and a queen's counsel—or, in the event of a king being on the throne, a K. C.—is that the latter is supposed to be able to appear as the sovereign's advocate. Both are entitled to wear wig and gown; but the gown of the latter is silk, and the former is of "stuff." The queen's counsel can take only what is termed "leading business."

AN ORDINANCE.

An ordinance for the vacation of that part of Warren street, which lies between Manning avenue and Chatham street.

Whereas, application in writing describing the nature, kind and extent of the work and improvement desired, signed by the owners of at least one-quarter of the lineal feet of land fronting on the street proposed to be vacated, has been presented to the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield, asking for the vacation of all that portion of Warren street, in said borough which lies between Manning avenue and Chatham street and hereinafter particularly described:

And whereas, the Mayor and Council upon receiving said application, did cause the Borough Clerk to give notice of the intention of the Mayor and Council to vacate said portion of said street, and requiring such persons as might object thereto to present their objections in writing to said Clerk on or before a certain day therein named, not less than ten days after the date of such notice, which said notice was duly published and posted according to law, and no objections have been filed by any person or persons:

And whereas, the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield have judged and do hereby judge that the public good requires that Warren street between the points named in the title to this ordinance be vacated:

Therefore the Mayor and Council of the borough of North Plainfield do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. That all that portion of the certain public street of the borough of North Plainfield known, named and designated as Warren street, beginning in the southeasterly side line of Manning avenue as now laid out and opened where the same is intersected by the center line of Warren street as now laid out and opened, and thence extending southeasterly along said center line of Warren street and for the full width of said Warren street as now laid out and opened on either side of said center line, and along the side lines of said Warren street, through and along the lands of George F. White, Thomas Rutledge and Lewis Bird, fronting on the northeasterly side of said Warren street, and the lands of George F. White, John H. McVey, Andrew Lutkins, Estate of Israel Coon, deceased, viz., David Coon, Anna Boice, Mary E. Shreve, Margaret A. C. Randolph, Anna Nicholas and Sardinia Miles, and of Henry H. Lowrie, fronting on the southwesterly side of said Warren street, to the northwesterly side line of Chatham street as now laid out and opened where the same is intersected by the center line and side lines of Warren street, a total distance along said center line of Warren street of five hundred and thirty feet, be the same more or less, be and the same is hereby vacated and all rights and easements of the public in, or to the lands occupied by said portion of Warren street surrendered.

Sec. 2. That this ordinance shall take effect on the 22nd day of August, 1896.

Approved August 7th, 1896.

H. B. LOUNSBURY, President, Acting Mayor.

JAS. K. ARNOLD, Borough Clerk.

EXECUTOR'S SETTLEMENT.

MR. BRYAN'S SPEECH

He Defines at Length His Party's Policy.

DEFENDS THE CHICAGO PLATFORM

And Replies to the Attacks Made Upon It—Money the Paramount Issue—No Claim Made To Reconstruct Society.

New York, Aug. 13.—The following is the speech delivered by W. J. Bryan at Madison Square garden in response to the address formally notifying him of his nomination by the Chicago convention:

Mr. Chairman, gentlemen of the committee and fellow citizens: I shall at a future day and in a formal letter, accept the nomination which is now tendered by the notification committee, and I shall at that time touch upon the issues presented by the platform. It is fitting, however, that at this time, in the presence of those here assembled, I speak at some length in regard to the campaign upon which we are now entering. We do not underestimate the forces arrayed against us, nor are we unmindful of the importance of the struggle in which we are engaged, but, relying for success upon the righteousness of our cause, we shall defend with all possible vigor the positions taken by our party. We are not surprised that some of our opponents, in the absence of better argument, resort to abusive epithets, but they may rest assured that no language, however violent, no invectives, however vehement, will lead us to depart a single hair's breadth from the course marked out by the national convention. It has been charged by men standing high in business and political circles that our platform is a menace to private security and public safety; and it has been asserted that those whom I have the honor, for the time being, to represent, not only meditate an attack upon the rights of property, but are the foes both of social order and national honor.

Not To Reconstruct Society.

Those who stand upon the Chicago platform are prepared to make known and to defend every motive which influences them, every purpose which animates them and every hope which inspires them. They understand the genius of our institutions, they are staunch supporters of the form of government under which we live, and they build their faith upon foundations laid by the fathers. Andrew Jackson has stated, with admirable clearness, both the duty and the sphere of government. He said: "Distinctions in society will always exist under every just government. Equality of talents, of education or of wealth cannot be produced by human institutions. In the full enjoyment of the gifts of Heaven and the fruits of superior industry, economy and virtue, every man is equally entitled to protection by law." We yield to none in our devotion to the doctrine just enunicated. Our campaign has not for its object the reconstruction of society. We cannot insure to the vicious the fruits of a virtuous life; we would not invade the home of the provident in order to supply the wants of the spend-thrift; we do not propose to transfer the rewards of industry to the lap of indolence. Property is and will remain the stimulus to endeavor and the compensation for toil. We believe, as asserted in the Declaration of Independence, that all men are created equal; but that does not mean that all men are or can be equal in possessions, in ability or in merit; it simply means that all shall stand equal before the law, and that government official shall not, in making, construing or enforcing the law, discriminate between citizens. I assert that property rights, as well as the rights of persons, are safe in the hands of the common people.

Equal Rights for All.

We are not surprised to find arrayed against us those who are the beneficiaries of government favoritism—they have read our platform. Nor are we surprised to learn that we must in this campaign face the hostility of those who find a pecuniary advantage in advocating the doctrine of non-interference when great aggregations of wealth are trespassing upon the rights of individuals. We welcome such opposition—it is the highest endorsement which could be bestowed upon us. It is not the wish of the general public that trusts should spring into existence and override the weaker members of society. Those who stand upon the Chicago platform believe that the government should not only avoid wrongdoing, but that it should also prevent wrongdoing; and they believe that the law should be enforced alike against all enemies of the public weal. They do not excuse petit larceny, but they declare that grand larceny is equally a crime; they do not defend the occupation of the highwayman who robs the unsuspecting traveler, but they include among the transgressors those who, who through the more polite and less hazardous means of legislation, appropriate to their own use the proceeds of the toil of others. The commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," thundered from Sinai and reiterated in the legislation of all nations, is no respecter of persons. No government is worthy of the name which is not able to protect from every arm uplifted for his injury the humblest citizen who lives beneath the flag.

Income Tax Plank Defended.

The Chicago platform has been condemned by some because it dissents from an opinion rendered by the supreme court declaring the income tax law unconstitutional. Our critics even go so far as to apply the name anarchist to those who stand upon that plank of the platform. It must be remembered that we expressly recognize the binding force of that decision so long as it stands as a part of the law of the land. There is in the platform no suggestion of an attempt to dispute the authority of the supreme court. The party is simply pledged to use "all the constitutional power which remains after that decision, or which may come from its reversal by the court as it may hereafter be constituted." Is there any disloyalty in that pledge? While the money question overshadows all other questions in importance, I desire it distinctly understood that I shall offer no apology for the income tax plank of the Chicago platform. At present the expenses of the federal government, collected through internal revenue taxes and import duties, are especially burdensome upon the poorer classes of society. A law which collects from some citizens more than their share of the taxes and collects from other citizens less than their share, is simply an indirect means of transferring one man's property to another man's pocket, and while the process may be quite satisfactory to the men who escape just taxation, it can never be satisfactory to those who are overburdened. The last income tax law, with its exemption provisions, when considered in connection with other methods of taxation in force, was not unjust to the possessors of large incomes, because they were not compelled to pay a total federal tax greater than their share. The income tax is not new, nor is it based upon hostility to the rich.

The Money Question.

Now let me ask you to consider the paramount question of this campaign—the money question. It is scarcely necessary to defend the principal of bimetallism. No national party during the entire history of the United States has ever declared against it, and no party in this campaign has had the temerity to oppose it. Three parties—the democratic, populist and silver parties—have not only declared for bimetallism, but have outlined the specific legislation necessary to restore silver to its ancient position by the side of gold. The republican platform expressly declares that bimetallism is desirable when it pledges the republican party to aid in securing it as soon as the assistance of certain foreign nations can be obtained. Those who represented the minority sentiment in the Chicago convention opposed the free coinage of silver by the United States by independent action on the ground that, in their judgment, it "would retard or entirely prevent the establishment of international bimetallism, to which the efforts of the government should be steadily directed." When they asserted that the efforts of the government should be steadily directed toward the establishment of international bimetallism, they condemned monometallism. The gold standard has been weighed in the balance and found wanting. Take from it the powerful support of the money-owning and the money-changing classes and it cannot stand for one day in any nation of the world. It was fastened upon the United States without discussion before the people, and its friends have never yet been willing to risk a verdict before the voters upon that issue.

Are They Sincere?

There can be no sympathy or cooperation between the advocates of a universal gold standard and the advocates of bimetallism. Between bimetallism—whether independent or international—and the gold standard there is an impassable gulf. Is this quadrennial agitation in favor of international bimetallism conducted in good faith, or do our opponents really desire to maintain the gold standard permanently? If they are in fact desirous of securing bimetallism, we may expect them to point out the evils of a gold standard and defend bimetallism as a system. If, on the other hand, they are bending their energies toward the permanent establishment of a gold standard under cover of a declaration in favor of international bimetallism, I am justified in suggesting that honest money cannot be expected at the hands of those who deal dishonestly with the American people.

What Is Honest Money?

What is the test of honesty in money? It must certainly be found in the purchasing power of the dollar. An absolutely honest dollar would not vary in its general purchasing power; it would be absolutely stable when measured by average prices. A dollar which increases in purchasing power is just as dishonest as a dollar which decreases in purchasing power. Prof. Laughlin, now of the University of Chicago, and one of the highest gold-standard authorities, in his work on bimetallism not only admits that gold does not remain absolutely stable in value, but expressly asserts "that there is no such thing as a standard of value for future payments, either in gold or silver, which remains absolutely invariable." He even suggests that a multiple standard, wherein the unit is "based upon the selling prices of a number of articles of general consumption," would be a more just standard than either gold or silver, or both, because "a long-time contract would thereby be paid at its maturity by the same purchasing power as was given in the beginning." It cannot be successfully claimed that monometallism or bimetallism, or any other system, gives a just standard of value.

Insurance Policies and Savings Banks.

Our opponents have made a special appeal to those who hold fire and life insurance policies, but those policy holders know that, since the total premiums received exceed the total losses paid, a rising standard must be of more benefit to the companies than to the policy holders. Much solicitude has been expressed by our opponents for the depositors in savings banks. They constantly parade before these depositors the advantages of a gold standard, but these appeals will be in vain, because savings bank depositors know that under a gold standard there is increasing danger that they will lose their deposits because of the inability of the banks to collect their assets; and they still further know that, if the gold standard is to continue indefinitely, they may be compelled to withdraw their deposits in order to pay living expenses. It is only necessary to note the increasing number of failures in order to know that a gold standard is ruinous to merchants and manufacturers. These business men do not make their profits from the people from whom they borrow money, but from the people to whom they sell their goods. If the people cannot buy, retailers cannot sell, and if retailers cannot sell, wholesale merchants and manufacturers must go into bankruptcy. Salaries in business occupations depend upon business conditions, and the gold standard both lessens the amount and threatens the permanency of such salaries.

Loaners Instead of Borrowers.

If it is asserted, as it is constantly asserted, that the gold standard will enable us to borrow money from abroad, I reply that the restoration of bimetallism will restore the parity between money and property, and thus permit an era of prosperity which will enable the American people to become loaners of money instead of perpetual borrowers. Even the holders of fixed investments, though they gain an advantage from the appreciation of the dollar, certainly see the injustice of the legislation which gives them this advantage over those whose incomes depend upon the value of property and products. If the holders of fixed investments will not listen to arguments based upon justice and equity, I appeal to them to consider the interests of posterity. We do not live for ourselves alone.

No New Experiment.

As against the maintenance of a gold standard, either permanently or until other nations can be united for its overthrow, the Chicago platform presents a clear and emphatic demand for the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation. We are not asking that a new experiment be tried; we are insisting upon a return to a financial policy approved by the experience of history and supported by all the prominent statesmen of our nation from the days of the first president down to 1873. When we ask that our mints be opened to the free and unlimited coinage of silver into full legal tender money, we are simply asking that the same mint privileges be accorded to silver that are now accorded to gold.

Greenbacks and Treasury Notes.

The retirement of the greenback and treasury notes would not protect the treasury, because the same policy which now leads the secretary of the treasury to redeem all government paper in gold, when gold is demanded, will require the redemption of all silver dollars and silver certificates in gold, if the greenbacks and treasury notes are withdrawn from circulation. More than this, if the government should retire its paper and throw upon the banks the necessity of furnishing coin redemption, the banks would exercise the right to furnish either gold or silver. In other words, they would exercise the option, just as the government ought to exercise it now. The government must either exercise the right to redeem its obligations in silver when silver is more convenient, or it must retire all silver and silver certificates from circulation and leave nothing but gold as legal tender money. Are our opponents willing to outline a financial system which will carry out their policy to its legitimate conclusion, or will they continue to cloak their designs in ambiguous phrases? We contend that free and unlimited coinage by the United States will raise the bullion value of silver to its coinage value, and thus make silver bullion worth $1.29 per ounce in gold throughout the world. This proposition is in keeping with natural laws, not in defiance of them. The best known law of commerce is the law of supply and demand. We recognize this law and build our argument upon it. We apply this law to money when we say that a reduction in the volume of money will raise the purchasing power of the dollar; we also apply the law of supply and demand to silver when we say that a new demand for silver created by law will raise the price of silver bullion. Gold and silver are different from other commodities, in that they are limited in quantity.

The Supply of Silver.

Because gold and silver are limited, both in the quantity now in hand and in annual production, it follows that legislation can fix the ratio between them. Any purchaser who stands ready to take the entire supply of any given article at a certain price can prevent that article from falling below that price. So the government can fix a price for gold and silver by creating a demand greater than the supply. The only question upon which international bimetallists and independent bimetallists differ is: Can the United States by the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the present legal ratio create a demand for silver which, taken in connection with the demand already in existence, will be sufficient to utilize all the silver that will be presented at the mints? They agree in their defense of the bimetallic principle, and they agree in unalterable opposition to the gold standard. International bimetallists cannot complain that free coinage gives a benefit to the mine owner, because international bimetallism gives to the owner of silver all the advantages offered by independent bimetallism at the same ratio. They must rest their opposition upon one ground only, namely: That the supply of silver available for coinage is too large to be utilized by the United States.

We Can Fix the Price.

In discussing this question we must consider the capacity of our people to use silver and the quantity of silver which can come to our mints. It must be remembered that we live in a country only partially developed. Now, how much silver can come here? Not the coined silver of the world, because almost all of it is more valuable at this time in other lands than it will be at our mints under free coinage. If our mints are opened to free and unlimited coinage at the present ratio, merchandise silver cannot come here, because the labor applied to it has made it worth more in the form of merchandise than it will be at our mints. We cannot even expect all of the annual product of silver, because India, China, Japan and Mexico and all other silver-using countries must satisfy their annual needs from the annual product; the arts will require a large amount, and the gold standard countries will need a considerable quantity for subsidiary coinage. We will be required to coin only that which is not needed elsewhere; but if we stand ready to take and utilize all of it, other nations will be compelled to buy at any price which we may fix. Our opponents cannot ignore the fact that gold is now going abroad in spite of all legislation intended to prevent it, and no silver is being coined to take its place. Not only is gold going abroad now, but it must continue to go abroad as long af the present financial policy is adhered to, unless we continue to borrow from across the ocean.

Fifty-cent Dollars.

Perhaps the most persistent misrepresentation that we have to meet is the charge that we are advocating the payment of debts in fifty-cent dollars. At the present time and under present laws, a silver dollar, when melted, loses nearly half its value, but that will not be true when we again establish a mint price for silver and leave no surplus silver upon the market to drag down the price of bullion. Under bimetallism silver bullion will be worth as much as silver coin, just as gold bullion is now worth as much as gold coin, and we believe that a silver dollar will be worth as much as a gold dollar. The charge of repudiation comes with poor grace from those who are seeking to add to the weight of existing debts by legislation which makes money dearer, and who conceal their designs against the general welfare under the euphonious pretense that they are upholding public credit and national honor. In answer to the charge that gold will go abroad, it must be remembered that no gold can leave this country until the owner of the gold receives something in return for it which he would rather have.

Honest differences of opinion have always existed, and ever will exist, as to the legislation best calculated to promote the public weal; but, when it is seriously asserted that this nation must bow to the dictation of other nations and accept the policies which they insist upon, the right of self-government is assailed, and until that question is settled all other questions are insignificant.

Appeal To Citizens of New York.

Citizens of New York: I have traveled from the centre of the continent to the seaboard that I might, in the very beginning of the campaign, bring you greeting from the people of the west and south and assure you that their desire is not to destroy but to build up. They invite you to accept the principles of a living faith rather than listen to those who preach the gospel of despair and advise endurance of the ills you have. The advocates of free coinage believe that, in striving to secure the immediate restoration of bimetallism, they are laboring in your behalf as well as in their own behalf. A few of your people may prosper under present conditions, but the permanent welfare of New York rests upon the producers of wealth. This great city is built upon the commerce of the nation and must suffer if that commerce is impaired. You cannot sell unless the people have money with which to buy, and they cannot obtain the money with which to buy unless they are able to sell their products at remunerative prices. Production of wealth goes before the exchange of wealth; those who create must secure a profit before they have anything to share with others. You cannot afford to join the moneychangers in supporting a financial policy which, by destroying the purchasing power of the products of toil, must in the end discourage the creation of wealth.

Our Country's Mission.

I ask, I expect, your co-operation. It is true that a few of your financiers would fashion a new figure—a figure representing Columbia, her hands bound fast with fetter of gold and her face turned toward the east, appealing for assistance to those who live beyond the sea—but this figure can never express your idea of this nation. You will rather turn for inspiration to the heroic statue which guards the entrance to your city—a statue as patriotic in conception as it is colossal in proportions. It was the gracious gift of a sister republic and stands upon a pedestal which was built by the American people. That statue—Liberty enlightening the world—is emblematic of the mission of our nation among the nations of the earth. With a government which derives its powers from the consent of the governed, secures to all the people freedom of conscience, freedom of thought and freedom of speech, guarantees equal rights to all and promises special privileges to none, the United States should be an example in all that is good and the leading spirit which has for its object the uplifting of the human race.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

LIBERALS IN CONTROL.

Wilfred Laurier and His Party Won a Great Victory.

After an Uninterrupted Reign of Eighteen Years the Conservative Party of Canada Has Been Swept Out of Power.

The conservative government of Canada has been swept out of power after an uninterrupted reign of 18 years. The results of the general elections held recently show an overwhelming victory for the liberal forces. The campaign has been one of the most bitter in the history of Canada, and has turned on two questions, which have been settled in this way:

The province of Manitoba shall not be forced by the dominion to appropriate money for separate Catholic schools and restore this denominational privilege which had been taken away from the Catholics and which the people of Manitoba have steadfastly refused to return.

The existing tariff arrangements must be changed so as to obtain from the United States reciprocal relations, even if they discriminate against Great Britain.

The only blot on the liberal victory is the result at Winnipeg. Joseph Martin, the author of the national school bill and the exponent of the school question in Manitoba, appears to have been defeated by a small majority by H. J. MacDonald. MacDonald's popularity and the influence of the Canadian Pacific railroad divide the honors of the unique result. It is the humorous feature of the campaign, however, that, while all Canada was rallying to the support of Manitoba's special issue, the exponent of that issue was being beaten in Manitoba.

The school question has created the more interest because it has inflamed the prejudices of race and religion. The legislature of Manitoba had resisted consistently and successfully every attempt of the torry government to restore the separate schools for Catholics, and had forced this new election to determine finally the judgment of the other Canadian provinces. The liberal leader, Mr. Wilfred Laurier, is a Catholic himself, and has declared that he will endeavor to effect a settlement of the question by a policy of investigation and conciliation, refusing to be coerced by the bishops. The leader of the government forces, imported especially to conduct the fight, Sir Charles Tupper, is a Protestant. It is not surprising, therefore, that the Catholics have voted to confide their school and church interests to the Catholic liberal, Mr. Laurier, rather than to the Protestant tory, Sir Charles Tupper. The hierarchy appealed with characteristic violence to their religious enthusiasm and loyalty, going so far in Quebec as to denounce from the pulpit the liberal candidates, but the result has shown the Catholics have refused to take political directions from their bishops. In only one province, New Brunswick, were the government forces successful, electing eight out of 14 members, and here the school question was least agitated.

The trade issue, though entering less directly into the campaign, probably is the more important, says the Chicago Tribune. The liberal victory can hardly fail to make Mr. Laurier premier, and he is an enthusiastic and outspoken advocate of union with the United States. All his speeches and writings show a strong tendency towards separation from Great Britain, and his sympathies commercially and politically are with the United States. This spirit has been injected strongly into the liberal forces. Moreover, the two other parties which have shown a prominence in the campaign and which have aided materially in the overthrow of the government showed a marked annexation tendency. The equal rights party, followers of Mr. Dalton McCarthy, an offshoot from the conservative forces in Ontario, is composed of men who have become disgusted with the corruption in the tory government, and who would welcome closer relations with the United States, although they have not yet come out openly for annexation. The patrons of industry, the populists of Canada, have been more in favor of independence than annexation, but in this campaign have shown a willingness to look with favor on a union with Uncle Sam. Undoubtedly an effort will be made at once to obtain some closer form of reciprocity with the United States. Probably much more will be asked than the United States will be willing to concede, for Canada would be the gainer in whatever measures of reciprocity between the two countries should be adopted. These will be interesting questions that will come before the next administration at Washington.

Chinese Are Very Jealous.

Those worshipers of beauty, the Chinese, are a terribly jealous folk. When any of their wives are indisposed they fasten a silk thread round her wrist, the end of which is given to the physician, and it is only by the motion which the pulsation communicates to it that he is allowed to judge the state of his patient. This precaution of jealousy is unique.

SPORTS

THURSDAY, August 13. Sun rises 5 a. m., sets 7:11 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:11 p. m. and 4 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

W. H. Rogers has just received a shipment of '95 Spaldings, re-enameled maroon.

Mr. White, of this city, will take part in the coasting contest to be held at Montclair on Saturday.

Frank Eick has returned to his work in the bicycle repair shop of W. H. Rogers, after his recent accident.

Wyatt E. Barnes, of Norwood avenue, rode down to Asbury Park early this morning and expects to return this evening.

Leonard Randolph, of Newark, rode over last night on his wheel and spent the evening at the home of A. B. Dunavan, of Plainfield avenue.

Great preparations are being made by the Victor Wheelmen for their annual 25-mile road race which will be held over the Fanwood-Scotch Plains course on Thursday, August 20th.

A transparency has been flung to the breeze on North avenue near the Press office. On it is inscribed the words: "A triplet race will be a feature at the meet of the Atlanta Wheelmen at Waverly on Aug. 22d.

The New Jersey Athletic Club's crack team of cyclists, Walter Roome, W. Darmer, Seitz, Jasper, Livingston, Waller, O'Holleran, Hunter and Sanford, will compete in the two open handicap cycle races in the club's Labor Day sports.

The effort of A. W. W. Evans, of New Brunswick, a member of the New York Yacht Club and a crack wheelman, to break the 200-mile road record on Monday, was a failure. He had a bad fall due to a collision with his pacers. His wheel collapsed twice, and finally a punctured tire compelled him to give up the attempt after riding 175 miles.

C. M. Hall, a noted long distance and speedy rider, of Chicago, passed through this city Monday enroute for Philadelphia. Several days ago he completed a ride from Chicago to New York, a distance of 1,086 miles in 10 days, 22 hours and 19 minutes. He was riding against the record between the two places, but on account of bad roads, several mishaps to his wheel and other misadventures, Hall was not able to break the record.

The second series of the general runs of the Y. M. C. A. Cycling League will be held this evening. The Summit Y. M. C. A. will be the one to entertain, and the remembrance of their treatment on another occasion is enough to insure a big attendance. The local Y. M. C. A. cyclists expect to turn out in large numbers as the spin over the Summit is a delightful one. They will start from the Y. M. C. A. building at 7 o'clock and every member is urged to participate.

Chairman Gideon of the L. A. W., has issued his weekly bulletin. There are a large number of suspensions among whom are L. R. Lefferson, Ocean Grove, N. J.; George Reith, New York City; W. A. Hawkins, Red Bank, N. J., all known in this city. They are suspended for sixty days from August 5th for false entry. All three have ridden on the Crescent Oval. Among the sanctions granted are those to the Red Bank Wheelmen and St. Patrick's church of Elizabeth, both for September 7.

A good many men are bothered about the etiquette of the road with respect to salutations, especially to women. Last year, when most riders were novices, it was well understood that no man need lift his hat on meeting a woman of his acquaintance. Nowadays, however, so many men are expert riders and can go about "hands off" as well as on, that those who cannot do so are put in an awkward position sometimes when, while riding, they wish to be particularly deferential. More than one young man has come to grief in the cause of gallantry because he felt that he could not remain covered in the presence of a woman he knew, forgetting at the same time that neither could he retain an upright position on his wheel unless he had both hands on the handlebar. As a matter of fact, even those who write about rules of etiquette have kept of the subject of the proprieties of the bicycle, and it is a safe assumption that there are none that is in conflict with prudent riding. The man who bends his head over until he can reach his hat without relinquishing his hold on the handlebar in greeting a woman has only contributed to the list of things that had been better left undone.

"Boys will be boys," but you can't afford to lose any of them. Be ready for the green apple season by having DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure in the house. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

AROUND THE BASES.

Next Saturday afternoon the crack Murray Hill baseball team will meet the Y. M. C. A. team in this city. The former have defeated the N. J. A. C. and the Staten Island A. C., and are considered one of the strongest semi-professional teams in this section. All Plainfielders who love the National game should attend and help the Plainfielders.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Jed Smalley, of Craig place, has brought his trotter Frank home after a stay at the Greenbrook Kennels.

Samuel Hall, of Perth Amboy, has arranged a match race between his gray horse, which has a record of 2:26, and J. W. Johnson's St. Albans and William T. Brock's Actor, for Saturday afternoon at the Gentlemen's Driving Park.

Triumph of Game Protection.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The constitutionality of certain laws pertaining to the better protection of game having been contested in the Connecticut Courts and from there to the United States Supreme Court, which Court upholds the laws enacted by the State as follows: First, That it is constitutional to allow the killing of, and the acquiring of property rights in game, and yet the prohibiting of its transportation without the limits of the State. Second, That the State has the power to regulate the killing of game within her limits and to prohibit the export of game so killed. Third, That the State may accord its own citizens certain uses of and benefits from its property and deny the same to citizens of other States. With these important matters so settled we trust for the re-enactment of "An act for the protection of game and game fish," which was approved April 4th, 1878, and repealed February 28th, 1893. As our game, our farmers and our landowners need protection from the hordes of the unscrupulous gunners who come from New York and Philadelphia and over run our fields and woods every fall.

Harness Thieves at Work.

The farmers of Union County will do well to keep their stable doors well locked, for there is evidently an organized band of harness thieves going through the county. Thursday and Saturday night barns in Scotch Plains were broken open and only harness taken. Monday night parts of harness were taken from the barn of William Schoonover, on the county road, near Westfield. Last night the barn on the Bidman place, between Westfield and Springfield, was broken into and a harness taken, and the carriage house of William Grube, near Union, was also broken into and several blankets, a whip and double harness taken.

The Farmer Orator Heard Him.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Nothing can belittle the great demonstration and ovation that greeted Mr. Bryan at Madison Square Garden last night. It was a most dignified and earnest gathering of men—intent, eager and enthusiastic. He who dare call such a gathering of citizens Anarchistic is but foolhardy, and insults American citizenship and manhood. It is a contest of manhood against combined wealth. J. E. Martine.

THE DUNHAM REUNION.

V., Clarkson C., George H and Charles E. They were all married except Jane, who died at the age of ten months. Daniel V. married Elizabeth Dunn, and brought her to this farm, a bride. To them were born six children. He was a soldier and served his country with the nine-months volunteers, who in the fall of 1862 were accepted for nine months. He left his plough in the furrow and bade his family good bye to help put down the Rebellion. He was spared to return home. Soon after his return, his brothers and sisters, with their families, made him a surprise. Well do we remember, as he met us where we now stand, his face all aglow, saying, "I surrender" This was indeed a happy reunion: Father, mother, brothers and sisters, an unbroken band. Brother Daniel had returned from the battle-field without a scratch, although somewhat impaired in health. He died May 30th, 1865, in the fortieth year of his age. As far back as the Declaration of Independence, the Dunhams have been known to be loyal to their country. About three years ago there was published in Harper's Monthly Magazine an article mentioning one Captain Azariah Dunham (a branch of this family) assembling the people at New Brunswick to hear the Declaration of Independence read; also of Captain George Dunham being present. It was first read at Trenton, then in New Brunswick, afterwards at New York Of the family of George Dunham, only four sons are living, twenty grandchildren and twelve great-grandchildren; the greater number having gone to their heavenly home, holding their reunions where parting is unknown. MARRIED IN SECRET.

A Young Couple Finally Announce Their Marriage and Come to Plainfield.

There was complete astonishment in an Elizabeth household on Fay avenue last Sunday evening when a niece of the family announced that she had been married ever since May 30th. The young woman in question was formerly Miss Carrie Harkins, but she is now Mrs. William Barry. Her husband lives in this city. They have been keeping company for some time, but no one thought that they had been married.

The reason of the announcement was that Mrs. Barry's uncle and aunt began to talk last Sunday of moving to Jersey City and then the niece informed the rest that on last Decoration Day she had gone to Woodbridge with Barry, and they were married by Rev. Mr. Clark, of that place.

The marriage was kept secret until Barry could get suitable work and make a home for his wife. Last night the bride and bridegroom came to this city to live. She is 18 and he 23 years old. He is employed by M. I. Cooley, of Rockview avenue, as coachman.

HEARD FROM AT LAST.

After Several Months Absence Mark Doud Discloses His Identity.

Sometime ago ex-Marshal Mark Doud, of the borough, left town, and his many friends and acquaintances did not know of his whereabouts. It was generally supposed that his parents knew where he was, but they did not, and occasionally he was reported as being at certain places. Yesterday his mother received a letter from him from Central City, Col. Mr. Doud states that he has been at the above place since May, and that he has a good position, though he did not tell what he is working at. He expresses no intention of returning home and seems to be satisfied with his surroundings.

Progressive Euchre at the Revere House

The third progressive euchre party given at the Revere House last evening was a delightful affair, and a great success under the able management of Mrs. George B. DeRevere, assisted by Mrs. Henry Brevoort. The first lady's prize was won by Miss Maud B. Fowler; second lady's prize by Mrs. Quincy Boese; S. A. Brevoort won first gentleman's prize and J. Hamilton Jaffray, Jr., second gentleman's prize. The lady's consolation prize was awarded to Mrs. P. H. Heiskell and the gentleman's consolation prize to Herbert C. Plass. After the game refreshments were served at small tables on the veranda, while at the same time all enjoyed the strains of music that floated from the parlors.

DAMAGE BY LIGHTNING

SEVERAL BUILDINGS STRUCK DURING LAST NIGHT'S STORM.

The Storm Brought Cooler Weather, However, Which Was Greatly Appreciated—The Extent of the Damage.

The backbone of the hot wave that has been in full sway over this part of the country for nearly two weeks is at last broken, and the poor perspiring humanity has, at last, found temporary relief. The storm that brought this period of unprecedented hot spell to a close, was a thunder storm of the most violent kind. All last night a storm seemed to overhang the Watchung mountains and threaten, at every moment, to sweep down on the city. Long banks of clouds of that ugly black type appeared above the horizon as the sun set. Gradually the stars became obscured, but it was not until 1:30 o'clock this morning that the rain began to fall. Incessant lightning preceded the storm.

How it did rain! The clouds fairly emptied themselves all at once, while heavy crashes of thunder followed each other incessantly. The lightning flashes were constant and very brilliant, and seemed to be everywhere. The fuses in the telegraph and telephone offices were burned out, temporarily disabling both systems. It was one of the most severe electrical storms seen here in a long time.

Plainfield did not escape from the lightning that flashed so blindingly. One bolt struck a terra cotta ornament on the southern end of the Hart building on Park avenne, splintering it and scattering the debris all over the house and lawn of Dr. Long who resides next door. Mrs. George Odiorne and Mrs. Louis C. Dunn, who reside in the flats, both received a shock, while Dr. Long also felt it slightly. Some of the solder on the roof was also melted. The concussion was something terrific, and little Jessie Stevens, who resides there, declared that it looked like the Fourth of July because she saw so many pin wheels.

So far as can be learned there was only one place in the borough that was damaged, and that was the house on Manning avenve just off of Somerset street, occupied by Theodore Vroom, the sign painter. The lightning struck a top story side window, tearing the blinds and sash into splinters. The glass in the window was broken into a thousand pieces, and the plastering on both the ceiling and walls was cracked to a considerable depth.

In an adjoining room the walls were also cracked. Mr. Vroom's hired man slept in the latter room and very perceptibly felt the shock. He experienced a tingling sensation in his feet which caused him to scream. There is no place in evidence where the electric fluid made an exit, and no other damage can be found. Mr. Vroom and family were all thoroughly shocked at the time. Borough Clerk Arnold, who lives opposite, was awake at the time and distinctly saw the bolt which struck Mr. Vroom's house.

J. T. Vail, who has insurance on the place, called this morning at the house and made an adjustment of the damage.

Several large trees on the mountain were splintered by the electric bolts. There was very little wind, however.

A milkman from Washington Valley came to town this morning and reported that during the shower, last evening, a bolt of lightning struck his house, tore off a few shingles and then glanced off, striking the gable end of his story-and-a half barn. Fortunately however, no one was seriously injured except from shock.

Moody Will Be Here.

Preparations for the Christian Endeavor Convention are fast being completed. The latest news is that Rev. D. L. Moody will be present during the convention week and hold evangelistic services before and during the convention. The following are the chairmen of the various committees, which also comprise the '96 committee: Transportation, E. E. Anthony; finance, Herbert Bonnell; music, William MacClymont; hall and decoration, H. W. Marshall; entertainment, J. G. MacLaughlin; reception, H. J. Martin; ushers, Harold Serrell; evangelistic, Miss F. G. Hawkins; press, Miss E. V. Fish; Juniors, Mrs. W. S. Lowry; printing and secretary of '96 committee, J. M. Hawkins; pastors' advisory, Revs. C. E. Herring, J. W. Richardson, A. I. Martine.

Press Committee.

Stole Wagon Wheels.

Some person or persons effected an entrance last evening in the barn located on West Second street, owned by George Leland and stole five wagon wheels belonging to him. Mr. Leland has not the slightest idea who committed the act, but if the guilty ones are caught they will get the full penalty.

THE TROLLEY PARTY TONIGHT.

It Will Be For All and Will Start at 8 O'Clock.

The trolley party has become famous in all cities and towns where the system of electric street railways is extensive and Plainfield is in a fair way to follow the other's example. For a long time, Superintendent Adelman has been requested to get up a public trolley party, and as has been already stated in The Daily Press, the affair will be held this evening. Three of the commodious open cars will start from the North Avenue station at 8 o'clock. One car will contain the Plainfield Cornet Band, and the other two will be for those who care to pay the regular fare. All of the company's lines will be covered and the cars will stop occasionally to allow the band to serenade the residents in the vicinity. The route will be from the station to Netherwood, to Dunellen, back through Front street to Monroe and Union avenues to the end of the Somerset street line and then back to the station again.

If sufficient patronage is given, Superintendent Adelman says that he will hold one every Friday night or possibly on every Tuesday and Friday nights. Such an arrangement would certainly add much to the pleasure of the summer evenings.

The Jamesburg Convention.

The time for the Sunday-school convention at Jamesburg is drawing near and the arrangements are rapidly nearing completion. Goodwin's celebrated band is expected to enliven the day with music, while Harry Goodwin has been engaged to play some cornet solos from the platform. Those who remember the dust of last year will be pleased to hear that arrangements are being made to thoroughly sprinkle the woods. New trees have been set out and grass sown around the pavilion. Wikoff & Co.'s ice cream will be served in great quantities, while the dinner is famous for variety and excellence. August 26th should be set aside by all for pleasure and profit in Wigwam Grove, Jamesburg.

Holding Their Annual Picnic.

The sixteenth annual picnic of the Patrons of Husbandry of Essex, Morris and Union counties, is being held at Tuttle's Grove, Swinefield Bridge, beginning yesterday and continuing for two days. The programme includes speaking each afternoon. On Thursday Professor E. B. Voorhees talked on "Milk Productions," while H. W. Collingwood, editor of The Rural New Yorker, addressed the farmers on the question "What Are You Farming For?" The speakers billed for today were John T. Cox, master of the State Grange, and Franklin Dye, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture.

Looking for Law Breakers.

President John Goff, of the Plainfield Branch of the New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society, with headquarters in the Babcock building this city, is almost daily receiving complaints to the effect that game and fish laws are being violated with impunity. Out of respect for the law, if for no other reason, these evil doers should be apprehended and brought to justice. When is taken into consideration the fact that the Association has gone to considerable time and expense in "planting the seed" for propogation purposes the law should and will be maintained whatever the result may be.

A Success.

The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company is flourishing at Somerville. They have already eighty-seven subscribers and the system is being equipped with the new metallic arrangements. Chas. W. Runyon, manager in this city, has been down there overseeing the setting of the poles.

Another Car Wanted.

The people of this city who go to places along the Jersey coast find that the one coach which is added to the 2:07 afternoon train is inadequate for comfort and think that the Central Railroad Company should place an additional coach in service.

Made a Change.

Oliver P. Vosseller, of East Second street, a brother of the late ex-County Clerk James S. Vosseller, has always been a staunch Democrat. This morning he appeared on the street wearing a McKinley button, which fact surprised his friends.

NEW INDUSTRY PLANNED

THE SESKALSKI BICYCLE MANUFACTURING CO. TO LOCATE HERE.

So Says Count VanNess and He States That He Has Sold the Company a Tract of Land on East Front Street.

Plainfield is soon to have another manufacturing industry, and the the plans for the same are well under way. According to Count J. K. VanNess, the New York lawyer, the Seskalski Bicycle Manufacturing Company, composed exclusively of New York capitalists, has purchased a tract of land from him situated on East Front street near Raymond avenue, and will soon begin the erection of extensive shops for the manufacture of bicycle supplies. The site has a frontage of 500 feet on East Front street and a depth of about 1,000 feet. A comfortable and commodious building of yellow pine is to be erected, and will be known as a "wheelmen's rest." For the latter named purpose a more desirable spot, probably, could not be selected, and as for manufacturing purposes, while it is some distance from the railroad, it is the intention of the company to run a spur line so as to connect with the New Jersey Central at a point near the Terrill road crossing.

The projectors of the new scheme, the Count asserts, will manufacture a new German invention, whereby bicycles can be propelled without the ordinary chain running gear, and known as the "calm" invention. The company will also manufacture a new electric bicycle and electrical carriages. The concern, the Count also says, is backed by a capital of a million dollars or more, and the work on the new building will begin early in the fall.

There is still another thing which capitalists propose to do and that is to lay out a half-mile bicycle track on the grounds which will be second to none in the country.

Plainfield needs many such enterprises as this, and owners of real estate should offer every inducement to get them to locate here. Practically speaking Plainfield is a city of homes, and until the Potter and Scott Printing Machine Works came here, Plainfield was unknown as a manufacturing centre, but today its reputation for manufacturing certain mechanical apparatus is known the world over.

A Lively Battle.

The case of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals against James Barry was tried yesterday before Justice Newcorn. The facts of the case are that Mrs. Traynor owned a goat and Joseph Green possessed a dog which was in charge of James Barry. Mrs. Traynor claimed that Barry set the dog on the goat, injuring the animal very much, while Barry claims that the dog ran after the goat and before he could remove the dog, the goat received several wounds. After hearing both sides of the case Justice Newcorn reserved his decision until Monday.

A Good Appointment.

H. P. Frothingham, secretary of the New Jersey State Fish and Game Commissioners, notified Israel D. TenEyck, of the Hotel Grenada, today that at a meeting of the Board of Commissioners, held on Tuesday last, he was appointed a deputy fish and game warden of the State. Mr. TenEyck has since received his commission and will at once enter on his duties. Now let violators of the law look out.

Death By Sunstroke.

William J. R. Thiers, formerly of this city, father of Dr. Charles R. Thiers, of Grove street, died in Bellevue Hospital, New York, Wednesday, a few minutes after he had been admitted there suffering from sunstroke. He was seventy-one years of age. The remains were brought to this city last evening, and from here conveyed to New Brunswick where the funeral was held at noon today.

"Boys will be boys," but you can't afford to lose any of them. Be ready for the green apple season by having DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure in the house. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

AN IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

THE LAST SAD RITES OF THE LATE ELIAS R. POPE.

Were Held at His Late Residence on Park Avenue Yesterday Afternoon and Were Largely Attended by All Classes.

Imposing and solemn were the funeral services of the late Hon. Elias R. Pope, whose life and actions were felt in nearly every channel of Plainfield's public affairs.

The high and low, the rich and poor thronged the house yesterday afternoon from 2 o'clock until 5 o'clock, the hour of the services, to look for the last time on the form of one whose influence was a marked factor in the lives of many Plainfield people. As one after another stood by the bier feelings of sadness would arise and would seem to almost overwhelm those who had learned to love and admire the decedent for his true worth, and there is scarcely a person who knew E. R. Pope that didn't admire him.

During the hour of the services business was practically suspended, most of the stores were closed, and citizens joined in mutual sorrow with the bereaved ones in their severe loss. An impressive sight was witnessed shortly before 5 o'clock when the directors and officers of the First, City and Dime Savings' Banks entered the saddened home and occupied seats in the parlor.

A quartette consisting of Mrs. Asa Collier, Mrs. Frank Hubbard, Andrew J. Gavett and E. E. Runyon rendered in a most touching manner a chant entitled "Thy Will Be Done." Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis then read a series of Scripture selections particularly fitting to the occasion. This was followed with an affecting prayer to the Throne of Grace by Rev. Mr. Peterson, pastor of the New Market Seventh-Day Baptist church, of which the decedent had been a member since he was thirteen years of age. Rev. Dr. Lewis then spoke in part as follows:

"A most certain thing is the uncertainity of life. This hour teaches us that lesson, as everyone present is in sympathy and sorrow. Who knows what heart may be stilled tomorrow? Dear friends, if physical life was all, it were better not to live. Life does not consist in physical strength, nor in telling the rounds of the season. Life never ceases, it consists of deeds, thoughts, actions and attainments. God is all helpfulness and our lives are measured by the helpfulness which is in them, It is that which makes burdens light for others that counts. Our departed brother's life measures high. The hush of business, the presence of so many business men, and the crowds that have called to look on the face of one whom they loved, testifies highly. A single sentence spoken by two laboring men, (I only use the term accommodatively for our brother was a laboring man), as they were resting by the curb on the street the other day, as I passed, and their faces looked troubled. One of the men addressed me and said, 'Many a man in Plainfield feels as though he has lost his best friend.' It was strong testimony from the curb.

"There are two characteristics in the life of E. R. Pope of which I wish to speak. First, he had a judicial cast of mind, which few people have. Educated for the bar he could have filled with great credit a place on the bench. He was calm when others were excited. His unobtrusiveness made him appear not as a man of power, though he had power. Secondly, he was ready to help.

"I went to New Market this afternoon to look over the old church records at that place, and nearly every page bears the name of John Pope, father of our departed brother. I noticed that on February 13th, 1849, while in his thirteenth year, our brother was baptized at the New Market church by Rev. Mr. Gillette. When I came here, Mr. Pope told me that he was a member of the New Market church, which was his mother's church, and he would retain his membership there. He did so, though he attended my church regularly.

"It is the character back of life that counts. The elements of character founded on Christianity made Mr. Pope's life one worthy of trust. Business men I make a plea to you for a stronger introduction of Christ into your business, its the only thing that stands.

"Last Sunday the Seventh-Day Baptist Memorial Board met. Mr. Pope was treasurer of the board for twenty-five years, and his annual report was presented as usual, but for the first time during the quarter of a century he was absent from the meeting. The board has a

A LONG AND ESTIMABLE LIFE ENDED

Mrs. Sarah M. Sandford Quietly Passes Away at the Home of Her Son.

Peaceful and quiet were the last moments of Mrs. Sarah M. Sandford last evening as she lay in her room at the home of her son, William H. Sandford, of 343 Sandford avenue. And then after a life filled with kindness and goodwill, she passed quietly away to that better land far beyond the grave. Mrs. Sandford was one of the oldest residents of this city, and was very well known by the older citizens. She was in her ninety third year at the time of her death. Death did not come unexpectedly as she has been slowly failing in health for some time. At one time during last winter, Mrs. Sandford was taken out for a drive over the icy roads and enjoyed the afternoon very much She has not been able to go out since. She was very weak yesterday and the family knew that the end was near at hand. At 9:30 o'clock she fell into a deep sleep, from which she never awakened.

Mrs. Sandford was born near Rahway in 1804. She afterwards resided in this city with her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Webster, until sixty-two years ago when she married the late Charles Sandford. They afterwards moved to New York where they remained until the death of Mr. Sandford in 1874. Mrs. Sandford outlived all of the Webster family ten years. She had three sons, W. H. Sandford, of East Front street. J. W. Sandford, of West Seventh street, and the late Chas. Sandford, of North Plainfield. Mrs. Sandford's character was a very beautiful one and she was greatly beloved by all who knew her. She was a member of the Watchung Avenue Friends Society by birth and always attended Friends services in this city until she became to ill to go. Her death was not caused by disease but she simply faded away. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed. J. W. Sandford and family are now at Poland Springs, Maine. They have been telegraphed for and are expected this evening.

The remains of the late Mrs. Sandford will be enterred at Greenwood Cemetery Brooklyn.

"Mind Your Own Business."

The above title has been given to a new social organization in this city, and last evening the society gave its first grand concert and mid-summer nights festival at the Jersey Cycle Academy. The attendance was fair considering the extreme heat, and everything passed off pleasantly and harmoniously. The Plainfield Cornet Band gave a concert during the early evening hours, and this was followed by dancing in which some eighty or more couples participated. But as one of the fair waltzers remarked: "No use of talking, it's too warm to dance."

An Increased Attendance.

The bazaar and fair, for the benefit of a proposed colored industrial school in the South, which has been in progress in Central Hall for the past two evenings, had an increased attendance last night. The receipts from the sale of cake, candy and soft liquids were quite large, and during the evening there was both vocal and instrumental music. The fair will continue this evening, and the managers hope for even a larger attendance than either of the preceding nights.

Another Annual Meeting.

The State Camp of the Patriotic Order Sons of America, of this State, will meet in annual session at Perth Amboy next Wednesday. It is probable that Harry Tilton, of Trenton, the present State Vice-President, will be elected State President. There has been four camps instituted in the State during the past year, and a good increase made in the membership. The Plainfield camp will be represented.

Justice Newcorn's Court.

In Justice Newcorn's court yesterday the case of the Plainfield Beef Company against Smalley was tried and judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff. In the same court summons has been issued in the case of Green against Ross, returnable August 19th.

Levied on a Brickyard.

Constable W. R. Mattox went to Berkely Heights yesterday and levied on the only brickyard in that section of the country, to satisfy a claim. The owner of the yard made a partial payment of the claim, so further proceedings were discontinued.

If you have ever seen a little child in the agony of summer complaint, you can realize the danger of the trouble and appreciate the value of instantaneous relief always afforded by DeWitt's Colic & Cholera Cure. For dysentery and diarrœa it is a reliable remedy. We could not afford to recommend this as a cure unless it were a cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

A THOUSAND IN PRIZES.

DETAILS OF PLAINFIELD'S DAYLIGHT BICYCLE CARNIVAL.

General Committee Met Last Evening and Arranged the Prizes Besides Making Other Plans—Coasting Contest to be Held

September fifth will be a day not to be forgotten by the wheelmen of the metropolitan district and by all the people of this part of New Jersey, for that day they will see the largest and most elaborately decorated bicycle parade that has ever been held in this part of the country. It will be the occasion of Plainfield's great daylight bicycle carnival, which will begin at 3:30 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday September 5.

The carnival is not merely a wild scheme in the beams of a few enthusiasts but a recognized fact, supported by the leading men of this city and North Plainfield. The general committee in charge of the carnival, which is composed of a number of the representative wheelmen and business men of this city, was organized a week ago as was told in the Daily Press at the time. Last night, the committee met at the rooms of the Board of Trade in the Babcock building and made the most important arrangements for the affair. In connection with the parade, there will also be a coasting contest in the morning of the same day.

The meeting last evening was largely attended and everyone who came was as enthusiastic as the warm weather would permit. Of course the question of finances is the all important one but the finance committe made its report through its enterprising chairman, Edward White, and the outlook was exceeding favorable. J. A. Haynes, chairman of the transportation committe, reported that the Jersey Central Railroad had consented to give a special rate to parties of ten or more, the rate being two cents a mile for each passenger. Ample provision will be made by the same company for carrying wheels. The other companies could only report progress as they needed instructions from the general committee before they could do anything definite.

To make a success of the parade it will be necessary to offer good prizes of substantial value and the committee thoroughly realized the fact. After a long discussion, a list of twenty-one prizes was made up with an aggregate value of $1000. Think of it, $1000 worth of prizes! What the prizes are to consist of will be decided upon by the committee.

The prizes selected are as follows: For the club having the largest number in line, first, second and third; for the best uniformed club, first and second; for the best appearing military wheeling organization, first and second; for the most handsomely decorated gentleman's wheel, first and second; for the most handsomely decorated lady's wheel, first and second, for the best burlesque get up, first and second; for the best decorated juvenile wheel, first and second; for the best decorated tandem, first and second; for the best decorated business float, first and second.

The prizes are going to be well worth trying for and the prize committee is now hard at work selecting them.

Should rain appear on the day of the Carnival, it will be postponed one week. The task of inviting the bicycle clubs within a radius of fifty miles of Plainfield is no small one, but such is the intention of the committee. Already a number have been heard from including some of the largest clubs and favorable answers received, but the committee tried to have a varied prize list so that all might have a chance.

Of course, the parade is by no means only for clubs, and the vast army of unattached wheelmen will receive the same care and courtesy as the members of regular organizations.

At the close of the general committee meeting the members of the parade committee were called together and this meeting was even more enthusiastic than the first. The committee decided to begin the Carnival on the morning of September 5th, with a coasting contest on Watchung avenue hill. The hill is steep, straight, and the roadway is in good condition. It will be looked after, however, before the time and specially prepared.

Like the parade, the coasting contest will be open to all wheelmen. Single wheels only will be allowed in the contest, however. There will be an entrance fee of 25 cents to the coasting contest and each contestant will be allowed to enter as many times as he wishes on payment of the entrance fee each time. Four handsome and valuable prizes will be offered to the four cyclists that do the best.

BRYAN NEEDS REST

Will Spend Sunday at the Home of Mr. Sewall.

MRS. BRYAN IS ALSO FATIGUED

Will Leave for Boston This Afternoon, Where They Will Spend the Night, Continuing Their Journey to Bath, Me., To-morrow.

New York, Aug. 14.—It was announced at democratic headquarters this morning that Mr. Bryan would probably leave this afternoon for Boston, where he would spend the night, and to-morrow go to Bath, Me., and spend Sunday at the residence of Mr. Sewall. The democratic nominee is reported to be greatly fatigued, and Mrs. Bryan is also in need of rest. A quiet Sunday at Bath, it is expected, would be greatly beneficial to both. Whether Mr. Bryan intends to do campaign work in New England at this time is not stated. A committee from Asbury Park, N. J., called at democratic headquarters last evening with an invitation to Mr. and Mrs. Bryan to visit Asbury Park. Senator Jones had a conference during the afternoon in his room in the Fifth Avenue hotel with leaders of the democratic party. Among those present were Senators Gorman and Tillman, Gov. Stone of Missouri and Vice-Presidential Candidate Sewall. After the meeting Mr. Jones informed the United Associated Press reporter that nothing had been done in the way of appointing committees or in relation to securing headquarters for the campaign.

Mrs. Bryan's Reception.

New York, Aug. 14.—Only a few women responded to the invitation to meet Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Bland at a reception held for women only in the parlors of the Windsor hotel, at Forty-sixth street and Fifth avenue, yesterday afternoon, because the reception had not been properly announced, and many who would have attended failed to receive notification of the intended reception. At 4 o'clock, the hour originally set, only twenty-three women were waiting in the handsomely furnished parlors. Half an hour later Mr. St. John escorted Mrs. Bryan, Mrs. Bland and Mrs. Stewart to the room and the women flocked around them. There was a kind of formal handshaking, and then the rest of the reception hour was passed in informal chatting.

Bryan's Speech Criticized.

New York, Aug. 14.—Ex-Gov. Cornell has addressed an open letter to Wm. J. Bryan expressing great disappointment at the Madison Square garden speech of the democratic nominee. He charges that the message was simply an ingeniously appropriated presentation of the various arguments heretofore read in congressional debates during the past twenty-five years. He gives as his excuse for thus addressing him the belief that the approval of Mr. Bryan's views at the approaching election would bring calamity which it is impossible to apprehend.

GLASS-WORKERS' WAGES.

Two Conferences Adjourn Without Reaching a Solution of the Question.

Pittsburg, Aug. 14.—The wage-scale conference between the Western Flint Bottle association and representatives of the American Flint Glass Workers' union has adjourned without date, having failed to arrive at an amicable agreement on the wage scale. The workmen withdrew their demand for the restoration of the '92-'93 wage scale, which is about 7 per cent. above last year's rate. The manufacturers reduced their demand for a reduction of 40 per cent. to 33 1-3 per cent. This the workers refused, and no time was set for another conference. It is believed, however, that a satisfactory adjustment will be effected. The conference at Cresson Springs between the National Green Bottle Manufacturers' association and the Green Glass Blowers' league on the new wage scale also failed to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion and adjourned without fixing a date for another conference.

Another Filibuster Sails.

Savanah, Ga., Aug. 14.—A special from Brunswick, Ga., says: Beyond reasonable doubt, the Brunswick tug Dauntless is enroute to Cuban waters with a filibustering expedition, consisting of about 100 men and several hundred cases of small arms. The Spanish and United States government officers have been greatly exercised, and United States Marshal Harrell arrived here last night to aid in stopping it, but was powerless.

Wyoming Republicans.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 14.—The Wyoming republican convention, after two hours' discussion in committee over a satisfactory plank, adopted the following: We favor the free coinage of gold and silver into standard money as expressed in our former platforms under such legislation as will guarantee that all our money shall remain on an equality. This is apparently satisfactory to both the gold and silver faction in the state.

Senator Lindsay Prostrated by Heat.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 14.—Senator Lindsay suffered something like a collapse as the result of the extreme heat at his residence here, and for some time was alarmingly ill. He is much better this morning and is considered out of danger.

800 Hands Temporarily Idle.

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 14.—The Waterbury Clock company closed its works last night for ten days, throwing 800 operatives out of employment.

DR. NANSEN RETURNING HOME

Failure of Another Attempt To Reach the North Pole.

London, Aug. 14.—Advices from Malmo confirm the report that Dr. Fridthof Nansen is returning from his attempt to reach the North Pole by drifting to it in a steamer. He is, as the St. James' Gazette dispatch states, at Vardoe. He is accompanied by Lieut. Hansen. They left the steamer Fram, in which Dr. Nansen expected to be carried by the drifting ice to and across the pole, last autumn. The expedition failed to reach the object of its search, but it got four degrees further north than did any previous expedition.

All Reported Well.

Vardoe, Aug. 14.—Dr. Nansen, the Arctic explorer, arrived here last evening. He says that his expedition attained one of its objects in traversing the Polar sea to a point northward of the New Siberian islands, namely, to latitude 86 degrees 14 minutes north. No land was sighted north of latitude 82 degrees. After reaching the parallel of 86:14 the expedition went south to Franz Joseph's land, where it spent the winter, the members subsisting on bear's flesh and blubber. Dr. Nansen arrived here on the steamer Windward, which is conveying provisions to the Jackson-Harmsworth expedition. The explorer is perfectly well. The Fram is expected to arrive at Vardoe or Bergen in a short time. All was well aboard of her when Dr. Nansen left her. Thus ends another attempt to penetrate the secret of the icy north.

OVERWORKED ENGINEERS.

Physical Collapse of Two Naval Officers Causes a Subject for Serious Thought.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The alarming news received at the navy department telling of the physical collapse of chief engineer George E. Tower and passed assistant engineer Andrew McAllister, both of the battleship Indiana, gave rise in the minds of naval officers on duty here to the question whether in the care of our warships the danger line had not been crossed in the attempt of the overworked naval engineers to carry on the exacting duties required of them. The North Atlantic squadron has now had only nine days of grand manoeuvres, and during that short period the efficiency of the most powerful battleship in the fleet has been temporarily impaired, two of the four naval engineers attached to the vessel having been condemned by medical survey and sent to the Naval hospital for treatment. "It is not surprising," said a prominent official to-day, "that this repeated tale of the prostration of naval engineers is heard from our warships. In the British service there are one-half as many engineers as deck officers, while in the American navy there are only one-fourth as many engineers as there are officers of the line. The physical history of the corps of naval engineers during the past two years is a sad one, and it emphasizes the fact that not only must the number of engineers be increased, but their condition should be improved in order to render the ships efficient for the day of battle. The engineers are now working under an organization which was founded upon the necessities of wooden ships, but which is not adapted to vessels of steel."

Carriage Trade Failure.

Cortland, N. Y., Aug. 14.—The H. M. Whitney, company, manufacturers of fine carriage, was closed by the sheriff yesterday on six executions aggregating $31,442 in favor of the National bank of Cortland and the First National bank of Cortland. The company's assets largely exceed its liabilities. The embarrassment was due solely to falling off of orders and inability to raise money to meet current obligations.

Britannic Breaks Her Own Record.

New York, Aug. 14.—The White Star steamer Britannic yesterday broke her own record from Daunt's Rock to Sandy Hook lightship by three hours and twenty-three minutes. Her best previous passage was made in seven days, ten hours and fifty-three minutes, some fifteen years ago, and the trip just ended was made in seven days, seven hours and thirty minutes.

Illinois People's Party.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 14.—The new state central committee of the people's party organized by selecting Herman E. Taubeneck of Marshall, chairman; Charles E. Palmer, Noble, secretary; S. B. V. Arnold, Springfield, treasurer. Headquarters will be established in Springfield. A committee was appointed to confer with Chairman Hinrichsen regarding the plans of the campaign.

Victims Now Number Five.

Pittsburg, Aug. 14.—The body of Amiel Sheffer, aged 14, a victim of yesterday's storm, was taken from Pine creek, near Etna, last evening. The body of a man supposed to have been drowned in the storm was discovered floating in the drift in the Allegheny river, near Sharpsburg. This makes five the total loss known.

Baron Fava Ordered to Washington.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 14.—In response to a message from the Italian government, Baron Fava, the Italian ambassador, left last night for Washington to inquire into the details of the reported Italian lynchings in New Orleans. Count and Countess Langier Villars returned last night from Newport.

Weyler and American Consuls.

Madrid, Aug. 14.—A special dispatch to the Imparcial from Havana says that Captain-General Weyler refuses to allow the new American consuls at Sagua and Cardenas to act until he receives their exequaturs.

EXISTENCE OF RABIES DOUBTED.

Physicians Say Fright Is at the Bottom of Nearly All Alleged Cases.

An interesting letter was issued the other day by the American Antivivisection society appealing to the public not to circulate sensational stories about alleged mad dogs and the terrible results of people being bitten by them. Such accounts, it states, frighten people into nervous disorders, and yet there is upon record a great mass of testimony from physicians asserting the extreme rarity of hydrophobia, even in the dog.

The letter quotes a number of prominent physicians in support of the theory that practically there is no such affliction to mankind as hydrophobia. Dr. Hiram Corson, late president of the Pennsylvania Medical society, who was 94 years old, wrote: "I have never seen a real case of hydrophobia."

Dr. Vrail Green, the eminent physician of Lafayette college, who is over 80 years old, writes: "I have never had a case of hydrophobia, nor have I ever seen a case."

Dr. Matthew Woods, who has been in quest of the disease for 20 years, asserts that he never saw hydrophobia in either man or animal, although six years ago he offered $100 reward to any person bringing him such a patient. He says further that he has never met a physician who had seen a case of the disease. Such distinguished physicians as Dr. Theophilus Parvin, Thomas G. Morton and Joseph W. Hearn say that fright is responsible for nearly all alleged cases of rabies.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Ambassador Bayard has bought a $500 horse from a duchess, and rides daily in Rotten row.

This summer marks the 25th anniversary of President Julius D. Dreher's connection with Roanoke college, Salem, Va.

When Herr Andree starts from Spitzbergen for the north pole in his balloon, it will be in the presence of a crowd of personally conducted excursionists, as the tourist agencies are advertising Spitzbergen tours for July.

It is rumored in English official circles that Prince Alexander of Teck is anxious to join the Soudan expedition. It is unlikely, however, in view of the death of Prince Henry of Battenberg, that he will be able to obtain the queen's consent.

Thomas G. Alvord, of Syracuse, so widely known as "Old Salt," is still an enthusiastic fisherman. "I caught my first fish," he said recently, "when I was about eight years old. I guess I have slaughtered a good many thousand since that time, for only six years ago I kept a record of my catch during one season, and it reached a total of 5,200."

Francis Joseph, who succeeded to the Austrian crown in 1848, has now outlived three heirs. From 1848 to 1858 his heir was his brother, Archduke Ferdinand Maximilian. From 1858 to 1889 his heir was his son, Archduke Rudolf. Then, till the other day, his heir was his brother, Archduke Charles Louis. Now his heir is his nephew, Archduke Francis Ferdinand.

Merit Talks

"Merit talks" the intrinsic value of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Merit in medicine means the power to cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses actual and unequalled curative power and therefore it has true merit. When you buy Hood's Sarsaparilla, and take it according to directions, to purify your blood, or cure any of the many blood diseases, you are morally certain to receive benefit. The power to cure is there. You are not taking an experiment. It will make your blood pure, rich and nourishing, and thus drive out the germs of disease, strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

Severe Case of Dyspepsia

"I suffered from dyspepsia 20 years. I had a feeling as though there was a lump in my stomach. I did not dare to eat meat or warm bread, very few vegetables, for fear of the great distress food caused me. I experienced relief right after commencing to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. My appetite increased, I gained in general health and strength. I can eat almost anything now without discomfort. Although I had been an invalid for twenty years, I can truthfully say that I am better than for a long time. I never weighed so much in my life." MRS. EMILY F. BUMP, 45 Portland Street, Middleboro, Mass.

Losing Flesh

You naturally lose flesh in the summer and running down is so easy. You get a little weaker each day without hardly noticing it. There is loss of appetite, headache, weakness of the muscles, disturbed sleep, weakness of memory, and these are the beginning of nervous prostration. Iron and tonics and bitters may afford some temporary relief, but what you need is a food for body, brain and nerves.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil with the Hypophosphites, furnishes just the nourishment needed for those who are run down and pale and thin and weak. If you lose flesh in summer take Scott's Emulsion now. Don't wait till fall or winter before beginning.

Close of an Important Meeting of International Committee.

NEXT WORLD'S CONFERENCE IN '98.

To Be Held at Basle, Switzerland in August—An Additional Secretary Chosen and a Number of Important Questions Considered.

Geneva, Aug. 14.—An important meeting of the central international committe of the Young Men's Christian association of the world closed its sessions in Geneva last night. It met Monday, Aug. 10, at the country home of M. Ernest Favre, a few miles from this city, and continued in session morning, afternoon and evening until last night. This committee is appointed by the world's convention, which represents all associations, now numbering over 5,700, with a total membership of 500,000, of which 1,000 associations with 235,000 members are in America. A quorum of the committee and its officers are located in Geneva. The American members of the committee are Messrs. James Stokes and Richard C. Morse of New York. The British members are Sir George Williams and W. H. Mills of London. The Swedish member is Prince Oscar Bernadotte, son of the King of Norway and Sweden, and each other country has one member. In addition to the resident members of the committee there were in attendance Thomas K. Cree, secretary of the international committee, New York; W. H. Mills, London; Herr Krumacher, Eberfeld; Emanuel Sautter, Paris; Cavaliere Piovinelli, Rome; Sarisou Warnery, Basle; Dr. Karl Fries, Stockholm; Count von Bernatoff and Baron Rothkiche, Berlin. Encouraging reports of the work in various countries were presented by the different representatives, showing marked progress since the jubilee celebration in London in 1894. The most important business of the meeting was the election of Christian Phildius of Berlin as an additional secretary. During part of the past year Herr Phildius has been acting as temporary secretary and has done good work in Austria, Russia, Finland, Sweden, Holland and other continental countries. Charles Fermaud of Geneva was elected as one of the secretaries of the committee. The increase of the secretarial force of the committee will involve an additional expenditure of 10,000 francs per annum. A sub-division of the work of the committee was provided for, giving M. Fermaud the supervision of the associations in the Latin countries, and Mr. Phildius those in the Teutonic countries. A number of important questions relating to the growth and improvement of the work, more particularly in continental countries, were carefully considered. Among the resolutions adopted was one on the "Paris basis" of membership, which was adopted by a convention held in Paris in 1885, and which is known to association men in America as the Portland test of active membership. The discussion of this resolution was opened with a paper by Thomas K. Cree of New York. The Paris basis is recognized by all the associations affiliated in the World's alliance, but is practically disregarded in some continental countries, where nominal membership in the state church is substituted for it. It was voted to hold the next world's conference in Basle, Switzerland, in August, 1898, after which the meeting adjourned sine die.

Furst Bismarck's New Record.

New York, Aug. 14.—The German steamer Furst Bismarck of the Hamburg-American line broke her own record from Southampton to New York, making the passage in seventy-nine minutes less time than ever before. Her time was six days, nine hours and forty-three minutes, and her best previous performance was six days, ten hours and thirty-two minutes. She encountered very smooth seas and calm weather all the way across, but reported much haze and fog. She came by way of Cherbourg, France.

Boston Waiters on Strike.

Boston, Aug. 14.—The waiters in various restaurants have been called out by the Waiters' union. Three dollars per week advance is demanded in salaries, which are no $7, and $4 per week is demand for "noon waiters." It is experted that many other restaurants in town will be struck.

Summer Hotel Partially Burned.

WRIGHT IS OUT NOW

His Resignation Accepted by Keystone Democratic Committee.

J. M. GARMAN THE NEW CHAIRMAN

The Recent State Convention at Allentown To Reconvene at Harrisburg—An Effort To Be Made To Change the Gold Platform to Silver.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 14.—John M. Garman of Luzerne county was elected chairman of the democratic state committee yesterday afternoon, to succeed Robert E. Wright of Allentown, whose resignation was accepted with a vote of thanks for his services in the past and regret that he cannot see his way clear to go along with the Chicago ticket and platform. This resolution was offered by City Chairman Curley of Philadelphia. There were a few who did not want to hear read either his letter of resignation or his correspondence regarding withdrawals of electors on the state ticket, but they were listened to in part as Secretary Savage hurriedly read the letters. It was agreed that the recent state convention held at Allentown should be reconvened in Harrisburg on Thursday, Sept. 10, at 12 o'clock for the purpose of filling vacancies on the ticket, amending the resolutions adopted at Allentown, which means the substitution, if possible, of a silver for the gold plank now in the platform, and the transaction of such other business as shall properly come before the convention. A resolution to appoint a committee to confer with a committee of populists regarding a joint electoral ticket was laid on the table with the suggestion that the convention was the proper body to deal with that question. But all this was not accepted without much speechmaking an indescribable confusion. The Harrity and anti-Harrity factions locked horns at the outset and they never fraternized throughout the proceedings. The result is regarded as a victory for neither faction, although the Kerr people say they are entirely satisfied. So also do the Harrity people.

TO OPPOSE SENATOR CAMERON

Resolutions Against His Re-election Adopted by Bradford, Pa., Republicans.

Towanda, Pa., Aug. 14.—At the Bradford county republican convention, held here yesterday afternoon, B. B. Mitchell was renominated for the state senate, and Louis Piollet, Robert S. Edmiston and Lawrence T. Manley were named for representatives. A full county ticket was also nominated. Resolutions urging their representatives to oppose the re-election of Mr. Cameron to the United States senate was adopted. The event of the day was an address by Galusha A. Grow, congressman-at-large from this state and a former citizen of Towanda. He presented the financial issues in a speech of an hour's length and was listened to with marked attention. He was frequently interrupted by applause.

W. J. DICKEY DEAD.

Bank President and Manufacturer Passes Away After an Illness of Months.

Baltimore, Aug. 14.—William James Dickey, bank president and head of the well-known woolen manufacturing company of William J. Dickey & Sons, died at his home at Wetheredville yesterday. He had been confined to his room for several months suffering from an attack of acute Bright's disease. Mr. Dickey was born in Ireland eighty-two years ago. For many years his firm operated woolen mills in Philadelphia as well as near this city, but of late years all their manufacturing was done in mills located within a few miles of Baltimore. Mr. Dickey had been president of the Manufacturers' National bank since its organization fifteen years ago.

Irish Land Bill Now a Law.

London, Aug. 14.—The house of lords last evening discussed the Irish land bill as it was re-amended by the house of commons. It was agreed not to oppose the lower house and to accept all the re-amendments except one, which, however, was later also agreed to by a vote of 74 to 58, despite the opposition of the landlords. The fact that the house of lords had accepted the bill was formally intimated to the house of commons, which briefly discussed and finally disposed of the measure. The bill will now become a law.

Killed at a Railroad Crossing.

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Mrs. Henry Benson was killed last night at Alexandus railroad crossing. She was returning from a soldier's picnic at Erie, when the horse became unmanageable. She swung him around by the side of the track and jumped out, but was caught between the engine beam and the carriage. Her head was badly cut and her neck and arms were broken.

Electricians at Schenectady.

Schenectady, N. Y., Aug. 14.—A large party of the delegates of the association of the Edison electric illuminating companies, in session at Manhattan Beach, came here yesterday on a special train and spent several hours viewing the operations of the General Electric works in this city. They went to New York on their special train last evening.

Maine Gold Democrats.

Portland, Aug. 14.—A call was issued last night for a mass convention of sound money democrats of Maine at Portland, Aug. 20, for the purpose of electing delegates to the national convention at Indianapolis and to choose presidential electors to support the nominees of that convention.

WHAT IS THIS DISEASAE CALLED DYSPEPSIA?

Like a thief at night, it steals in upon us unawares. The patients have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the month has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint, all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. Eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After awhile a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish colored expectoration. The patient feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the urine is scanty and high colored, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart; the vision becomes impaired with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All of these symptoms are, in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-third of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms. It has been found that medical men have mistaken the nature of this disease. Some have treated it for a Liver Complaint, some for Dyspepsia, others for Kidney Disease, etc., etc., but none of the various kinds of treatment have been attended with success.

Now, the Shaker Digestive Cordial causes the food eaten to be digested. This will cause an appetite for more food, and this being digested will result in an increase of strength, an increase of flesh and an increase of nerve power.

The tired, weary feeling will give way to vigor and courage. The pale, thin and emaciated will recover their color and plumpness, because red blood and fat are the result of properly digested food.

A ten cent trial bottle will produce a result. Its good effect will be realized at once. You will not have to take a dozen bottles to find out if it is doing you any good. Try it, and then give praise to the Shakers of Mount Lebanon, New York, for the relief that you obtain.

GOSSIP FROM CHICAGO.

Two Aldermen Exchange Some Neat Compliments.

Corruption in Various City Departments—Chief of Police Objects to Newspaper Enterprise—Figures Compiled from New City Directory.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

If you want to study human nature of a certain kind, or rather an uncertain kind, visit the Chicago council chamber when the honorable aldermen, who, in nine cases out of ten, misrepresent their constituents, are in session. The other night one of our city fathers arose and, turning to one of his esteemed colleagues, accused him of having attempted to bribe other esteemed colleagues, the speaker included, to vote for certain street railway ordinances. The honorable personage charged with this heinous offense breathed very hard and, addressing Mayor Swift, said, with more emphasis than elegance: "Mr. Mayor, all I want to say is that the gentleman who has just spoken is a liar." Thereupon his accuser retorted: "You're another;" and peace and harmony seemed to be restored. At the earnest solicitation of a few honest members of the council an investigating committee was appointed to inquire into the charges preferred in so public a manner; and if everything goes well this committee will, in due time, file a report that will arouse envy in the breast of every professional whitewasher in the land. Meanwhile the accused alderman has taken the press in his confidence and informed a score or more of reporters that his accuser was dead drunk when he made his sensational statement, and that he would recant as soon as the influence of liquor had worn off. As birds of a feather are supposed to be intimately acquainted with each other's frailties, it may be taken for granted that the trifling episode here recounted will be barren of results, as far as the public is concerned; and the boodlers will continue to give away public thoroughfares whenever corporations may show a willingness to put up a reasonable amount of money for the council's purchasable vote.

MAYOR SWIFT OF CHICAGO.

How Taxpayers Are Robbed.

That, with such a council, corruption should dominate other branches of the city government is but natural. For years important offices were given to ward bummers who were, in every sense, sores on the body politic. Several months ago the citizens voted for the establishment of a civil service commission, and although this body has not succeeded in accomplishing very much, yet its investigations have brought to light many abuses of a serious nature, notably in the street paving department. The commission was extremely slow in formulating charges against the offending officials, but a few days ago it announced itself to be ready for the trial of an inspector whose duty it was to see that paving contractors did work in accordance with their agreements. Instead of complying with his oath of office, this inspector importuned a contractor for bribes and condemned some of his material simply because he would not be bled. The taxpayers of Chicago pay millions of dollars every year for special paving assessments. In every instance the contracts call for the best work and choicest materials, and yet the pavements wear out within three or four years. The newspapers have time and again hinted at the dishonesty of the inspectors intrusted with superintending paving contracts, but until recently the aldermen and other city officials have been unanimous in denouncing such press reports as "silly sensations." The investigation about to be made by the civil service commission will prove that the newspapers have been on the right track, and the taxpayers will owe one more debt of gratitude to the editors of Chicago who have time and again stood between the public and a thieving, disgraceful council majority and their still more despicable henchmen in the various city offices.

DENIS J. SWENIE, CHIEF CHICAGO FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Wanted to Be a Dictator.

Speaking of municipal civil service reform reminds me of the peculiar action of Denis J. Swenie, chief of the Chicago fire department. This official has evolved, out of political chaos, a department famed throughout the country for its efficiency and perfect discipline. He has held his present position for many

GENT'S DEPARTMENT.

We have reduced our prices on all Summer Goods in this Department 20 per cent. This means you buy our Fifty Cent Shirt for 40c. And our One Dollar Shirt for 80c. We have also 1 lot White Cotton, extra heavy Sweaters all sizes, we sold them for 50c., but now at 33c.

HOUSEFURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Active preparations for the Fall trade are now being carried on. We have received our third important order, which we are rapidly placing on sale. Beautiful Statues and Bisque Figures, quaint German conceptions in China. Delicate and beautiful French China novelties, new patterns in cut glass—all bought direct from the factories in England, France and Germany, never having been opened in America. The prices of course must be low, as we have not only divided the profits with you, but saved the expense of unnecessary handling. You get the newest designs, freshest goods and save money by buying at houses which look to the importer and manufacturer instead of the auction room or bankrupt sales for their goods. In order to make room for the above named goods, we are compelled to sacrifice on other lines in the Basement as follows: Oil Stoves.—Any single burner Oil Stove in the department, 37c. Window Screens.—Side spring, fit any window, a few sizes left 29c. Give us a fair trial and we will give you satisfaction. "Life doesn't stop. It goes on through the ages. The voice of our brother will be silent, but his influence will live. Life finds larger fruition on the other side, where there are no sorrows, or temptations. Look forward and God-ward at that home where there is help.

"To the sister, who must walk alone through life; to the sons, who bear the honored name, and to the brothers bearing the same honor, my counsel is, whatever there was best in the life of the departed, emulate. May God, who gives abundant blessings, abide and fill this home and bring us all at last into that haven of rest."

Dr. Lewis closed his remarks with a comforting prayer, after which the quartette sang "Nearer My God to Thee."

The floral display was magnificent and beautiful, and an attempt to adequately give a description of it would be impossible. Among the larger pieces were two columns, one from the Exempt Firemen's Association, and the other from Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Potter's tribute was a wreath of roses and galax leaves, and another beautiful wreath was offered by Hon. John Kean, Jr., of Elizabeth.

A touching tribute was a cross of Passion flowers which occupied a prominent place. Another very touching piece was a large pillow of roses bearing the word "Grandpa," which was given by Frank A. Pope, Jr. In addition to the above their was a countless number of smaller wreaths and bunches of roses, which were given by kind and loving friends. On the casket, amidst a profusion of flowers, was noticed an excellent likeness of the decedent. The natural, lifelike appearance of the departed, as he lay in the costly and handsome plush casket, was remarked by all.

There were a number of prominent men present, including the Mayor of Plainfield, members of the City and Borough Councils, and men from every walk in life. Hon. John Kean, Jr., of Elizabeth, was also present.

After the services at the house the remains were placed in the receiving vault at Hillside, and when the proposed mausoleum is erected the body will be transferred.

—Randolph Stelle, of Central avenue, who has been ill for several days, is able to be out again.

—Marsh, Ayers & Co., the painters, will begin today to overhaul Prof. Leal's school on West Front street. The building is to be repainted both inside and out.

is at hand and is gladly welcomed by all, especially those whose duties in life have caused them to greatly run down their system to meet the requirements, physical and mental, forced upon them. With these and others, it is important, whether at home, at the seashore or in the country, that some thought be given to diet, and as further assistance to Nature, a good building up medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla had best be resorted to. If the digestion is poor, liver deranged and frequent headaches seem to be the rule, Hood s will change all this and enable everyone to return to their home and business in a refreshed state of mind and bodily health.

EVOLUTION OF COINAGE.

The Lydians Were First to Coin Standard Money.

All Kinds of Metals Have at Different Times Been Used for Purposes of Barter and Exchange—Leather and Tree Bark Tokens.

[Special Letter.]

The all-important issue in the coming campaign is in a certain sense a color question. White or yellow, silver or gold, is the cry of the warring factions, and the country awaits with bated breath the outcome of the strike which will decide whether a gold standard or an unlimited coinage of silver is to be adopted by the government of the United States.

At this time it is perhaps opportune to throw a retrospective glance into the history and evolution of the coinage of the world. The object of this article is not to discuss the relative values of metals employed by ancient or modern nations, or the advantages of gold or silver standards, as the memories of the long-winded Harvey-Horr debate of last summer are still too vivid not to cause a shudder at the slightest thought of them. It is simply confined to a synopsis of the origin and gradual development of metal currency.

The first nation to deviate from the most ancient method of trading by barter and exchange were in all probability the Lydians, who first coined money of a standard weight about 1200 B. C. The metal employed was a mixture of three or four-fifths of gold to near two-fifths of silver. This mixture was called electrum. The coins had a pale straw color and bore the impress of a die on one side, while the other showed only a rude and irregular punch mark. Of this earliest class of coinage there is no specimen in existence, but the British museum boasts of specimens of Lydian money coined of gold about 800 B. C. These coins were found in the ruins of Sardis. They contain about five dollars in gold, are of oval shape, and the obverse shows in juxtaposition the images of a bull and a lion, while the reverse simply bears the rough punchmark. Similar in fabrication is a gold coin of the Ionian city of Miletus, also preserved in the British museum. This specimen also dates from about 800 B. C., and the question of greater antiquity has never been fully decided, though the obtainable evidence slightly favors the Lydian coin.

The first silver coins were produced about 700 B. C. in Aegina, an island in the Greek archipeligo. Copper was not coined until about 300 years later. The gradual improvement in the manufacture of coins consisted at first only in the more artistic treatment of the obverse side, and more regularity in the impression of the punchmark. The types employed on the obverse of coins of the ancient nations were at first invariably representations of animals or inanimate objects symbolizing the deities which were revered in the various cities. As the art of coinage advanced, these gave place to idealized pictures of the deities themselves until the heads of the reigning rulers were generally adopted at the regal period. The first important improvement of the reverse consisted in making the punch correspond with the die, thus giving the design in relief on one side and an incussed impression of the same on the other. Coins with the obverse and the reverse in relief were first made in the Greek colonies on the Italian coast, about 510 B. C., and even previous to 500 B. C. this form was in general use.

Inscriptions on coins consisted at first only of one, two or three letters, placed either on the obverse or reverse, indicating the name of the government whose issue they were. The name of a prince appears first on a Macedonian coin of Alexander I. in the fifth century B. C. The first authenticated portraitheads are those of the various successors of Alexander the Great.

As to the shape in which coins have been issued, it is the circular form which has been aimed at in ancient coinage, since it is this form which simplifies the process of manufacture and diminishes the abrasion to which coins are subjected to in circulation. The true circle, however, was not attained by the ancients, and it was not until the seventh or eighth century A. D. that this was accomplished. The ancient exceptions to the circular form are very few. Most all deviations from the round shape are of modern origin. They are of the square ducat of Marienberg, the square rupees of the Mogul empire, the parallelograms of Siam and the octagonal pieces of Assam and the $50 octagons which were formerly struck in California.

Outside of the three standard metals, gold, silver and copper, most of the commoner metals have in turn been employed for the purpose of coinage, and history proves that even pieces of leather and tree bark have been stamped and used as coin of the realm. The Lacedaemonians, Byzantines and people of Clazamenae used iron money, and Lycurgus banished all gold and silver from Sparta in favor of this medium. Possibly this is the reason why he left Sparta never to return, for such an act of legislature was bound to bring down on him the unlimited wrath of the ladies of Sparta, who were thus compelled to use a cart and two oxen when going out on a little shopping tour.

The early Romans used copper and brass in their coinage, and when Julius Caesar landed in Britain coins of brass and iron were found in use. Dyonisius I., tyrant of Syracuse, coined tin, and a leaden stater, preserved in the British museum, proves that even the basest of all metals was employed at one time as circulating mediums. The Carthagenians used a kind of leather money, and Numa Pompilius, the second king of Rome, is said to have made coins both of wood and leather. Frederick Barbarassa, of crusade fame, and John the Good of France, also issued leather money, as did several other rulers at a later period. The British museum has a specimen of a sequim in leather of Francesco Carnaro. (1656). In the 13th century the celebrated traveler, Marco Polo, found a money in use in China which was made of the inner bark of the mulberry tree, cut into round pieces and stamped with the mark of the sovereign.

Next in antiquity to the coinage of the Lydians and Greeks is possibly that of the Chinese, who ever claims priority by asserting that their well-known coin, the bronze cash, was coined as early as 1120 B. C. But there is no certainty of the existence of any genuine specimen older than 247 B. C. The Hindoo coinage is also of early origin, but does not antedate the Greek or even the Roman, which dates from the fifth century B. C. The Egyptians began to coin money, in the modern sense of the term, with Ptolemy Soter, the first Greek ruler, 285 B. C., while the Hebrews had no national coinage of their own until the time of the Maccabees, when Simon, 144 B. C., by virtue of a decree of Antiochus, issued the shekel and half shekel with such inscriptions as "Shekel Israel," "Jerusalem the Holy" and "Simon, Prince of Israel."

The golden age of coinage dates back to the fourth century B. C., when the Greek cities in lower Italy and Sicily issued money which in point of art and skillful workmanship had not been surpassed by the best productions of modern mints. The art of coinage began to deteriorate in Greece shortly after the highest development; in Rome it dates from the third century A. D., and goes hand in hand with the debasement of silver. In the middle ages only barbaric coins, almost inferior to the early attempts of coinage, were made of silver and copper. Gold coins were unknown with the exception of the so-called Byzantines, which circulated in a very limited number in southern Europe. The modern age has witnessed a revival of the art of coinage and a steady improvement in the quality of metals employed, most civilized nations having readopted the most ancient standard of currency—gold.

S. KRAUSZ.

Sold the First Postage Stamp.

It is said that James Lafitte Smith, a clerk in the Washington post office, is the post office clerk who sold the first postage stamp and the first stamped envelope ever issued by this government, and who registered the first letters that were presented for registry when that system of mail protection was introduced in the United States. He entered the post office as a clerk in 1847, and is now 79 years old.

Portable Military Crematory.

A portable crematory for military purposes has been invented by a Polish engineer. It has the appearance of an army baking oven, but is much higher and heavier, and is drawn by eight horses. It is intended for the disposal of the bodies of soldiers killed in battle, so as to avoid the danger of epidemics from the burial of great numbers of men.

PROUD OF HIS RECORD.

Gen. Van Vliet, Oldest Living Officer in the Army.

During the Closing Year of the War He Spent Many Millions of Dollars Without Losing One Cent.

[Special Washington Letter.]

One of the most familiar figures on the streets of the national capital is that of Maj. Gen. Stewart Van Vliet, retired. He is short and stout, growing very stout, and his beard and hair have long been silvered by the touch of time. Although the oldest living officer in the army, he is sturdy, strong and intellectually vigorous. Moreover, he is one of the most entertaining conversationalists in our social life.

As the general entered Chamberlain's club one evening recently, an army officer remarked: "There goes a man who spent more money during the last three years of the civil war than any other man connected with the government. He disbursed fabulous sums, and yet made no mistakes." This remark was repeated to Gen. Van Vliet, with the inquiry: "How much money did you disburse, all told?"

"That would be hard to say," responded the veteran. "I never thought that it would be neither interesting or necessary to foot up a grand total. It was more than $100,000,000, and probably $200,000,000. It certainly was a big pile of money, come to think of it."

"How was it expended?"

"Well, you see I had been chief quartermaster of the Army of the Potomac, and Gen. Ingalls succeeded me. There was considerable money disbursed by me in that office; but when I went to New York city and was given entire charge of all transportation on the Atlantic coast east of the Allegheny mountains, I had a big job, and it took more money than I had ever dreamed of handling to properly carry on the business of my department. I not only had to look after ocean transportation, but all railway transportation of troops, ordnance material, quartermasters' stores and clothing, and all the supplies for the commissaries. I was obliged to make provision for every change of base and every expedition of the armies of the east; and they were always on the move."

"Did you have authority over the lines of transportation?"

"Certainly. I virtually controlled every railroad line east of the Alleghenies, and I controlled all of the shipping on the Atlantic coast, excepting the regular transatlantic steamer lines. It was in my power and discretion to take possession of every ocean-going craft, no matter how large or how small. All I had to do was to take possession in the name of the government, and the ship owners could but submit. Of course, when their business was injured, it was the duty of the government to indemnify them."

"Did you use many vessels?"

"Did I? Well I should say so. I had regular trip steamers. I had lines of ocean-going vessels making regular trips to the blockading squadrons, to all the fleets, and all of the naval and military stations along the coast. These vessels were organized and made regular trips to the various stations, as far as New Orleans, and each one had a specific duty to perform. I had 200 or 300 vessels thus regularly engaged on the ocean; but in addition to those boats I had hundreds and hundreds of steamers of all sorts on the rivers, sounds, bays and inland waterways. These were transports, dispatch boats, freight and supply boats some of them among the fastest craft afloat, and others under sail and under tow."

"How many ships were under your command?"

"Bless me if I know exactly; but there were more than 20,000 of them; more than were commanded by all the admirals in the world in times of war or in times of peace. The sailing vessels were of every description. No old sailor could name any class of boat but what it could be found in one of my fleets, somewhere, and doing some specific business for the government. The sailing vessels and steamboats named in the dictionary were all represented in my colossal navy; and it took considerable energy and push to keep track of all of them, and to keep them all in line of active duty. But I was a generation younger then than I am now, and it never tired or worried me to keep things moving."

The old man lighted a fresh cigar, one of the kind the naval officers bring into this country without paying duty on them, and he continued: "The tugboats were as thick as flies on a dead army mule. There were tugs in the rivers, tugs in the bays, tugs on the sound and tugs far out at sea. To a large extent those tugs constituted the tug of war; for some of them tugged large war ships into position."

"How did you arrange for big expeditions?"

"I sometimes knew the facts concerning proposed expeditions before the commanding officers knew that they were to be [illegible] I was always privately notified by the war department concerning a proposed expedition, how many troops were to participate, how many days' provisions must be carried, how many field pieces, how many horses, and everything in detail concerning the proposed movement. With these facts before me I would secure the vessels necessary, concentrate them, take possession of railroad lines and have everything in readiness. Then, when the general commanding an army received orders to move, he would find everything necessary already arranged for his transportation, and thus things went along smoothly."

"Did vessel owners or railroads offer obstacles to your movements?"

"Never to my recollection. Occasionally a small shipowner would object, but it was useless. The large shipowners were always very glad to receive employment by the government, because they received liberal compensation and prompt payment. But in those days, when the military power of the federal government was everywhere displayed, it would have been foolish for any steamer or railroad manager to offer obstacles to the movements of the armies. It would have been somewhat hazardous, for men were frequently convicted of disloyalty and sent to prison on slight provocation. When the life of the nation was at hazard, we gave little thought to the views or opinions of individuals. We went right ahead and did business in our own way.

"I do not now remember how many transports were employed in carrying the expedition of Gen. Banks around to New Orleans, but it was a big job. There were naval vessels accompanying the expedition to protect the transports; but, of course, I had no control of any naval vessels. The transports carried all of the troops in Banks' expedition, all of the horses, cattle, batteries, hard tack and other food, and it cost lots of money. I don't remember anything about the total amount, but it was immense.

"Then there were two expeditions against Fort Fisher; one under Gen. Butler, and the other under Gen. Terry. I moved the Eleventh and Twelfth corps from Virginia to Tennessee. I sent the Ninth corps to the relief of Knoxville. I floated Schofield's Twenty-third corps over into North Carolina. In some of those movements, and they were in a hurry, I had to grab cars and boats wherever I could find them. Then when my cars went west loaded with troops I had to chase after them with my most vigorous assistants, in order to get them back for future movements. Oh, if we didn't work in those days, no fellows ever worked. The men in the field never knew how it happened that things went so smoothly. When Gen. Sherman reached Savannah he found my fleets outside awaiting him with mails, provisions and ammunition. The old man complimented me very highly afterwards, and said that he did not expect to get any assistance for a week or ten days after reaching his destination. But there was my fleet; and wherever a regiment, brigade, division or army corps was to be moved I had the transportation ready at the time and place designated in general orders from the headquarters of the army.

"I have signed many a check for $100,000 to $500,000, and handed it over to my assistants to disburse in accordance with specific orders previously written by me. During the last year of the war I signed checks for $1,000,000. And how much do you suppose I lost during those busy and trying years of civil war? I settled my accounts with the government without having a single cent missing or unaccounted for. That is what I am most proud of in my military career. Of course it was a great commission, a responsible position, and any man might feel proud of having been placed in such supreme command. But the system of business was such that not a cent was lost in the disbursements of all those millions; and that is certainly something that a man may be proud of, and may even be excused for bragging about."

"While I was chief quartermaster of the army of the Potomac I signed all requisitions 'By order of Maj. Gen. McClellan,' and thus the general commanding the army was responsible for everything done by me. Several years after the war was over, Gen. McClellan wrote me from Orange, N. J., saying that the treasury department demanded $60 from him, on account of a disbursement which was not strictly in accordanme with the army regulations. I looked the matter up, found that under strict constructions of the regulations the order was not proper. No one but a namby-pamby would have found fault with the disbursement. No soldier would have objected to it. But inasmuch as the critical clerk in the treasury objected to that small amount I sent Gen. McClellan my check for $60, and let the matter go without taking the trouble to go to the treasury department and explain the matter. I don't often talk about war times, but you fellows have made me loquacious because you are such good listeners."
